Chapter 14

Noticing Markus' sharp gaze, Katty trembled slightly, and her thoughts of escaping were instantly removed from her mind.

"Are you alright?"

Markus' tone turned a little colder as he saw Katty freeze on the spot. Katty came back to her senses and said, "I... I'm fine."

She walked in front of Markus' desk, and he turned the laptop screen to her. On it, the scene of Katty helping the drunk Chris was playing.

Katty checked the time and knew that she was helping Chris back into the hotel room then.

Her mind went blank, and she could barely control her emotions.

Luckily, after several seconds, the video became blurry and couldn't be seen clearly anymore.

Obviously, it had suffered severe damage.

Seeing it, Katty felt a little relieved in her heart.

one entered Mr. Albert's room until the next morning."

She nodded and said to Markus, "This is the one I watched that day. Tally and I found that no

Katty had stayed in Chris' room for a whole night, and she knew better than others whether anyone had entered his room.

guard we bribed keep it a secret, no one would know what exactly happened that night."

She thought, "The surveillance footage was destroyed. As long as I, Tally, and the security

Just as Katty was secretly glad in her heart, Markus said to the man sitting in the chair opposite the desk, "Can you restore it?"

Katty froze once again.

She was confused as she looked at Markus and then at the man wearing black casual clothes.

"This is..."

"He is Brian Windson, the technical director of our Jamndone branch."

Brian Windson?

Katty had long heard of the name because Brian was the best technologist in the Albert Group.

Chris wanted to transfer Brian to the headquarters but was refused by him several times.

Katty didn't expect Markus to turn to Brian for help just to search for the woman that night.

Brian took the laptop from Markus' hand and whistled like an untamed playboy, promising, "Leave it to me. I won't disappoint you."

The clothes on Katty's back were drenched in cold sweat quickly.

She thought in despair that she was likely to be exposed this time. She felt it hard to breathe as if the air was thin.

Even if Katty regained her composure after a while, she still looked dazed and was at a loss.

"Is... Is there anything else I can help with?" Katty stammered.

Markus shook his head. "You can go back and continue your work."

"Okay." Katty nodded.

She worked hard to stay calm before she turned around and walked out.

After leaving Markus' office, Katty strode to the exit passageway and locked the door. Then, she took out her phone and dialed Tally's number.

in a hurry, "I'm busy now."

"Tally, bad news. We are going to be exposed this time."

Tally was meeting a client outside the company. She picked up the phone and said to Katty

"You have said it several times, yet we are still good now." Katty always got startled over small matters, and Tally was used to it.

Katty choked between sobs. "Markus asked Brian over, and Brian is restoring the video we

"What?"

Tally was so surprised that she jumped up suddenly.

Katty repeated anxiously, "What should we do? What should we do now, Tally?"

She had never been so flustered before.

Once Markus manages to restore and video, Chris would know that Katty had stayed in his room and did not leave the entire night.

damaged that day in Markus' office."

In the Albert Group, seducing the chairman was absolutely unforgivable.

She was also scared out of her wits, let alone Katty.

Tally replied, "I don't know, either."

If the video were restored, not only would Katty be discovered, but Chris would also figure out that Tally had fooled him with Katty sooner or later.

Tally suddenly regretted being friends with Katty because she had brought her an insuperable obstacle.

"Go ask for leave immediately. I'll be back soon," said Tally hurriedly, as she had no time to comfort Katty.

Things had been going out of control and couldn't be solved by pure lies...

Hearing that Tally had no way out, Katty cried out loud.