Chapter 482 Now or Never

At once. Jeanne's chest heaved up and down in anger. She didn't know what to say.

This morning, August had already sent her a divorce agreement, but she didn't sign it. She was so angry that she tore the agreement apart. What she didn't expect was that August would send another in the early afternoon!

She gritted her teeth and looked at the servant who brought her the papers outside the door, but she was even more furious. She screwed the agreement into a ball and threw it at the servant's face and shouted angrily, "Get lost! Get out of my sight!"

The servant was shocked and ran away in a panic. Jeanne stood in the same place, annoyed and angry, but a moment later, tears came out of her eyes.

It seemed that this time, August was determined to divorce her. Before the divorce agreement was signed, he had already impatiently announced the news of their divorce on social media, and then sent someone to deliver the divorce agreement to her again and again,

Jeanne turned back to her room and slammed the door hard, thinking about what Mark had said on the phone yesterday, her heart became more and more nervous.

She knew that August's patience was limited, if he repeatedly sent documents, and she refused to sign them, she was afraid that he might hand over the evidence of her hitting someone in the car to the police. In that case, she would lose everything.

Jeanne gritted her teeth, turned around and walked to the door, opened the door, picked up the crumpled divorce agreement on the floor, unfolded the document, smoothed it out, and when she saw the black and white letters, she was even more overwhelmed.

She didn't want to sign it, and she didn't want to be divorced, but now she had been forced into a desperate situation and had no choice.

Suddenly, she had a flash of light and thought of something.

Perhaps, she still had a chance! Even if August knew that she did those things, but she and he still knew each other for more than 10 years. There was no way that he wouldn't care about her.

In the past, she used to slit her wrists to save August's feelings for her, and this time, she could still give it a go!
