Chapter 299

Chapter 299

Thinking of this, Wendy's expression was somewhat helpless

She looked away, just as Tinley hung up the phone.

She followed Tinley in, and when she reached the door, she realized that the person behind her hadn't followed. She stopped and urged him. "Thurry up

"Henry, come on

Henry felt his pocket for his phone, which he had taken out, and followed her in with great disappointment.

After all his efforts to visit the Holmes uusion, he missed the one person worth meeting. It was too disappointing.

At this time, he no longer had the nervousness he felt when he first entered the Holmes mansion.

As Wendy had said. Tinley was in a very good mood today.)

A half-hour later, he left the Holmes mansion in a hurry with the pre-printed contract in his hand

Gabriel was in the shower when he received the call from his agent

He changed his clothes, made sure the child was safe, and went home.

The dress was beautiful, but it had one flaw: the sequins and rhinestones on the skirt kept falling on him.

So when he got back, he rushed to take a shower.

In the room, Hudson stared curiously at the bathroom door, a hint of confusion in his clear eyes, as if he didn't understand why Gabriel had taken a shower when he left in the morning and had to take another one when he got home.

But Gabriel never acted without reason, so Hudson was sensible enough not to ask Hudson didn't know what to do, so he waited at the door.

Gabriel smiled when he came out and saw him

Looking at Hudson at home, he suddenly thought of the two little girls in the Allen villa who were pulling and pressing on his skirt.

At that time, the two of them hadn't recognized his identity yet, and they treated him as a girl, rolling around and acting spoiled

Cabriel knew that if he told Hudson about this, Hudson would be happy for a long time.

once he said it, Hudson would get to the bottom of it, so he held back and sealed this funny thing up

After coming out, Gabriel casually wiped his black hair that was still dripping with water, picked up the phone on the table, and glanced at it, then asked softly, "It's noon, what do you want to eat?"

Hudson hesitated for a while. Yesterday at school, he heard Anna and Yvonne chatting and learned that there was a magical. thing in the world called takeout,

Hudson said in a low voice, lacking confidence, "Gabriel, I want to order takeout"

Galusel glanced at the balance on his phone, having a bit of a worry

That cafupel didn't show it in front of Husson. If Hudson knew that Gabriel had no money, he would be worried for a long

He couldn't order takeout anyway.

Gabriel thought for two seconds and found an excuse.

It's not healthy, Let's eat what I make

Hudson opened his mouth, wanting to speak but hesitating.

He waited until Gabriel turned and entered the kitchen before he whispered, afraid that Gabriel would hear.

"Gabriel's cooking is not healthy either." He became malnourished from eating Gabriel's cooking

But he was a child and couldn't resist, so he could only wait for Gabriel to finish cooking.

After dinner, Gabriel closed his bedroom door and turned on the computer.

He looked for the order he had accepted and clicked on "Task Failed" below it.

The system gave a prompt, and the order was submitted for review,

Because he was eager to make money, he scrolled down after submitting the failed task and picked out some tasks he liked.

But jobs were hard to find these days, and he was not the only errand runner around, so it had been difficult for Gabriel to find any work satisfactory.

He searched from noon to afternoon, but oddly enough, he didn't encounter a single one.

Just as he was frowning, his phone rang

Gabriel picked up the phone and saw that the caller ID was his impressive agent.

This agent was quite famous in the entertainment industry, having previously managed several extremely popular celebrities. He was later poached by his current company for a hefty sum.

A while ago, when the head of the company came to find him, Gabriel thought he was hallucinating

Such a big company not only took the initiative to approach him but also assigned this incredible agent to him.

His acting skills were subpar; he only relied on his looks.

His agent hadn't contacted him for days, and he had almost forgotten about it..

He didn't expect a call out of the blue.

The sound of the other person came through as soon a

as the call connected.

The tone was quite pleasant, but with a hint of urgency.

"Gabriel, do you have time now?"

After asking this question, Gabriel said yes, and the other person's voice obviously i y relaxed a lot.

"Then can you come to the company now? You have a supplementary agreement that has not yet been signed."

Gabriel had never imagined that this agent would have such a friendly tone

He didn't act arrogant at all like that company agent from before.

Although he had not yet met anyone, he had already developed a good impression of the company and the agent He obediently said okay to the other end of the phone, then started to change his clothes and go to the company. After all, errand runners didn't always have orders. If this company were good, it would be a stable job for him. On the other side, after hanging up the phone, the agent turned around and carefully asked the man sitting next to him

"Mr. Bell, is this okay?"
