

Chapter 1588 Becoming A Second-level Primogem King

Under the crushing wave of law power, Liam remained a statue of composure.

His unwavering gaze fixed straight ahead, as if the wave were nothing but a gentle breeze. With deliberate grace, he sat down, his legs folded.

As his eyelids descended, a profound stillness washed over his consciousness.

Since arriving, his thoughts had been a tempest of urgency. He had been consumed by the need to hone his newfound powers because he wanted to save Julie and Asher from the Saint Society soon.

But now, like morning mist clearing before the sun, Liam banished all distracting thoughts.

At that moment, he existed in his purest form.

His mind became a blank canvas, his body still.

Serenity enveloped him completely.

The overwhelming wave of law power, which should have crushed all in its path, began to diminish the moment Liam assumed his meditative pose, his mind a lake without ripples.

With each meter the wave advanced, its height diminished by one-tenth.

Just then, thunder split the heavens, as if nature itself acknowledged Liam's resolution or perhaps was moved by his profound understanding.

By the time the wave of law power reached Liam, it had dwindled to a mere shadow of its former self, standing just one meter tall.

The previously fierce and chaotic aura of the wave had become astonishingly pure.

With keen insight, Liam detected the wave's true composition—a blend of the Death Power and the Law Power of Five Elements.

His observation proved accurate.

Yet the revelation stirred nothing within him.

The law power tree was testing him like this because it wanted him to clear his mind of his obsessions.

Though Liam achieved this pristine state of mind, his resolve to rescue Julie and Asher from the Saint Society remained unshaken.

He knew the law power tree just sought his complete devotion to training.

The moment Liam's cultivation technique reached its zenith, primogem energy coursed through his veins, drawing in every trace of source power from the law power wave.

Heat blazed through his body, leaving him restless with untamed energy.

The Death Power within him surged exponentially, matched stride for stride by the Law Power of Five Elements.

Liam's understanding of the law power increased rapidly until it crescendoed to 10%!

Without warning, a powerful vibration echoed from the depths of Liam's core.

He finally reached the breakthrough he had wanted for so long.

The primogem energy within him began to surge rapidly.

The primogem energy in this realm transformed into a mighty whirlpool, its currents racing through every meridian in Liam's body with unstoppable force.

With unwavering focus, Liam channeled all his concentration into mastering this deluge of primogem energy, weaving it seamlessly into his body.

Simultaneously, he strained every fiber of his being to expand his meridians, preparing them for even greater power.

This was crucial for him to utilize the primogem energy more effectively in the future.

The days melted into one another as Liam remained motionless in deep meditation. Soon, ten days had passed.

Finally, today marked the moment his aura settled into perfect harmony.

His mastery of the Death Power and the Law Power of Five Elements had both transcended their previous limits, soaring to an impressive 13%!

When Liam's eyes finally flickered open, raw power radiated from his body.

He had ascended to the ranks of a second-level Primogem King!

This was more than mere advancement; it was a golden opportunity seized at the perfect moment.

The pure law power that had surged through him hadn't just broken his barriers; it had catalyzed a cascade of profound breakthroughs.
