Chapter 51

The moment Lucia uttered these words, she regretted them instantly. She sounded like she was planning on having a child with him, so awkward.

August paused, then raised his eyes slightly to look at her.

"Both are fine."

Lucia blushed, nodded in panic, and did not continue the topic.

Upon arrival at the hospital, August queued up to register and accompanied her for the checkup.

More than two hours have passed without their notice after visiting various sections for checkups.

During the wait for the test results, Lucia became thirsty, so she looked around to find a place where she could get some water.

August stood aside with several checklists in hand.

Seeing her looking around, he asked, "What's the matter?"

Lucia answered truthfully, "I'm a little thirsty..."

Hearing this, August gently pressed her shoulder to get her to sit down.

"Just wait for me here. I'll get you some water."

Lucia nodded obediently and watched him walk away.

Seeing this, a middle-aged woman sitting next to her couldn't help but ask, "Is that your boyfriend?"

Lucia smiled and said softly, "He's my husband."

The middle-aged woman exclaimed in surprise.

"Oh, what a wonderful husband you have! Besides being tall and handsome, the way he treats you is so sweet.

As opposed to my husband, who even refuses to accompany me to the hospital."

As Lucia gazed at August's receding figure, her heart was filled with joy.

Throughout her life, she had always assumed that no one would love her except her parents.

Now that he was by her side, she felt very fortunate to have his love.

After a while, Lucia's cell phone suddenly rang.

When she took out her phone, she saw Mrs. Mitchell was on the line.

Emma next to her was keenly aware of Lucia's change in mood and hurriedly came over to ask, "What's wrong? Are they too noisy?"

Lucia didn't know what to say, so she just shook her head gently "You can put on your headphones and take a nap.We'll be at Lakeside Manor soon."

Lucia nodded and put on the headphones to exclude the outside sound.

After listening to a few songs, she felt better and got over it.

She knew best how August treated her and she really shall not think nonsense just because of other people's gossip Soon, several buses in parallel turned a corner and arrived at a fairly open area.

There was a lake halfway around the entire Lakeside Manor in the distance.

"Wow, it's beautiful!"

Lucia's colleagues marveled at the beautiful scenery and were excited to get out of the buses, so they had little time to discuss any gossip Lucia took off her headphones, got her things, and got out of the bus with Emma The air was cool and fresh, and coming to such an environment, all of them couldn't help but relax.

After a group of people from the Lion Group got off the bus, they went to the hotel to check in to receive their room cards, and then were scheduled for the activities afterward.

Lucia and Emma came from the hotel room to the assembly hall and saw that their departmental colleagues did not look good As there were too many employees in the company, outdoor activities such as boating, orchard picking, and wilderness cs had to be carried out separately according to the department as a unit.

As a result, the Administration Department came last and was assigned to do indoor recreational activities.

Their whole department was full of complaints.

"Why should we be ranked last? The outdoor activities are all divided out, so we have to stay inside?"

"Yes! I've changed my clothes."

The supervisor, Carter, scowled, clapped her hands, and said, "All right, let's not talk too much. We all take turns and sooner or later it will be our turn. What are you complaining about?"

Only when the supervisor spoke up did the colleagues stop complaining.

Upon seeing that, Lisa said, "Didn't someone come up with some fun games? Come on, let's play together!"

The atmosphere was slowly enlivened, and everyone was no longer sad.

Guy, who was very popular in the department, planned the games.

He laughed twice, and said, "The first game is Mouth-to-Mouth Passing of Cards!"

After August tied their feet with a rope, Burton immediately went up and took the rope to tie their hands together again.

Lucia could clearly feel her female colleagues staring jealously straight at her.

When the back of her hand touched his, she unconsciously blushed.

Suddenly, a low voice rang in her ears, "Give me your hand."

Lucia froze, and the next, her hand was being held by August.

It was the first time August had held her hand in front of so many people! "Ah!"

The screams and discontent of the female colleagues next to her came over like a flood.

Lucia forced herself to resist the urge to laugh.

Looking at the red ropes tied to their hands, she was so happy that she was about to get dizzy Guy, the judge next to them, finally got tired of watching and picked up the loudspeaker, shouting, "All right. Everyone, get ready and the game is about to start!"

August looked down, glanced at the dazed woman, and said softly, "You follow my steps, okay?"

He doesn't want to be first in everything.

As long as their team didn't get punished for being the last three, it would be okay.

Lucia, a little confused, looked up and sluggishly answered, "Okay."

After adjusting their state, the crowd stood behind the starting line.

With Guy's command of three, two, and one, the two-person teams moved forward quickly.

Lucia played similar games when she was in school, and she didn't feel any difficulty before.

But when she took a step, she couldn't help but fall forward.

Luckily, she was supported by August, so she didn't fall.

August spoke softly, "No hurry."

Lucia couldn't help but look up at August and Adeline while thinking about it August and Adeline found a seat.

After that, August took the menu and tenderly handed it to Adeline, letting her order first.

Emma continued to talk to herself, "They don't seem to have a normal relationship.

After all, Mr.Adams never treat any woman so well regularly."

"Top!"

The fork in Lucia's hand suddenly fell into the plate, making a sharp sound and spilling the sauce everywhere.

Lucia hurriedly took the napkin and started to wipe the sauce in a panic, Emma looked back and asked in a strange voice, "Lucia, what's wrong with you?"

"I'm fine, just a little careless.I'll go to the bathroom to wash up first."

Lucia hemmed and hawed.

Then she stood up, not daring to look at Emma, and turned directly in the direction of the bathroom She felt confused and had an indefinable sense of loss.

Although August and she had little affection at first, she was his wife anyway.

Seeing hirn having lunch with another woman made her feel uncomfortable Lucia stood in front of the mirror and washed her hands lost in thought.

"I can meet her wherever I go.Bad luck!"

Hearing a sarcastic voice from the side, Lucia subconsciously turned her head and saw Irene coming out of the toilet stall.

It was a small world.

They had just quarreled in the entertainment hall and met again here not long after Irene walked next to Lucia, turned on the faucet, washed her hands unhurriedly, and said in a cold voice, "You don't even look in the mirror to see if you are worthy of being a primary three?"

Hearing these harsh words, Lucia frowned, stretched out her hand to turn off the tap, and said in a deep voice, word by word, "That's none of your business either."

Lucia was already in a bad mood, and now that Irene wanted to humiliate her, she naturally didn't want to put up with her anymore.

After she said that, Irene's face turned blue and she stared at Lucia with gritting teeth, and when she finally couldn't find the right words to retort, she reached out and splashed a handful of water from the tap directly onto Lucia's face 1 Suddenly Lucia felt cold water being thrown in her face, which made her very surprised.

She never expected Irene to splash her with water when she couldn't get the upper hand verbally!

Chapter 55

With that, Lucia picked up the glass and drank the full glass of fruit wine in one go.

The cold liquid slid down her throat and into her stomach, and the spicy taste lingered in her mouth.

Everyone was dumbfounded.

They didn't expect Lucia, who usually looked very weak, to be able to drink such a large glass of wine in one gulp.

Swallowing the last sip of wine, Lucia turned her empty glass over to everyone, "And thank you all for taking care of me in general."

When she finished, Guy applauded.

The male colleagues followed suit and praised her, "You really have a high tolerance for alcohol."

When Lucia sat down after drinking, Emma came over and said in a low voice, "Lucia, why do you take it seriously? You drank so much in one gulp! You know Guy and the male colleagues who like to make a fuss and it's okay if you don't drink!"

Lucia smiled at her, "It's okay."

After she drank a glass of wine, the hot feeling in her stomach made her feel a little comfortable.

At the table, everyone was playing together, toasting each other, and playing guessing at the end.

Looking at the lively crowd, Lucia sat in the corner and silently drank glass after glass of wine.

Although the sweet and sour fruit wine was not strong, the after-effects slowly came up after she unknowingly drank a few glasses.

Lucia's cheeks warmed up and her head was dizzy.

Emma, who had been sitting next to her, was also dragged away to drink.

She sat there drinking alone, and unknowingly drank half of the wine in the bottle in her hand, Unconsciously a little dizzy, Lucia patted her cheeks, got up, and went to the bathroom to wash her face to wake up a little.

Then she slowly walked out, but when she reached the corridor, she turned around and left after looking at the private room not far away. She did not want to go back to the chaotic private room and just wanted to be alone.

Seeing Lucia's reaction like this, August froze.

It seemed that something was wrong with her from the moment he met her at the restaurant at noon.

He reached out and pulled the quilt, but Lucia wrapped herself up so tightly that he couldn't pull it off.

"Lucia?"

She didn't respond to his call.

August had no choice but simply stood up and reached out his hand to directly pick up both the quilt and Lucia.

Lucia panicked and pulled the quilt away, "You... put me down!"

She didn't want to see him and thought he would leave if he saw her ignoring him, but she didn't expect him to do that! At that, August refused to let go and just held her.

Probably because she was angry or anxious, Lucia's face turned red, "Put me down!"

Seeing that she was anxious, August raised an eyebrow slightly and asked, "What's wrong with you?"

Lucia blushed, "I... no! I'm just tired!"

Hearing her say that, August put her right down on the bed, and quickly pressed the quilt down to prevent her from covering her head again.

He leaned down and asked softly with his eyes darkening, "How did you fall into the pool?"

She was an adult and would not jump into the pool for no reason.

He always felt there was something fishy about this.

Even if she had been drinking, she wasn't drunk enough to do so.

Peter had set a time for the surgery.

At this critical moment, he had to make sure she was absolutely safe and she couldn't get sick or injured.

Lucia bit her lip and said softly, "I-I was dizzy, so I went out for a walk. I was walking right next to the pool when suddenly felt like someone pushed me and I fell in..."

Hearing Lucia's description, August slightly scowled, "You mean someone pushed you?"

Lucia mumbled, "Well...it seemed so."

It seemed so? Listening to the woman's ambiguous answer, August couldn't help but frown.

She must have been drinking a lot that she couldn't even remember if someone pushed her.

Within ten minutes, there was a knock at the door, followed by Burton pushing the door in, "Mr.Adams,

August nodded slightly, "You go out."

"Yes."

Burton turned around walked out of the room, and closed the door by the way.

Irene stood in the doorway, inexplicably feeling guilty, "Mr.Adams, what's the matter?"

"Come here."

August didn't look up, sitting on the couch and casually flipping through the magazine on his lap.

Seeing this situation, Irene was in a cold sweat on her back.

She clasped her hands together and moved forward slowly.

After the last lesson, she truly realized the horror of this man.

He seemed to be calm on the surface, but he could crush a human with ease.

August looked up.

Seeing her slow movements and stiff expression, he smiled crookedly and asked, "Did the mango taste good last time?"

As soon as she heard about mangoes, Irene couldn't help but feel sour in her stomach.

She forced herself to hold back her discomfort and took a deep breath, "Yes... delicious."

It was so good that she never wanted to eat another mango in her life! "Well, that's fine."

August paused and whispered, "Where were you last night around 8:30?"

"Hate in the private room with the others."

The other people were a little surprised to hear that.

August explained without haste, 'Yesterday I lost and was splashed with two buckets of water, so I was a bit reluctant. Today, to wash away the shame of the last time, I suggest following the grouping of yesterday, with two people in a team to compete again.'

When he said so, some people agreed, but some female colleagues scowled and didn't agree with him.

If the grouping was the same as yesterday, August would be grouped with Lucia again.

Naturally, they were not happy about it. But a few rowdy male colleagues led by Guy did not realize this.

They clapped their hands and said they want to have another game with August.

Even if the female colleagues were reluctant, they couldn't say anything in front of August now, so they glanced at Lucia a few times with discontent, and then dispersed wanly.

Emma was standing right beside Lucia and touched her excitedly, winking at her frantically.

Lucia naturally understood what she meant.

She smiled a little embarrassed, and once she looked up, she saw August standing on the shore watching her.

She knew that August had done all that for her.

She stepped forward but was unconsciously nervous.

August's voice rang in her ears, "Let's go?"

Lucia nodded, followed his steps, and walked to the boarding port on the shore.

When all the teams were on board, the staff looked at the time and reminded, "The race will last one hour in total. Meet here after one hour and the team with the most red flags wins."

After the staff made clear the rules, everyone began to start the electric boat to spread out to the vast lake after hearing a whistle from the staff.

August sat at the bow of the boat, Lucia sat behind him and could smell his faint fragrance.

In a short while, they drove the boat to the forefront.

Lucia looked at the surrounding scenery and slowly relaxed.

There was no communication between them.

After a while, August finally turned his head slightly and took the initiative to ask her, "Do you want to have a try?"

Seeing Lucia freeze for a long time, August turned his head, "What's wrong?"

Lucia held the phone, not knowing whether to cry or to laugh, "My phone has no signal."

Hearing that, August took his phone out and looked at the screen.

Then, his eyes darkened.

Sure enough, the signal was only left half a bar.

They couldn't even connect to the internet on their phones, let alone make a phone call.

Right now, they were trapped in the boat, and if they didn't think of something, the situation could get worse.

"You sit here and steady the bow. I'll go to the stern and have a check."

August said calmly, arranging for Lucia to sit on the bow of the boat.

Then he moved to the stern and used the oars to paddle the water to see what was going on below.

Either a foreign object had gotten into the engine, making it inoperable, or there was something wrong with the engine itself.

He knocked on the engine with the oar.

After making sure there was anything foreign, he went back to the bow and restarted the electric boat, but it didn't respond except for the "buzz" sound.

Lucia watched nervously from the sidelines and took a deep breath.

And when she saw that the boat still couldn't move, she couldn't help but ask, "What if we're really stuck here?"

August froze and looked back, just in time to meet Lucia's eyes, bright, but with a bit of worry.

He opened his mouth and said in a slow, reassuring voice, "Don't worry and we won't be stuck here."

As long as he was there, he wouldn't let anything happen to her.

After August attempted to start the boat several times, it still did not move.

August frowned and was sure that there should really be a problem with the engine.

Chapter 60

Lucia opened her eyes in a daze and tried to close them uncontrollably.

"I didn't sleep."

She didn't intend to sleep, but she couldn't control herself.

August's face became somber.

Without saying a word, he immediately held her in his arms, commanding her in a deep voice, "Hold on a little longer and someone will come to us soon."

Lucia nodded, but she still had little energy.

Feeling the warmth of August's arms, she reached out to hug him, and greedily rubbed in his arms.

August was not used to the kind of touch, so he frowned, and subconsciously drooped his eyes.

Seeing Lucia leaning like a kitten in front of his chest, he stopped to push her hand away.

Forgot it Before long, Lucia was unconsciously trying to close her eyes again, about to fall asleep.

August reached out and patted her shoulder, waking her up again, "Lucia"

Lucia kept waking up and falling asleep.

August could clearly feel the coldness of her body, so he gradually felt a little uneasy.

It definitely couldn't go on like this! He took a deep breath and said, "Lucia, let's have a chat."

Lucia answered in a daze, "Okayo"

He tried to keep talking to her to keep her awake, and even reached out to rub her arm to preserve her body temperature, but the results were not satisfactory.

In a few moments, Lucia was sleepy and closed her eyes again.

"You can't sleep now!"

August gritted his teeth helplessly.

Looking at Lucia's frozen, black and blue lips, he began to get a little anxious.

Seeing her leaning against his chest, unresponsive, he frowned, reached out, and lifted her chin, kissing her directly.

Feeling the warm and soft touch on her lips, Lucia shivered and woke up with a jolt.
