

Submit 585

Chapter 585 A Wedding

Lucia frowned and felt her cheeks burning. It was not because she was ashamed; instead, she was a little angry. This woman was too self-righteous.

At the same time, she saw Paul and Garcia coming over with smiles on their faces.

As Suzie had her back to them, she did not know that they were walking toward them. She stared at Lucia coldly and snorted, saying, "I saw how Mr. Thomas doted on you when we were eating today. He ordered fruit juice and even deshelled the lobster for you. He's really head over heels for you. But here's some advice; at the end of the day, this relationship is not permanent. How could you compare to his wite?"

Suzie looked at Lucia from head to toe. "At the very least, get something tangible while it lasts! You won't stay young forever, you know." As she spoke, she shook the bracelet on her hand and stroked the pendant around her neck with her other hand.

"So, you and Garcia don't have any feelings for each other?" replied Lucia unhurriedly as she smiled.

*Suzie glanced at her and said with a smirk, "What is love? How could love bring you a better sense of security than materialistic things?"

When Lucia heard her say this, a smile appeared in her eyes. She was not in a hurry to reply but looked firmly in the direction behind. Suzie.

Suzie sensed that something was wrong and quickly turned around. When she saw Garcia standing behind her, her face instantly turned pale. "Gar... Garcia."

She saw Garcia staring at her coldly, and his face was so gloomy that it was scary. Obviously, he had heard it. His eyes seemed to see through her, and he was holding back his emotions.

Several other people who were walking behind them slowly arrived. Garcia did not say anything, but his attitude toward Suzie was much colder now.

The other women felt that the atmosphere wasn't right. Hence, each of them tried to please their respective partners as much as possible.

They were either pretending to be well-behaved, offering drinks to them, or wiping their sweat away.

Lucia secretly heaved a sigh of relief, but before she could speak, she heard Paul saying, "She didn't do anything to you, did she?" Lucia paused, shook her head, and didn't speak.

that she was alright, Paul's facial expression was still gloomy. He reached out to hold her shoulder and looked at Garcia and Suzie standing beside him. een married the time to introduce you guys. This soon as he finished speaking, he saw that next to him heard it as well, and they all looked at Lucia in surprise. They were extremely young and beautiful woman who suddenly appeared next to Paul to be his wife. In fact, Lucia this way.

subconsciously looked at Lucia. Then, her lips trembled as she Lucia interrupted her coldly, "Do you think I am Paul's mistress, because she was at fault, she opened her mouth and closed it without saying anything. "Garcia, your woman owes my wife an apology," quickly looked at Suzie. He shouted coldly, "Hurry up and apologize! You are always saying lip and looked at Lucia. "I... I'm sorry." "Where's your her voice pitched even higher. Her shoulders slumped slightly and apologized louder, "I'm sorry!" The others nearby noticed this as well, and they all stared at Garcia and Suzie looked at Lucia and asked.

breath and answered softly, home," she added, holding onto

"Okay." Paul nodded.

thought of something and stopped. He turned to look at Garcia and said, "By the way, Garcia, I've changed my mind about the project we talked about today. I he walked away with Lucia in his arms onto the golf cart. "You canceled your disapprovingly, "Yes, I don't want it it been finalized? Wouldn't this be a waste of how important the project is, it is not as important as you are "Paul suddenly turned to look at her with that woman insult you," he continued after and she felt touched.

and said,