Chapter 151

Seeing that August had little patience, Joshua immediately smiled and asked for forgiveness.

"Fine, fine. I'll leave. Why are you so angry?"

"We haven't seen each other for a while, so I thought you would miss me."

"Forget it. I shouldn't have tried to chat with an iceberg like you..."

Joshua kept chattering to himself.

August looked so sullen, showing obviously that he had run out of patience.

Seeing that, Joshua immediately shut up and walked quickly out of the room.

When the door was closed, August finally had some peace. He walked to the window, casually picked up the imported wine on the table and poured half a glass.

After taking a sip, he looked out the window with his deep eyes.

His eyes swept over the brightly lit skyscrapers outside before he looked into the pitch-black sky.

In the farthest reaches of the sky, the darkness of the night looked like a bloody mouth waiting to devour the world.

The next morning, Lucia got up as soon as her alarm went off, without spending ten more minutes on the bed as she used to.

Today, it was the first day for her to formally go on the study tour of Teda Corporation, so she naturally had to be in good spirits.

She changed into a comfortable long dress, which was cool and not too casual.

After getting everything ready, she grabbed the stuff that she needed and went straight out.

When she and Linda arrived at the restaurant, it happened that all her colleagues had also arrived, so they went to the buffet area for food and found their own seats.

Lucia took some food and sat down at a table with Linda.

After taking a few sips of milk, she suddenly remembered her chance encounter with August last night.

Before they came to Frankfurt, she had not been informed that August would come too, and she had forgotten to ask August what he was doing here last night.

Judging from what the others were like today, they didn't seem to know that August was in Frankfurt.

Lucia took two bites of her sandwich.

Then, she asked Linda while pretending that she did it without thinking, "Are we the only ones going on the tour today?"

August casually picked up the tablet on the couch, flipped through the documents filled with foreign languages, and paused for two seconds before turning to look at the bowl of cubed fruit on the table.

He raised an eyebrow and asked, "That's your sincerity?"

Lucia took a deep breath and said softly, "If you like it, I'll do it for you every day for the next few days."

She knew August wouldn't give it to her easily.

Ever since she called him a scumbag last time, he had been trying to make things difficult for her.

When August heard that, something flickered in his eyes and he said lightly, "I'll try it."

Lucia froze for a moment and immediately responded, taking the small bowl and holding it in front of him.

To make it easier for him to eat, she specially prepared a fruit fork.

However, when she did that, the man had no intention of reaching out his hand to take the bowl.

With his left hand holding the tablet and his right hand tapping the screen, he lifted his head slightly to look at her and raised his eyebrows, saying, "I've got my hands full."

Lucia was stunned.

It was just a matter of reaching out, and he said it as seriously as if it were true that he couldn't do it! So what did he mean by that? Did he want her to feed him? Lucia was annoyed, but she couldn't show it.

After a few seconds of staring at him in disbelief, she managed to force a smile on her face.

"Well then, I'll feed you."

As she spoke, she picked up the fork.

With a single movement, she ran it through a piece of pineapple from one end to the other and then pretended to be patient as she put the piece of fruit to his mouth.

August opened his mouth to take it.

He curled his lips in satisfaction, and a smile flickered quickly in his eyes.

Lucia fed him several pieces in a row and August finally said lightly, "I'll tell Burton to send you the contact information."

Hearing that, Lucia was so happy that she wasn't that impatient anymore.

She looked at the small bowl in her hand and asked patiently, "Do you want more?"

August's tone eased up a bit as he said lightly, "Put it down."

Lucia put down the small bowl, feeling a bit happier than earlier.

The next thing Lucia knew, a noise kept coming faintly to her ears.

Her body was stiff as if she had been frozen, and she was too limp to muster any strength.

The smell of choking smoke wafted up, making it a bit hard for her to breathe.

She managed to open her eyes and raised her head slowly, finding herself tied up in a chair so tightly that she couldn't move.

Not far away was where the noise came from.

A group of men gathered around a billiard table, cursing and swearing about something.

Accompanied by cackling laughter, their words were vulgar and unpleasant to the ear.

Where...was she? Lucia gritted her teeth, lifted her head, and looked toward the other side.

Her eyes swept around, but she failed to tell where she was.

The place was huge, with couches, billiards, and some other amusements.

All of them were men, speaking both English and the language of Franksfurt.

There was smoke all over the place.

The smell of smoke was so choking that Lucia couldn't help but cough lightly.

Someone nearby immediately noticed it, and soon, several men came over to her.

Their leader was a dark-skinned man with dreadlocks and long, thick eyebrows, looking fierce.

He had multiple tattoos, the most noticeable one of which was the letter K tattooed on one side of his neck.

Next to him was a thin, small man, the same one she had met on the road! Lucia was alarmed.

Had she been kidnapped? If not, why would she be here? Why would she meet them? "K, this bitch woke up."

The man who was called K was the one with the letter K tattooed on his neck.

His hawk eyes were bright and piercing.

Although the whites of his eyes were bloodshot, he still looked as murderous as he could.

Lucia felt a chill all over her body.

She moved her lips and gathered the courage to ask,

would they kidnap her? Besides, she was just a poor girl, who didn't have much money on her!

A black car was racing through the darkness of the night.

In the car, the atmosphere was terribly oppressive.

August sat in the car with a sullen and grave face.

After a moment, he turned to Joshua, who was next to him, and said in a low and deep voice, "Are you sure nothing will go wrong this time?"

Joshua wasn't smiling and grimacing as usual.

Instead, he sounded serious as he said, "Don't worry. I'll have my men block all the doors. We'll get him no matter where he runs from."

August didn't say anything when he heard that.

About ten minutes ago, he was informed that Ted had shown up in the red-light district of Bearlin, so he immediately headed there with his men.

Joshua did the deployment.

August didn't know the details, but he knew that in a place like the red-light district, there were many people and complicated passages, so it wasn't easy to catch Ted.

This time, he wasn't sure that they would get the man.

Meanwhile, Lucia, who was tied up in the chair, felt like a monkey in the zoo.

No matter who came over, they would take a look at her.

They eyed her in a way that gave her the creeps and chills.

On the couch not far away, K looked at her from time to time to see her reaction.

One of his men ran over to him and whispered something in his ear.

A cold look flickered in K's slightly narrowed eyes and his back straightened.

He casually picked up the glass of wine on the table, drained it in one go, and put the glass back on the table with a bang before he stood up.

"It's about time."

He seemed to be telling his men or talking to himself.

After saying wrmapeees that, he stepped directly toward Lucia.

Seeing that, Bald and Monkey immediately came up respectfully.

Worse than the situation in the photo, at this moment Lucia's long skirt had been cut into lines by razor blades, with her skin exposed.

What's more, the hem of the long skirt was stained with a streak of blood and there was also blood flowing down her bare calves. She lowered her head, with a pale face and thin chin, making people feel pity.

Seeing this scene, August only felt a "buzz" in his head, as if something suddenly exploded in his ears.

He clenched his fist, with his eyes scarlet red.

At that moment, a cocky laugh came from the side, accompanied by applause.

K applauded as he stepped forward, "August, you didn't let your woman down and I thought you couldn't get here in half an hour!"

Although he was smiling, the smile did not reach the bottom of his eyes.

And his eyes like falcons' are glowing with cold light, making people feel chill.

August turned his head, with his unreadable dark eyes flooded with coldness, looking straight back at him without any fear, "K, you're famous in Berlin."

Why would you kidnap a weak woman by using such an underhanded means?"

Hearing the voice, Lucia, tied to the dartboard, half unconscious, trembled lightly and struggled to raise her head and open her eyes.

She couldn't help but be aggrieved when she saw the familiar face.

He really came! When she thought she was going to die here, he came like a god! K sneered and replied, "You, the famous August are not so easy to see, so I have to take the trouble to use some bait. See, you finally come up."

August clenched his fist and looked up at Lucia.

His eyes were clear and bright as he locked eyes with her, and after two seconds he turned to K with a sharp coldness in his eyes, "You hurt her?"

The blood on her body was blindingly red! "No."

K pretended to be innocent and raised his hand, "She is in her physiological period and the blood has nothing to do with me. I, K, before the matter is settled will not hurt her."

August looked at the dozen men standing behind K and said in a cold voice, "So how do you want to settle this matter?"

With a "swoosh", the dart flew rapidly towards the dartboard.

Lucia closed her eyes tightly and didn't dare to move as the dartboard spun.

The dart was about to fly at her arm, but with a "click" sound, the dart hit the board with the tail twitching, less than a centimeter away from her arm.

Lucia heard a huffing sound coming from the side, and only then did she slowly open her eyes.

The last dart avoided her perfectly and didn't hurt her a bit! She looked up with some delight, catching the man's dark, unreadable eyes.

And she unconsciously felt some stability.

This feeling was a solid sense of security and trust, which she had never experienced from others.

When he saw Lucia looking at him, August looked at her with rare gentleness.

At that moment, one of K's men suddenly ran to his side and whispered something in his ear.

A few seconds later, K's expression changed. He subconsciously looked up at August, and with a wave of his hand, he let the man next to him back off. He stepped forward, with his icy expression changing.

Then, he curled his lips, raised his hand, and applauded August, "Good! That was a good throw and I'm convinced!"

In the face of his bragging, August was indifferent.

He turned his head and gave him a cold glance.

K pretended to smile.

After a few rounds of applause, he grabbed a dart from the tray next to him and walked towards August while smiling, "You really hide your light under a bushel?"

He sounded like he was joking, playing with the dart in his hand as if he was trying to figure out something.

Without waiting for August to answer, he had already picked up the dart, put it in front of him, closed one eye, and took aim at Lucia on the dartboard.

Leroy was confused for a moment, and after half a second, he immediately looked away and replied seriously, "Nothing."

August frowned and ordered with a cold face, "Go to the nearby supermarket and buy some sanitary pads!"

Saying that, he picked up the jacket next to him and wrapped it directly around Lucia's body.

Leroy looked at him in shock, "Boss..."

He could only study the computer and never even had a girlfriend.

Except for the occasional advertisement he had seen, he knew nothing about these feminine products.

August raised an eyebrow and a look of displeasure appeared on his face, "Is it difficult?"

Leroy swallowed and said, "No...no problem.Which one should I buy?"

August's face darkened more and he also didn't know about these.

"Buy one pack of each."

He said this in a cold voice and was about to push the door to get out of the car.

As if he thought Leroy could not do it alone, he looked at Burton sitting in the passenger seat and ordered, "You follow him and quickly buy sanitary pads back."

After saying that, he carried Lucia out of the car, striding towards the hotel.

Burton and Leroy looked at each other and turned pale, but they could not disobey the order, so they had to go buy them immediately.

Back in the hotel room, August laid Lucia on the bed.

As he looked at the woman's furrowed brow and pale lips, a strange emotion came over him.

This time, she did suffer because of him.

When he looked at the woman's already tattered clothes, August's eyes darkened.

He reached out to change her clothes, but just as he touched Lucia's body, she struggled as if she had been electrocuted.

"Don't! Don't hit me! I..."

She seemed to dream of something horrific and curled up in resistance, something like pleading wails humming out from her mouth.

Lucia took a deep breath and calmed down a bit.

Looking up at August, she nodded at him, "Then I'll do as you say and go back to the Cannada tomorrow."

Now she had already been kidnapped once by those people.

If she still stayed here, not only could she not help him, but she would also probably give him a leg up.

Rather than this, she might as well leave.

August was relieved when he saw that she agreed.

After giving her a deep look, he was about to speak, when there was a sudden, sharp knock at the door.

Lucia subconsciously tightened herself, a little panicked.

Seeing this, August immediately got up and went to open the door.

The door opened and Burton stood outside with a slight panic on his face, "Alex is back, wounded.

I went to see him and felt he was a little angry.

Mr.Adams, can you go see him?"

August heard what he said, and the emotions under his eyes were unclear.

After a two-second pause, he nodded slightly, "I know and I'll go see him later."

Nodding, Burton did not say anything else and turned to leave.

August closed the door of the room behind him.

When he thought about what Burton had just said, his face became somber.

Tonight, they went into a lot of trouble and deploy so long to capture Ted, but K made the first move and captured Lucia, making them the passive party.

Not only did he fail to catch Ted, but he also got hurt, so Alex was upset.

August turned around and walked back.

When she woke up this morning, she found a large bag full of them on the table in August's room, with one of them open.

Without asking, she knew what was going on.

Thinking about this, she couldn't help but blush and forgot to answer Paula's question.

Looking at a blush inexplicably appearing on Lucia's cheeks, Paula approached her and asked curiously, "Lucia, what's wrong with you? Are you thinking about a man?"

Lucia snapped back to her senses and hastily said, "No!"

Paula continued to tease her, "Then why do you look like that?"

Lucia didn't know what to say.

When she caught a glimpse of Burton, who was not far behind them, she turned to flirt with Paula, "Paula, you're the one who's thinking about a man. He is right next to you, and you should seize the opportunity."

Hearing her say that, Paula first froze, and then reacted.

She blushed, angry and annoyed, and reached out to slap her on the back, "Lucia, what are you talking about?"

The two of them were having fun all the way.

After walking out of the airport, Burton suddenly came up to them and said, "I've called a car. Where are you going? I'll take you home first."

Paula suggested, "Lucia, how about we go to dinner first?"

Lucia agreed.

Looking at Burton and then at Paula, she smiled lightly, "Harris, thanks for your care along the way and you should come to dinner with us too. What do you think, Paula?"

With the blush still on her cheeks, Paula glanced at Burton and hesitated for a few seconds before finally nodding reluctantly, "Since Lucia has given the word, let's go to dinner together."

A light flashed under Burton's eyes, and his expression was no longer so serious.

He nodded and said, "Okay."

A short while later, the car Burton had called arrived.

Chapter 160

Mandy looked at the man in the wheelchair.He became gentle and the warm light of the sun shone on his face, outlining his soft silhouette.

At that moment, she couldn't help but be stunned When it came to Lucia, this man who had a detached look was much gentler.

While she was surprised, she couldn't help but think more.

Catching the ridicule that emerged from Mandy's eyes, Bishop turned back without panic and said nothing more.

He was just putting on a show in front of her.

Seeing that she almost got his meaning, he stopped.

Lucia and her, Mandy are all pawns in his hands.

That's all.

The aroma of the barbecue restaurant was overwhelming.

Lucia, who had been hungry all morning, had a huge appetite.

She took a big bite, and then a few slices of lettuce-covered grilled meat went down her belly, instantly relieving her hunger.

When she looked up, she saw Burton picking up a fork to take the snow beef on the grill, but a fork suddenly came up next to her and Paula quickly took away the piece of beef that was grilled to perfection.

Lucia looked at Paula and couldn't help but laugh lightly, "Paula, don't be so bad. Why do you have to grab Harris' meat?"

Paula raised an eyebrow and said rightfully, "His name isn't written on the beef, so if I grab it, it's mine."

At that, Lucia looked at Burton and smiled helplessly with him. She knew this best friend very well. She would only be like this with people she was interested in and for those she wasn't interested in, she wouldn't even talk to them. She grabbed Burton's beef, which meant she probably fancied him.

The atmosphere at the dinner table was relaxed and happy.

At the end of the meal, Lucia was full and in a much better mood.

On the way back from the restaurant, Paula suddenly tugged on her arm and said with a soft smile, "Lucia, there's a concert at the end of the month at the Austos International Venue. Do you want to go?"

Talking about the concert, Lucia turned her head and asked her, "Is there a program of yours?"
