

Submit 498

Chapter 498 Must Return Home

Lucia's mind was in a mess, and all the information flashed through her mind. She shook her head and suppressed the suspicions in her mind. She smiled at the man and thanked him, then left with her phone.

Lucia walked quickly to the hospital. Questions popped up in her mind one after another, but she couldn't figure them out. What she had just heard about August's death was like a big stone, lying in her heart and suffocating her.

Even so, she still did not believe that a man as firm as August would pass away like that. He was not a man who gave up lightly, he should have survived!

She didn't believe it. Absolutely not!

When she arrived at the door of Paula's ward, she took a deep breath, adjusted her expression, and pushed the door open. Because this was the most upscale ward, it had several rooms. As soon as she entered, she saw a small living room, and Paula's ward was right next to it.

At that moment, Paul was sitting on the sofa reading a book with Timothy and Janet. When they heard the sound, they all raised their heads. Paul smiled at her and said, "You're back?"

Lucia answered, and then she looked at the two kids that were running toward her.

Timothy and Janet wrapped their arms around her legs and pampered her with their baby voices. Lucia lowered her head and looked at the two children who were cute, like little angels. For some reason, she thought of August, and her heart ached again.

She bit her lip and immediately made a decision in her heart. She patted the heads of the two little guys gently and said softly, "Can you play by yourselves first? I have something to talk to your dad about."

an adult, "Mom, don't worry. I will look for them to take hands and walk aside to continue reading, before turning come out here for a minute, I want to depths of Paul's eyes as he seemed to have realized something. He nodded and walked toward her, pretending to be relaxed as he asked, "Did Dr. Bram say something to you? I saw that your face was pale."

After closing the door, she turned to look at the man next to her. She took a deep breath and said, "Paul, I want to return

her in

Lucia repeated, know what kind of magic power was holding her back that made her make such

now. Paul's expression changed

August, she would have rushed to find out the truth. But now, she had nothing to do with him... This was exactly what troubled her. Paul felt something, frowned slightly, he asked, "Is it because of turned out that he knew everything. He knew what had happened in her phone. She took a deep breath and slowly tightened her grip on the phone, Suppressing the at her in silence. However, his tacitness was a didn't you tell me?" to live a happy life with you. I don't care about anything else." the mobile phone in her