Chapter 741

The reporters watched anxiously around the entrance of the Lion group. They waited there all morning, refusing to eat something or drink water, for fear of missing the first-hand news about Lucia and August.

But the whole morning, it seemed that every cell of these two had disappeared. No one even saw them, let alone the interview.

"What happened? Does the Lion group care about its public impression? Why haven't the two appeared at this time?" "Maybe they are urgently discussing how to deal with this matter?"

"This is not the way how the Lion group dealt with matters. Did we get accurate information?"

"Let's wait. No matter how eager they are to ignore the problem, they won't leave the company in a mess. So we should definitely wait here."

While the reporters were talking, someone pointed at the door of the company and shouted, "Look, it's Lucia!" The reporters' eyes lit up in an instant, and they rushed forward to surround her regardless.

Anxious and annoyed, Lucia hurriedly called the security guard to make way for herself. After that, she ran to the side of the road, beckoned to stop a taxi, got into the car and drove away.

The reporters were a little overwhelmed for a while.

"When did Lucia come to the company? Why didn't we see her?"

"Maybe because she failed in talking with President Adams, she ran out regardless. It seems that the two are really divorced."

"Since she came out of the company, President Adams must also be in the company. Should we continue to stay here?"

Having no time to think it through, several reporters quickly made up their minds. Even if they stayed here, they couldn't find out why, only to get an official answer. Since they couldn't afford to provoke August, they might as well follow Lucia directly.

As it she had heard a joke, Lucia stared at the reporter who spoke.

"Am I a public figure? Have I taken the initiative to occupy public resources? I am nothing more than an ordinary legal citizen. Do I need to give an explanation to the people?" She asked with a sneer.

These reporters, who were turned speechless by her, still had no intention of leaving there. They even blocked the road in front of her, not letting her leave.

"Get out of the way!" She raised her voice instantly, looked at the reporter in front of her and reminded in a cold voice,

"Do you know how long, you will be sentenced for following others and violating their rights? Do you know how long you will be sentenced for restricting other people's freedom?"

The reporters exchanged a look with each other, looking somewhat hesitant. And some of them even whispered, "If she and Mr. Adams haven't divorced, it will be so easy for her to make troubles to us, even easier than squash an ant to death."

"What if she pretends to scare us? If we let her leave this time, it will be difficult for us to find her again."

Just as those reporters were vacillating, the black Maybach had already parked at the entrance of the hospital, and then a piercing voice sounded from behind the reporters, "If you have anything, you can talk to our company's legal department."

Hearing the familiar voice, Lucia felt aggrieved suddenly, all the fear and grievance bursting out from the bottom of her heart at this moment.

She stepped forward and threw herself into his arms, murmuring with a choked voice, "I shouldn't have let her go home.

It's all my fault. What should I do..."

"Don't worry." Burton hurried forward two steps, looking at her anxiously. And Lucia immediately led him into the sharply, "Daryl treats you wholeheartedly, and you actually suspect her!"

Not expecting her to be angry suddenly, Paul thought about the reason in his heart, and then he softened the expression.

on his face, "You're angry with me because of Daryl? You're jealous, aren't you?"

Snapped--

Not withstanding it anymore, Lucia suddenly raised her hand and slapped him on the face, causing obvious slap marks on Paul's face.

"You are not good enough for Daryl! I just feel everything Daryl did before is meaningless."

Feeling his face turning numb, Paul showed a bit of bitterness in his expression, "Lucia, do we have to end in such a way?

You clearly know how I feel about you in my heart..."

"Heart?" She sneered, her eyes filled with sarcasm, "Your heart is as worthless as a wholesale heart-shaped stone in the market. What does Daryl mean to you? And what about Zoey?!"

"Zoey." Paul's expression froze, and his voice involuntarily cooled down, "How did you know her?"

"Why can't I know her!" She roared sharply, "She hurt your own sister and killed your unborn nephew!"

As she spoke, she stretched out her hand and pushed hard on his shoulder.

Kade's mother squinted at her, and sneered disdainfully, "Then what else do you want?"

Ignoring her, Lucia looked sideways at Kade, and said gently, "Kade, could you tell me why you and other Kade also raised his head high and responded gloatingly, "My mother said that they are bastards whose Lucia was quite satisfied with what Timothy said, and nodded in agreement.

Thinking of what happened at school, Janet still had lingering fears. Looking at her brother, she asked in a hesitant tone,

"Will Dad love us all the time?"

August just walked into the living room when he heard this question. His eyes fell on his daughter, and he went forward and scratched her nose, and said softly, "Besides your mother, you are the most important person to me."

When Janet heard him say these words himself, a smile immediately appeared on her chubby face, and she quickly put the matter behind her.

Seeing that the two babies were no longer bothered by this matter, Lucia was no longer worried about it. She turned to look at August and asked, "Have you thought of a way to deal with public opinions?"

"This is a document." He handed over the printed plan to deal with public relations, and then slowly said, "I originally planned to implement this plan soon, but now it seems that it should be delayed for a few days."

She immediately jumped up from the sofa when she heard his words, and said, "No, we'd better put this plan into practice the day after tomorrow. The sooner public opinions is resolved, the better."

Facing August's probing eyes, she told him everything that happened in school today, and then murmured in a low voice,

"Timothy won't believe these words, but Janet will definitely be affected."

The atmosphere in the living room suddenly turned low, and there was a slight chill in the air. Feeling the awkward atmosphere, she raised her eyes to look at August, only to see his frosty face.

Just as she was trying to persuade August, he got up and called Zane out of her expectation, "Notify the PR department to work overtime to revise the public relations plan, and it must be implemented the day after tomorrow."

Fortunately, it was the weekend ahead, so Timothy and Janet didn't have to go to school.

distance, August and Timothy's figures rushed across the red line at the same time.

"Babies, let's take a short break. For the next small game, you have to complete it together with your mom and dad."

With that, the teacher let the children return to their parents.

The family of four chose a relatively clean flower bed to sit on. There were a few pairs of parents resting next to them who wanted to talk to Lucia and August but didn't dare to. Lucia had sweat on her forehead. She hastily drank water and

She unintentionally caught a glimpse of a small figure approaching from a distance. The boy in front of her looked the same age as Timothy and Janet. He had no expression on his face. His pupils were slightly unfocused as if he was staring at the water in her hand.

Lucia was stunned, shook the water bottle in her hand, smiled and asked, "Do you want some water?"

The little boy still had no expression, not responding to her at all. But his eyes moved with her movements, seemingly interested in the water bottle she was holding. Lucia was a little worried and looked around to find that there were no parents next to the little boy and no one in the distance looking anxiously for the boy.

She got up and went forward, squatted beside the child and asked with concern, "Hello, little boy, where are your with Lucia through the parent-child activity. But when they saw Phillip beside Lucia, they were reluctant to lean forward.

Whispers came into Lucia's ears from time to time.
"Roy, you can't play with that boy when you're at school. He doesn't look like a normal child."
"We are not as rich and powerful as the Adams family. If something happens to you after getting close to that kid, it would be a tragedy to Mom."
"There were two children in the Adams family. Even if one of them has an accident, there is another child to raise. We are different from them, Mom has only one baby boy, you."
Lucia frowned as she looked at Phillip with distress. At this moment she was suddenly glad that Phillip had a communication disorder. At least he wouldn't be hurt by the gossip.

The teachers quickly organized the parents to stand in the center of the field. The last parent-child activity for a family was to finish a painting on a huge white paper together. The drawings would be displayed on the school's display board for a month. When the parents got the news, they did their best to make their work look as good as possible. Families who trained their children to draw would set aside a space for their children to play. But children's drawings must match the parents' drawings. Other families almost did not let their children do it, and it was done by the parents.

Lucia and August were also shown in the video. The two people carefully took care of the child to complete each game.

and happy family.

People who previously criticized the divorce crisis on the Internet also remained silent. The Lion group released a statement about their rights as the popularity of the hot search decreased. As the matter of divorce crisis came to an end, she took time to pick Paula up from the hospital and spend the whole day with her in the warm cabinet. When Paul heard that the divorce crisis was a farce, his worries faded away. He was confused about whether he should be sad or happy for Lucia. He had just gotten out of the car and before he could walk into the villa, the sharp female voice.

came into his ears first, "You shameless bitch. Can't you understand me?"

He walked into the living room quickly and saw the floor full of luggage. Daryl fell to the floor with a pale face and Zoey was dragging her outside by her collar.

Paul became serious and yelled in a stern voice, "Let her go!"

At the sound of his voice, Zoey immediately let go and spat at Daryl in disgust. Then she darted to him, complaining,

"Paul, didn't you say you'd get rid of this woman? Why is she still here? Remember what you promised me?" He looked at her coldly with boredom in his eyes. But he softly said, "Didn't I tell you that I need time? Why do Daryl thought in mind, 'What does he just mean by his words? Is he angry with me for not playing the role of Lucia well, or do I no longer need to play the role of Lucia..."

Paul came out of the house and went straight to the bar. Glasses of liquor crossed his throat. His consciousness began to fade. But the figure in his head became clearer and clearer, along with her voice that was once full of confidence, "One day I will make you understand that I am not Lucia, I am Daryl."

Since when did the woman who was so full of confidence become what she was now? She shouldn't be like this! Why did she let others bully her? Why didn't she know how to fight back?

The scene of Zoey arrogantly bullying Daryl reappeared in his mind. He clutched his wine glass tightly, and anger gradually surged up in his misty eyes.

He immediately dialed Archie's phone. His tone was very serious and he said, "Bring forward the plan and find a way to block Advanced Technology's capital chain immediately, the sooner the better."

"Mr. Thomas, this does not seem to be the time to make a move, and you..."

"Do as I say!" He said with fierceness word for word, "I will make the Ximenez family disappear forever in Austos City!"

Sooner or later, his score with Daryl would be settled, but not by Zoey!

Inside Amecan airport, Lucia looked at the documents Zane gave and asked in confusion, "New media company?" Zane smiled mysteriously and said, "Ms. Mitchell, you'll know it when you get to the company. You'll like it." The car was already waiting at the entrance of the airport. They didn't have time to get to the hotel for a short rest but immediately rushed to the company. The twenty-third floor of the company building in the business district had been.

renovated.

Several young people from Chea were waiting at the entrance, bending in unison and saluting when they saw Lucia,

"Hello, madam."

She looked at the man next to her in confusion while August took her hand and walked slowly with her together into the company. The secretary with blonde hair and blue eyes next to them showed the two people inside all the way and then introduced them to the office.

"Is this your company?" Lucia reacted as an afterthought, with a look of unconcealed amazement on her face. "Yes." He casually organized the documents and sat in the office chair elegantly, saying,

"Motionwalk Films is responsible for the domestic monopoly of film and television companies, and we are responsible for foreign countries." He said it in a calm manner, but Lucia was totally shocked to hear it. Monopolizing film and television companies was a risky venture. Motionwalk Films wasn't a leader in the industry yet it was just a start-up. It would be too risky for them.

to do so.

She wouldn't question August's business acumen. But now there was a lot of turmoil at home, and he had transferred
