Chapter 181 Human Flesh Exam

Lucia's words stunned the man for a while, but the man soon glared at her.

"Yesterday! Look at this data on the medical record!"

Lucia took a half step forward and then asked, "Then, have you been to the after-sales department?"

The man panicked at Lucia's question.

"No...I haven't! They refused to accept my complaint!"

"Oh?"

Lucia fixed her eyes on the man.

"If I were you and my kid got injured by the product, I would get him treated and then go directly to the after-sale service department for an explanation and compensation. But you didn't even look for any after-sale service. Instead, you came to our release meeting and made such a scene. I don't think a normal consumer would do such a thing."

Lucia's words added more flusters to the man's face.

Onlookers also felt Lucia's words reasonable.

Generally speaking, a consumer would ask for after-sale service instead of making trouble at the release meeting when the product he bought had caused enough trouble.

This man was suspicious.

Lucia saw that the man was speechless, and took out the sample of the new product and showed it to the audience, "Our product can only be mass-produced and sold after a strict safety inspection. Even if this product has a spiral blade, the spiral blade is made of special materials and its size is well-matched. It will not operate at all if foreign matters are detected. Even if I put my finger in it, my finger will not get hurt."

Hearing this, the man snorted, "If you're so sure, then put your fingers in and show us!"

In an instant, the crowd all focused on Lucia.

After all, action speaks louder than words.

After hesitation, Lucia looked at the ventilation holes in the product in her hand and gasped nervously.

All her knowledge of the new products came from Carter's materials.

The data on the materials only showed the safety factor of the product. She didn't know whether it would cause injury or not.

But Boehm's products were becoming better and better over the years.

Safety issues were the most basic, at which Lucia believed Boehm's designers wouldn't make such careless mistakes.

The man aside snorted.

"See? She is afraid! That's proof!"

"Who told you that?"

Chapter 182 Lucia was taken aback.

Somehow, an oppressive feeling weighed upon her.

When she rose to her feet after picking up her bag from the ground, she met August's dark and cold eyes.

Why is he here? How did he come here so suddenly? Did he teleport? Lucia was startled and subconsciously hid her injured hand behind her back.

"Hi, Mr. Holland..."

Why did he suddenly come over? Did he hurry over because he knew Adeline got a sprained ankle? August's eyes were cold and dark, his brows furrowing.

What Lucia did displease him even more.

"Why are you hiding your hands?"

Because she doesn't want me to notice her injury? She's probably still unaware that the live broadcast of her testing the product's safety with her fingers has gone viral on the Internet.

Lucia gazed down.

Before she could utter anything more, August grabbed her by the wrist.

"Come with me!" he commanded, his face sullen, his tone authoritative.

"What are you doing?"

Lucia became anxious, and she struggled to break free.

"The event isn't over yet!"

She finally calmed down the crowd, and the event was about to come to an end in a little while.

How could she just leave like this? August frowned upon hearing her words.

"I'll have Peter stay to deal with it."

With that, he dragged her toward his car.

With her teeth gritted, Lucia struggled.

"Let go of me! I'm not leaving!"

I don't want to go with him! Last time, I made it clear that he should leave me alone.

What the hell is he doing here? Her resolute attitude caused August to stop abruptly.

Seeing that August was silent and did not respond, Lucia took a deep breath and gathered up the courage to continue to ask, "I guessed it right?"

She wanted to use such words to provoke him to leave, but she somehow wanted to know his answer in her heart.

August raised his eyes coldly and asked instead, "Do you think my taste is so bad?"

It instantly made Lucia's heart sink.

August stretched out his hand and grabbed her shoulder, half pushing her into the ward.

Lucia was pushed to the side of the hospital bed.

Before she could turn around, she heard his cold voice from behind, "I promised Mr. Mitchell. So of course I won't leave you alone."

Hearing his words, Lucia's heart tightened, and indescribable grief came to her.

So he only took care of her for her father's sake.

It seemed that he had not taken care of her out of his own will from beginning to end.

Lucia suddenly felt a sense of depression in her heart.

She bit her lips, turned around, looked at August with a serious face, and said word by word, "From now on, you don't need to worry about me. If Dad asks, I will explain to him."

Hearing this, August met her stubborn gaze, and his heart tightened. He pursed his lips and he didn't speak for a long time.

The atmosphere in the room became awkward again.

August looked at her cold face, and his heart sank suddenly.

A few seconds later, he raised his hand, pressed her shoulders, and sat down on the edge of the bed, "Take a rest. I'll call someone to take you back later."

With that, he turned and walked to the window, took out his mobile phone, and called Burton.

Looking at the time, he thought the event over there should be over soon.

Before Lucia could figure it out, the phone in her pocket suddenly rang.

Lucia was so frightened that she immediately took out her phone to answer the call, "Hello?"

As soon as she answered, she heard Paula's voice in disbelief from the other end of the phone, "Lucia, are you crazy!"

It was so loud.

Lucia quickly took the phone half a meter away, but she could still hear Paula's voice, "How dare you do the test with your hands? Are you crazy?! Has the wound been bandaged? Is the event over? Where are you?"

Hearing Paula's consecutive questions, Lucia smiled helplessly and said softly, "Paula, don't worry. The wound has been bandaged, and I'm in the hospital now"

As soon as Paula heard that she was in the hospital, Paula immediately asked, "Which hospital? I'll go over right now!"

Hearing her decisive voice, Lucia couldn't refuse. So she hesitantly gave the name of the hospital.

"Okay, don't move around. I'll go see you right away!"

As soon as Paula finished it, she hung up.

Lucia glanced at the darkened screen, smiled helplessly, and shook her head.

Paula had a quick temper.

When would she change it? She glanced at her wound that had been treated, took the elevator directly to the lobby on the first floor of the hospital, and found a chair to sit down.

More than twenty minutes later, Lucia saw Paula hurriedly pass through the gate and walk in quickly. She quickly stood up and waved her uninjured right hand at Paula.

Seeing that, Paula hurried over immediately, grabbed her wrist, and turned it around to check, "Let me see. Is there any other injury?"

Seeing her like this, Lucia felt warm in her heart, and said in a relaxed tone, "It's okay. The small wound in my hand has been bandaged. So don't worry."

Hearing this, Paula grabbed her left hand wrapped in layers of gauze and looked at it again and again. She felt sorry for Lucia and said with a frown, "This must be painful. I watched that video several times, and I felt distressed when I watched it. Even if it heals, it will leave a scar, right?"

Seeing Paula nag about her injury, Lucia couldn't help but smile. She raised her right hand and patted Paula's back, comforting, "Don't worry. It's okay!"

Paula pulled Lucia to sit down and couldn't help but start scolding her, "If the metal pieces inside were a little sharper, maybe your fingers would have been chopped off! Lucia, why are you still acting as if nothing happened?"

After washing their hands and coming out of the kitchen, Jeanne took August to sit down.

The servant immediately came over and poured wine for them.

Just after the wine was poured, there was a sound of footsteps at the entrance of the stairs.

Merlin raised his chin slightly and walked towards them casually.

After he greeted her parents, he glanced coldly at August and sat across from him.

Seeing that everyone was here, Martin looked at August, smile slightly, and said softly, "August, try this wine.I have treasured this bottle of wine for many years."

August nodded, took a sip from the red wine glass, and then said softly, "Good wine."

Hearing this, Martin smiled and was about to ask everyone to start the lunch when Merlin next to him snorted in dissatisfaction.

"Dad, why the fuss? It's not a big day.Why drink such good wine?"

When he was celebrating his birthday, he had asked Martin for this bottle of red wine, but his father didn't give it to him.

Unexpectedly, when August came, his father opened it.

There was obvious jealousy in his tone.

As soon as he finished it, the smiles of everyone at the dining table froze a bit.

Jeanne sat beside August, and she frowned angrily.

Why was her brother such a wet blanket? Martin's face was slightly cold, and his voice was cold and low, "August came to visit us.Why isn't it a big day? Watch your tongue."

After being reprimanded in front of everyone, Merlin looked gloomy.

He glanced coldly at August, who was facing him and closed his mouth in dissatisfaction.

But August looked calm as ever.

After such a commotion, the atmosphere at the dining table became a lot colder.

Mrs.Kelly immediately smiled and softened the atmosphere, "Okay, everyone, let's eat, or the foot will get cold."

Oh, her stupid brother! He couldn't do anything right and even made August angry! "Jeanne, I'm not angry."

August stopped and put on a gentle smile on his face.

He raised his hand to stroke her head, and said softly, "I have something urgent to deal with."

After hearing what he said, Jeanne felt a little more at ease.

She raised her head, and asked tenderly, "Really?"

August chuckled, "Really? I'll call you when I'm done."

Jeanne took his hand and said reluctantly, "Okay, then don't be too tired, okay?"

The two said a few more words and then separated.

Walking out of the Kelly family villa, August secretly breathed a sigh of relief.

Now, he somehow felt he was dealing with Jeanne like other Kelly family members. He raised his hand and pressed his eyebrows. He got into the car, told the driver to start the car, and called Burton.

"Mr. Adams, Miss Mitchel is with her good friend Paula. I saw them walk out of the hospital, so I didn't follow them anymore"

Hearing Burton's report on the other end of the phone, August paused and said softly, "Well, go back to the company."

He hung up the phone.

Burton sounded hesitant on the phone just now. He felt that Burton had something to say to him.

Back in the Lion group, August arrived at the company and walked into the President's Office.

Burton came over not long after and said, "Mr. Adams."

August asked subconsciously, "How is she?"

When he said this, he was a little surprised.

Since when did he begin to care about Lucia so much? Burton reported truthfully, "She didn't seem to be in a good mood. I heard her talk with Paula. She was worried that her father would know about her injury, and she seemed to be collecting money for her father's surgery..."

August's eyes suddenly darkened.

No wonder she seemed to be short of money recently, working overtime every day and taking part-time jobs... He saw that she was short of money, but he had never thought about why she was short of money.

Didn't he leave with Jeanne? He suddenly came to see her.

What did he want to do? August raised his chin slightly, leaned in front of the cabinet next to him, and looked at Lucia from a distance with a bit of laziness and casualness in his eyes.

Martin had deliberately encouraged him to have a few drinks at lunch just now.

Now he felt a little drunk.

Glancing at Lucia, who looked panicked, he smiled faintly and said, "I'm here to see you. I have something to say"

Seeing his rare smile, Lucia was a little surprised.

Why did she feel that August was so different today? Now he was even different from in the hospital in the morning.

Was he drunk? Lucia was about to speak when the doorbell rang suddenly.

Lucia was stunned.

Thinking of Paula who had been dragged out just now, she hurriedly walked towards the door.

When August saw this, he stretched out his hand to block her, and his voice was a little deeper, "I'll go."

Then he turned and walked towards the door.

He had specially instructed Burton to restrain Paula because he had something to tell Lucia alone.

Unexpectedly, he came back after only two minutes.

The door was pushed open.

August stood at the door.

His tall body almost blocked the entire door.

When he saw the person outside, he was stunned for a second.

It was the young delivery guy just now.

When the young man saw August, he hesitated and said timidly, "You...your takeaway."

Just now, he had watched as one of the two men broke into the house while the other pulled a girl out.

The two acted neatly, and he thought they were criminals.

Lucia reached out and turned off the induction cooker.

Only then did she remember the business.

She wiped her mouth, looked at August opposite her with a serious face, and asked, "What do you want to say to me?"

Now that he had entered the house and eaten the fondue, he should talk about why he came to see her.

August wiped his hands elegantly, raised his eyes, and looked at Lucia with a more serious look, "Is that friend of yours investigating the tampered photos?"

Lucia was slightly startled.

She paused and asked, "Yes, what's wrong?"

Since that incident happened, she had asked Paula to help her investigate the matter.

With her ability, she couldn't find out anything at all.

But Paula knew a lot of people, so she might be able to find out something.

But how did August know about this? Before she could ask, August said solemnly, "Don't investigate this matter anymore. I will help you solve any problems."

His tone was cold, without the slightest hint of negotiation.

Lucia frowned slightly and asked, "Do you know who did it?"

August's eyes darkened and he said patiently, "I will resolve this matter. You and your friend should stop interfering, understand?"

"Why?"

August frowned and he seemed colder. He said word by word, "Because if you continue to investigate, not only will it not be of any benefit to you, but it may be dangerous."

He had sent someone to investigate the matter of the tampered photos.

It was done by Merlin.

He would avenge her.

But if Merlin noticed it when they were investigating, it would only make him more vindictive.

When Lucia saw August's deep and serious eyes, her heart suddenly tightened, and she unconsciously remembered what had happened in Frankfurt.

Her cheeks were burning hot.

Paula patted her face and walked forward in confusion when she suddenly saw a tall figure coming out of the elevator.

It was the "scumbag" August, whom she unexpectedly bumped into.

Paula shrank her head slightly, pretended not to see him, lowered her head, and walked quickly towards the elevator.

Suddenly, she heard a voice, "Wait a minute."

Paula was stunned for a moment and looked back at August.

She looked around at the empty surroundings and said, "You're talking to me?"

August nodded lightly.

He took out a business card from his pocket slowly and handed it to her, "If anything happens to Lucia and she needs help, you can call me."

Paula hesitantly stretched out her hand to take it.

Just as she was about to ask something, August turned around and walked away quickly.

What...what was going on? Could it be that Lucia and this scumbag had made any substantial progress? Or something had happened between them just now...

Paula didn't dare to think more about it.

She dragged her "half-disabled" leg and immediately got into the elevator.

If she found out that Lucia had been bullied when she went back, she would teach August a lesson! In the apartment, just when Lucia was hesitating whether to go out and look for Paula, the doorbell rang.

She immediately went over to open the door and saw Paula holding a bag of medicine outside the door.

She was startled and asked quickly, "What's the matter with you, Paula?"

Paula shook her head, but pulled her nervously and asked, "I'm fine. Lucia, that scumbag didn't molest you, right?"

When Lucia heard this, she couldn't help laughing out loud.

She shook her head and said, "No. But why are you injured?"

Seeing that Lucia was fine, Paula was relieved.

She hopped to the sofa and said angrily, "It's because of Burton! He's a sick bastard!"

Hearing her scolding like this, Lucia couldn't help but wonder, "What's wrong?"

Chapter 190 It Would Only Make Things Worse

He suddenly remembered that when August came to his house for lunch yesterday, he had talked about his affair with Cecile in front of him! The media happened to release the news on the day when the Kelly Group was going to cooperate with the Coster Group.

He and August had just fought yesterday.

It was such a coincidence.

When Merlin cleared his head, his anger grew even stronger.

He raised his hand and swept the cup on the table to the ground.

With a bang, the cup and the water fell to the ground and shattered.

He almost gritted his teeth and cursed, "August, how dare you!"

As soon as he said that, a secretary ran over.

When she saw the glass fragments all over the floor and Merlin's angry face, she was so frightened that she froze and asked, "Mr.Kelly, you..."

Merlin glanced at her with gloomy eyes and said, "Get out!"

The secretary shuddered, and hurriedly exited the conference room.

Merlin's eyes fell on her back and they darkened, He stopped her, "Wait!"

He had been slapped by his father just now.

When he thought that August might have done this, he was so angry that he had nowhere to vent his anger.

When the secretary heard this, she turned back tremblingly, lowered her head, and said, "Mr.Kelly, what can I do for you?"

Merlin snorted coldly and his eyes darkened.

His eyes reminded her of Martin's, which made her shudder.

He walked over quickly, closed the conference room door without saying a word, and locked it.

He grabbed the secretary and pressed her against the conference table, "Help me vent my anger!"

The poor secretary was so frightened that she broke away from him, backing away, "Mr.Kelly, don't do this!"
