

Chapter 2123 Alexandra's Bodyguards

Rather than pushing Lexi away, Sonia did the unexpected and reassured her, "You won't be taken by the Barton family. I'll protect you."

"Truly? Can you assure me that Alexandra won't take me?" Lexi asked, her voice trembling with fear. As she looked up at Sonia, tears began to well up in her eyes.

"Don't worry. I'm here. I won't let them take you away," Sonia promised earnestly.

With Sonia's calming presence, Lexi eventually began to relax.

Once Lexi seemed more at ease, Sonia asked, "Do you have a picture of that man?"

The description Lexi gave nagged at Sonia's memory. It seemed so familiar, but she couldn't place where she had seen him. If only Lexi had managed to snap a secret photo of him.

Upon hearing Sonia's request, Lexi shook her head, looking timid. "I wanted to take some photos for you, but I was too scared. I was scared that he'd be furious if he found me."

"It's alright. It's completely normal to be scared in that kind of situation," Sonia reassured her gently. "But maybe you can remember any distinctive features of the man following you?"

Lexi focused, trying to recall the details. After a few moments, she suddenly exclaimed, "I remember!"

"What do you remember?" Sonia asked, feeling a surge of nervous anticipation.

"He has a long scar on his face!" Lexi replied, gesturing with her hands. "It runs from the left side of his forehead down to his eyebrows. It looks like it was caused by a slash."

As she finished describing, Lexi couldn't help but shrink back, a cold sweat forming on her back.

It was the first time she had seen someone so frightening.

Lexi's detailed description struck a chord with Sonia, who quickly realized who the man was.

He was Alexandra's loyal bodyguard, infamous for his illegal deeds and numerous killings carried out on Alexandra's orders.

But what was he doing in Barnes?

Could this mean that Alexandra was also in town?

When Sonia realized who the man was, her face turned ghostly pale. Cold sweat trickled down her spine, and her hair stood on end as if her blood was running in reverse.

"What's wrong? Why do you look so afraid? What are you not telling me?" Lexi asked frantically, her heart racing. She could see the fear in Sonia's eyes and it made her own anxiety spike.

Not wanting to frighten Lexi further with the harsh reality, Sonia took a deep breath and forced a reassuring smile.

Then, she hurriedly sent a message to Brandon.

He didn't respond, but within half an hour, his bodyguards had surrounded the private hospital.

At that moment, the doctor wheeled Janet out of the examination room.

"Brandon?" Janet was surprised to see Brandon waiting outside.

"I'm here," Brandon responded, striding over to her. He asked about her examination results.

Janet, however, seemed distracted. She glanced at Sonia and Lexi standing nearby, sensing that something significant must have happened to bring Brandon here unexpectedly.

"Aren't you supposed to be at the company for a meeting?" Janet questioned, her brow furrowing with concern. "Why did you come here so suddenly? Is something wrong?"

"No, I wrapped up my work early, so I decided to come and see you."

After speaking, Brandon pushed Janet's wheelchair back to her ward.

Once they were in the ward, Brandon called for a nurse to get a detailed update on Janet and the baby's health. He diligently took notes, making sure to record all the important information.
