

Chapter 1597 Running Into Lindy By Chance.

Liam had always been driven by the desire for level-five authorization. Now, standing as a second-level Primogem King, his ambition spurred him to strive relentlessly towards his goal.

Not caring whether Christos was observing him, Liam thanked his unseen supporters and made his way toward the gate of the Sanctuary of Human Sovereign.

After Liam had left, Christos materialized right where Liam had been moments before.

As he watched Liam leave, Christos spoke under his breath. "Liam, we've done everything possible to aid you. It's all up to you now."

Liam was unaware of Christos' brief appearance after he had left.

He had already returned to the Revelation Planetary System and went straight to the mission briefing room.

At the level-four mission release device, Liam carefully reviewed the available tasks, looking for the right challenge.

Just then, a familiar voice unexpectedly echoed beside him.

"Liam? Are you here for a mission, too?"

Liam turned toward the source of the voice.

It was Lindy, whom he hadn't seen in quite a while.

Thinking back, Liam believed Lindy had been a tremendous help during his initial rise to the Cosmic realm.

Liam's face lit up with a smile, and he chuckled. "Lindy, what a delightful surprise! Are you here to take on a mission as well?"

Lindy returned the smile and nodded. "Yeah. I've just been bumped up to level four authority."

Her expression radiated pride.

Although she knew her advancements paled next to Liam's rapid climb, she was thrilled nonetheless and wanted to celebrate this moment with him.

Lindy's mindset was straightforward, and her words overflowed with the genuine hope that Liam would rejoice in her success.

Liam clearly understood Lindy's sentiment, and his smile widened as he stepped closer to her. "Lindy, you're climbing the ranks at an impressive pace. Congratulations."

Lindy chuckled, her joy evident. Remembering they were both here for more than just pleasantries, she asked, "Liam, have you picked out a mission yet?"

Liam's face shifted slightly at the question. He then admitted, "Not yet. I checked out the level four missions earlier, and honestly, the rewards don't seem worth the hassle. I'm still on the lookout for a mission that offers great rewards."

Lindy didn't judge him for his ambition. She knew well that for someone of Liam's caliber, managing time efficiently was crucial.

With this in mind, Lindy shelved her initial idea of teaming up with Liam for a mission.

Yet, a trace of disappointment flickered in her eyes; this could have been her last chance to work alongside Liam.

After all, the gap between their skills and achievements was growing rapidly.

Facing Lindy, Liam caught the slight glimmer of disappointment in her gaze and instinctively grasped the unspoken thoughts swirling in her mind.
