

Chapter 2114 Lexi Made A Deal With The Mysterious M...

Lexi had anticipated that the mysterious man couldn't find anyone else to manipulate except her, so she was confident that he wouldn't attempt to stop her as she made her exit.

True to her expectations, just as Lexi pivoted and took a few steps, the man grabbed her arm and said, "Wait a minute."

Lexi halted, folded her arms, arched her eyebrows, and challenged, "Have you made your decision?"

"Thirty million," the man proposed, hoping to lower the price from fifty million, which he deemed excessive.

"Fifty million. I won't settle for less," Lexi declared resolutely, indicating she wouldn't budge on her demand.

Caught off guard by her firmness, the man fell silent for a few moments before agreeing reluctantly. "I'll pay you when the plan succeeds."

Nevertheless, Lexi was still not satisfied. "No, you must transfer the money right now. If I don't see the money, I won't cooperate!"

"How can you be so demanding?" the man exclaimed, glaring at Lexi in frustration.

Lexi, unappeased by his repeated compromises, wondered if he truly saw her as nothing more than a pawn in his scheme.

Realizing his anger was mounting, Lexi stood her ground fearlessly. She asserted, "Either you pay me fifty million now, and I'll assist you, or I walk away this instant."

The man clenched his fists, his gaze icy with resentment.

If Lexi were no longer useful to him, he would have considered eliminating her.

"Give me a moment to think," the man uttered, grinding his teeth in irritation.

"Fine. You have five minutes," Lexi responded casually, leaning against the wall, waiting with a relaxed demeanor for his verdict.

Taking a deep breath to calm himself, the man weighed the pros and cons of the deal.

Although he felt Lexi was overpriced, she was indeed the most suitable candidate for the task at hand.

He contemplated spending fifty million to engage Lexi to target Janet. If Janet and the baby were harmed, Brandon would undoubtedly be devastated and vulnerable, simplifying his subsequent plans to target Brandon.

After weighing his options, he decided that exchanging fifty million for potentially altering three lives might actually be a worthwhile investment.

Minutes ticked by.

Suddenly, Lexi's mobile phone vibrated in her pocket, jolting her.

"It's been transferred," the man announced, his voice laced with irritation.

Lexi exhaled, feeling a wave of relief wash over her.

Indeed, the man had transferred the funds. Initially, she thought the notification was a message from Brandon.

Lexi eagerly took out her phone to verify the transaction.

"Wow! So much money!"

Despite anticipating the deposit, Lexi couldn't suppress a gasp when she saw the staggering amount in her bank account.

Noticing Lexi's eyes sparkle as she scrutinized the figures on her screen, the man looked on with palpable contempt.

"Go there as soon as you receive the money," he urged, his voice stern with a warning. "If we don't succeed in harming Janet's baby today, we will reclaim the money."

Inside, Lexi scoffed, confident they would never see that money again.

Yet outwardly, she flashed a placating smile and assured, "Okay, I'll head to Janet's place right away."

With those words, Lexi spun on her heel and dashed from the backstage area in search of Janet.

Outside the venue, Janet was bidding farewell to her friends one by one.

"Janet," Lexi called out as she approached.

Upon hearing Lexi's voice, Janet turned, her face marked with concern. "Lexi, where were you just now?"

Hesitating, Lexi bit her lower lip and murmured, "The competition results weren't great, so I needed a moment alone to gather myself."

Janet nodded, understanding her predicament. She offered comforting words. "Don't worry about it. Everyone has off days. You've been improving rapidly. Just keep focusing on your work, and you'll see positive outcomes soon."

"Exactly, your work is already more impressive than mine was when I started. Keep at it, and you're sure to excel," Elizabeth added, trying to bolster Lexi's spirits.

Looking up into their supportive gazes, Lexi felt a surge of emotion.

She nodded, her voice steady but heartfelt. "Okay, I'll take some time to reflect and devote myself to my studies. I've been a bit too eager lately."

