Chapter 126

Richard would be happy if the kids in the family said they wanted to go to Tiger Mountain before.

But now, his face was full of disgust. "My Tiger Mountain is not a place just anyone can go

He carried Yvonne and snorted proudly, "You guys used to ignore my Tiger Mountain, but now, it's way out of your league!

After living for over seventy years, Richard finally realized what it felt like to threaten the big boss with his weakness.

Kelvin saw the stubborn look on Richard's face, and the veins on his forehead burst out.

He spat out a few words with a dark face, "Don't push your luck too far?

"Fine, how dare you talk to me like this!" Richard sneered. "I wanted you to go with me, but since you've talked to me like this, forget about it!"

Kelvin was at a loss for words,

Three people sitting there and watching were confused.

"Grandpa, that's what my dad said. Why don't you let us go?"

Richard rose to his feet and rejected them as mercilessly as he had done to the entangled suitors in his youth

He only took Yvonne's hand and ruthlessly ignored the expecting eyes behind him.

He said, "Yvonne, let's go. Tiger Mountain is our secret base. Just the two of us will go.

At this age, secret bases seemed a particularly popular thing among children.

Yvonne had a secret base at the orphanage. It was under a tree and behind the original dog house, very small.

She spent many fantastic hours there.

Then, Richard suddenly told her the place with cats was their new secret base.

And it was so big! That was pretty cool!

The excited little girl ignored the sight behind her and happily followed Richard.

She screamed inwardly, 'Yah! I'm heading to the secret base with Grandpa to play with the kittens!"

Richard instructed the bodyguard to bring the box with the snake inside. Through the transparent box, Yvonne saw it had a pink bow tied around its neck.

After leaving the constant temperature and warm environment and suddenly coming outside, Chris was a little out of place.

The cold wind poured into the box from the vent, causing the bow on Chris's neck to tremble.

Yvonne suddenly realized it wasn't so ugly anymore.

She broke free from Richard's hand and ran over, standing before the box.

The bodyguard bent down slightly and adjusted the snake in his hand to an angle she could see clearly.

Yvonne was very close, and her long eyelashes were almost attached to it.

Her bright eyes rolled with the snake's movements.

Chris turned around to meet her eyes. It was so frightened that its upper body stood up abruptly, but its head hit in a daze because the box was not high enough.

Yvonne was also frightened and took a step back.

Chris was speechless when it smelled the scent of her. Although its eyesight was poor, it was not blind.

After regaining its composure, it continued to lie down obediently.

At least, that was how it seemed to Yvonne.

Yvonne turned and circled it from a different angle, with love and amazement in her eyes.

Chris seemed aware of her emotions and could not help but look up complacently.

It looked quite beautiful.

When it was proud, Yvonne suddenly pointed at it and looked back expectantly at Richard to act cute.

She said softly, "Grandpa, the bow on Chris is so beautiful. I want it."

Richard was taken aback and heard Yvonne say again.

"I want to wear it here." She pointed to a beautiful hairpin above her ear.

"Well..." Richard didn't say no, but he just disliked it. "It's a little dirty after the snake wore it, Yvonne."

Yvonne said softly, turned to stare at the snake in the box for a few seconds, and then nodded with a serious face. "Grandpa, you're right."

She didn't want this worn one anymore. She walked to Richard, raised her soft face, and looked at him, pouting, "Grandpa, I want a new one, please."

Richard was irrational and smiled, "I'll tell someone to buy it for you, Yvonne. You can wear it when we come back from Tiger Mountain."

Yvonne nodded. "Okay!"

Chris was speechless at that. 'Humans, that's enough. I didn't want to wear it in the first place.

Yvonne was happy. She took Richard's hand and entered the car at the door together.

The watchmen opened the iron door at the foot of Tiger Mountain. When entering, Richard rolled down the window and asked the two mountain watchmen outside, "Is everything alright recently?"

The watchmen answered, "Mr. Adler, everything is the same as before. We are guarding the six doors well, and nothing happened."

"Okay." Richard nodded coldly.

Richard closed the car window, and the car continued running up the mountain.

After going up the mountain, the road became much narrower. Usually, the largest car was the transportation truck, so there was no need to make the road too wide.

Yvonne's car window was not closed, and she enjoyed the scenery outside.

Her gaze was aimless, and the scene outside was either green or dead weaves.

Suddenly, something different attracted Yvonne's attention.

Something by the roadside flashed past her, and a familiar scene suddenly crossed Yvonne's mind.

She hurriedly stuck her head out and looked at the rear that had passed

Richard was scared to see her like that and quickly stopped it "Yvonne, you can't stretch your beat out Shar

The driver in the front heard Richard's voice, worried Yvonne would get scratched by the brand by the eatsheat stepped on the brakes.

After the car stopped, Yvonne was pulled back by her clothes.

Richard was scared the wits out. "You scared me to death, Yvonne. You can't stick your bed on fro

"I know, Grandpa. I'm sorry." Yvonne sincerely apologized.

She knew she was wrong. After saying sorry, she stretched out her hand and pointed in the direction the wag

She explained, "Grandpa, I saw Dad's little plane, so I stuck my head out."

"Even if you saw your dad, you couldn't..." While talking, Richard was suddenly stunned. "Wait a time. Your tats place

Yvonne nodded. "Yeah!"

The last time she went to another mountain when she came out of the church, she saw many little places in the day

At that time, she stared at the planes for a long time out of curiosity. They could water down like spray caust

The speaker had no intention, but the listener had his thoughts.

Richard's face suddenly darkened. He glanced in the direction Yvonne was pointing and opened the car dost

He thought, 'Little planes? There are never such things on my mountain

There were three cars in total. Richard's car was in the middle, and the front and rear two were for the bodyguards.

The road was narrow, and there was no way to turn around. He could only walk back.

Yvonne led him to the tree where she had just found the little plane and pointed to a drone that had fallen into pieces. "Grandpa, this is it."

The drone was larger than the average model with a camera on the front, and the spraying system was vaguely visible from the wreckage.

Seeing that, Richard's heart already sank.

He raised his hand, and the bodyguards walked over to the drone wreckage and lifted it out.

On the gray-white concrete road, they could see the medicine cabinet, nozzle, and spray pump connected to it

One bodyguard who went to lift the drone flipped his palms up, and the white gloves were stained with a dark green liquid

He sniffed it from a distance, and the smell of chemicals was pungent.

He reported, "Mr. Adler, I know the model of this drone. It is controlled by ground remote control and GPS, and can be used for precise spraying in small areas."

He turned around and glanced at the mountain behind him. His eyes were sullen, and he gritted his teeth and ordered. "Call help. Search this mountain!"

While they were all outside, in the trunk of the last car, the unpleasant smell of medicine wafted into the box with the snake.

It straightened up as if facing a threat and struggled to push open a small corner of the lid to get out.

Then, it climbed out through the open window of the passenger seat.

Chris originally wanted to stick with Yvonne, but halfway through, it suddenly stopped as if it had noticed something.

Snakes had a keen sense of motion and could determine the location of their prey through tiny movements.

It changed direction and instead of looking for Yvonne, it crawled towards the woods by the roadside.
