

Chapter 961 Business Meeting

The business meeting finally began.

Liam appeared in front of the crowd, holding Julie by the arm. She wore a beautiful, white, low-cut dress.

As soon as they entered the scene, all the important and powerful people surrounded them, presenting all sorts of gifts.

"Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman! Please accept these!"

"These aren't so expensive, but they were chosen by us with sincerity. Please accept them."

There were many expensive things being offered, but Liam pushed the gifts aside.

"Listen up, all of you. There shall be no more bribery in Salem in the future. Besides, I don't like receiving gifts. I detest bribery," he declared.

Everyone quickly stopped offering gifts, nodding in agreement.

Liam stepped aside for Julie to take over.

Julie was completely ready. She quietly walked to the stage.

"These past few days, I have carefully and thoroughly sorted all areas. So far, we have twenty areas to choose from. Each enterprise could participate in several areas according to its own situation. If we want to make more money, we're going to have to work together in the future."

While everyone was listening carefully to Julie, someone suddenly broke through the gate of Sky Orchid Garden.

The man guarding the front door hurried forward with urgency to stop the person. He stopped once he realized it was just a woman.

"Excuse me, Miss. Do you have an invitation?" he asked.

The woman stopped in her tracks and slowly took off her hat, revealing her face.

She had soft features and eyes that were seductive yet delicate. Her dress revealed a lot of her flawless, jade-like skin.

Only a small amount of black leather covered her, making her curves super visible.

The guard was middle-aged, and like every other foolish and typical man, he was absolutely mesmerized by her.

A charming smile immediately formed on her face.

"I'm sorry. I was extremely anxious when I left my house today. I accidentally forgot my invitation. Could you please let me in?"

She eyed the guard up and down as she spoke so flirtatiously that the guard could barely stand straight.

He swallowed hard.

He would definitely let her in without a second thought if he owned the place, but remembering General Hoffman was the one having a meeting inside, he clenched his jaw and refused.

"You're going to have to get your invitation, Miss."

The woman's smile dropped. With one swift move, she knocked the guard down.

Then, she dusted off her clothes and walked in.

Carsen had heard the sound of fighting and rushed over.

He stood in the woman's way to stop her immediately. He was not attracted by the woman's beauty. Instead, anger filled his heart.

Who did she think she was, barging in on such an important day?

"Get out of here!"

With that, Carsen launched himself at her.

A short sigh escaped the woman's lips. "The things I have to go through," she muttered.

She moved forward as well, easily blocking Carsen's attack despite looking weak and slender.

Then, she fought back gracefully.

In a split second, she had overpowered Carsen, a second-level Primogem Warrior.
