Chapter 444 Do You Know Something?

Paul immediately went over and asked anxiously, "How is she?"

The family doctor shook his head and stepped to the side before he spoke. "There is nothing seriously wrong with her. Except for the scrapes on her knees and arms, there are no other wounds, but..."

Instantly, Paul and Paula got worried and looked nervously at the family doctor.

"She was drugged. It's a weird drug, which can make people's limbs sore and weak without affecting the mind.

Now I don't know what exactly the ingredients of this drug are, and we have to wait and see exactly when its effects will be gone."

"Besides, she seems to have suffered a terrible shock. Make sure you keep her company and take your time to comfort her."

Hearing that, Paul just nodded slightly.

"Paula, walk Dr. Chandler out."

Paula nodded. "Okay."

When Paula and the family doctor left, Paul stood where he was, feeling a lump in his throat.

He hadn't expected that things would be so serious..

What exactly had Lucia gone through to be so scared? What the hell had those bastards done to her?

Paul was so angry that he could hardly restrain himself and raised his fist to punch the wall hard.

The pain in the back of his hand made him sober up a bit. He took a deep breath, adjusted his expression, and straightened his clothes before he walked over and opened the door to get in.

The woman on the bed seemed to have fallen asleep. She was motionless with her eyes closed.

Paul pulled a chair from the side, sat in it by the bed, took a deep breath, and said, "Don't worry. I will be here with you tonight."

With that, he stretched out his hand and gently held Lucia's hand.
