Chapter 341 He Unilaterally Broke the Contract

Seeing August's doubts, Burton hesitated for a moment, and then said softly, "Yes, it's Figo City, and I know about it too." August's eyes became sharper, and he looked up at Burton, "How do you know?"

Burton hesitated for a moment and said, "Paula is my girlfriend, and her performance in Figo City was not going well. Originally, I wanted to go see her, but I couldn't get away, so her brother went over."

A trace of suspicion flashed in August's eyes when he heard it, which was fleeting.

After a pause, he took a deep look at Burton and said coldly, "Let's go."

Burton had been by his side for so many years, and he was trustworthy.

But before finding Lucia, August thought he should send someone to keep an eye on Paul! For three days in a row, August's men almost turned the entire Austos City upside down, but there was still no news about Lucia.

At the President's Office of Lion Group, Burton pushed open the door of the office.

When he saw August sitting at the desk with a tired face, he was a little surprised.

He had never seen August like this before.

Hearing the footsteps, August raised his head.

When he saw Burton, a dim light flashed in his eyes, and he asked, "Is there any news?"

Burton paused and shook his head, "Not yet."

The gleam of light in August's eyes dimmed a bit in an instant, and his face turned cold again.

He raised his hand, pressed his eyebrows, and said nothing.

Burton took a deep breath and said, "President Adams, the receptionist called and said that the artist Jonathan Black and his agent are here. They got into the elevator and will be here soon."

August frowned, "What is he doing here?"

"It is said that he came to talk about the details of the cooperation.

Do you want to turn it down and let people off the redeur receive them?"

"No."

August said lightly, "You go to receive them and arrange for them to wait in the reception room. I'll go over soon."

"Yes."

Burton turned to leave.

Suecy's face was pale. She hadn't expected things to come to this. She stood up, bowed to August, and apologized, "I'm sorry, President Adams, my artist is not very sensible, and I will talk to him when I get back..."

She looked at August's gloomy face and didn't dare to say anything more, so she walked out of the office quickly.

When the door was closed, August was left alone in the reception room.

Sitting on the sofa, August thought about what Jonathan had said just now and felt a little upset. He knew Adeline's thoughts about him before. He knew Adeline when she was still nobody in the entertainment industry. He had just helped her at a dinner party.

Later, they became familiar with and helped each other. He had given her resources while she covered his missions.

The two were friends and confidants, but not lovers.

For Adeline's affections, he had always clearly refused, but Lucia...

Thinking of her name, August had a headache.

If Lucia had feelings for him as Jonathan said, why did she suddenly disappear at this time? He felt more and more confused, and his mind was like a mess. He couldn't figure it out at all. He had somehow become more and more conflicted.

Others had just gotten off work.

August became more and more irritable after hearing Burton's report on the schedule after that.

In the end, he rubbed his temples and said coldly, "Postpone today's schedule."

Burton was secretly surprised, but he did not ask any questions and nodded immediately.

"Okay, you go to work. I'll go back by myself tonight."

Burton nodded and walked out of the office.

After Burton left, August flipped through the documents at hand.

The words somehow stopped making sense, and he couldn't concentrate at all.

Suddenly, the door was pushed open and someone walked in. He thought it was Burton and didn't look up.

Suddenly, he smelt something fragrant, and then a woman leaned towards him and directly wrapped her arms around his neck.

"August, what are you looking at? You look so serious!"

Jeanne tilted her head and smiled

Paul was startled, thinking he heard it wrong, "Lucia, what did you just say?"

Lucia couldn't help smiling.

She stroked her belly with her right hand, and said softly, "The doctor said they're twins."

Paul's eyes lit up when he heard it, and he looked very happy, "Really?"

Seeing his expression, Lucia couldn't help but feel amused and nod.

"That's great!"

Paul looked overjoyed, and he held Lucia's hand a little excitedly, "A boy and a girl. You're so lucky. You will have no regrets in life!"

Seeing his happy face, Lucia felt a little emotional.

During this period, Paul had been good to her and her family. He had not only helped her to leave Austos City but also made arrangements for her parents.

She could see his sincerity towards her.

Thinking of this, her nose felt sour, and tears welled up in her eyes.

Seeing this, Paul's smile froze, and he became a little nervous, "Lucia, what's wrong with you?"

Lucia shook her head and took a deep breath, "Paul, thank you very much."

Hearing this, Paul smiled and said affectionately, "Lucia, I'm more than willing to take care of you. I just hope you will be able to accept me one day in the future."

Lucia's heart trembled slightly. She raised her eyes to meet Paul's eyes, but another man's face suddenly flashed in her mind.

In an instant, she felt a basin of cold water pouring down directly from the top of her head, and she woke up a lot in an instant. She took a deep breath, looked at Paul, and said softly, "Paul, I'm sorry, there may be such a day in the future, but now I..."

Jeanne felt the man's sudden look at her. Her body became cold, and she was suddenly nervous. She gritted her teeth, looked at Mark, and raised her voice to make herself domineering.

"Mark, August asked you, why you want to kill Lucia?" Jeanne asked.

A gloom flashed in Mark's eyes, and after he hesitated for a few seconds, he looked at August cautiously.

"Because that woman is too annoying, she always hangs around you, sir, and I was afraid that she would take my boss' place in your life. It's all my fault."

Mark said with a clear voice, even though he was still trembling and in trouble.

Jeanne's heart tensed, and she didn't expect that Mark would risk taking the blame for himself to protect her.

August looked at him condescendingly.

"So, you confess to the crime of instigating the motorcyclist to intentionally harm others?" He asked Mark.

Mark hesitated for a moment, then said solemnly, "Yes."

August glanced at him coldly.

"Mark, do you know that you are going to go to jail because of this?" He asked.

When Mark heard the words, he was silent and did not speak.

On the other hand, Jeanne's nervous face turned pale.

After waiting for a while, Mark still didn't answer.

August turned to look at Burton next to him.

"Contact the police immediately, hand over the recording we just made to them, and let them do the rest. Follow due procedure," He ordered Burton coldly.

"August!"

Jeanne's eyes widened in panic as she yelped. She stretched out her hand to grab August's arm.

"Is this necessary? Mark is my bodyguard and has been with me for many years. Now if it is true..."

Jeanne started to say.

Chapter 345 Two Children

Things in the world are too impermanent.

When some people separate, maybe they would meet again at the next street intersection, and for some people, once parted, there is no hope of reuniting again.

Time flies.

Everything that is not firm enough has become after years of development, and what remains, in the end, is often the most sincere and unforgettable.

Five years later.

A white car is parked in front of a small white western-style building on the outskirts of Ameca.

The interior of the car is spacious.

Lucia is wearing a tight top and loose jeans, which outline her well-proportioned and perfect figure.

Although she is now the mother of two children, she is still full of girlishness, her skin is delicate and smooth, and her figure is like that of an eighteen-year-old girl, which is particularly eye-catching.

There are two child seats on the rear seat, two small figures carved in pink and jade-like dumplings sitting on the left and the right, one wearing a purple skirt, the other wearing a black suit.

Except for the hairstyle and that they dressed differently, the facial features of the two seem to have been carved out of a mold.

At this moment, the two small kids are bickering with each other.

"There are chickens before there are eggs..."

One of the kids said.

"No, eggs come first before chickens!"

The other one argued.

"It's not! Where can eggs come from without chickens?"

The first kid asked.

The two guys argued intensely.

No one would give in for the other to be correct.

The little boy's face turned red because his voice couldn't match the little girl's.

When he was impatient, he uttered a series of words, but his sister could not be outdone.

When the boy spoke, he uttered some words in clear English, and some others incoherently, because of how frustrated he was that he could not outdo his sister.

Her heart tightened, and a chill suddenly invaded her body.

She immediately picked up Timothy, took the mobile phone from him.

and said to Paula on the other end of the phone.

"Paula, something is wrong.

Janet is gone!"

Lucia said urgently.

"What!"

Paula screamed.

Paula, on the other end of the phone, was shocked when she heard the news.

"How did she disappear?"

She asked.

Lucia was nervous, and her voice trembled a little because of her anxiety.

"I don't know either, but I didn't see her again as soon as I turned around with my luggage!"

Lucia replied.

Paula repeatedly comforted her.

"Don't worry, you go around and take a look, I'll rush over to find you right away!"

She said to Lucia.

They hung up the phone.

Lucia put Timothy down, took his little hand, and took a walk to search around the hall.

"Janet! Where are you, Janet!"

Lucia was saying loudly.

"Janet!"

She echoed.

On the other side of the airport hall, a group of men in suits walked together, attracting a lot of attention.

They were all dressed in black suits and walked forward in unison, with outstanding momentum and threatening battles.

August, who was walking at the front, was naturally the most eye-catching one.

Facing the gazes of passers-by who were projected from left and right, he looked, as usual, raised his hand calmly and looked at his watch, and slightly tilted his head to look at the second half.

Burton stepped forward.

"Notify the senior management at the head office that there will be a temporary meeting tomorrow morning, and all members must be present,"

August said to Burton instructively.

Burton nodded immediately.

Janet was a little excited when she heard this. She quickly looked at August.

"Uncle handsome, it's me! It's me! Janet is me!"

She yelled with excitement.

August looked at the anxious appearance of the little girl, and he couldn't help but smile.

"Okay, then I'll take you to the front desk of No.1," he said softly.

"Okay! Thank you, handsome uncle!" Janet said.

Janet was happy. She suddenly put her arms around August's neck and kissed him on the cheek with a "haha".

August was stunned for a moment, and an inexplicable warm current passed through his heart, but he didn't reject it at all, and when he looked at Janet, he felt a little more love in his heart.

He hugged her and walked over to the front desk at number 1 quickly.

From a distance, August saw one big person and one small person standing next to the front desk of No.1.

The woman with her back to him was dressed in fashion and had a good figure, but she looked inexplicably familiar.

A little guy was standing next to her, about the same size as Janet, and also looked like a small dumpling made of pink and jade.

The two little guys seemed to have telepathy.

When Timothy turned his head, the two saw each other at the same time.

"Janet!"

Timothy screamed.

"Timothy!"

Janet screamed back.

In the distance, the two danced excitedly with each other, and Timothy ran towards August at a trot.

August took a closer look and saw Timothy's little face.

For some reason, his heart tightened, and an inexplicable sense of familiarity emerged from the bottom of his heart.

He bent down, put Janet down, and watched the two little dumplings run and hug each other.

Saying that she looked at August with a cold attitude.

"Thank you for today," she said to him.

After she finished speaking, she held Janet with one hand and Timothy with the other turned, and walked to the other side.

August raised his eyes and watched the woman pull the two little guys away.

Before they took two steps, Janet turned her head to look at him, looking so cute.

August suddenly felt a burst of warmth in his heart, but when he thought that it was the child of Lucia and Paul, his mood instantly turned cold.

After a while, his expression returned to calm, he turned around, glanced at Burton, and said coldly, "Let's go."

Burton hesitated for a moment, nodded, took a step, and followed quickly.

Lucia took Janet and Timothy back to the baggage claim area.

Just after taking the suitcase and preparing to leave, a loud voice sounded.

"Lucia!"

Paula ran towards them in a hurry, not forgetting to give them a big blowing kiss, and in the next second, she opened her arms, hugged the two little guys, and kissed them hard.

"Okay auntie, your saliva..."

Timothy was the first to complain. He was a little helpless to be kissed and quickly reached out his small hand to wipe his face.

Next to Timothy, Janet laughed non-stop.

"Okay, auntie..." She said with excitement.

For a while, the atmosphere instantly became active and relaxed, and Lucia's originally tense heart gradually relaxed a little.

The scene of meeting August just now was still reverberating in her mind.

She was so nervous at the time, for fear that August would suspect something when he saw the two little dumplings.

Unexpectedly, she had just arrived in Austos, and she reunited with August at the airport.

Should she sigh because Austos city was too small, or should she feel that the two of them have fate? Thinking like this in her heart, Lucia felt a little distracted, and she didn't even know that Paula walked beside her.

"What are you thinking about? So fascinated!" Paula asked.

Lucia snapped back to her senses.

Seeing Paula next to her, she breathed a sigh of relief, shook her head, and said, "I'm okay, it's just that Janet got lost and met August."

Chapter 349 A Simple Life

Sure enough, three minutes later, there was a sound of footsteps in the room, and then, following the call of Timothy and Janet, the door was opened.

Bill frowned and appeared at the door.

When he looked down and saw the two little guys, he was stunned for a moment, and a gleam of light flashed in his eyes.

Timothy and Janet were also seeing their grandfather for the first time, so they were inevitably a little unfamiliar.

They stared at him with big eyes and didn't dare to scream.

Bill looked a little complicated. He took a deep breath, hesitated for a moment, and slowly squatted down.

"You...what's your name?" He asked the boy.

"My name is Timothy, and her name is Janet,"

Timothy said carefully, with a timid tone.

Bill Mitchell's eyes lit up, and the expression on his face was instantly replaced by gentleness and happiness. He nodded repeatedly and opened his arms to wrap the two small dumplings between his arms.

"Good name, good name...let Grandpa have a look..." he said with good cheer.

Seeing this, Lucia, who was next to him, had a sour nose, and hot tears rolled in her eyes.

Over the years, she did not fulfill her filial piety as a daughter, never came back to see them, and never even had a few phone calls. It was not that she didn't miss them, it was that she had too many reasons that kept her away.

Firstly, she was afraid of August, and then she was swayed by the children. She had dragged this out for several years.

"Grandpa...How old are you? Your hair is white..."

The children started to ask.

"Grandpa..."

The two little guys surrounded Bill Mitchell and kept asking various questions.

After a while, Bill was so amused that he couldn't stop talking.

Chapter 350 Leave Austos Soon

After a while, Elisa had prepared five dishes and one soup, and the table was filled with a sumptuous meal.

Timothy and Janet, two little greedy cats, couldn't eat such authentic traditional food abroad.

At this time, they were all around the table, inhaling the aroma on the table, and sighing.

"Wow! Grandma, what is this? It looks delicious..." Janet said in a delighted way.

Elisa patiently introduced the dishes one by one.

"This is sliced pork belly, this red one is sweet and sour fish..." she explained.

After the introduction, the two greedy cats looked at their grandmother with a little more admiration.

Elisa naturally enjoyed this feeling and happily dragged them into the kitchen.

"Go! Go and wash your hands and come to eat!"

She cooed at the kids.

Lucia stood aside and savored the meal.

Every dish on the table was her favorite.

She took a deep breath, turned her head inadvertently, saw Bill next to her, and her heart tightened.

The title rolled in her throat, and she finally called out, "Dad..."

Bill's face was not as cold as it was at first. He looked at Lucia, hesitation flashed in his eyes, and then he said coldly, "Go wash your hands and eat."

Lucia's heart warmed when she heard these words.

"Dad, I'm so sorry for being absent all these years. You and mother..." she started to say.

When Bill heard the words, tears formed in his eyes.

He finally waved his hand and said in a softer voice, "Okay, it's good to see you."

Hearing what he said, Lucia knew in her heart that he had already forgiven her. She took a deep breath and nodded with a tearful smile.

"Well, I will listen to Dad!" She said with a sober voice.

The two glanced at each other, and after some seconds, the corners of their lips couldn't help rising, and they looked at each other with a silly smile.

Every grievance from the past was eliminated at this moment.

This meal was confirmedly the most delicious meal Lucia had eaten in the past five years.

In the evening, Lucia originally planned to take Timothy and Janet to the hotel, but her mother persuaded her to stay at home, so she had to send someone to retrieve their luggage.
