Anna took Yvonair downstairs ten minutes ago.

Several princesses from fairy tales were standing on the lawn, playing games with the children

Anna and Yvonne noticed before they got close that the princess in the yellow dress was particularly popular among those people.

So many children surrounded her that they couldn't squeeze in

From a distance, Anna stopped to look at the popular princess. The same thought occurred to both little girls when they saw her face. 'No wonder she's so popular. She's so pretty.

pany children

Girls liked beautiful things, whether it was people or objects. They both wanted to go over, but there were so many around that they were squeezed out as soon as they got close.

They had no choice but to settle for the next best thing and go to other pretty girls.

But Yvonne didn't expect that the beautiful princess would look her way. She stood there dumbfounded, like a love-struck fool.

Anna, who was holding her hand, noticed something was wrong and followed her gaze.

The princess's face was even more stunning up close. Her long hair cascaded over her shoulders like seaweed, covering her smooth back. Her eyelashes resembled tiny brushes, her eyes were large and captivating, and her lips were equally beautiful. She was like a fairy-tale princess who had stepped into reality.

"She's so pretty," Anna said.

"Yeah," Yvonne agreed.

Just then, the beautiful princess waved in their direction.

The two little girls subconsciously looked behind them. There was no one else here but the two of them.

Anna raised her hand and pointed at herself in disbelief.

The princess nodded and continued to beckon them over

It felt like they were at a concert and suddenly got called on stage by their idol. They were nervous and excited.

Anna took Yvonne's hand and smiled happily. "She's calling us. Let's go.

Since the princess had personally chosen them, the surrounding children made way for them as they approached, watching with eyes full of admiration.

The princess squatted down. Her face looked even more beautiful up close.

She possessed a dazzling and exquisite beauty, with long, thick eyelashes. As they drew closer, they caught the sweet fragrance of her perfume and marveled at her voluminous, luxurious gown adorned with sparkling little diamonds.

For little girls of their age, it was irresistible.

The two little girls, their eyes darting around in confusion, didn't know where to look.

"You, you are so pretty, Yvonne stammered after staring at her for a few seconds.

The voice was not the clear and elegant tone Yvonne had imagined. It was a bit off, but she couldn't quite place it

Yvonne stared at her blankly, her mind still processing the sination.

Meeting the princess's beautiful, shimmering eyes, the replied honestly, "My mom"

Hearing this answer, the princess narrowed her eyes and glanced thoughtfully around. But she didn't see the strange man who had been following Yvonne earlier.

He must have been scared away by that pebble, he thought

He gathered his thoughts, and as his gaze swept over Yvonne's slightly infatuated face, his rosy lips curved into a faint me a subtle sense of delight flickering in his heart.

The princess drew closer to Yvonne, inhaling a delightful blend of mulky fragrance mingled with her subtle seent, which was utterly enchanting

"Did you tell your mother about that man who wanted to take you and Anna away? the princess asked

The infatuated look on Yvonne's face turned into confusion. She turned her head and exchanged glances with Anna before pointing at herself uncertainly with her little finger and asking in a sweet, childish voice. "Take me and Anna away!"

The princess nodded.

Yvonne became even more bewildered. With an innocent and soft expression, she whispered. "No. No one tried to take me and Anna away

Suddenly, Anna remembered something. She leaned close to Yvonne's ear and whispered, "It was that man who was sick an the head"

"Oh..." Yvonne remembered. That pitiful man kept lifting me and Anna like dried fish. But he didn't want to catch me and Anna He's just got a problem in his head

Yvonne pursed her lips and explained earnestly to the beautiful princess, "He isn't here to capture us. My mother sent him: © to protect me."

The princess's delicate face stiffened for a moment. Throtect

This sentence was not spoken softly, and Anna hear it

She agreed and then helped to defend Grave. "Yes, you're right, but that man's head is sick, and that's why he became like this,"

The princess fell silent, thinking, It seems I misunderstood. As soon as I entered, I saw a strangely dressed man leading two little girls in a certain direction. I thought the Jours family had arranged for someone besides me to run errands.

He confirmed again. "Did your mother arrange for someone to protect you?"

"Min-human" Yvonne nodded firmly, answering with certainty sure this child is truly precious, the princess thought.

her confirming nothing had happened, the princess stood up, turned around, and tried to step away from the children. tugging at her skirt to leave the place.

Sensing her intention. Yvonne reached out, tugged her skirt, and said reluctantly, "Are you leaving"

The princess looked back at her, amused by the adoration and reluctance on the child's face.

Anna whispered in Yvonne's ear, Yvonne. I think she's Cinderella. She has to return the dress. Let's not stop her."

Yvonne struggled for a moment but finally let go of her hand

"Alright. After all, returning the gown is more important, Yvonne thought.
