Chapter 121 It was enough to surprise her. The last time August came over and made her a bowl of noodles, she was surprised.

But she didn't expect that today he would cook breakfast for her. Seemingly hearing the movement behind him, August turned slightly and saw Lucia was simple, it looked very appetizing. The two of them were sitting face to face.

Originally Lucia still felt a little awkward, but once she saw the breakfast, she forgot everything. There was nothing more important than having food to eat. After eating breakfast, Lucia was satisfied and took the initiative to clean up the dishes and bring them into the kitchen to start washing them. She had just turned the faucet on when there was a sound of footsteps behind her, and as she swept August over to her, she stopped. He had eaten his breakfast.

Why hadn't he left? August came to a stop beside her, and without waiting for her to ask, he spoke first, "I have something to tell you." Lucia was a little nervous, "What is it?" Seeing his sudden seriousness, she was a little uncomfortable. August said in a deep voice, "Yesterday, my men reported to me that they found out Irene had contacted some entertainment gossip media reporters in the past two days and also paid off a waiter at Hibiscus Garden." Lucia was unsure and asked softly, "What does she want to do?" "Greeves' birthday party is being held at Hibiscus Garden, and she knows the list of company personnel attending the party."

Meeting August's deep dark eyes, Lucia seemed to understand something, "She comes for me? It's possible.

The spot was not given to her, but after she read the list, she went to her uncle privately to get a spot"

August said unhurriedly, "And she also specifically inquired whether Ted and Lilian would go to this birthday party." At that, Lucia frowned and didn't say anything for a long time.

Lucia didn't know whether to be angry or laugh and couldn't help but ask, "Paula, are you sure you're not joking with me?" Paula winked at her mysteriously.

"This is great and totally shows off your figure.Perfect!"

Lucia stretched out her hand and slapped the impish Paula, "Stop it.I'm going to Greeves' birthday party.

Are you sure you don't want me to make a fool of myself? At that, Paula laughed and trembled, "Do you

"This one shows too much of the back?" "What about this one?" "This style doesn't seem to fit me very

one. Just then, there was a sudden knock at the door.

Immediately after that, the door was pushed open and Paul walked in with a fruit plate, "Lucia, Paula, take a break, and have some fruit." Paula answered, pulled Lucia to the table, forked up a piece of apple, and brought it to Lucia's mouth. After sweeping the bed full of clothes, Paul smiled and asked, "Have you picked out your dress yet?"

Paula beamed and ate a piece of banana, "Not yet.

Paul looked at Lucia and asked softly, "Why don't I help sense of trust.

Lucia leaned over.

When she saw the photo, she looked a little unnatural.

It was fine for Paula to take the photo.

But now Paul and she were just ordinary friends, and the photo showed him putting a necklace on her with intimate movements, which might make others misunderstand.

She looked at Paula and said softly, "Paula, stop it, and please delete it."

Paula gripped her phone tightly, refusing to delete it, "I captured this photo so well and it's beautiful.I can't delete it!" Noticing that Lucia's expression was bad, Paul got a little more serious and held out his hand to Paula. Paula beamed.

Although she was reluctant, she handed over the phone. Paul got the phone.

Looking at the photo on the screen, he paused when he was about to press the delete button. of hesitation, Paul clicked share and sent the photo to himself via Paula's WeChat before deleting it. After doing this, he casually handed the phone back to Paula without saying anything. Seeing this, Lucia thought the photo had been deleted and didn't say more.

Suddenly take you to Hibiscus Garden today? Lucia smiled at him and softly declined, "No, the birthday party is starting late, and I can go by myself."

Paula walked Lucia's side and took her by the hand.

Lucia, I want to go too, so we can still be together, but something is going on at home today, so my brother and I can't go."

Lucia squeezed her hand and laughed, "It's okay and maybe there will be another chance later."

Most of the people were already there, and the hall was full of people.

Greeves saw that it was about time, so he told everyone to go to the VIP seats on the second floor to eat.

The seating was pre-arranged, and after Lucia was seated, she found Irene sitting at the neighboring table, laughing and chatting with two women, while August sat at the main table in the center area, with Ted and Lilian on the sidelines.

Before the birthday party began, Greeves made his usual speech, and once the usual process was completed, the food began to be served.

After that, many people who knew each other toasted each other.

Lucia ate casually, and her heart had already flown to the table where Ted was.

Suddenly, August raised his head slightly and looked this way, coincidentally Lucia was looking that way.

From a distance, the two looked at each other.

The moment when their eyes met, Lucia was unconsciously a little nervous.

In contrast, August was much calmer.He slightly glanced at her, and the expression on his face did not change.

Lucia withdrew her gaze, and not long after, her phone rang twice.She picked it up and saw that it was a WeChat message from August.

"Wait for him to get drunk, and don't be in a hurry."

Lucia knew in her heart that this "he" referred to Ted, and after receiving August's instructions, she slowly calmed down.

At this time, they could not rush.

If they made a wrong move, their plan would fail and they would lose everything.

Not long after, a man suddenly walked straight to Lucia, holding a glass of wine and smiling, "This lady, would you like to have a drink with me?"

Lucia looked up, squinted slightly, and examined him for a few seconds.She thought he looked familiar as if she had seen him somewhere before.

Looking at the new round of dishes on the table, Lucia picked up the fork, ate a few bites, and inadvertently looked up at the table in the center area where August was.

Ted next to him was gone.

With a chill at her back, she instantly sobered up a bit and turned her head to look at the neighboring table, noticing that at some point Irene had disappeared as well.

It seemed that Irene had already started to take action.

Becoming very nervous, Lucia clenched her two hands together, with a layer of sweat emerging from the palms of her hands.

She took a deep breath, and when she looked up, she met August's unreadable dark eyes.

Crossing the crowd, he looked steadily towards her.

Even though the distance was far, she could feel at ease.

Inhaling deeply, Lucia adjusted her breathing and slowly calmed down.

On the other hand, Carol searched the entire second floor with her friends but did not see Archibald's figure.

She went to the corridor and cursed furiously, "He is deliberately hiding from me! Archibald, when I find you, I will not spare you!"

The woman next to her saw this and said with some hesitation, "Carol, there are some things I don't know if I should say..."

Carol's face was somber, "Go ahead! Just tell me what you know. Do you still want to hide it from me?"

"When we came in just now, I heard Annie say that she saw Archibald and Lucia together just now, and the two of them were talking and laughing..."

"What!"

Carol was so angry that she clenched her fists and wanted to stomp a hole in the ground, "He's actually with her! I'm going to settle the score with that bitch right now!"

"Ah-choo!"

Lucia sneezed and felt a little chill at the back of her head. She tugged the clothes on her body and was a little confused. Had she gotten a cold? She had sneezed three times in the past few minutes.

A black and white tuxedo approached her, bowed slightly, and asked Irene was grimacing in pain. She sucked in a cold breath.

Looking at Lucia on the side, she clenched her fists in anger and lifted her foot to kick her hard in the stomach.

Paula was wearing high heels, and the sharp heels of her shoes poked Lucia's soft abdomen at once, causing her to shudder in pain and her body to curl up into a huddle.

"Lucia! Do you think you can win over me? You've made me suffer so much! Today I'll make sure you pay me back!"

With that, Irene struggled to get up from the floor.

Before she could fully stand up, Lucia reached out again with pain and tugged on Irene's ankles to prevent her from getting up. She knew very well that if Irene stood up at this time, then the unlucky person would be her.

Even for the sake of stalling, she had to hold on.

What's more, the waiter had been bought by August.

Even if he left temporarily to drive Carol away, it wouldn't take long for him to return.

As long as she could hold off, the situation could still be turned around! "Lucia, let go of me!"

Irene fought hard to kick her legs, but Lucia just wouldn't let go.

Irene was so angry and annoyed that she reached out her hand and grabbed Lucia's hair, pulling them hard.

At once, Lucia felt her scalp tighten and an unbearable pain hit her.

Tears welled up in her eyes, but Irene continued to pull back hard.

In anger, Lucia gritted her teeth and pulled hard again.

Irene then failed to stand and fell to the ground once again.

Not caring about the pain in her head and body, Lucia rolled over and pinned Irene directly underneath her, and Irene, not to be outdone, tried to push Lucia down with force.

Just as they reached the stairs, Burton came up from downstairs quickly and bumped right into them.

Seeing Lucia in August's arms in disarray, Burton immediately reacted after a pause and hurriedly said to August, "Mr.Adams, it's better to find a room to deal with Ms.Mitchell's wound at this time!"

At that, August frowned slightly and understood the meaning of his words.

At this time, he had to pass by the second floor to leave with Lucia in his arms.

Not only would he have no way to explain to Greeves, but having others see Lucia's disheveled, bruised, and swollen appearance would certainly attract a lot of gossips.

After a two-second pause, August nodded slightly, "Do you have the room card?"

Greeves had arranged rooms for some important guests, and the room cards had been issued to everyone in advance.

Burton nodded, "Yes, room 306."

At that, August didn't say a word and immediately went back with Lucia in his arms.

Entering the room, he put Lucia on the bed.

After looking around, he didn't see a medical kit.

So, he glanced at Burton standing by and ordered in a cold voice, "Go find a medical kit as soon as possible!"

At the word, Burton immediately nodded in response, turned around, and left the room.

August walked to the bed.

Looking at Lucia, who was lying in a ball on the bed, he felt a stabbing pain in his heart as if he had been stabbed by something sharp.

He turned around, got a clean towel from the washroom, wet it with water, and gently wiped the dust off her face.

With the cool towel touching her skin, Lucia instantly felt a little more awake.

When she took a deep breath and opened her eyes to see the man sitting beside the bed to take care of her, she felt very complicated.

She moved her body, reached out her hand to take the wet towel in his hand, and said in a hoarse voice, "I can do it myself..."

August stretched out his hand and gently held her wrist, his voice carrying an unquestionable determination, "Lie still."

Not everything would work out as lucky as it did today, and if something did happen to her, it would be too late.

After a while of noise outside, it finally slowly calmed down.

Seeing that it was time to go, August did not have time to say goodbye to Greeves and took Lucia directly out of Hibiscus Garden.

Once Ted's story came out, it undoubtedly made Greeves lose face as well.

They were too busy to take care of themselves at this point, and couldn't care for others.

Back to the bachelor pad, Lucia returned to the bedroom with bruises to change her clothes.

As soon as she went out, she saw August sitting on the couch, not intending to leave.

Lucia felt guilty in her heart when she thought of what had happened the last few times August had come to her. She walked up and said softly, "It's late. I'm going to take a shower and get some rest."

Beyond the words, it was time for him to leave.

At that, as if he didn't understand the meaning of her words, August raised an eyebrow slightly and asked, "Are you hungry?"

Lucia was stunned and quickly reacted.

Was he planning to use cooking to stay again? She took a deep breath and said, "I'm not hungry."

She had eaten a lot at the birthday party and was really not hungry.

When he heard that, an unnoticeable light flashed under August's eyes. He got up, casually unbuttoned the sleeves of his shirt, and pulled it up.

With that, he took a step in the direction of the bathroom, "Okay, then I'll help you take a shower."

Lucia's eyes instantly widened and she looked at August incredulously.

Did she hear it wrong? He said he would help her take a bath! "Wait!"

Lucia hurriedly called out to him and gathered her courage to say, "This is my house and I can take a shower by myself. If you have nothing else to do, just leave!"

Lucia's eyes widened as she heard this and she stared at him in disbelief. He wasn't going to leave.
Was he planning to stay here with her? What a moocher! The thought of what happened last time August stayed with her made Lucia blush and she said somewhat unnaturally, "I...I don't have any room for you here, you'd better go."
Through her eyes, August seemed to see through all her thoughts.
A slight smile spread across his face as he asked, "Are you afraid?"
A long delay might cause trouble.
Was she afraid something would happen between them?
"Why should I be afraid?"
Lucia took a deep breath and tried to maintain her composure.
"There was only one bedroom, so you don't have a place to stay."

As August took a half step forward, he asked, word by word, "How is that possible?"

The last time he slept here, why wasn't there a place for him to stay this time? She took a step back in panic, keeping a distance between them and looking somewhat defensively at him.

"There is only one bed, so if you really want to stay, you can sleep on the couch." Lucia said, lifting her chin and pointing at the couch.

There was no way August would even sleep on the couch just to stay with her.

Observing the woman's resistance, August's eyes flashed with an unnoticeable reflection.

It appeared that this little girl did not understand his good intentions at all.

Knowing she was injured and could not take good care of herself, he deliberately stayed to take care of her.

But she was always on guard against him, afraid that something would happen between them again.

He lifted his eyes and asked in a light voice, "Do you really want me to sleep on the couch?"

Lucia didn't think much about it and immediately nodded.

"Yes."

He smiled lightly, retaining a calm expression on his face as he observed her resolute attitude. He nodded slightly, swept a glance at the couch, and said softly, "Okay, then I'll sleep on the couch."

After saying that, he went to the couch, bent down, and pressed an inconspicuous button on the side of the couch.

August answered in a cold voice when he saw her doubts. It was because Ted drank the wine that was drugged by Irene."

Lucia's body stiffened as soon as she heard these words.

So, it was like this.

To ensure that everything went smoothly, Irene tailored the trap down to the finest detail.

If she hadn't learned about this plan from August beforehand, she would have suffered greatly.

The cold rose from Lucia's feet to her neck, her fists clenching lightly, and a layer of sweat unconsciously formed on her palms.

Seeing Lucia standing there without any reaction and her face turning pale, August slightly nodded and said, "It is true that the evils they bring on themselves are the hardest to bear."

The evil in Irene's heart led her to design such a trap to harm others, but in the end, she became her own victim.

She was just fretting in her own grease.

Lucia came back to her senses and did not say anything.

A palpitating heartbeat filled her as she sat down in a chair near her.

A long time ago, Mrs. Mitchell always told her this world was full of evil people, but she never had that feeling.

This society's darkness was now so evident to her that she could no longer ignore it.

Looking at Lucia in a daze, August raised his hand and gently knocked on the table.

"Eat your breakfast while it's hot. If there's nothing else, I'll leave first."

After saying that, he stood up, put a box of ointment in the corner of the table, and walked away.

The door closed with a bang.

As she slowly came to her senses, Lucia stared at the ointment on the table with a complex feeling in her heart.

Having eaten breakfast, Lucia applied some ointment and noticed that it was getting late, so she went straight to work with her handbag.
