

Chapter 1581 The Sanctuary Of Human Sovereign

After leaving the Vaughn family, Liam accompanied Christos to the Sanctuary of Human Sovereign in the Rosefinch Galaxy.

It was his first time officially visiting the Sanctuary of Human Sovereign.

Upon Liam's arrival in the Cosmic realm, Lindy had escorted him to the Sanctuary of Human Sovereign. However, it had been merely for the purpose of registering his identity. He hadn't ventured inside the Sanctuary of Human Sovereign itself.

Liam had heard about the Sanctuary of Human Sovereign many times before.

It was a unique organization of the Human Clan, and there are branches in four major planetary systems.

The main job of the Sanctuary of Human Sovereign was to manage its planetary systems, monitor cultivators, and locate individuals with impressive abilities. The Sanctuary of Human Sovereign was directly governed by the City Lord.

Many Human Sovereigns in the Human Clan had their origins in the Sanctuary of Human Sovereign, attesting to its immense power and significance.

The extensive network served as a testament to the enduring strength of the Sanctuary of Human Sovereign.

Liam trailed Christos, and soon, they found themselves at the entrance of the Sanctuary of Human Sovereign.

Christos turned towards Liam, a smile on his face. "Are you nervous, Liam?"

he asked.

Liam returned a smile of his own and replied, "I wouldn't say nervous, but I do feel quite fortunate. Getting into the Sanctuary of Human Sovereign is an invaluable opportunity for me."

A smile spread across Christos' face, and he was clearly pleased with Liam's reply. "You've got a way with words!" He chuckled. "Follow me and stay close. The Sanctuary of Human Sovereign is massive, and we don't want you getting lost."

"Okay, Mr. Ellis," Liam promptly responded.

Liam followed Christos to the gates of the Sanctuary of Human Sovereign. Christos produced an intricately designed token and carefully inserted it into a slot above the gate. As soon as the token made contact, a brilliant golden light shone on the gate.

"Stay close to me," Christos instructed before stepping in through the door first.

Liam's heart brimmed with curiosity, eager to see what lay inside the Sanctuary of Human Sovereign.

The moment he crossed the threshold, Liam felt a ripple in the space surrounding him.

It was as if he had passed through not just a door but a portal connecting two different realms.

As Christos noticed the intrigued expression on Liam's face, he decided to offer an explanation.

"The Sanctuary of Human Sovereign isn't situated within any planetary system. Each of its branches is constructed in a distinct space—outside the bounds of any planetary system. Not only does this arrangement keep the elders of the Sanctuary of Human Sovereign from being frequently seen in public, but it also aids in the uninterrupted cultivation of the geniuses residing here."

"I see." Liam nodded, understanding the situation. Without Christos' explanation, he wouldn't have understood the deeper significance behind the construction of the Sanctuary of Human Sovereign.

Liam had previously learned from Christos that a massive law power tree existed within the Sanctuary of Human Sovereign in the Rosefinch Galaxy. Although he had no clear idea of what the law power tree looked like or the full extent of the law power it contained, he still possessed some knowledge about the law power tree.

The law power tree, in essence, was a convergence of the law power from innumerable facets of the universe, intertwining to form a spiritual tree.

Its growth spanned countless eons.

Such was the immense strength of the law power tree that merely cultivating under it could provide the law power within a cultivator's body an opportunity to undergo transformation. This was precisely what Christos had meant when he had spoken of giving Liam the opportunity to solidify his foundation.
