

Chapter 2118 Clear Up The Misunderstanding

The compensation offered held no allure for Lexi; she felt deeply wronged by Sonia.

Putting her phone down, Lexi sneered and questioned, "Who are you working for?"

A sense of dread washed over Sonia. Did Lexi suspect something? Otherwise, what prompted such a question out of the blue?

"Why do you ask?" Sonia asked, maintaining a veneer of calm.

"It's clear that your role here is more complicated than it seems. Someone must have directed you to Janet," Lexi said firmly. "So, you infiltrate as Janet's bodyguard, meddling in her friendships with ulterior motives. You truly are cunning."

Sonia's frown deepened. After a brief pause, she let out a sigh and admitted, "I acknowledge my mistakes, and I do apologize sincerely. However, I assure you, I harbor no intentions of harming Janet."

Yet, no amount of apology or explanation from Sonia could sway Lexi.

"I will neither forgive you nor trust you," Lexi declared, her eyes fixed fiercely on Sonia. "If not for you, how would I have ended up so unjustly ostracized?"

For a moment, Sonia was rendered speechless.

She realized the gravity of the harm she had inflicted upon

Lexi; a simple apology or mere compensation was inadequate for redemption.

She wracked her brain for a better way to make amends.

While Sonia was deep in thought, Lexi started using her phone, making Sonia uneasy.

"What are you doing?"

Was Lexi dialing the police?

"You wrecked the fashion show. It's only right that I inform others to vindicate myself," Lexi replied assertively and sent the video.

Instead of calling the police, Lexi's decision to send the video caused Sonia even greater unease.

Ultimately, it didn't matter to whom Lexi sent the video. Sonia accepted her fault and the necessity of revealing the evidence.

But she prayed it wouldn't reach Janet.

Concerned that Janet would feel disappointed, Sonia snatched Lexi's phone to see who the video was sent to.

A wave of relief washed over her when she saw the video had been sent to Brandon, along with a report of her dubious identity.

As long as Janet remained unaware, Sonia felt immense relief.

"Why did you grab my phone? Give it back!" Lexi demanded sharply as she snatched her phone back.

Shortly after, Brandon sent a message to Sonia.

"Lexi sent me a message. You need to explain to her that Alexandra is manipulating both of you. You must work together to handle Alexandra. Clear up any misunderstandings between yourselves."

Sonia, feeling a bit powerless, explained her situation to Lexi as Brandon had instructed.

Lexi's eyes widened in shock, and her demeanor shifted entirely.

She expressed sympathy for Sonia's ordeal and was incensed by Alexandra's cunning manipulations. Additionally, she lamented her own misfortune, puzzled by Alexandra's choice to exploit her among many.

"Do I really seem so naive and gullible?" Lexi asked, her voice tinged with hurt.

"You were targeted because you're close to Janet. Mr. Larson has kept Janet well-protected. It's rare to find someone as close to her as you are."

Sonia reassured Lexi with a smile, subtly affirming her value without calling her naive.

Feeling somewhat flattered by the acknowledgment, Lexi scratched her head and smiled. "I guess it's because I joined the studio early, so Janet has come to trust me more."

This reflection led Lexi to a decisive stance. She looked at Sonia and offered, "To honor Janet's trust, I'm ready to collaborate with you against Alexandra and ensure she is well-protected."

Touched by Lexi's commitment, Sonia patted her shoulder and praised, "You're a good person, Lexi. It's no wonder Janet holds you in such high regard."
