

Strongest 1231

Chapter 1231: Felix's Unexpected Move

A day after the Pope had ordered Audrey and the ten Inquisitors to go to the meeting place that William had decided on, an unexpected incident happened in the Central Continent.

Felix, who was thought to be biding his time in the Zabia Kingdom, made an unexpected move that threw the Alliance's as well as the Holy Order's plan into disarray.

The Demon Army had suddenly appeared in the territory of the Elun Empire, which was located between the territories of the Kraetor Empire, and the Ares Empire that belonged to the Amazons.

Due to how sudden these events were, and due to the location, it would be impossible for the forces of the Alliance or the Holy Order of Light, who were in the southwestern regions of the Central Continent, to come to their aid in a short period of time.

All the Kingdoms, and Empires had sent a fifth of their total army to participate in the Alliance and Crusade against Felix, so their lands were not completely defenseless.

Even so, there were very few things that they could do if their opponents were Demigods, and Pseudo-Gods.

After a fierce battle, a quarter of the Elun Empire was taken over by the Demon Army in less than a day. If not for the fact that the empire itself was standing on a Ley Line, and was using it to invoke a protective barrier on the cities near its capital, the Demon Army might have taken more land.

For now, the Pseudo-Gods and Demigods of the Holy Order went to reinforce their ally because no one else would be of any help to the Elun Empire, which was currently holding back the Demonic Invasion through gritted teeth.

After hearing the news, the Pope decided to prevent any of the Virtues from going into battle.

Now that Melody, Shana, and Audrey were not in the Palace of Light, they would be unable to use the special formations that could deal a sufficient threat to Felix and the Pseudo-Gods under his command.

"What we must do right now is endure," the Pope said to the remaining members of the Seven Virtues in the conference room. "We can't allow any of you to be kidnapped again. The enemy is too cunning and the Six-Eared Macaque can transform into almost anything. It will be best to let the Pseudo-Gods deal with them first."

Lira and Ephemera nodded their heads in agreement. Although the Virtues were strong, they were not a match against Pseudo-Gods who had broken the balance of their world.

"Should we not recall Audrey?" Cherry asked. "Isn't it dangerous for her to meet with that Dark Prince? What if he captures her, too?"

"You don't have to worry about that," the Pope answered. "The Dark Prince cannot break the contract and vice versa. Audrey will be safe. We just need to know Melody's and Shana's condition and make sure that they are fine."

"I bet they are being tortured right now," Cherry said with an aggrived look on her face. "That Dark Prince is scum."

Lira's lips were twitching because she was fighting the strong urge to pinch the little girl's cheeks for bad mouthing her beloved William. If not for the fact that Ephemera's hand had pressed down on her leg from under the conference table, the Virtuous Lady of Temperance might have already stood from her seat and pulled the little girl's cheeks out of irritation.

Celeste and Claire were paying close attention to Lira's and Ephemera's expressions. With a single glance, they could see the irritation on Lira's face, while Ephemera remained calm. Their suspicion that the two ladies had an agreement with William rose, which made them exchange a glance at each other.

"All of you will stay here in the Palace of Light," the Pope stated before standing up from her seat. "I will give you more details once our forces have engaged with the Demons. For now, stay put. Especially you, Cherry. You like to sneak away due to your Divinity. I'm telling you now that you are not allowed to do it."

"Fine," Cherry answered with a pout. She had already planned to follow Audrey and check for herself that Shana and Melody were fine. Her power allowed her to turn invisible, and very few people could detect her in this state.

If not for William's System, he might have not been able to see Cherry spying in his talks with Melody and Shana back then.

Floor of Asgard...

"... Elun Empire," William muttered. "Should I make a move as well?"

The Kraetor Empire was Princess Sidonie's second home. It was also where she and William got married, so the Half-Elf didn't want his wife's second home to fall into ruin.

Also, just like the Kraetor Empire, the Ares Empire, which was the home of the Amazons, was also Elun Empire's neighbor. It was only natural for the two Empires to support their ally, and reinforce them during the Demon Army's invasion.

"If I was Felix, I will definitely target the Ares Empire next," William said softly as he looked at the Map of the Central Continent.

He was well aware of what Felix was doing with the women of the territories that he had conquered. Also, the Demon Race was always looking for talented women to bring to the Demon Realm to sire strong Demons for them.

If one were to think about it, the Empire that the Demon Army would surely decide to conquer next would be none other than the Amazon Empire, where the strongest women of the Central Continent could be found.

"Astrape, Bronte, Titania, Triton, and the Nymphs, come!" William ordered and the seven Pseudo-Gods appeared in front of him.

They looked at the black-haired teenager's serious expression and realized that something big must have happened for the Half-Elf to have that kind of look on his face.

"Astrape, Bronte, and Titania, go to the Ares Empire to reinforce them if they get attacked by the Demon Army," William stated. "The Nymphs and Triton will go to the Kraetor Empire to act as support. Make sure to hide your identities, and make the enemies think that you are the hidden Trump Cards of the two Empires. No matter what happens, you can't let them know that you are connected to me. Do I make myself clear?"

""""Yes, Master!""""

William was tempted to send Sepheron with them, but the Black Phoenix would easily be recognized by his enemies. If that were to happen, Felix might become suspicious about how William suddenly got strong beings to be his subordinates.

This was a secret that William wanted to keep for as long as he could. That way, when he and Felix clashed, the green-haired Demon, who was also known as the Heir of Darkness, wouldn't be able to react to his trump cards.

Now that the situation in the Central Continent had changed once again, the tension between the different factions would rise once again.

'Did he attack under Ahriman's orders?' William thought. 'If yes, then I need to speed up my preparations as well.'

The image of Melody and Shana appeared in the black-haired teenager's mind for a brief moment. The two girls had somewhat gotten closer to him in their own way, which started with a simple kiss.

'I guess I need to put the finishing touches on those two as well,' William thought. 'Although I planned to keep them for a month, the Holy Order needs them right now. I guess I'll just let them stay for a few more days then have Audrey escort them back to the Palace of Light.'

The Half-Elf believed that the two Virtuous Lady had somewhat accepted the fact that not all Demons were bad. Also, their relationships with Invidia and Superbia were surprisingly decent as well.

The black-haired teenager wasn't dense, so he could feel the budding feelings that were taking root in Melody's heart. However, right now, he couldn't afford to take chances and corrupt her, making her similar to Chloe, who had embraced the Darkness and had transformed into a Succubus.

Although he was curious about what would happen if a Virtuous Lady was corrupted by Darkness, he still thought that doing this was something that he didn't want to do. As for what would happen in the future, even the Prince of Darkness couldn't see past through the black veil that hung before him.

Chapter 1232: Those That Had Taken A Spot In The Dark Prince's Heart

After returning to the Floor of Asgard, and talking to his uncle, Morgan, William found out that the majority of the people in Lont had successfully migrated to the Floor of Asgard with the help of the Bifrost Bridge.

Jekyll was the only one that remained in Lont to look after the residents who were still in the process of preparing for their relocation.

After the war in the Southern Continent, James had taken the orphans of the Hellan Kingdom back to Lont in order to give them a safe place to stay.

After William had conquered the Floor of Asgard, the original inhabitants of Lont migrated at James' recommendation. Others stayed to look after the orphans who had just started to adapt to the countryside's way of living.

However, since the threat of a grand-scale war, that could potentially impact the entirety of the world, was about to take place, James had returned to the Floor of Asgard to make the migration to the Floor of Asgard a compulsory one.

After overseeing the first half of the migration, James left the work to Morgan and Jekyll before leaving the Tower of Babylon to look for Vlad, who was currently somewhere in the Central Continent.

The old coot also planned to visit the Misty Sect and have the Sect migrate to the Floor of Asgard as well, becoming one of its armed forces, in preparation for the upcoming war with the Heir of Darkness.

William just returned to the Thousand Beast Domain from his meeting with his Uncle Morgan. After receiving Chloe's confirmation that the envoy of the Holy Order of Light was already on its way, he decided to tell the Virtuous Ladies, Melody and Shana, that Audrey would be coming to meet them.

The moment the two heard this news, they immediately started to beam with happiness. However, this happiness disappeared just as fast as it came.

They had already adapted to life in the Thousand Beast Domain after staying there for almost a week and, truth be told, a part of them didn't want to leave due to how comfortable it was to live there.

Suddenly, Shana asked William if he was free to drink her blood at that very moment.

Thinking that the blue-haired beauty wanted to go home faster, William agreed to her request and brought the two ladies inside his room. However, the moment the two sat on his bed, an awkward silence fell inside the room, making William look at them in confusion.

"What's wrong?" William asked the two beautiful ladies who were seated on his bed and were looking at him with beet-red faces. "Are the two of you not feeling well?"

"William, I have a question for you," Shana said. "Invidia said that we would gain more Merit Points if we allowed you to drink our blood in a different place. Is this true?"

William blinked in confusion. "What different place?"

"I-Invidia said that you give her double the amount of Merit Points when you drink her blood from her...", Shana wasn't able to continue her words because her face couldn't go any redder from embarrassment.

Melody remained quiet the whole time, but she was sneaking side-glances at the Half-Elf who was looking at the two of them in confusion.

Shana wasn't able to take it any longer and decided to whisper the things she wanted to say to William, making the latter understand why the two Virtuous Ladies were blushing so hard.

"Well, is it true?" Shana asked with a determined look on her face.

"Yes," William replied. "But, I knew that the two of you were not ready for something like that, so I didn't tell it to you on purpose. Also, both of you only need to give me your blood for three more days. After that, you will be free. There's no need for you to do something like this."

The Half-Elf had already achieved the goal he had in mind when he brought the two Virtuous Ladies to the Thousand Beast Domain.

The first one was to allow them to live alongside Demons and understand that they weren't as bad as the Pope portrayed them to be, and the second one was to make the Virtues not afraid of him.

His main goal was to make Melody and Shana understand that he wasn't their enemy. By doing so, any actions that the Pope would take against William would be met by resistance within the members of the Seven Virtues.

Not only would this prevent the Pope from one-sidedly dictating that this was the correct path to take, it would also allow the Virtues to gain the courage to defy her orders, which was William's true goal from the very beginning.

The Seven Deadly Sins, and the Seven Virtues, were the pillars that governed the world.

If he was able to make these two sides work together then the Holy Order of Light would be unable to push the agenda of their Crusade against him.

"T-This, I also understand," Shana stuttered. "But, since we will finish our duties of supplying you with our blood in three days, I need to find a way to gain more Merit Points in a short period of time."

"I see." William nodded in understanding. "There are still some matters that I need to finish, so how about this? I can meet the two of you tonight. You can choose to do it in my room, or yours."

"Let's do it in our room," Shana replied. "I also want to show you something tonight."

"Oh? What is it?"

"Just wait for tonight. Anyway, we will go now."

Shana held Melody's hand and whisked her away from William's room, leaving the Half-Elf behind.

A few minutes later, Invidia entered the room with a mischievous smile on her face.

"Did Melody and Shana talk to you about the new method of gaining Merit Points?" Invidia asked.

"You're quite evil," William commented. "You really want to make those two girls fall for me."

Invidia shrugged as she transformed into the beautiful elf, Celine, and cupped William's face.

"Can you tell me with all honesty that you didn't intend for this to happen when you asked them to donate their blood to you?" Invidia asked. "I know you are, surprisingly, a gentleman, but I also know that you are a schemer. Since you didn't push Melody and Shana to the brink, my opinion of you became better. Or... did you just not find the two of them attractive enough for you?"

Instead of answering, William pressed his lips over Invidia's lips to shut her up. The kiss lasted for half a minute before the Half-Elf pulled back.

Invidia smiled as she removed the one-piece dress she was wearing, and pulled William's head to her chest.

Celine's fragrance, which the Half-Elf had missed washed over his senses, and the warmth of her body slowly thawed the coldness that William was feeling at the moment.

"Both of them are very attractive, so beauty is not the problem," William replied as he buried his face in Celine's bountiful chest, which he loved very much. "I'm just afraid of corrupting them, that's all."

"Hmph! And you are not afraid of corrupting me?"

"You can't corrupt what is already corrupted."

"Hey! That's mean!" Invidia lightly pounded William's head with her closed fists in anger. "I'm still a chaste maiden okay? You might have already marked my upper half as yours, but the bottom part is still off limits. This is the condition we agreed on."

"Don't worry, I'm not interested in your chastity," William replied as he cupped the two soft mounds that overflowed from his hands. "This is the only thing I need from you, nothing else."

"Hah~ after all I've done for you," Invidia shook her head before wrapping her hands around William's neck. "Fine. Have it your way, but give me additional Merit Points for my effort to make those two ladies give you what you want."

"... Fine," William replied as he kneaded Invidia's chest, who had taken Celine's appearance, in a sensuous manner. "Although it is not my intention to do this to them, I might as well accept if they offer it willingly."

"I look forward to seeing how their faces will look when morning comes."

"You're really evil."

"Not as evil as you," Invidia said as she guided William's lips to the center of her breast, where a small cherry was waiting to be eaten.

Just as William was about to claim Invidia's offering, the latter whispered something in his ear, which made him pause for a short moment.

"I envy your wives," Invidia said softly. "To have someone like you as their husband is both a blessing and a curse."

William digested Invidia's words before sinking his fangs into her sensuous body. Since Invidia had taken Celine's appearance, the shape of her breast, as well as the taste of her blood was exactly the same.

As the Half-Elf drank the blood of the woman that was carrying his child in her womb, he wondered what would have happened if he hadn't gone to the Demonic Continent to look for her?

Would the ending have been different?

Perhaps it would have been different.

Perhaps his wives would still be alive, too. However, something else would have had to pay the price for their safety, and that would have been Celine, who had been marked as the bride of the Heir of Darkness.

If William hadn't gone to the Demon Realm to find Celine then perhaps she would have had no other choice but to bear Felix's child, which was something he would never wish to happen to her.

In the end, he tossed these mundane thoughts aside as he continued to drink the warm and delicious blood on his lips.

'What has happened has already happened,' William thought as he allowed himself to be held by the young lady who had taken the form of his beloved. 'The only thing I can do is move forward. I don't care where this road takes me, so long as I find them waiting for me at the end of this journey, then I don't care if I go to hell.'

Perhaps, because she could feel the sudden change in William's mood, Invidia lightly patted his head and hummed a lullaby.

Although their relationship was purely a business transaction, the Sin of Envy truly felt envious of the people who had taken their spot in the Dark Prince's heart.

Chapter 1233: My Faith Is In Your Hands [Part 1]

That night, William entered Melody's and Shana's room.

Originally, he wanted to give them separate rooms, but the two Virtuous Ladies rejected this idea. Since they were in enemy territory, being separated was the last thing they wanted to have happen.

Because of this, William gave them one of the spacious guest rooms in his Villa that wasn't being used.

The moment William entered the room, he paused because what he saw made him wonder if he entered the wrong room by accident.

However, after looking at the two beautiful ladies who were looking back at him, he recognized them as the two Virtues who had asked him to meet them later tonight.

"Those night dresses look good on both of you," William complimented the two girls who were both wearing a set of silky nightwear that highlighted the curves of their bodies.

Melody was wearing a black, one-piece nightdress. Although it had a semi-conservative design, it was vastly different from the plain robes that the Virtuous Lady of Faith wore on a daily basis, making the contrast between her usual attire quite striking

Shana, on the other hand, was a bit more adventurous. As someone who pursued fashion, even her nightwear was enough to make any fashion aficionado give her a thumbs up for her choice of clothes.

As if trying to match her sister, Shana wore a Lace Waistband Nightgown. The ends of her white, lacey-skirt reached only halfway between her thigh and her knees. The entire nightgown was only being held up by a strap that hung around her neck, completely leaving her back bare for anyone to see.

If the lady of Lust, Eros, saw Shana right now, she would definitely give the young lady her stamp of approval for being bold enough to wear such clothing.

Melody, who heard William's praise, lowered her head in embarrassment, while a blush appeared on Shana's face. Even for the blue-haired beauty, the nightwear she was wearing felt so breezy, that she had the thought that she wasn't wearing anything at all.

Shana was certain that if the Pope of the Holy Order of Life saw her right now, the old woman would either collapse due to heart-attack, or suffer from a stroke.

The blue-haired beauty knew that it would be impossible for her to wear this kind of clothing when she returned to the Palace of Light, so she decided to see what William's reaction would be to her nightdress, while she was still in the Thousand Beast Domain.

Fortunately, her choice was good and she received a compliment that made her feel happy inside.

William walked towards the two ladies to take a closer look. Melody lowered her head as she used her hands to cover her chest, to prevent the black-haired teenager from looking at it.

Shana on the other hand, placed her hands on her waist, and puffed up her chest, as if telling the Half-Elf to look as much as he wanted.

"They look really great on both of you," William commented. "Make sure to not let your sisters or the Pope see the two of you in this attire."

"And why should we?" Shana asked. Although she had no plans to show this nightdress to any of her sisters, she was quite curious about what the black-haired teenager was going to say next.

Even Melody perked up her ears and waited with bated breath for William's answer.

"It's because I want to be the only one to see you girls like this," William said. Although he tried to hide it, there was a trace of possessiveness in it that didn't escape Melody's and Shana's ears, making their hearts beat wildly inside their chests.

William reached out to hold Melody's and Shana's hands before gently pulling them off the bed and close to his body. The two girls didn't resist and, soon, the two of them found themselves staring into William's golden eyes which glowed faintly in the dim room.

"I won't force the two of you to do anything you don't like," William said. "So, feel free to tell me if you girls want me to stop, okay?"

William didn't wait for their replies and lowered his head to plant a kiss on both of their foreheads. Since the two girls were shorter than him by a head, it was fairly easy for him to do that.

After getting kissed, Shana raised her head and closed her eyes. A second later, she felt William's soft, and warm, lips pressing against hers, which caught her by surprise.

She was already used to the cold sensation of William's body after spending several nights with him. Because of this, she also knew that his body would eventually warm up after he had drunk some blood.

Although Shana was tempted to ask William whose blood he had drunk before he came into their room, his soft, and gentle kisses made her forget the question that had appeared in her head.

Half a minute later, William pulled back and looked at Melody who was also looking back at him. The Half-Elf lowered his head in her direction, and the latter didn't back away. The moment their lips touched, Melody's body shuddered for a bit before she closed her eyes to accept William's kiss.

The last time, William didn't use his tongue to kiss her. However, this time, his tongue parted her lips and gently poked her tongue.

Melody had seen how William had kissed Shana, so she had an understanding of what she should do right now. Soon, her tongue clumsily poked William's tongue back. A moment later, the two were like fencers trying to outdo each other, leaving Melody almost out of breath.

William pulled back at the right moment, giving her time for a breather.

Melody took this opportunity to lift up on her tiptoes to initiate a kiss with William, using her tongue to pry his lips open.

Soon, the Virtuous Lady of Faith sucked, licked, and kissed William's tongue, who remained motionless, allowing her to do whatever she wanted with it.

The moment their lips parted, a silvery string remained, connecting the two of them together before it broke away.

"Melody, stick out your tongue," William said softly.

Although it was said in a gentle manner, it was clearly an order, which made Melody's heart skip a beat.

A moment later, she stuck her tongue out between her sensuous lips and allowed William to have his way with them, just like what Shana had done to him a while ago.

Melody was almost out of breath when the Half-Elf turned his attention back to Shana, to give her another passionate kiss.

Several minutes later, only the sound of kissing could be heard inside the room, as three people held each other in a warm embrace, sharing passionate kisses with each other.

It was Shana who broke away first, and pulled the Half-Elf to the bed. William had just taken a seat on the bed when the blue-haired beauty untangled the lace behind her neck, causing the upper half of her nightwear to fall down from her young, and delicate body.

William stared at her chest which was laid bare for him to see before looking up at Shana who was looking at him with anticipation.

"This is just a business transaction," Shana tried to say with a straight face. "I only want more Merit Points, so please, don't get the wrong idea."

The black-haired teenager nodded before wrapping his hands around her waist to pull her closer to him.

"Are you ready?" William asked.

"Yes," Shana answered.

William moved his lips closer and kissed Shana's...

The blue-haired beauty wasn't expecting this kind of treatment from William, but she didn't make any move to stop him.

William kissed, licked, sucked, and lightly nibbled the shapely breast that was right in front of him.

Although Shana tried to endure it, she was still swept away by William's soft and gentle attacks, which she was experiencing for the first time.

Melody, who was watching from the side, was blushing fervently due to the handsome Half-Elf's actions.

Two minutes later, William opened his lips and extended his fangs. He had done his best to endure, but he finally reached his limit and gave in to his desire.

Just when Shana's body had become more sensitive due to his sensuous attacks, he finally bit down, and sank his fangs on her delicate, and tender breast, sending a shiver running down Shana's spine, momentarily making her mind go blank with a pleasure that painted her world white.

Chapter 1234: My Faith Is In Your Hands [Part 2]

(Disclaimer: Minor R-18 scenes. Nothing too Ahem.)

The sound of licking, kissing, and suckling spread inside the room as William's tongue, and lips wandered all over Shana's right breast, raising her sensitivity, and making her feel so good, that her knees had already turned to jelly.

Fortunately, the Half-Elf was supporting her waist, so the moment she lost her strength to stand, he laid her down gently on the bed before continuing to savor the proud peaks that she had offered to him.

William's left hand had already moved to her left breast and gently kneaded it, while playing with the pink tip that had started to become firm with his fingers. Whenever the Half-Elf bit, and pinched the pink nipples of the blue-haired beauty under him, a sweet sigh of pleasure would escape Shana's lips, making Melody, who was watching from the side, feel something hot start to spread inside her body.

At first, the Virtuous Lady of Faith only felt a burning sensation on her cheeks due to embarrassment, but as time went on, she felt a tingling sensation start to spread in her chest then down into her lower abdomen, which was something that she hadn't felt before.

'What is this feeling?' Melody thought as she tried to endure the ache, which was starting to spread inside her body like wildfire.

While the beauty, with long reddish-brown hair, stood in confusion about the unfamiliar sensations that she was feeling inside her body, William continued to savor Shana's blood, as well as the sweet sighs that came from her seductive lips.

A quarter of an hour later, William licked and kissed the wounds that were located just an inch above Shana's right nipple in order to heal them completely.

After doing so, he looked at the blue-haired beauty who was still panting for breath. He kissed her forehead then her cheeks, before giving her one swift kiss on the lips before whispering something in her ear.

"Thank you," William whispered before pulling back to caress the side of her face. "Did you feel good?"

"Yes," Shana replied before cupping William's face. "You better give me a bonus later. Fondling my chest wasn't part of the deal."

William chuckled before nodding his head. "Sorry, I got carried away. Understood. I will give you bonus points later."

"As long as you understand," Shana gave William's cheeks a light pinch before letting her hands fall to her sides. She closed her eyes to immerse herself from the lingering pleasure that had seeped inside her body, and was almost tempted to tell the handsome Half-Elf to finish what he started.

However, she didn't do that. According to her Divinity, if she really did give William permission to do that, the chances of the black-haired teenager doing as she wished, and having her maidenhood taken from her, was very high.

Although she was half tempted to do that, she was still thinking properly, so she made sure to not say, or do anything, that might seduce the Half-Elf and push him into turning her into a woman.

William then shifted his attention to Melody, and the moment their eyes met, the Virtuous Lady of Faith gave an involuntary shudder because she felt the Half-Elf's strong desire to possess her.

This discovery made her feel anxious and happy at the same time. However, as the minutes passed, William just looked at her, and didn't make any move to reach out to her.

It was as if he was fighting an internal battle, and doing his best to keep the voices that were whispering in his ears to corrupt Melody at bay.

Five minutes later, the Half-Elf took a deep breath after finally regaining his composure. He then cupped Melody's face and kissed her softly, and gently, not using his tongue to pry her lips open and conquer it one-sidedly.

In truth, Melody preferred this kind of kiss because it wasn't forceful, and it made her feel good. After a minute, William placed his hand on the strings that held her nightwear in place and gave them a tug.

Immediately, the silky, black, nightwear fell down to Melody's waist, exposing her pale-white body, that was a shade lighter than Shana. William eyed her moderately-sized breasts and saw that the pink tips on them were already standing firm.

Clearly, the Virtuous Lady of Faith was aroused, and her body was aching for William's touch.

Not wanting to make her wait any further, William kissed her lips once more as he gently laid her down on the bed. He then kissed her right cheek, her right ear, and nibbled on it, making Melody squirm due to the ticklish feeling.

After teasing her for a bit, William kissed her neck before going down to kiss her collarbone. He continued to kiss her downwards until his lips pressed over the bulge of her chest. William kissed it gently in a circular motion, completely ignoring the pink tip that was standing firm, and waiting for his attention.

After kissing her right breast, William moved toward her left, making sure to kiss her cleavage before repeating the same pattern he had made on her left breast.

"W-Why are you bullying me?" Melody asked as the aching sensation she was feeling intensified. It was as if she was suffering from an itch, and someone was scratching around it, making her feel frustrated.

A moment later, a gasp of surprise escaped Melody's lips when William's lips started to move downwards until they arrived at her belly button. The Half-Elf then did something unthinkable and started to lick that place, making the Virtuous Lady's body squirm due to the unexpected sensation that swept through her body.

When William stopped messing with her belly button, his lips traveled once more and moved downwards, making Melody feel alarmed.

"T-That place is...," Melody stuttered as William lowered her nightwear until it reached her lower abdomen.

The nightwear was only two inches away from her important place, and if William were to pull it down he would be able to see her...

However, as if purposely wanting to tease her, William no longer pulled the nightwear that covered the most important place that had not been seen by any man.

William then kissed, licked, and lightly bit her lower abdomen, which was located right above her womb.

In truth, the Half-Elf was doing this to douse the flame of desire that was starting to surge inside his chest. By sating his desire by marking Melody's abdomen with his kisses, the flames in his chest, and loins, subsided back to tolerable levels.

Shana, who had finally regained her composure, looked at this scene with great curiosity. Her eyes glowed faintly as she used the power of her Divinity to check whether William was going to harm her friend or not.

The possibility that appeared in front of her astounded her.

'H-He wanted to corrupt her this badly?' Shana thought as she looked at the black-haired teenager who was currently making her sister frantically grip the bed-sheets, as she endured William's unexpected move on her young, and delicate body.

'Fortunately, he is still able to hold back his desire,' Shana's gaze didn't leave the Half-Elf and wondered how it would feel if William did the same thing to her.

Several minutes later, William finally raised his head to look at the panting Melody who had already become teary-eyed due to his unexpected action.

"I'm sorry," William said as he raised Melody's nightwear up to her waist. "I thought I had managed to reign in my desires, but after kissing you reignited it once again."

William laid beside Melody and gave her a hug. He no longer made any move to tease her, and simply hugged her, calming his tainted heart that was aching to conquer the Virtuous Lady of Faith, who had buried her head in his chest.

The black-haired teenager patted Melody's head, while the latter wrapped her arms around his back and held him tight.

Shana watched this scene and felt conflicted. A moment later, she sighed internally before whispering something in William's ear.

"The third wheel is going away now," Shana whispered. "Please, don't corrupt her. She's more fragile than she looks. I'll sleep in your room tonight."

After saying those words, the blue-haired beauty fixed her nightdress and took a bathrobe from the closet. She then moved towards the door in order to leave William and her sister alone. After using her Divinity, she understood that this was the best course of action.

By leaving the two of them alone, they would be able to tell each other what they really wanted to say, without worrying about anyone else sharing their secret.

Shana gave the two people who were hugging each other on the bed one last glance before leaving the room.

She knew that after this night was over, her sister would finally be able to understand her true feelings, towards the man whom Shana believed was doing his best to prevent the two of them from falling into the darkness with him.

Chapter 1235: My Faith Is In Your Hands [Part 3]

After Shana left the room, William and Melody remained hugging each other.

This continued for several minutes before the young lady in his arms pulled back to look at him with a serious expression on her face.

"Shana told me that you planned on making the two of us fall in love with you. Is this true?" Melody asked

William stared at her for a few moments before reluctantly nodding his head.

"I would be lying if I said that the thought of making the two of you fall for me didn't cross my mind," William answered. "But, that wasn't my true intention. My goal for bringing the two of you here was to make the two of you understand that I am not your enemy."

"Is that all?"

"Also, I wanted you to know that not all Demons are bad. Some of them are being forced to participate in this war because they have no choice but to do it."

Melody's gaze never left William's as if trying to discern whether he was telling her the truth or not. The Half-Elf held her gaze and they remained staring at each other for a while before the young lady lowered her head first.

"So, what now?" Melody asked. "What plans do you have for us, now that you've gotten what you wanted?"

"Audrey will be arriving tomorrow," William replied. "If you wish to leave, you can go with her."

"But, didn't we have two more sessions left? No. I still have three sessions because you still haven't drank my blood," Melody stated. "Do you really want us to leave that badly?"

William caressed the side of Melody's face and gently raised her head to make her look at him.

"If I say that I want you to go because I didn't want to hurt you, will you believe me?" William asked.

"... I don't know," Melody answered. "I don't know what to believe."

William slowly propped himself up from the bed, and removed the clothes covering his lean and toned body.

Melody's eyes wandered over William's body, while her heart beat wildly inside her chest. As a chaste maiden, the only people she had seen naked were her sisters, who represented the Heavenly Virtues of the world.

"This is the reason why I want you to leave," William said as he gently held Melody's head and pulled it close to his chest, letting her hear his heartbeat.

A minute later, William held Melody's hand and placed it over his...

"And this is the second reason why I want you to leave," William stated as he reigned in the desire that was slowly rising in his body. "I am afraid that if you continue to stay with me, I will not be able to control myself."

Melody almost panicked after her hand touched William's... that was hard, and hot to her touch.

She wasn't completely ignorant about things between men and women, so she understood what black-haired teenager was trying to tell her.

"Once we cross this step, I am afraid that I will be unable to stop myself from corrupting you, and making you fall for me," William said hoarsely. "I don't know why I don't feel this way towards Shana, but with you, I am unable to control myself. Maybe it has something to do with the power of your Divinity, or you are simply my type of girl. Either way, my body aches for you. One wrong move and there will be no turning back for either of us."

William released his hold on Melody's hand, making the latter pull it back as quickly as she could. She stared at William's face before shifting her gaze downwards to his lower half then back again to his face, seeing his pained expression in trying to hold himself back.

"Melody, I don't love you," William said firmly. "What I am feeling is purely desire and lust. I want to taint your purity, I want to dye you with my colors, I want to put my mark in your body. I want... you."

There is no love involved in it. So, if you don't want me to devour you, it will be best that you leave. Leave, while I can still control myself."

Melody didn't answer right away. She just digested William's words, while the latter breathed raggedly in front of her. A minute later, Melody looked up and asked the Half-Elf a question.

"Did you take Lira and Ephemera against their will?" Melody asked. "Did you make them your women?"

Ever since Melody and Shana had arrived in the Thousand Beast Domain, this question had started to form inside her head. She had noticed that everytime they talked about William, Lira, in particular would often say hateful words about him, but she could tell that she didn't really mean it.

Her Divinity was Faith.

So it was impossible for her to not sense the strong feelings that Lira had for William, and those feelings weren't of anger. It was feelings of frustration, and helplessness for being far away from the person she trusted the most.

That was the power of her Divinity, the Power of Faith.

It allowed her to sense, and gather the countless beliefs of people, and use it to strengthen herself. In truth, among the Heavenly Virtues, Melody could be said to be the most powerful. As long as people believed in something, or someone, she would be able to strengthen herself infinitely.

And this was why she had been entrusted to hold...

A silky raiment hovered around Melody's body like a wide lasso. It was none other than the Celestial Raiment that could call forth the power of the Gods and allow them to descend in Hestia and materialize their Divine Avatars.

It was one of the Trump Cards of the Holy Order of Light, and one of the things that William coveted. He just didn't know who among the Virtues held this artifact, which could instantly change the outcome of the war if used at the right moment.

"This is the Celestial Raiment," Melody said firmly. "There are two conditions that will trigger the activation of this artifact. The first one is when we call upon its power, to allow our Patron God to descend into our bodies, becoming their avatar.

The second one was when someone is trying to forcefully attempt to take our purity or corrupt our bodies. Once either of these two conditions are met, this Celestial Raiment will unleash its might. Due to the power of Faith, I have ascertained that I would encounter a dangerous situation, so I decided to ask the Pope to bestow the Celestial Raiment on me."

"If Felix had been the one that captured us, and forcefully tried to taint us, he might have already been annihilated by now."

William looked at the swirling raiment that hovered around Melody's body like a dragon that was waiting for its owner's call.

"Good thing that I rescued the two of you," William replied. "If you were captured by Felix, and he died in your hands then I wouldn't have been able to personally beat him up for what he did to my family members. I want to be the one to personally end his life in this world, and having a God do it for me will just waste all the efforts that I have made up till now."

Melody looked at William with a complicated gaze because she could sense the killing intent that was now oozing from his body. His desire to personally kill Felix was the truth, and she was certain that if Felix were to really die due to a God's intervention, William would definitely treat the Holy Order of Light as his mortal enemy.

This thought made Melody shudder. She couldn't bear fighting against the Half-Elf who had made her understand that even someone as tainted as he was could make her feel so helpless when he looked at her with a smile on his handsome face.

"Aren't you afraid that I will use this against you?" Melody asked. "All I need to do is will it, and my Patron God will descend to exterminate you."

"No," William replied. "I am not afraid."

"... Why?"

"Because you wouldn't hurt me."

As if trying to prove his words, William reached out to touch Shana's cheeks, passing through the Raiment that circled around her body.

"See?" William said as he moved closer. "You can't bear to hurt me, and this is why you should leave."

William then pressed his lips over hers and kissed her one last time before moving away. However, just before he could leave the bed, a delicate hand grabbed his arm.

The Raiment that circled around Melody's body disappeared, and all that was left was a beautiful young lady, who was looking at him with eyes filled with longing.

"I already said that I don't love you," William replied. "Do you want to be corrupted that badly?"

"I don't want to be corrupted," Melody said. "I want to believe that you wouldn't hurt me."

"Girl, you are playing with fire."

"I know, and that's why..."

Melody guided William's hand and pressed it over her chest. Through their shared connection, the black-haired teenager could hear her beating heart, which told him that she had already made a decision.

"Love me," Melody stated. "Fall in love with me."

"... You're being unreasonable," William commented. "That's now how love works."

"Then, why?" Melody asked. "Why did I fall for you, even if Shana warned me that I shouldn't? I thought that if I treated everything as if it was just a Business Transaction, I would be able to turn a blind eye to my feelings. So why? Why did I fall for you, while you can't fall for me?"

William shook his head before pulling Melody close to him.

"It's not because I can't fall in love with you," William replied. "It's because I don't dare. Right now, the feelings that I feel for you are desire and lust. Your case is different from Lira's and Ephemera's, who had come to attack me. I have no ill will against you, or Shana, so I haven't tried to make the two of you mine..."

"But you did. Did you really think that we could resist that feeling of pleasure? We can't. You planned all of this from the start."

"... You do have a point."

"Take responsibility," Melody stated. "You kissed my body all over. I can no longer get married."

William blinked after hearing Melody's old-fashioned excuse. "Well that is a bit of a stretch..."

"So, you want me to get married to others?"

"... No."

For some reason, William felt incredibly conflicted. After drinking Melody's blood, as well as raining kisses on her body, the Half-Elf felt very possessive of her. Perhaps it was due to his instinct wanting to take her powers for himself.

If William was able to control the power of Faith then it meant that he would be able to borrow the power of others through their beliefs.

Simply put, Gods were born from the beliefs of people

Right now, William was only a Demigod, if the beliefs of an entire world were siphoned into his body, then it would not be impossible to break through to the Pseudo-God Rank, or even to attain the possibility of stepping into the Ranks of Godhood.

After sorting out his feelings, William sighed internally as he whispered in Melody's ears.

"You might regret this in the future," William whispered.

"True," Melody acknowledged. "But, I might also not regret this. So, won't you at least try to love me?"

Instead of giving the young lady his answer, William laid her down on the bed and pressed his lips over her. When the kiss ended, he pulled back and stared at the beautiful lady under his body.

"Melody, do not let yourself get corrupted," William stated. "I am now unable to control myself."

Melody nodded. "I will try."

As soon as those words escaped her lips, the Half-Elf pulled down her nightwear and threw it away from the bed.

He had already endured long enough, and he could no longer hold himself back.

Melody knew that she had forced William into a corner. But, she wanted to believe that the young man, who was recognized as one of the enemies by the Holy Order of Light, would teach her what it was like to put her own Faith in his hands.

Chapter 1236: My Faith Is In Your Hands [Part 4]

Melody breathed heavily as William kissed the entrance of her maidenhood.

Now that it had come to this, it was already too late to turn back. Just like his tongue had invaded her lips a while ago, it now relentlessly attacked the place that kept her purity safe.

Soon, the Virtuous Lady of Faith found herself unable to endure the different kind of pleasure that William was giving her, and clenched the bed sheets with her hands.

A few minutes later, her body shuddered as she reached her climax, proving that William already knew how to make her feel really good.

As the young lady panted for breath, William raised both of her legs before rubbing the tip of his manhood on her entrance, which was making wet, and seductive sounds that were inviting him in.

William moved his hip forward, and pierced through the protective layer that kept her innocence in place.

Melody gave a pained cry, but it didn't last long because the black-haired teenager's lips pressed over hers, conquering both her upper and lower lips at the same time.

The Half-Elf continued to kiss Melody for a few minutes before pulling back. A moment later, he started to move his hips as he went deeper inside her, making the Virtuous Lady moan sweetly, despite being a virgin not too long ago.

William didn't do it roughly and simply moved his hips as he did his best to make the beautiful lady under his body shudder with each thrust.

Her breast moved up and down, matching William's rhythm, who was slowly, but surely, raising her to the peak.

When she was about to reach her second climax, William suddenly stopped moving. The sudden loss of momentum made Melody open her eyes to see why the Half-Elf had stopped moving.

When their two gazes met, William gave her a devilish grin, which made the young lady feel frustrated. She was just one thrust away from reaching ecstasy, and the black-haired teenager denied her of it.

Suddenly, Melody raised her hips and started to move it on her own. William allowed her to do what she wanted, and simply remained motionless.

The scene of the Virtuous Lady of Faith, shaking her hips desperately to take in his manhood, fueled the desires that were blazing in his chest.

The thought of corrupting such a maiden passed through his mind. It was the feeling he had gotten used to feeling whenever he interacted with Melody. In the past, he just forcefully tossed these thoughts aside using his willpower, but now, the idea suddenly sounded so appealing, that William didn't toss it aside completely.

As she looked at Melody who was inching towards climax of her own volition, he thought that corrupting her wasn't entirely a bad idea.

Her beautiful flushed face that was desperate for his love,

Her moderate breasts that were tender to the touch,

Her unsoiled womb, soon to be a soiled womb,

And her sweet voice, that was like music to his ears.

He wanted it, he wanted her everything.

But, the ironic part was that he didn't need to take it.

The beautiful lady was offering her everything to him. All he needed to do was say yes, and pour his essence inside her, turning her innocent heart into a corrupted one.

Suddenly, William moved his hips and thrust it forward.

Since Melody was moving her hips on her own, the moment the Half-Elf moved, his manhood pushed deep inside her, hitting the entrance of her womb and making her already sensitive body ache for him.

"Say you want to be corrupted by me," William said as he continued to thrust his hips, making the young lady feel as if she was being pushed to the edge of a bottomless pit. "Say that you want to get pregnant with my child."

"Hah... I want," Melody replied. "With your child."

"What?" William asked as he stopped moving. He also made sure to hold Melody's waist in place, preventing her from moving even if she wanted to. "What do you want?"

"I want to get pregnant," Melody answered. "With your child."

"Then, will you fall into corruption with me?" William asked as he slowly pushed his manhood forward until it kissed the entrance of her womb. He made sure to keep still, making the ache that Melody felt intensify.

"... I want."

"Say it again."

Melody bit her lip as she raised her hips as an offering to the Dark Prince, who was about to corrupt her entire being.

"I want to be corrupted by you," Melody said. "I want to be loved by you. I want to bear your child."

William smirked before moving his hips once more. This time, he did it roughly, for he had already decided to make the Virtuous Lady of Faith fall into the darkness with him.

Without any warning, the black-haired teenager's body shuddered as he released his seeds that were stained with darkness deep inside Melody's innocent womb.

Melody's body arched up like a bow as she felt something hot explode inside of her. At that exact moment, she found herself inside a white world, where a two-meter tall golden orb floated at its center.

Soon, the sky darkened, and the land under her feet became as black as obsidian. Only the golden orb that floated at the center of her world was spared, or so she thought.

Little by little, a dark stain started to rise up from the bottom of the golden orb. While this was happening, Melody felt her body slowly turning cold.

Flashes of memories appeared before her. They were warm and happy memories that would usually bring a smile to his lips, but as she gazed at them now, she felt nothing.

It was as if she had lost the ability to feel any emotions.

When half of the golden orb was stained by darkness, Melody looked at it in a calm manner, as if it wasn't important.

Even if the golden radiance were to completely turn black, she wouldn't give a damn.

When a third of the Golden Orb had been taken over by darkness, two powerful arms filled with warmth, wrapped around Melody's body, which had grown cold.

"You passed," a warm voice whispered in her ears. "From now on, you are my woman."

Melody turned her head to look behind him and saw a red-headed teenager with beautiful green eyes that captivated her.

"Let's go back," William said. "You do not belong in this world."

As if waiting for that moment, the golden orb that was starting to turn completely into a dark orb, slowly, but surely, pushed back the darkness.

William and Melody slowly rose up towards the sky, and as they did that, the dark world changed as well.

It didn't return to its pure white state, but it had changed completely.

Above their heads there was a clear blue sky, below them, a wide plane with fresh, green grass swayed in the wind.

In the distance, rivers and mountains were formed.

Lakes, and valleys came into being.

A beautiful world filled with color emerged from the combination of light and darkness.

When the golden orb had removed the last of the dark stains that had tried to corrupt it, a beautiful rainbow appeared in the sky, signifying that Melody's Sea of Consciousness had completed its rebirth.

Melody looked at this beautiful world with awe. She no longer felt cold and unfeeling, instead, she felt warmth, secure, and filled with strength that she didn't have before.

Due to her happiness, she wrapped her arms around William's neck and kissed him passionately.

When the kiss ended, she found herself, inside a familiar room, with the black-haired teenager's face mere inches away from her.

"Welcome back," William replied with a smile.

"Mmm," Melody hummed as she once again kissed William's lips.

She kept on kissing the Half-Elf over, and over again, not noticing the glowing pink crest that had appeared on her abdomen, marking her as one of William's women, who had fallen completely in love with him.

--

Outside of William's Room...

"Will you not regret it?" Chloe asked Shana, who was standing beside the door like a Guardian, preventing anyone from disturbing Melody's and William's private moment together.

"I don't know," Shana replied. "This is the first time I've disobeyed the warnings of my Divinity, and left my friend to fend for herself."

"Aren't you being fickle? What if William corrupted her? She wouldn't be able to return to being a Virtue if that happened. There is also a high chance that a new Sin will be born. The opposite of Faith is Idolatry. Aren't you afraid that your Sister will become one of the Deadly Sins?"

Shana closed her eyes for a minute before opening them again.

"Whatever happens, it is the consequence of her choice," Shana replied. "Whether she will fall into corruption or not, solely depends on William. Although this might be rich coming from me, but I believe him."

"Is that what your Divinity is telling you?"

"... Yes."

Chloe chuckled before turning her head to walk away.

"Well, I guess we'll see when morning comes whether your gamble paid off or not," Chloe stated. "But, I will promise you this. If ever Melody falls into darkness, I will take good care of her. After all, I am the first being that William has corrupted in all my entirety."

Chloe gave Shana a bitter-sweet smile before turning into a black mist and vanishing completely.

Even though she had been corrupted by darkness, she understood more than anyone else, that the Half-Elf whom she loved, had preserved her heart, while sacrificing his own for the sake of everyone he loved.

Chapter 1237: For The Sake Of Her Sisters' Happiness

Melody sighed happily as William released his seed inside her womb for the umpteenth time.

She had been an innocent maiden till a few hours ago, and yet, after the Half-Elf took it away, she found herself addicted to the pleasure that William was bringing her.

"You're hopeless," William said as he patted the young lady's long, and silky smooth hair. "You better behave yourself when you return to the Palace of Light."

"I will," Melody replied as she rested her head with contentment in William's chest. "I promise that the only one who will see me in this state is you."

"Good. I'd hate it if others were to see you like this."

"Mmm.... chu..."

Melody nibbled, and kissed William's chest, leaving a red mark on his body. Right now, the Half-Elf's chest, neck, and collarbone, had similar red marks, which the Virtuous Lady of Faith had left to ensure that the Dark Prince was not the only one who had left a mark on the other's body.

William found Melody's attempts quite amusing, so he just allowed her to do as she pleased and didn't use his magic to heal the kiss marks she had left on his body.

"Let's stop for tonight," William said softly. "Audrey will be arriving in a few hours, so you need to look presentable when you meet her."

"... Okay," Melody replied. "I'll help clean you up."

The beautiful young lady reluctantly propped herself up. William's manhood slid out from inside her, but it was still hard, and glistening due to being inside Melody for a long time.

Due to her desire to make her beloved feel good, Melody had asked William to teach her many things, and among them was cleaning him up, every time they finished making love to each other.

Melody's soft and sensuous lips pressed over the tip of the Half-Elf's member, giving it a kiss before gently wrapping it up with her tongue in order to clean the leftover traces of their lovemaking.

She zealously moved her head up and down to clean, lick, and suck up any remaining essence that was still left on William's manhood, which had made her a woman.

His woman.

Five minutes later, she released it from her mouth, creating a popping sound, which she found amusing.

"There, all cleaned up," Melody said with pride.

"Thank you," William replied as he too propped himself up from the bed and gave Melody's hand a light squeeze. "Let's take a bath together."

Melody nodded with a smile.

However, the two stayed in the bath an hour longer because the Virtuous Lady of Faith once again entangled the Half-Elf, who was more than happy to satisfy the young lady who had boldly faced the corruption that he brought her.

"Shana, wake up."

"Just five more minutes..."

"Audrey will be arriving in an hour. You should wake up now so you can shower, and have some breakfast before we meet her."

The blue-haired beauty opened her eyes and sleepily glanced at her sister who had lost her innocence to William.

"Well, you look very happy and satisfied for some reason," Shana said in a teasing tone. "Did your blood drinking session with William make you feel that good?"

Melody's face immediately turned beet red after hearing her friend's words. What she didn't know was that Shana had stayed outside of their room to ensure that the two of them wouldn't be disturbed by anyone, as they made love to each other.

The Virtuous Lady of Prudence had only gone to sleep in her room when the two had finished making love for the first time. She knew that William had already made her sister his woman, so there was no need for her to do anything but sleep.

"Well, did it feel good?" Shana asked once again. This time, she used a mischievous tone, which made Melody's face turn a shade redder.

"... Yes."

"Are you fine with this?"

Melody looked at Shana with a serious expression on her face. It was at that moment when she understood what her Sister was talking about, so she decided to be honest and nodded her head in affirmation.

"Okay, I understand," Shana said before she yawned. "I'll get up. Since you probably now have over a million Merit Points, you will treat me to several items of clothing and desserts. Ah, make sure to treat Audrey and those Inquisitors as well. We'll give them a tour of K-City later."

Melody's mouth opened and closed like a goldfish out of water. William hadn't given her over a million Merit Points after the two of them made love over and over again. Simply put, she didn't ask William to embrace her for Merit Points, but for the sake of the feelings he held for him.

"I-I'll meet you in the dining hall," Melody immediately left the room with an embarrassed look on her face.

Although she didn't want to do this, she had no choice but to ask William if she could get some Merit Points, so that she could satisfy Shana's proposal of buying some clothes for her, in addition to treating Audrey and the Inquisitors to a good meal in K-City.

Shana giggled after her sister closed the door behind her in a hurry. She knew full well that Melody wasn't that interested in acquiring Merit Points, and only decided to go through with it because of her insistence.

"I'm glad that he didn't betray my expectations," Shana said softly. "I really thought that he would corrupt her completely."

Shana had felt it when Melody was slowly being corrupted. A part of her had wanted to barge inside the room and save her friend, while the other half wanted to believe that William wouldn't really hurt her sister.

In short, the blue-haired beauty had taken a gamble, for the sake of bringing closure to Melody's feelings for William.

Fortunately, the Half-Elf recognized her determination, and saved her from falling into darkness, and turning her Virtue into a Sin.

"With this, both of us can return to the Palace of Light," Shana raised her hand and stretched like a cat. "When I return, I'd better interrogate Lira and Ephemera. I bet those two have already jumped to William's ship as well."

Unlike Melody, Shana treated her sessions with the black-haired teenager as purely a business transaction. Perhaps, to some degree, William had felt this as well, so he treated her with respect, and didn't go past her bottomline.

She could tell with utmost certainty that what she held for the black-haired teenager was only pure curiosity, including the skinship that she had shared with him. Being cooped up in the Palace of Light for so long, Shana also wished for freedom.

This was why she felt a sense of liberation when she was in the Thousand Beast Domain because it felt new and fresh to her.

'Still, I admit that it felt really good,' Shana thought as she remembered her session with William, where the Half-Elf had taken the liberty of indulging himself on her breast. 'Well, since Melody will be paying for dozens of clothes later, I will let his actions slide this time.'

Shana had already changed her opinion about William. After getting to know him better, she now fully understood that the Half-Elf really didn't want to harm them. In her eyes, the scary Dark Prince was no longer as scary as she originally thought he would be.

'The only problem now is the Pope.' Shana frowned after thinking about the old lady that led the forces of the Holy Order of Light. 'She once mentioned in passing that she already had the perfect means to deal with William. I better keep an eye on her actions when we return to the Palace of Light.'

For the sake of her sisters' happiness, and for the sake of fashion, Shana also planned to prevent any conflicts between the Holy Order and the Dark Prince, who had now taken hold of several of her Sisters' hearts.

Chapter 1238: Audrey's Arrival In The Thousand Beast Domain [Part 1]

"Welcome to the Floor of Asgard," William greeted Audrey, as well as the ten Inquisitors that had come along with her to check on the condition of Melody and Shana.

"Thank you for accepting our request, Sir William," Audrey replied with a smile.

"Just call me William," William returned Audrey's smile with a smile of his own. "We're already acquainted, so don't sound too distant."

"Very well, William, I hope my sisters aren't causing trouble for you?"

"Melody and Shana may be strong willed, but they are not troublemakers. I think among your sisters, the troublemaker is Lira. If possible, don't let her come here. She always gives me a headache."

Audrey chuckled. "What a coincidence. Lira insisted that she come and become our representative instead."

"Fortunately her request got rejected, or else I might have been forced to reject your offer as well," William replied with a troubled look on his face.

"You don't like her, do you?"

"Well, let's just say that she can be quite problematic in her own right. Now, before I bring you inside my Domain, there are a few things that I would like to remind you, and your escorts, of.

"First of all, there are Demons that live inside my Domain. They are the Demon Clans that have sworn loyalty to me. If any of you hurt them, I will punish you severely for it. Also, all of you are required to leave your weapons with me. Don't worry, I have no interest in them. I only want to prevent any unnecessary conflicts from arising."

One of the Inquisitors stepped forward and shook her head.

"We came here to ensure that none of the Virtues get hurt," the Inquisitor stated. "We can't leave our weapons behind."

William nodded his head in understanding. "No problem. You can stay here then. I don't intend to bring rulebreakers inside my Domain."

The other Inquisitors, who were about to support their comrade, held back the words they were about to say and kept their silence. If they were not allowed to enter William's Domain then they wouldn't be able to complete the mission that the Pope had assigned to them.

"Sorry, I was being rude. I will abide by your rules and surrender my weapon to you," the Inquisitor said as she bit down her pride and immediately backed down.

"Good," William commented. "In behalf of our temporary alliance, I will be merciful and allow you to enter my Domain. Who knows? You might even be able to bring home a souvenir when it is time for you to go back to the Palace of Light."

The Inquisitor nodded her head and passed the sword in her possession to Chloe who was standing beside William.

The other Inquisitors did the same to ensure that they would no longer offend the Half-Elf whom the Pope had once ordered to be either killed or captured by the Templars who accompanied Audrey, Lira, and Ephemera.

The Half-Elf knew that the Inquisitors still had hidden weapons in their possessions, but he turned a blind eye to it.

A portal opened in front of Audrey, and the Half-Elf made a gesture for her to come inside. The Inquisitors were about to propose that they check it out first, but Audrey raised her hand to stop them in their tracks.

"We were the ones that proposed to enter his Domain," Audrey stated. "Since that was the case, it would be counterproductive if we always doubt William's move. I trust him, and anyone who doesn't trust me can stay here. I can go alone if I have to."

Audrey gave William a brief nod before entering the portal with steady steps. The Inquisitors no longer argued and hurriedly followed her inside the portal to ensure that she would be safe from harm.

When the last Inquisitor entered the portal, Chloee chuckled as she rested her hand on William's shoulders.

"They came with bad intentions," Chloee stated. "Are you sure about this?"

William nodded. "I am also very curious about what the Pope has in mind. Let's observe them first, and if they do anything fishy then it will not be too late to act in a decisive manner."

"Well, you're the boss," Chloee replied. "I'm going ahead first. I'll keep an eye on them for you."

"Thank you."

"Ah. Don't accept any guests tonight in your room. Charmaine, Haleth, Aina, and I also need some attention. Let the Virtues have some time alone together."

William chuckled before giving Chloee's backside a light pinch. "You've become naughty as of late. Very well, I'll keep my schedule and bed open for the four of you."

Chloee smiled and gave William a quick kiss on his right cheek before entering the portal to look after the envoy from the Palace of Light.

'Optimus, did you manage to place a tracker on all of them?'

< Yes. I am now monitoring their every move. Don't worry, they will not be able to escape my sight. >

William nodded before teleporting inside the Thousand Beast Domain. He had already made arrangements, and all he needed to do was to observe his guests from afar.

"W-Where are we?" one of the Inquisitors asked as they found themselves surrounded by Demonic Children who were happily riding the attractions of the Theme Park.

"This is called K-City Theme Park," a blue-haired beauty said with a sweet smile on her face. "Good to see you, Audrey. Did you miss us?"

Shana walked side by side with Melody who also had a bright smile on her face.

"Lady Melody, Lady Shana, are both of you alright?" One of the Inquisitors hurriedly went to the two Virtuous Ladies whom they had come to meet. "Did the Dark Prince do anything bad to the two of you? Have you been harmed anywhere?"

Melody glanced at the Inquisitor with an understanding look on her face. "Don't worry, the two of us are fine. William has been a good host and ensured that the two of us have been very comfortable throughout our stay."

Shana had reverted to wearing her plain robe because she knew that if she showed off the dresses that she had acquired inside William's Domain, the Pope would immediately order her to burn all of them.

The Virtuous Lady of Prudence knew that the Pope had no sense of fashion, so she didn't want to give her any reason to destroy her prized collection.

"I know that all of you have a lot of questions, but we can talk about it somewhere else," Melody said.
"Come with us. I know a good cafe that you will definitely like, Audrey."

Melody didn't even give Audrey a chance to decline her offer and simply took her hand and pulled her along as she headed to one of the cafes that she and Shana always visited.

Shana chuckled as she walked behind her sisters, leaving the Inquisitors behind, who were exchanging glances with each other.

"I will inspect this place first to ensure that no harm comes to our esteemed Ladies," One of the Inquisitors declared before immediately heading in the opposite direction of where the three Virtues were going.

The other Inquisitors followed behind Shana, leaving one of their comrades to roam free inside the Theme Park.

Chloee, who had been given partial authority over the Thousand Beast Domain, followed the Inquisitor that had gone off on her own.

William was also monitoring the suspicious individual, alongside Optimus.

"How obvious."

< A bunch of amateurs. >

The black-haired teenager, and his System, found the act of the Inquisitors so silly. Clearly, they weren't trained for such a task, and it was plain to see that they were up to no good.

When the Inquisitors found a place without too many people, she subtly pressed an emblem over one of the stalls that was currently unmanned.

After doing her job, she immediately left the scene and headed straight to the cafe where her comrades were located.

< She placed a tracking artifact that is able to transmit images and sounds. Also, it has some kind of beacon that sends an unknown signal. If my calculations are correct, this is some kind of signal that will pinpoint the location of your Domain. >

"Hoh... it seems that the Pope is getting a little impatient."

< Your orders? >

"Don't do anything, and simply monitor it for now. We will make our move once they've left the Thousand Beast Domain."

< Understood. >

William smiled because he didn't find the Pope's actions to be out of place. In fact, he thought that she was brilliant for thinking of such a thing.

Unfortunately for her, William had the System, so no matter how hard she tried, her plans were doomed to fail from the very start.

What the Pope didn't know was that William had a more effective way of tracking people and things. Right now, all the members of the Holy Order's entourage, including Audrey, had trackers placed on their bodies that monitored more than just what was around them.

It also monitored things inside them like their heartbeat, brainwaves, body temperature, as well as other miscellaneous things that only Optimus knew about.

In short, the Pope had already lost the information warfare before she even decided to place tracking artifacts inside William's Domain.

He already had eyes and ears within the inner circle of the Holy Order of Light namely, Lira, Ephemera, and Cherry.

Melody had also joined William's side, and she was more than happy to share any news with him, especially plans that were meant to harm him in any way.

"Now, let's see what other tricks you have under your sleeves, People," William muttered as his eyes glowed briefly in anticipation. "Show me your worst."

Chapter 1239: Audrey's Compromise

A day after Audrey arrived in the Thousand Beast Domain...

"Let's ride that next!" Audrey pointed at the Roller Coaster, which made Shana chuckle, and Melody shake her head.

"I'll go with you," Shana said. "Relax, I can pay for every attraction you want to ride today."

"You and Melody have so many Merit Points," Audrey commented. "How can I get them? I want some too."

Melody, who heard Audrey's comment, held her hand and looked at her with a serious expression on her face.

"You are a guest, it is only natural that we pay for everything," Melody said before looking at Shana for support. "Isn't that right, Shana?"

Shana nodded with a smile because she could tell that Melody didn't want Audrey anywhere near William. Although Melody already knew that the handsome Half-Elf wasn't particularly interested in Audrey, she would not allow her untainted Sister to be bitten even once by him.

Just a single night with William would be fatal, and she didn't want Audrey to experience the things that she, and Shana, had experienced in the black-haired teenager's warm embrace.

Shana took Melody to the Roller Coaster, while being followed by the ten Inquisitors. Although their escorts didn't want to admit it, they had also enjoyed the various attractions that K-City Theme Park had to offer.

Even Audrey got addicted to Dance Dance Evolution.

Unfortunately, she still hadn't won against Shana, and Melody, who had already become proficient with it after practicing for several days.

The Virtuous Lady of Faith watched as her two sisters went on the Roller Coaster ride with a smile. Deep inside, she wanted to bring her other sisters to the Thousand Beast Domain as well, especially Cherry, who would definitely enjoy the attractions that would definitely strike her fancy.

"You really don't want to try riding the Roller Coaster?" a devilish voice whispered in her ears. A moment later, two arms wrapped themselves around her body and pulled her against a lean, and strong, body that she had embraced and kissed two days ago.

"Not in broad daylight," Melody said as she turned her head to look at the black-haired teenager who was looking at her with a mischievous smile. "What will you do if they see us together?"

"They won't," William said before pulling Melody to a stall to block the Roller Coaster's view. "See? They won't see you from here."

"Hah... you're so pushy."

"Mmm. I can be pushy when I feel like it."

William kissed Melody's forehead, making the latter raise her head to look up at him.

"Kiss me," Melody said. "Hurry before they return."

"Look who's being pushy now?" William replied, but before Melody could retort to his words, he lowered his head and pressed his lips over her soft lips that he had already claimed as his own.

"Mom, what are they doing?" a Demon girl, who was walking hand in hand with her mother, asked when she saw William and Melody kissing by the stall.

"You will understand when you are older," the mother replied as she led her daughter to go to the Grand Carousel. "You said you like to ride horses right? How about we go there?"

"Un!" The demon girl completely forgot the two kissing people beside them as she anxiously pulled her mother's hand in order to drag her to the Grand Carousel before her mother could change her mind.

When William and Melody's kiss ended, the beautiful lady lightly thumped William's chest with her closed fist and looked at him with disapproval.

"You're being a bad role model to the kids," Melody stated. "You shouldn't just kiss me, or any of your women, out in public."

"I'll think about it," William replied before lightly caressing Melody's lips with his thumb. "One more kiss?"

"Just this once, okay?" Melody said as she placed her hands over William's shoulder. "I'm still angry at you because you didn't allow me into your room last night. You better make up to me tonight."

"Okay."

"As long as you understand."

The two once again kissed, and this time, William decided to use his magic to create a mirror made of water to reflect the surroundings around them, and hide them from view.

As much as he wanted to continue teasing Melody, he knew that the latter really didn't want others to see her kissing William in public. Since that is the case, he decided to respect her wishes in order to keep their relationship healthy.

Melody has already been registered as one of his Familia Members.

This meant that William had truly recognized her as one of his women, and decided to treasure her, as much as she treasured him.

For some reason, there was a foreboding feeling in the back of his mind, telling him that he might have done something wrong. Now that his women had surpassed a dozen, he felt as if he had forgotten something important.

However, he tossed these thoughts aside as he enjoyed Melody's lips, whose arms had wrapped around his neck, savoring his kiss that filled her heart with love.

"Did you guys enjoy the Roller Coaster?" Melody asked as she looked at her two sisters that had just come down from the Roller Coaster platform.

"Yes!" Audrey said with a big smile on her face. "It's a shame you weren't there with us. It was fun!"

"Don't worry, Audrey," Shana said as she looked at Melody's flushed face. "I'm sure that Melody also enjoyed herself while waiting for us to return."

Melody shot Shana a glare, and the latter only chuckled, while covering her lips with her hand.

Shana had seen a red mark on Melody's neck that was half hidden by her robe. The mark was fairly new, and she didn't have to be a genius to know who planted the kiss mark on her sister's neck.

In order to change the topic, Melody decided to take Audrey, and the Inquisitors, to one of the dress shops that were right outside the Theme Park.

All of them were girls, and deep inside, they wanted to dress up as well. She had already seen Audrey's reaction when they passed by this particular shop the other day and knew that her sister wanted to try on a few dresses herself.

Naturally the Inquisitors wanted to refute, but Melody managed to shut them up by telling them that they could also buy a few dresses for themselves.

She added that since all of them were buying clothes, they didn't have to tell the Pope about this, and could keep their purchases inside the storage ring for future use, just in case they needed to leave the Palace of Light and needed to infiltrate other territories for reconnaissance missions.

Shana found this excuse flimsy at best. If the Inquisitors were to really wear the dresses from the Thousand Beast Domain when they did their missions, it would be impossible for them to keep a low profile.

The Inquisitors were quite pretty in their own right, and if that was paired up with pretty clothes, then they would stand out no matter where they went.

However, to her surprise, the Inquisitors bought Melody's excuse. It seemed that, aside from their mission, they were also keen on bringing back some souvenirs from their visit inside the Thousand Beast Domain.

The Inquisitors had already accomplished their mission and placed the trackers in various locations inside the Thousand Beast Domain. Naturally, William had taken precautionary steps in order to prevent any leakage of information from the locations where the trackers were placed.

Since they had already done what the Pope had asked of them, they no longer hesitated and enjoyed the things that the Thousand Beast Domain had to offer. Because of the various spas, massages, and other health services, the Inquisitors lived comfortable lives, which they couldn't experience in the outside world.

They were also able to eat delicious food, which they had never tasted before. William was certain that after these ladies, who had mostly lived an ascetic lifestyle, left the Thousand Beast Domain, any food they ate afterwards would taste like dirt.

Even Audrey, who was more flexible than most, couldn't resist the modern lifestyle that everyone in the Thousand Beast Domain had become accustomed to, and she had only been there for a day and a half.

"Hey, can the two of you be honest with me?" Audrey asked as she held two dresses in her hands and looked at her reflection in the mirror. "It's not that you can't leave this place, it is that you don't want to leave this place, right?"

Shana smiled and gave Audrey a wink, while Melody kept a calm expression on her face.

Audrey knew the answer to her question with a single glance. In truth, she couldn't blame her sisters for wanting to stay. The Thousand Beast Domain was simply that good, and even she, one of the firm believers of the Holy Order of Light, was tempted to spend a few more days inside William's Domain in order to have a short vacation.

Fortunately, the Pope didn't give her any time limit. Her mission was to bring Shana and Melody back to the Palace of Light safely. After a brief internal struggle, the brown-haired beauty looked at her two sisters with a determined look on her face.

"We can stay here for one more week, after that we have to go," Audrey said firmly. "There will be no further extensions, do I make myself clear?"

"Okay."

"Understood."

Shana and Melody exchanged a glance at each other. Since they could only stay for one more week inside the Thousand Beast Domain they decided to enjoy their last days as much as they could before they returned to their normal lives, as the Heavenly Virtues that resided inside the Palace of Light.

Chapter 1240: His Inner Wolf Would Come Out To Eat You Up

(Disclaimer: Minor R-18 Scenes because I know that you guys are already tired of it. But since, this is important for the plot, I'm still going to do it :P)

—

William had an awkward look on his face as Melody, and Shana, took turns servicing his little brother with their soft lips, showering it with kisses.

He thought that Melody would be the only one seeing him tonight, but to his surprise, the blue-haired beauty tagged along, and decided to learn a few things before she left the Thousand Beast Domain in a week's time.

When William told her that she didn't have to do this, and that Melody was enough, Shana simply told him that she was only curious about a guy's body, and had no intention of giving her chastity to him.

The Half-Elf looked to Melody for help, but the latter could only give him a bitter smile, which told him that she had already given up in trying to convince Shana not to come with her.

In order to prevent anyone from spying on them, the Half-Elf decisively took the two girls to the Sea-side Villa inside the Dungeon of Atlantis.

Audrey and the Inquisitors could stumble upon them anytime, while they were doing the act, and this was something that William, Melody, and Shana wanted to avoid at all cost.

William was sitting on the bed, while the two girls knelt on the carpeted floor, wearing the new night dresses that they had bought earlier that day. Although Shana's face had become red as a tomato after seeing Little William, her curiosity pushed her to understand more about this part of a man's body, that was responsible for taking her sister's purity.

To William's chagrin, his little brother was more than happy to be kissed, licked, and sucked, by the two beautiful ladies, who were giving him their full attention.

'How did this thing manage to fit inside Melody?' Shana thought as he took it inside her mouth to test on how far it could go. 'It's simply too big.'

"Shana, don't use your teeth," William said softly as he rested his left hand on Shana's head. "Don't be in a rush, time moves slower here, and I'm not going anywhere until I sate your curiosity."

In truth, Melody and Shana were worried that Audrey would come to look for them in the middle of the night to talk, so they decided to chat with her for a long time in her room before excusing themselves of going back to their bedrooms.

Although they feel like their sister was exhausted from the day's excursion and wanted to rest, they still decided to play it safe. The two ladies only planned to spend a small amount of time with William before going back to their rooms before they were discovered to be missing.

However, after hearing William's assurance, Shana no longer felt like hurrying and decided to take her time in understanding the wonders of the Dark Prince's manhood.

Melody, on the other hand, cupped the side of William's face and presented her breast to him.

The Half-Elf understood that Melody wanted to make the most of the time they could have together, so he no longer hesitated and accepted her offering.

His fangs sank into her soft bosom, and drank her blood as slowly, and gently as he could. His tongue kissed, licked, flicked, and bit the firm pink tip, while licking the rich blood that streamed down her tender breast.

Melody sighed as she surrendered herself from the pleasure, completely forgetting that Shana was also in the room with her.

Shana was clumsily doing her best to pleasure, William, and the latter decided to help her a bit.

The Half-Elf's left hand that was resting on top of Shana's head, started to move. Shana was surprised at first, but in the end, she didn't resist and allowed the Half-Elf to teach her the ways of pleasuring a man.

As for why Shana was practicing to do these things, William just thought that this was simply how the blue-haired beauty perceived the world around her, not giving it any bias, while using her Divinity to calculate what was beneficial for her or not.

In truth, Shana hadn't been using the power of her Divinity for the past few days. As an individual, she could make decisions for herself, and not be bound by the percentages that allowed her to live a safe life away from harm.

In fact, Shana was the complete opposite of her Divinity that required great caution, and thinking over things twice before doing them.

She was bold, she was adventurous, and most of all, she was curious about a lot of things!

In fact, her curiosity was similar to that of a scientist, or a doctor, who was curious about what made a human body function.

A moment later, Shana felt the tip of William's member expanding, and knew that he was about to release his essence. Instead of removing it from her lips, she held it firmly in place and braced herself for what was about to come.

The moment William's seed shot out inside of her mouth, the blue-haired beauty almost gagged, but she endured and simply accepted William's release. She didn't swallow it but held it in her mouth.

When the black-haired teenager was done, the young lady used her tongue to taste, and feel the thickness of William's seed, making the latter feel awkward.

A minute later, Shana swallowed everything. She then looked at William's member that was glistening with traces of his seed and her saliva.

"Let me clean you up," Shana said as she meticulously cleaned the little guy, who was standing tall and proud. "You sure are a feisty little guy."

Shana flicked Little Will with her finger, thinking that it would be fun to do that. The blue-haired lady giggled when he saw the feisty little guy twitch a few times as if feeling wronged by her action.

"You shouldn't do that, Shana," Melody said as she held the little guy with her fingers. "This part is very delicate, so you should treat it with great care."

The next thing that she did was to lower her hips and allowed William's member to slide inside her without any resistance.

After doing it with William till dawn the other day, she had gotten accustomed to his size, and thickness.

However, for some reason, the Half-Elf's member was a lot harder, and more impressive than the last time she had been with him. Melody tossed this matter aside because she didn't think that it was important.

She then moved her hips up and down, creating wet, and indecent sounds. Melody had already accepted William as her significant other, and the Half-Elf was more than happy to teach his new lover the various ways there were to make him feel good.

"Interesting, there is a slight bulge here," Shana said as she touched Melody's abdomen, making the latter shudder.

The blue-haired beauty watched until Melody, and William climaxed together before decisively telling the Half-Elf to return them to the Villa in the Thousand Beast Domain.

After the Half-Elf cleaned the two up with his magic, he then transported the two back to their room, just in time for them to hear Audrey's voice, while the latter knocked on their door, making the two of them jump up in surprise.

The two ladies exchanged a glance with each other before Shana hurriedly opened the door, and came face to face with Audrey who had a very concerned look on her face.

"What's wrong?" Shana asked. She could tell that something was wrong, and wondered if her Sister had discovered their tryst with the black-haired Prince of Darkness.

"We need to return at once," Audrey said with a serious expression on her face. "The Elun Empire has completely fallen into the Demon Army's hands, and they are now planning to expand outwards.

"The Kraetor Empire and the Ares Empire (Amazon Empire) might be their next target, and the Pope had sent me an urgent message to ask William to let the two of you go, so that you can join the battle as soon as possible."

Shana and Melody exchange a glance at each other as their expressions also turned serious. Although they were reluctant to part with the Half-Elf and the Thousand Beast Domain, the safety of the Central Continent was still their responsibility.

"I understand, I will inform William immediately," Melody said as she tried to leave the room in haste.

However, before she could even do that, Audrey grabbed her arm and held her in place.

"Before that, I think you should change your clothes first," Audrey said as she looked disapprovingly at Melody's nightwear which barely covered the important parts of her body. "I know that William is a gentleman, but if you present yourself to him dressed like that, his inner wolf would come out to eat you up."

Melody looked down on her clothes then back at her sister, who was still looking at her nightdress with great interest.

If only Audrey knew that the wolf inside William had eaten her sister's cherry two days ago, the brown-haired lady might have had a seizure then and there for having failed her mission before it even started.