Chapter 111

When his curse came out, everyone present fell silent.

The bodyguards looked at him with indescribable gazes as if they said, “No, bro! Don’t do this. Are you tired of living”

They were all left speechless, pausing for a few seconds before remembering to cover his mouth.

As Ben struggled while his mouth was covered, one of the bodyguards punched him in the back, forcing him to calm down.

In the car, Yvonne lay in Tinley’s arms, raised her little face, and asked her curiously. “Mom, what is he saying?”

Although there were a few words she didn’t understand, based on the tone from earlier, she had a vague guess in her mind.

“Mom, is he scolding us?”

Tinley felt a slight pang in her heart. She suppressed the bitterness, lowered her head, and spoke in a gentle tone.

“Yvonne, there’s no need to pay attention to people like him. No one will dare to say such things again in the future?”

Yvonne blinked her big, clear eyes. Although she still didn’t understand, she nodded.

Tinley gave a soothing pale smile.

She gently ran her hand along Yvonne’s small face, pulling her into her embrace, and finally covered the little girl’s ears.

The car window was half rolled down.

She was the head of a top aristocratic family who had just reunited with her biological daughter. She tilted her head and said something to Wendy. The woman outside the car immediately bent down, pressing her ear against the window.

Concerned about Yvonne, Tinley’s voice was so soft that even the slightest noise made it hard to hear.

She whispered in Wendy’s ear softly like she did when she was talking to Yvonne.

“Having eyes but not reading the contract, having a tongue but not speaking proper words. If they’re useless, just get rid of them all.”

Wendy’s expression did not change because she had been with Tinley for too long, so she guessed that this might be the result.

It was just that this time, when she spoke those bloody words, her tone was so soft that it made her ears tingle.

Through the half–open car window, Wendy saw Yvonne’s curious eyes.

She was not hesitating, simply reminding her of the current situation.

“Mrs. Holmes, it’s currently the National Day holiday, so it might be a bit difficult to take action.”

When she mentioned this, Tinley remembered something else.

She covered Yvonne’s ear and gestured for Wendy to come closer.

The tone was still soft, even with a peaceful smile on her face, made for Yvonne.

“After removing it, hang it in the Horizon Tower warning circle and tell everyone that if they can’t speak properly, they should stay quiet. Anyone who dares to say anything bad about my daughter will face this outcome.”

Wendy replied, “Undergood”

She forgot that Tinley was already fierce when she was young, and now that it involved Yonne, dy was made use than before.

She may have been crazy, but she still had reason

Tinley pondered for a moment, her tone calm.

“The painting from the Martin family should be a national treasure. Once its terzised, send it up to the therring Ex them I only have this one daughter, and if I’m not ruthless, no one will respect her. I know where to draw the line and went make things too difficult for them”

Wendy nodded, taking the words to heart.

After confirming that Tinley had nothing else to order, she turned around and left.

Tinley didn’t care how the rest of the matter would be handled.

She closed the window, remembering Yvonne’s reaction to the insult, and gently rubbed her little face with her thin, celé white fingers.

“Yvonne, how can you tell that person is scolding us? Has anyone ever spoken to you like this before?”

Yvonne nodded obediently and said, “Yes.”

She was very innocent and didn’t notice the sudden shift in her mother’s eyes, which had turned sharply fierce after her words.

Seeing her innocent face, Tinley felt an even deeper ache in her heart.

She bent down and lowered her head, her chin pressed against Yvonne’s forehead, and her voice was hoarse, “Tell Mommy who bullied you. I want to know everything about you…”

At this moment, outside the Adler family’s door.

Jeremy cried all the way, and only when they got out of the car did Kelvin feel his ears finally relieved.

As soon as they stepped through the door, they ran into Richard, who had been waiting with the butler for a long time.

In order to prevent himself from being slapped in the face again this time, Richard was very cautious and specifically instructed his subordinates to follow Kelvin and see where he was going.

It was only when the news was relayed back to him that he learned the three of them had gone to Horizon Tower.

As everyone knew, those who could obtain an invitation to that place were not ordinary people.

Therefore, Richard held a conservative opinion on the matter of digging a hole.

He was ready to wait for the three of them to come back and interrogate them. After lunch, he would occasionally stroll by the door, keeping watch.

However, when they finally returned, he didn’t see Yvonne.

“Where’s Yvonne? You sold her?”

Kelvin paused when he walked up to him, raised his wrist to look at the time on his watch, and asked slowly, “Why aren’t you taking a nap at this hour? What are you doing at the door?”

“What do you care about me!” Richard stared at him with anger.

If Kelvin had clarified things properly in the morning, he would not have been so worried that he couldn’t even take an afternoon nap,

Kelvin still had the nerve to ask.

Kelvin looked at him quietly for a few seconds, his eyes seeming to see what Richard was thinking.

But he didn’t explain. He looked away at the housekeeper behind Richard and ordered lightly, “Take him back to take a nap.”

“No!” Richard was a little annoyed and followed him to the backyard, nagging all the way.

“You haven’t answered my question yet. Where is Yvonne?”

Kelvin’s heart grew heavier and his steps quicker.

Richard couldn’t keep up with him, so he turned to look at the dazed Jeremy behind him and reached out to grab him.

“Jeremy, tell me, what did you do to Yvonne?”

Jeremy lowered his head, his eyes fixed on the ground. His youthful, cold voice was muffled and dull.

“She… she was recognized by her biological mother.”

“What!”

These words truly shocked Richard. His cloudy eyes widened as he stared at Jeremy in disbelief.

“Yvonne still has a mother?”

Upon hearing this, Jeremy lifted his gaze, feeling a bit confused.

“Who doesn’t have a mother? She can’t have just sprung out of a rock.”

“I mean her mother is still alive?”

“Why are you still cursing?”

Richard was speechless.

He thought for a moment and realized that she must have been found by her biological parents.

But this didn’t seem right. “You just gave Yvonne to someone else like this? Do you know why that family sent the child to the orphanage in the first place? What if they have ill intentions? If she goes back, wouldn’t she suffer at their hands?”

Richard prided himself on being well–read and experienced, having met countless people. However, upon hearing about Yvonne’s situation, he was absolutely furious.

He pointed at Kelvin’s back, muttering and criticizing, “What have you done? You’re putting the girl in danger. If anything happens to her, I swear your conscience will never be at peace for the rest of your life.”

“Jeremy, you go with me to that family and bring Yvonne back.”

Richard thought that since the family had left Yvonne behind, the family must not have been wealthy and did not pay much attention to her.

Chapter 111

He called to the butler behind him, “Go prepare a card. We’ll pay them off and sever their ties with her. From now on the girl will stay with us.”

In reality, he felt a sense of pride in his heart.

“Our family can provide her with the best resources, and I can guarantee that she is the best in all aspects. Looking wors the country, there are few who can compare to us. She’ll have the best here with us

After saying that, he reached out and grabbed Jeremy.

Unable to pull him, Richard was a little confused. “Let’s go, Jeremy”

Jeremy wiped his face and looked at him with red eyes.

He had a blank expression on his face and calmly asked, “Grandpa, do you know who Yvonne’s biological mother?”

“Who?”

Jeremy uttered two words softly, “Tinley Holmes.”

Richard, who was getting on in years, had a bit of a hearing problem. He tilted his head and asked in confusion, “Which woman are you talking about?”

“Tinley from the Holmes family.”

Richard was stunned.
