Chapter 466 Was this a confession?

Looking at her expression, Bishop picked up a piece of cream puff calmly and tasted it elegantly, saying softly, "It tastes good Have one, please"

Hearing that, Mandy nodded obediently and picked up a piece of cream puff She ate quietly and didn't speak anything

Bishop stared at her. He asked in a flat tone, "Have things settled down at home?"

Mandy replied with a little restraint, "Yes"

Bishop asked a question, then Mandy answered it. Soon, they fell silent. After a while, Mandy stood up. "Sir, I have to go.

As she said that, she walked to the door and intended to get out of the bedroom

"Wait," Bishop said. He smiled softly. "Did you hear what I said just now?"

Hearing that, Mandy stiffened a little. She shivered and turned to look at Bishop, asking in fear, "Why can't you just leave Lucia alone?"

Mandy had been at Bishop's side for five years and felt he was always kind to people. He was so gentle and warm People felt comfortable when they were staying and talking with him But, the strange and horrible scene she saw accidentally indicated that Bishop was not the simple, innocent person she thought he was

He was mysterious and complicated. The power he hid could fix the things easily that were hard for her, for instance, her family's debts and foes. He let her live with him in a warm and clean place. In the strict sense of the word, he was her benefactor.

She didn't care about anything else but the thing about her best friend, Lucia She couldn't help but want to know it.

She almost fully overheard the conversation between Bishop and Ethan in the room just now She also helped Bishop to do something wrong to Lucia. Five years later, she did the same But from now, she really didn't want to hurt her friend anymore.

Bishop picked up the teacup calmly and took a sip. He looked at Mandy's expression and said softly, "Mandy, you are too kind."
