Chapter 41

She had always been the first to send a message between them and it was the first time that he had done so.

"I'll meet you at the underground garage after work tonight."

Lucia was instantly overjoyed to see those words and a smile appeared on her face.

So, August was waiting for her to go home together! She couldn't hide her joy and held her phone happily for quite a while.

Suddenly, the door of her office was pushed open and Emma walked in quickly.

"Lucia, Carter wants to see you in her office now!"

Seeing how nervous Emma looked, Lucia was stunned and asked, "Why? What's wrong?"

Emma shook her head, "I'm not sure, but Carter looks unhappy. You'd better hurry up and go over."

Lucia turned serious when she heard that She immediately got up and walked out of the office, going directly to the supervisor's office When she pushed open the door of the supervisor's office and walked lit, Lucia saw three or four colleagues standing in a row, all with their heads down.

Carter was sitting in her office chair.

She glanced at Lucia with a sullen face and asked in a cold voice, "Are you working on the quarterly report?"

Lucia hesitated for a moment and nodded.

"Yes."

Last night.

Lisa stopped her after work and asked her to do overtime for the report, but she left directly and did not start doing it until she arrived at the office this morning.

Carter forced back her anger, but her eyes were sharply fixed on Lucia.

"I heard that the documents were handed over to you yesterday, yet you haven't turned the report in today."

Lucia was instantly stressed out and said, "Yes, but I..."

"No buts!"

Carter slapped her desk and interrupted Lucia unceremoniously.

"Where did you get so many excuses? Do you know how many people are waiting to use the report? Just because you didn't do it, the schedule of the whole team has been delayed!"

Carter was usually quite forgiving about almost everything, but she was absolutely strict and meticulous about work. Lucia lowered her head and couldn't say a word.

It was true that she had been given the task yesterday, but it was already the end of the day when Lisa told her.

Even if she had started to do it then, it would have been too late to organize and file some of the documents and then do the report.

August paused as he held the invitation in his hand.

"Yes,"

Seeing how hesitant he was, Lucia realized almost instantly that he was going to the event, but couldn't go with her.

After all, their relationship couldn't be made public yet.

She forced a smile and pretended that she didn't mind it as she took the invitation he handed over and said, "I see"

She looked down at the invitation, then raised her head and smiled at him, "I will be there, and I won't make trouble for you then."

After that, she stepped away and went up to the second floor.

August watched the woman from behind as she pretended to be fine.

His brows furrowed involuntarily and he had a strange feeling When her figure disappeared around the corner of the second floor, August picked up his phone and sent a message to Burton.

"Go to PW tomorrow and order a ladies' evening dress for Lucia."

He was not a good husband to Lucia, so he could only try to make up for it in other ways.

Time flew by and it was already Saturday.

Lucia woke up without the man at her side.

She wiped her face and hurried downstairs. Turner, where's August?"

She didn't find the man after a quick look around.

Turner answered while wiping the table, "Mr. Adams went out early, saying he has an appointment in the morning."

"Oh."

Lucia replied with some disappointment.

The jewelry exhibition was starting in the afternoon.

She had thought that August would be willing to take her with him at the last minute, even if they had to separate afterward, but she had never expected him to go out early in the morning.

Turner looked at her like this and asked, "You have an event to attend today, Madam, don't you?"

Lucia said wanly, "Yes, a jewelry exhibition."

Outside the Starlight, Lucia got out of the car.

When she saw the crowd at the entrance of the venue, she felt a little scared from the bottom of her heart.

The red carpet was laid from the entrance to the street and there were quite a few media reporters at the entrance.

That was a much bigger scene than she had imagined.

"Do you want me to go with you, Madam?"

It was only when Burton's voice came from behind her that Lucia came back to her senses.

She turned her head around gently.

"No, I can do it myself."

She was simply interested in this exhibition, so she would leave after having a look at the jewelry and whatnot.

After all, she wasn't used to such an occasion.

In her high heels, she stepped a lot more slowly than usual, which added a bit of elegance.

At the entrance, the receptionist put a bracelet on her wrist when she showed the invitation.

Once inside, the silver Starlight Hall came into view.

The silver-gray irregular walls made it more artistic, spacious and bright.

There were already a lot of people gathered there.

Many transparent showcases were placed on both sides, which extended in parallel to the largest jewelry showcase.

Lucia was excited and began to admire the jewelry in the showcases.

Now that the atmosphere had warmed up, the representative of the organizer was smart enough to stop asking further questions and show August other jewelry. Seeing that the questioning session was over, quite a few of the beautiful ladies in the crowd were not satisfied and dispersed wistfully. Lucia would have liked to keep following August, but she didn't want to be so conspicuous when everyone else had dispersed.

After all, she had said before she came here that she wouldn't make any trouble for him.

She stepped away to the side in a trance.

Just as she crossed the exhibition area and reached the long table, a dark figure suddenly rushed over and the next thing she knew, her arm was hit hard. In her high heels, Lucia stumbled and almost fell.

She tried hard to endure the pain.

Before she could straighten up, she heard an apology "Sorry, I'm sorry."

Lucia looked up and saw a uniformed waiter bowing at her as he apologized repeatedly.

She was going to say that it was okay when she noticed that people around were looking at her in a strange way.

She looked down to find a large brown and black stain on her dress.

In a panic, she noticed the glass that had dropped on the floor and the sweet, creamy smell that filled the air. Only then did she realize that it was a chocolate drink! Lucia looked at the large stain on her dress and instantly flushed, feeling the stares from onlookers.

It was not a small stain that could be cleaned up easily.

With this, not only did her dress get dirty, but she would also lose face.

Just when she didn't know what to do, the waiter next to her suddenly came forward.

"I'm really sorry. Let me wipe it for you!"

With that, he took a square towel and began to wipe it.

However, it was thick hot chocolate, which became more and more obvious.

As he wiped it, the stain got much larger.

Lucia frowned and hurriedly backed up.

"No, please stop it."

But unexpectedly, the waiter refused to let go of her dress.

After a while, she stopped crying and wiped her tears.

Just then, there was a knock at the door "Open the door for the dress."

Lucia opened the door and saw Jamie handing over a little dress, "This is a dress the organizer prepared.It's clean.Check the size."

Lucia took a look. It was an M.just right for her She took the dress and found that Jamie was not so unpleasant when she looked at him again, "Thanks."

Hearing that, Jamie raised his eyebrows.

"There is no need to say thanks between you and me."

Lucia was surprised.

Were they close enough? At this point, she was not in the mood to look deeper into his words.

She closed the door behind her, locked it, and then began to change.

This little white dress was a most ordinary and simple one and it's her size.

Although it wasn't gorgeous, it was much better than going out in her dirty dress.

She folded up her dress and put it in a bag before pushing open the door to get out of the room.

At the door, Jamie leaned lazily against the wall.

When he saw Lucia coming out, a smile appeared on his face Lucia took a deep breath.

She couldn't resist the urge to say thank you again.

"Mr.Nordhaus..."

Jamie frowned at the way she called him.

He interrupted her with some dissatisfaction.

"Didn't you just call me by my name? Why are you changing your mind so quickly?"

Lucia twitched her lips, not knowing what to say in reply.

"From now on, just call me by my first name."

With that, Jamie suddenly took two steps forward, directly approaching her, and smiled.

"Let's go.It's so boring here.I'll take you to dinner."

Lucia took a deep breath and said softly, "I'd better go home."

Burton who was driving, immediately slammed on the brakes, changed lanes, and turned around at the intersection. The rain and wind outside didn't have a tendency to stop. Instead, it was getting heavier and stronger.

August looked out of the window at the misty view and couldn't help but knit his brows. Soon the car returned to the Starlight Plaza, but the place where Lucia had been was empty now! August pushed open the door and got out of the car. Burton hurriedly came out with umbrellas and held one up for him. Burton looked around without finding Lucia. Where is she? The look in August's eyes grew more sullen.

He took the other umbrella from Burton and said in a deep voice, "Split up and look!"

Ahchool Lucia sat in the car and sneezed several times in a row.

Here are some tissues.

A gentle male voice came along, followed by a pack of tissues handed to her.

Lucia pulled out a few as she said, "Thank you."

She had waited for a long time by the road outside the Starlight Plaza without stopping a taxi.

Just when she was desperate, a car suddenly drove by.

Its window was rolled down, revealing Bishop, August's brother. She had no choice but to get into his car.

When she saw the car going down an unfamiliar road.

Lucia couldn't help but ask, "Where are we going now?"

Next to her, Bishop curved his lips at her and said unhurriedly, "Let's find a place for you to take a warm shower and change. Lucia subconsciously refused.

"No... thanks. I'll just go straight home."

Her dress was almost soaked and she was cold from head to toe.

Although it was uncomfortable, she didn't want to cause trouble for Bishop. After all, they had only met twice and didn't really know each other well.

"You will catch a cold if you go back like this. I have an apartment nearby. Let's go there. It's no trouble."

Hearing that, Lucia couldn't refuse anymore.

She looked down at her wet dress and nodded.

"Well then, thank you" Bishop suddenly chuckled when he heard that.

"Sure.You are my sister-in-law.I'm just doing what I should do."

Lucia paused when she heard the words 'sister-in-law and then smiled at him in embarrassment.

Turner saw August. She immediately stepped forward, cautiously asking, "What exactly is going on here, Sir?"

With a cold look on his face, August frowned as his lips parted slightly.

"Nothing."

After that, he turned around directly and went into the study.

Turner stood in the corridor, puzzled.

Why were they like that? Did they fight? With a deep sigh, Turner stepped slowly down the stairs, The rain kept falling without stopping.

As it got dark, the sky outside became even more oppressive.

'The house was brightly lit.

Turner got dinner ready, wiped her hands, and went upstairs to tell Lucia and August to have dinner.

Outside the bedroom, she knocked gently on the door.

"Dinner is ready, Madam."

She knocked several times in a row, but there was no response from inside.

Turner felt that something was wrong, so she slowly pushed the door open and went into the room.

In the room, the lights were all off and Lucia seemed to be sleeping.

Turner came closer and called several times, but Lucia still didn't respond.

She had no choice but to turn on the lamp on the bedside table.

Lucia huddled under the covers, with only her face exposed.

She was pale and seemed to be cold, shivering slightly Turner was startled and hurriedly reached out to feel the heat of Lucia.

She found it boiling hot as soon as she put the back of her hand on Lucia's forehead! "Madam!"

Her intuition told her that Lucia had a fever.

Without hesitation, she immediately took a smart thermometer and checked it.

As expected, it was about 102 degrees Fahrenheit! She didn't dare to delay and ran to the study at once.

"Bad news, Sir! Mrs.Adams has a fever!"

August was flipping through some papers.

He was startled when he heard Turner's voice.

August paused and promised, "Okay, we will come to see you if we have time."

After a few words of coaxing and persuasion, he hung up the phone.

Putting away the phone, August looked over at Lucia and said, "Grandma wants to see us at the old house this afternoon. Do you want to go there?"

Lucia nodded without hesitation "Yes."

She knew how nice Grandma was to her.

It was a good idea to go and see the old lady since they had nothing to do in the afternoon.

After lunch, they briefly dressed up and went straight to the old house by car.

When they arrived at the gate of the old house, Lucia saw Grandma standing there with support and waving at them as soon as she got out of the car Lucia was so touched that she immediately walked up to the old lady. Seeing her, Grandma immediately reached out to take her hand and asked her, "How are you? Are you feeling better?"

Lucia smiled nicely, "My fever has gone. I'll be fine after taking my medicine on time for a few days."

Hearing that, Grandma nodded with a smile and pulled her into the living room.

August followed behind them.

The look on his face eased up unconsciously.

"Lucia, I specially told them to prepare some tonic products, like bird's nest and old ginseng. They are all good for you. You can take them with you when you go back and tell Turner to cook them for you. You need to get stronger these days."

Lucia had just sat down on the couch when she heard Grandma say that. She was both touched and amused.

"I'm good, Grandma. You can keep them for yourself. I'm young and healthy. I don't need them!"

"Of course, you do. You need to get stronger to have a baby!"

Lucia paused.

Only when she saw the meaningful smile on Grandma's face did she realize what the old lady was talking about.

Grandma reached out to take Lucia's hand and smiled softly.

"Don't be shy. Women have to go through this. You and August should work harder so that I can have a grandson sooner!"

Hearing that, Lucia subconsciously raised her eyes to look at August who was sitting opposite her.

As in previous Founding Day team-building activities, the executives also attended, but they never interacted with the employees, so she wasn't sure if August would go with them.

Looking at her sparkling eyes, August paused and asked, "Do you want me to go with you?"

Lucia said with a thoughtful expression, "We play games every year at this event.But I have never seen you participate in one of the games among employees."

August said softly.

"I can come if you want me to."

Considering how much he owed her, he wanted to satisfy her with this small request.

Lucia's face lit up when she heard him say that.

She had never seen August play a game in the past, but now it seemed like she was about to see it for the first time, The next morning.

Lucia got up and went to work as usual.

Not long after arriving at the company, she received a notification email from the President's Office.

It was just two days before the company's Founding Day, and the email specified what to bring and the location and time of the team-building activity.

It brought both joy and sorrow to the company when the news broke.

Some people looked forward to it, and some people didn't.

Lucia heard many different voices in the tea room when she went there to get some water.

When she picked up her teacup and was about to leave, Lisa Miller, who was beside her, suddenly said, "Guess what, I have another exciting news."

"What exciting news?"

"This time, Mr.Adams will also join us in our team-building activities.Unlike previous years, he will live and eat with us on an equal basis and interact more with employees!"

"Really? Our iceberg president didn't even take a break during team building last year.I heard that he even held a video conference with foreign businessmen in the hotel!"

Seeing that others didn't believe it, Lisa Miller said with certainty, "Really! It's 100% true!"

There was skepticism among everyone and they started discussing and arguing.

Lucia took a deep breath and walked out of the tea room.
