

Abandoned Super Cutie Adopted by Billionaire Clan

Chapter 176

Chapter 176

When they arrived in the living room, the Holmes family had not yet arrived.

There were people watching in the living room, so Carlson couldn't move around.

After waiting for two minutes, someone came, but the person who came was very unexpected.

"Mr. Adler? Why are you?"

Carlson was dumbfounded. He thought it would be Tinley

After all, this was a matter of her daughter, and according to how Tinley protected Yvonne, she would definitely solve it in person

However, upon seeing Kelvin, Carlson also had a bold speculation.

He knew for a long time that Tinley's health was not good. These past years of steady decline likely meant she was now running on fumes.

"Could it be that her health is so poor that she can't come out to meet me?

Carlson thought of the last time he met her at the hotel door, and he became more and more certain.

His mind became active. He was eager to confirm his conjecture.

Suddenly, he looked at Kevin.

It was normal for children to be unable to sit still when adults were talking. If Kevin, a four-year-old child, were wandering around, he should not be rejected.

He hugged Kevin and whispered in his ear when no one was paying attention, "You go to the old man at the door and chat with him until I come out. It's best to ask about Tinley's current physical condition."

Kevin gave him a startled look and subconsciously resisted. "Dad, I can't."

Carlson didn't listen and instructed, "Go, he won't eat you."

After saying that, he let go of his hand.

Kevin walked out hesitantly and turned around.

Kelvin glanced at the child who walked out, said nothing, and even felt a little sympathy in his heart.

When Jeremy threw a fit to come in earlier, he refused and had security block the entrance.

However, Kevin ran out by himself now. If the two met, Kevin would be a little unlucky.

Carlson thought the look in his eyes was strange, but he didn't have time to think about it.

Naturally, he wouldn't miss this rare opportunity, so he said with a smile, 'I didn't expect you to be in the Holmes family. How are you? I brought some gifts when I came...

Kelvin didn't mean to chat, and he turned a deaf ear to the temptations in his words. He was concise and comprehensive.

"Gifts are not necessary, Things between children will not rise to the family, but there is something I want to discuss with you

His voice sounded gentle, and Carlson was relaxed.

But what he didn't expect was that Kelvin was going to transfer Kevin to another class!

This is completely unacceptable! Carlson thought.

This is not the first time the two children have had a conflict, and since Yvonne went to school, she has never had a conflict with another child at school except Kevin.

The problem was obvious.

Concerned about Carlson's dignity, Kelvin said more implicitly.

If it were Ian, he would say it was Kevin who deliberately troubled Yvonne at school.

But apparently, Carlson missed the subtext.

He thought Kelvin was discussing with him. "This is not appropriate. I came specifically to mediate between the children. Besides, kids' scuffles are perfectly normal. When I was young...

Kelvin quietly waited for him to finish speaking.

Listening to Carlson finish was out of politeness, but it didn't mean he would consider the content of Carlson's words.

"Since it's not appropriate, there's no need to get along. Yvonne doesn't lack friends, and neither does your son. Separation is good for the children."

His

speech was slow, but especially tough, leaving Carlson speechless.

Outside, Kevin walked up to Taylor.

Thinking that his father said that this man was just a gardener, he was not so afraid.

The f

first time he was sent to inquire about the news, he was really nervous.

Squatting beside Taylor, he didn't say a word for a long time.

Taylor gave him a strange look as he stuffed the blades.

"What are you doing, kid? If nothing, just give way to the side. Don't get in the way."

His temper had always been volatile. When first meeting Kelvin, he'd outright disrespected Kelvin's status without a second thought. Only Kevin's similarity in age to Yvonne kept his current civility in check.

Kevin couldn't accept it, and he said in a stiff voice, "I'm a guest."

Taylor looked at him even more strangely.

Taylor was also a guest,

Not far away.

Jeremy's eyes lit up as he wandered outside and saw Taylor and Kevin squatting together.

Well, his father wouldn't let him in, but there were no restrictions on Kevin from coming out. He finally caught Kevin.

Jeremy walked over, squatted in rows, and placed his hand on Kevin's shoulder, patting it lightly

"You must be the one who bullied Yvonne today."

When he wasn't smiling, he was very cold and looked particularly intimidating-

At least Kevin was too scared to move.

Taylor, who was studying the grass leaves intently, looked up and stared at Kevin without saying a word.

But the scissors in his hand clicked, and the sharp cuts looked especially scary.

"I... I didn't bully her... Kevin swallowed and defended.

"Didn't bully her?" Jeremy saw his dodging and eagerness, as if he had thought of something, and his voice became more gloomy and faint.

"Kid, do you like my sister? That's why you want to attract her attention by bullying her?"

After saying this, Jeremy rolled up his sleeves unintentionally and showed off his powerful arms.

Every summer, he was dragged to Strate City for combat training.

Sixteen years without a single kidnapping made it seem useless, until now.

It should be used to protect Yvonne from creeps, especially these budding predators her age. Defcon-level vigilance required!
