

Supremacy 1271

Chapter 1271 Truth In Lies, Lies In Truth? Who To Believe? I

As the decision was made, Felix left the responsible departments to finalize the rest. 1

The decision was approved by a massive majority of the citizens, making almost everyone keep stalking the SG Alliance's website for more details.

As a side bonus, many upset people about Elder Dragon's death seemed to have laid out their protest torches against Felix.

They realized that it might not be so bad to have Felix as their Grand Supreme since he clearly showed that he cared about commoners...At least much better than Elder Dragon who couldn't give a sh*t about anyone's life.

Felix couldn't have cared less about the public's opinion of him as he kept spending most of his time on his integration, hoping to hit 99% as soon as possible.

Since he was already at 75% before his fight with Elder Dragon, it took him fifteen days more or less to reach 98%.

Right now, he was pushing through the remaining 1% with great difficulty under the solemn expressions of the tenants.

"Do you think death might change his attitude?" Thor inquired.

"Doubtful, you know how he is." Jormungandr shook his head, "He is impulsive, has a short fuse, lacks empathy, and has self-destructive behavior. I would be grateful if he just didn't cause us trouble after waking up."

Lord Shiva wasn't being called unhinged for no reason as just one of those traits was horrible to have...Yet, he was collecting them like Pokemon cards.

Those traits made Lord Shiva impossible to predict, which was the reason why Lady Sphinx's traits make Lord Shiva impossible to predict, which was the reason why Lady Sphinx and the others were fully prepared to erase his wisp of consciousness the instant he harbored ill intentions toward Felix.

"Let's hope for the best..."

After a few more gruesome minutes, the pain finally went away once and for all, allowing Felix to take a breather.

Without an ounce of hesitation, Felix swiftly entered his consciousness space, not bothering to even clean his sweat.

"Did he get awakened?" He asked with a serious expression as he looked around him.

"Yes, I can feel his presence." Lady Sphinx answered.

"Good." Felix sighed in relief.

He knew that it was unlikely that Lord Shiva's soul would be as strong as Elder Kraken's.

Still, he was always worried that he might not get awakened and that he would be required to seek out another bloodline bottle from King Mahit.

He knew that wasn't going to end on a peaceful note.

"What a lovely gathering you have here..."

Lord Shiva didn't make them wait for long as he took form near the circular table, where everyone was sitting.

Felix had already seen Lord Shiva's imposing form through his master's memories, but he was still overwhelmed when he appeared right in front of him.

He was dwarfed by Lord Shiva, who was almost nine meters tall...He was exuding a natural aura of strength and knowledge that was both inspiring and humbling.

With his matted hair cascading down his back like a river of black silk, Lord Shiva had an unusual aspect.

His wild appearance was given a peaceful undertone by the flower garlands in his hair. His skin was gray in color and cracked, signifying his ties to the destruction element. His face was chiseled and stern, with a sharp jawline and high cheekbones that gave him an air of regal authority.

On his forehead, the Lord was shown to have a pitch-black third eye that seemed to absorb even the smallest particle of light.

It was the only one open as his other eyes seemed closed in a state of intense meditation. Bangles and bracelets graced Lord Shiva's four arms, giving his gruff appearance a hint of elegance.

"It's an honor to meet you again, Lord Shiva."

All of the primogenitors bowed their heads respectfully even when Lord Shiva had intentions to bring destruction upon the entire universe.

"If only I could say the same...Looks like I failed." Lord Shiva exhaled with a tint of disappointment while rubbing his closed-shut eyes.

The primogenitors' eyelids twitched as they discerned that Lord Shiva was annoyed by their existence.

Meanwhile, Felix couldn't help but frown a little in confusion, 'Didn't he get killed by the elemental lords? How can he not know that he failed before he died? It shouldn't come as a surprise.'

'There is clearly more to the story than we know.' Asna was just as baffled.

"You were brought from the realm of death and you still have such a burning fury to end it all." Thor said with a displeased tone, "Lord, have you really just gone mad?"

"Gone mad?"

Lord Shiva showed a hollow smile as he decreased his size until he matched everyone...Then, he took a seat with them at the table.

"I am not mad, I'm just enlightened."

"Enlightened?" Jormungandr narrowed his eyes, "Your actions have resulted in the erasure of more than 20% of the observable universe. Millions of galaxies were gone and everyone on it wasn't even given the chance to visit the spirit realm due to your ultimate ability. How can you say that you haven't gone mad with a straight face?!"

Jormungandr rarely got riled up, but this time, he really wanted to punch Lord Shiva in the face!

"20%? That's indeed an unfortunate situation..."

Lord Shiva seemed somewhat remorseful, "But, if I wasn't interrupted by those traitors, the entire universe would have been deleted and everyone would have received a fair equal ending."

"Traitors? 20% of the universe is gone? What the hell is he talking about?" Felix's doubts kept multiplying in his mind as this conversation wasn't making any sense to him.

To make it worse, he couldn't really intervene and request for them to explain the context as it was clearly a sensitive subject for everyone involved.

Unbeknownst to him, even his masters were confused by the term traitors being used on the elemental lords.

"Who are you calling a traitor?"

Abruptly, Lord Khaos joined the discussion with his usual expressionless cosmic form.

"I thought I smelled the presence of a rat" Lord Shiva's entire demeanor changed to hostile the moment he spotted Lord Khaos.

The atmosphere got madly intense as those two were legit lords and they seemed to have no issues clashing with each other.

This was what scared Felix as he knew that if they fought here, his consciousness would crumble immediately.

"Can we take a step back and restart again? Here, smoke this and it will relax you immediately."

Carbuncle attempted to bring some peace by offering both of them his favorite rolled-up joints.

Both of them ignored his existence and continued staring at each other.

"We had the perfect plan to teach those f*ckers a lesson and ruin their game. When it was time to implement it, all of you had cold feet and turned against me." Lord Shiva sneered, "Isn't that the perfect description of a traitor?"

"You really wanna do this here?" Lord Khaos uttered as he glanced at everyone's perplexed expressions.

"Do I look like I care anymore about hiding the truth?" Lord Shiva scoffed, "I should have told everyone about their precious reality, at least, I wouldn't have been alone when you backstabbed me."

"Lord Khoas, Lord Shiva, can you tell us what really happened back there?" Lady Sphinx requested with a cold expression...If there was one thing she hated the most, it would definitely be lied to.

She had no issues if one didn't want to involve her with the truth, but just not lie about it as she knew that lies were the absolute ban to knowledge.

From her reaction, it was clear that her truth vision wasn't good enough to detect lies from the truth at that period of time.

"I don't know what those traitors have told you after my death, but it's best to see for yourselves!" Lord Shiva warned, "Just know one thing, your quest of finding your meaning in life will end after this."

Chapter 1272 Truth In Lies, Lies In Truth? Who To Believe? II

This statement shocked Felix to the core, don't even mention the primogenitors, who spent billions of years seeking their purpose of existence!.

Most of them even considered committing suicide due to the dullness of their lives and the lack of any meaning or substance to it. It was that bad.

"Are you being serious?" Thor asked with a stern tone.

Lord Shiva ignored his question and asked, "Have you ever wondered why almost all the elemental lords never showed any signs of depression even when they lived much longer than you? Or most importantly, how they never bothered to create descendants or interact with the universe in the same manner as you?"

Jormungandr and the others knitted their eyebrows at his questions...This wasn't the first time they wondered about those matters as it was apparent that ' - always be behaving differently than the rest.

In the case of depression, they believed that they possessed a much better mental fortitude than them since there weren't any other explanations.

On another note, all the elemental lords didn't have descendants since they believed that it would be bad for the balance of the universe for more people to have their kind of powers.

At least, that's what Thor and the others were being told...But now, it seemed like there was a much deeper reasoning behind all of this.

Lady Sphinx was the first to figure it out. "They knew about the purpose of our existence and they hid." She stated with an icy tone.

Lady Sphinx wasn't easily angered, but this really had gotten on her nerves. She shared most of the important knowledge that she found on her own with everyone.

She believed that sharing knowledge with others would make them return the favor if they ever found something interesting and she didn't know about it.

Hiding the purpose of their existence was a hundred times worse than this as it was a subject that affected all primogenitors together!

Jormungandr, Thor, Carbnucle, Fenrir, and Elder Kraken all turned simultaneously with cold displeased expressions toward Lord Khoas.

"Is she right?"

"Yes!" Lord Khoas didn't bother to hide it any longer when the situation had gotten this far.

"HOW DARE YOU!! HOW F*CKING DARE YOU!"

Jormungandr and Thor roared furiously as they slammed the table, shattering it instantly!

Felix swiftly took Asna and teleported away to safety as the two visible pressuring murderous auras surged akin to slumbering dragons.

'Masters..?

This was the first time Felix saw both of his masters losing their cool like this. Honestly, he was also peeved in their place even when this didn't affect him like them.

After all, his masters had ended their lives because their quest to find their meaning ended up in failure. God knows how much they tried and how much time and effort they wasted on this eternal dilemma.

Yet, here they were, hearing that the elemental lords already knew about the primogenitors' purpose in life way before they offed themselves. This meant their deaths were absolutely for nothing...

"Lord Khaos...Sigh, this is really disappointing of you:"

Elder Kraken, Carbuncle, and Fenrir's reactions weren't as explosive as those two, but they were clearly just as unhappy about it.

'You will understand why we hid it...I am certain that you will do the same:' Lord Khoas replied expressionlessly, seemingly unaffected by their reactions.

"That's not happening." Lady Sphinx said coldly, "Such information should be in the hands of every primogenitor whether it was good or bad. We are not children that need to be protected."

'I guess she still sees me as a child.' Felix's eyelids twitched at the sound of that.

He might not understand the whole picture here, but he was sure that the version of the story about Lord Shiva's failed attempt to destroy the universe wasn't real.

Clearly, the version that his masters knew about was also not real, which was somewhat of a consolation to him.

"We will see about that."

Lord Khoas went silent and waited for Lord Shiva to expose everything. Lord Shiva didn't hold back in the slightest as he displayed a mirror of his own memories.

Everyone glued their eyes to the mirror as one of the biggest secrets in the universe was finally going to be exposed.

A long, long, time ago, during the early days of the primogenitors' Era...

Lord Shiva could be seen sitting on a carpeted floor with his legs half crossed, exuding a relaxed and easy-going air.

Lord Loki, Lord Zurvan, Lord Osiris, Lord Khoas, and Lord Quetzalcoatl were seen spread out on other carpets as well.

They were inside a large desert tent that was adorned with brightly colored tapestries and decorative tassels that swayed gently in the breeze.

The walls were lined with intricate carpets and cushions, and a small fire burned in the center of the room, casting flickering shadows across the walls.

The furnishings were simple but elegant, with low wooden tables and woven mats for seating.

"You really found no other place than this to set the meeting? I knew it was a bad idea to let this idiot decide." Lord Shiva scolded as he eyed Lord Loki, who had a completely different

Appearance.

This time he took the form of a white lizardman with three scaled tails and a toothless mouth.

"I thought you guys would enjoy the fresh air. Lord Loki shrugged, "Why am I being cursed? That stuck-up prick is the one leaving us waiting for hours here for him."

He was clearly addressing the creation primogenitor as he was the only elemental lord missing.

At this point in time, not everyone had the elemental lord title as the majority didn't manage to master their domains this early in the primogenitors' Era.

They were hanging with each other not because they were elemental lords, but simply because they were the first primogenitors to exist, making them consider each other as close peers.

"We should start without him." Lord Zurvan smiled kindly, "He isn't coming any time soon."

"You should have said so sooner." Lord Quetzalcoatl yawned as he opened his eyes lazily.

"Fine" Lord Shiva fixed his posture and said with a solemn tone, "I did it."

"You did it? Congratulations I guess, it's about time one of you lost your virginities." Lord Loki clapped slowly with an innocent smile.

Lord Shiva gave him one glare and Lord Loki stopped messing around instantly after realizing what he really meant.

"You actually met them?! How?!" Lord Quetzalcoatl asked with a startled look.

"I just kept bugging them until they allowed me to enter their Eternal Kingdom." Lord Shiva answered, "I honestly didn't think it would even work and I was just annoying them due to boredom."

The moment Asna heard the term, Eternal Kingdom, she felt shivers course down her spine

as it was the home of none other than those beings.

The beings who ruined her life before it even started without any explanation!

'You good?' Felix asked as he tightened his grasp on her hand.

'It's nothing!' Asna smiled, 'Let's keep watching.'

Felix knew that something was up with her, but he put it to rest for now as he didn't want to lose focus on the elemental lords' discussion.

"So, what did you see? What did they look like? Did you ask them about us?!" Lord Loki fired a series of questions with a tone of utmost eagerness.

"I couldn't see sh*t...All of my visions were blinded, even my wisdom eye." Lord Shiva narrowed his eyes coldly, "But they did speak to me alright."

"What did they say?" Lord Osiris asked with a stoned look.

"They answered my question before I can ask it. I don't know if they just said this to mess with me or it was the truth, but they told me about our purpose and creator."

Lord Shiva took a deep breath and then quoted with a suppressed tone, "We have created you for the sole purpose of our amusement...Nothing more, nothing less."

Chapter 1272 Truth In Lies, Lies In Truth? Who To Believe? II

This statement shocked Felix to the core, don't even mention the primogenitors, who spent billions of years seeking their purpose of existence!.

Most of them even considered committing suicide due to the dullness of their lives and the lack of any meaning or substance to it. It was that bad.

"Are you being serious?" Thor asked with a stern tone.

Lord Shiva ignored his question and asked, "Have you ever wondered why almost all the elemental lords never showed any signs of depression even when they lived much longer than you? Or most importantly, how they never bothered to create descendants or interact with the universe in the same manner as you?"

Jormungandr and the others knitted their eyebrows at his questions...This wasn't the first time they wondered about those matters as it was apparent that ' - always be behaving differently than the rest.

In the case of depression, they believed that they possessed a much better mental fortitude than them since there weren't any other explanations.

On another note, all the elemental lords didn't have descendants since they believed that it would be bad for the balance of the universe for more people to have their kind of powers.

At least, that's what Thor and the others were being told...But now, it seemed like there was a much deeper reasoning behind all of this.

Lady Sphinx was the first to figure it out. "They knew about the purpose of our existence and they hid." She stated with an icy tone.

Lady Sphinx wasn't easily angered, but this really had gotten on her nerves. She shared most of the important knowledge that she found on her own with everyone.

She believed that sharing knowledge with others would make them return the favor if they ever found something interesting and she didn't know about it.

Hiding the purpose of their existence was a hundred times worse than this as it was a subject that affected all primogenitors together!

Jormungandr, Thor, Carbnucle, Fenrir, and Elder Kraken all turned simultaneously with cold displeased expressions toward Lord Khoas.

"Is she right?"

"Yes:' Lord Khoas didn't bother to hide it any longer when the situation had gotten this far.

"HOW DARE YOU!! HOW F*CKING DARE YOU!"

Jormungandr and Thor roared furiously as they slammed the table, shattering it instantly!

Felix swiftly took Asna and teleported away to safety as the two visible pressuring murderous auras surged akin to slumbering dragons.

'Masters..?

This was the first time Felix saw both of his masters losing their cool like this. Honestly, he was also peeved in their place even when this didn't affect him like them.

After all, his masters had ended their lives because their quest to find their meaning ended up in failure. God knows how much they tried and how much time and effort they wasted on this eternal dilemma.

Yet, here they were, hearing that the elemental lords already knew about the primogenitors' purpose in life way before they offed themselves. This meant their deaths were absolutely for nothing...

"Lord Khaos...Sigh, this is really disappointing of you:'

Elder Kraken, Carbuncle, and Fenrir's reactions weren't as explosive as those two, but they were clearly just as unhappy about it.

'You will understand why we hid it...I am certain that you will do the same:' Lord Khoas replied expressionlessly, seemingly unaffected by their reactions.

"That's not happening." Lady Sphinx said coldly, "Such information should be in the hands of every primogenitor whether it was good or bad. We are not children that need to be protected."

'I guess she still sees me as a child.' Felix's eyelids twitched at the sound of that.

He might not understand the whole picture here, but he was sure that the version of the story about Lord Shiva's failed attempt to destroy the universe wasn't real.

Clearly, the version that his masters knew about was also not real, which was somewhat of a consolation to him.

"We will see about that."

Lord Khoas went silent and waited for Lord Shiva to expose everything. Lord Shiva didn't hold back in the slightest as he displayed a mirror of his own memories.

Everyone glued their eyes to the mirror as one of the biggest secrets in the universe was finally going to be exposed.

A long, long, time ago, during the early days of the primogenitors' Era...

Lord Shiva could be seen sitting on a carpeted floor with his legs half crossed, exuding a relaxed and easy-going air.

Lord Loki, Lord Zurvan, Lord Osiris, Lord Khoas, and Lord Quetzalcoatl were seen spread out on other carpets as well.

They were inside a large desert tent that was adorned with brightly colored tapestries and decorative tassels that swayed gently in the breeze.

The walls were lined with intricate carpets and cushions, and a small fire burned in the center of the room, casting flickering shadows across the walls.

The furnishings were simple but elegant, with low wooden tables and woven mats for seating.

"You really found no other place than this to set the meeting? I knew it was a bad idea to let this idiot decide." Lord Shiva scolded as he eyed Lord Loki, who had a completely different Appearance.

This time he took the form of a white lizardman with three scaled tails and a toothless mouth.

"I thought you guys would enjoy the fresh air. Lord Loki shrugged, "Why am I being cursed? That stuck-up prick is the one leaving us waiting for hours here for him."

He was clearly addressing the creation primogenitor as he was the only elemental lord missing.

At this point in time, not everyone had the elemental lord title as the majority didn't manage to master their domains this early in the primogenitors' Era.

They were hanging with each other not because they were elemental lords, but simply because they were the first primogenitors to exist, making them consider each other as close peers.

"We should start without him." Lord Zurvan smiled kindly, "He isn't coming any time soon."

"You should have said so sooner." Lord Quetzalcoatl yawned as he opened his eyes lazily.

"Fine" Lord Shiva fixed his posture and said with a solemn tone, "I did it."

"You did it? Congratulations I guess, it's about time one of you lost your virginities." Lord Loki clapped slowly with an innocent smile.

Lord Shiva gave him one glare and Lord Loki stopped messing around instantly after realizing what he really meant.

"You actually met them?! How?!" Lord Quetzalcoatl asked with a startled look.

"I just kept bugging them until they allowed me to enter their Eternal Kingdom." Lord Shiva answered, "I honestly didn't think it would even work and I was just annoying them due to boredom."

The moment Asna heard the term, Eternal Kingdom, she felt shivers course down her spine

as it was the home of none other than those beings.

The beings who ruined her life before it even started without any explanation!

'You good?' Felix asked as he tightened his grasp on her hand.

'It's nothing!' Asna smiled, 'Let's keep watching.'

Felix knew that something was up with her, but he put it to rest for now as he didn't want to lose focus on the elemental lords' discussion.

"So, what did you see? What did they look like? Did you ask them about us?!" Lord Loki fired a series of questions with a tone of utmost eagerness.

"I couldn't see sh*t...All of my visions were blinded, even my wisdom eye." Lord Shiva narrowed his eyes coldly, "But they did speak to me alright."

"What did they say?" Lord Osiris asked with a stoned look.

"They answered my question before I can ask it. I don't know if they just said this to mess with me or it was the truth, but they told me about our purpose and creator."

Lord Shiva took a deep breath and then quoted with a suppressed tone, "We have created you for the sole purpose of our amusement...Nothing more, nothing less."

Chapter 1273 Truth In Lies, Lies In Truth? Who To Believe? III

Whether it was the elemental lords in the mirror or the tenants, none of them uttered a single word after hearing his quote.

They just looked at each other with stunned expressions, seemingly unable to believe what their ears had just heard.

Lord Shiva paused the memories and remained silent, knowing that this sort of news wasn't easy to accept in the slightest for anyone.

As he expected, everyone went straight into the denial stage.

"This can't be real... They must have said so to mess with you. It can't be real... It can't." Thor spoke with a slight tremor in his voice, trying his very best to keep his agitation from showing out.

His partners might have remained quiet, but all of them shared the same attitude as him.

It was just impossible for them to accept that their purpose in life was for the sake of those beings' entertainment.

They never wished for their purpose to be a noble one, but they would rather believe that they were born purposeless than this!

Who could blame them? Earthlings used to live for less than a hundred years and yet most of them spend their lives contemplating the purpose of their lives.

Most believe that religion is the final answer and some believe that they were created out of coincidence.

Even those people would not take it too kindly if they knew that they were mere clowns born to entertain higher powers.

Primogenitors lived billions of years questioning their existence since they were considered the first intelligent creatures born in the universe from already existing species.

Anyone would assume that they were special and born to serve a noble purpose even when the universe seemed to have given them absolutely no duties to carry on.

So, to find out that their entire lives and struggles were for some beings' entertainment was literally the worst possible outcome...

"This was our reaction too." Lord Shiva shook his head as he played his memories again, showing the elemental lords' reaction.

"Are you messing with us?" Lord Loki's expression turned cold all of a sudden, "Is this your way of retaliation for my pranks?"

"Do you see me smiling?" Lord Shiva replied calmly.

"This...But, argh! This just can't be the truth! Those bastards must have said that to f*ck with you for annoying them continuously!" Lord Quetzalcoatl uttered with a distressed tone.

"I thought so the same when I first heard it. I even cursed them off before retreating. But, the more I thought about it, the more it made the most sense to me."

Lord Shiva smiled wryly as he explained, "We already had a strong hunch that we are related heavily to those beings due to the three celestial divine languages being written on us. If we were born as primogenitors straight away. I wouldn't have spent even a second entertaining the thought that those bastards have created us...But, we weren't."

Felix noticed that the elemental lords and even the tenants' expressions turn for the worst at the sound of that.

He might not understand everything, but with the type of information he had, he was able to recognize that those beings were the ones bestowing those gifts upon the primogenitors!

Hence the term 'create' instead of 'birth' was present during the quote!

"As our creators, I just couldn't find a logical way for them to lie to me."

Lord Shiva closed his eyes shut as he said one last time, "For we know deep down that we find it beneath us to lie to mortals."

Silence engulfed the tent and the consciousness space yet again.

This time, no one seemed to be in denial anymore as Felix could feel the atmosphere turning more intense with each second passing.

It was like a collection of volcanoes on the verge of eruption being suppressed.

In the blink of an eye, Thor was the first to allow his burning rage burst out of him as he cursed thunderously, "MOTHERF*CKERS!!"

His drunken playful attitude was nowhere to be seen as his reddened face was twisted in absolute fury.

"They have been treating us like f*cking clowns!" Even the chill Carbuncle found it impossible to stifle his rage.

He just couldn't imagine having every experience in his rich life being watched and judged for someone else's enjoyment.

It was far worse than the champion's games in the SG Alliance as the primogenitors at least told their champions the entire truth and left them to decide whether to take part or not.

But the primogenitors had no choice whatsoever. They were given gifts from nowhere and left to live their lives as they pleased without knowing that each decision made by them was observed.

"That's why we were given the freedom to do as we please without consequences, unlike the Unigins. We are not natural products..." Fenrir said as he tightened his fists until his claws penetrated his palms.

The universe sought a natural balance in its system and it did everything in its power to keep it from breaking.

The primogenitors' existence could be said to be the only thing that broke this perfect balance as they were extraordinarily strong and had no leashes to keep them in check.

Unigins were punished each time they abuse their powers. Dragons were immensely strong but their reproduction wasn't great.

The hive race had both reproduction and strength, but their longevity was too short.

Every single race in this universe, whether they belonged to the primogenitors' family tree or not, was subjected to the balancing of the universe.

Only the primogenitors seemed to have godly powers that could literally bring ends to the universe and yet nothing to hold them back.

This kind of unquestionable freedom was an obvious clue of their unnatural creation as the universe would never give birth to such beings without proper breaks...

"I need a breather." Lady Sphinx stood up from her chair and walked away while massaging her closed-shut eyes.

She neither screamed nor cursed like the others, but her slightly lowered head spoke volumes about how much damage this news had done to her.

Lady Sphinx rarely felt depressed about her meaning of existence since her mind was already occupied with the universe's secrets.

In her eyes, there was just too much to discover to bother moaning about why she was born like the others...But, this didn't mean that he never cared about this.

Now that she found out the truth, it wasn't farfetched to say that it broke her heart...

'Masters...' Felix could only watch his masters with a pained expression, having no idea what to say or do to comfort either of them.

This was just way above his league as nothing he said could make any difference...His masters had already lived their entire lives and some of them even killed themselves because of this damning question.

Now that they finally had gotten it, it sure did more damage than relieving them and completing their lives.

Lord Khoas waited until Lady Sphinx returned to the table and everyone to release some of their anger before asking them, "So, you still want to share this with the others?"

Everyone turned to glare at him but no one responded to his question... They finally realized that the elemental lords made the right decision.

It wasn't because none of them were capable of handling it.

They just felt that it would be much better to be ignorant than to figure out that they were living in a clown world and were the clowns in it.

This was the reaction of dead primogenitors, one could only imagine what would become of the universe if all the primogenitors learned about this...

As for finding out about it billions of years ago? It was actually much worse as it would completely ruin their lives.

"I understand why you sought to erase the universe. When you realize that you are nothing but a pawn on a chessboard, you get presented with three choices...Remain a pawn, ditch the chessboard, or..."

Elder Kraken eyed Lord Shiva as he uttered, "Flip the board and ruin the game for the players."

"Me? Heh, I know that I am seen as a menace by most of you, but even I didn't think about such an insane idea." Lord Shiva chuckled as he noticed everyone's startled looks.

"Whose idea was it?"

"Keep watching." Lord Shiva unpaused his memories and speed up the rest of the elemental lords' reaction to the news.

When it seemed like the atmosphere was cooled down, he slowed the memories and showed the elemental lords to be in the middle of a serious telepathic discussion.

'How can we continue living after this? Anything we do is for naught. What's the point of even living anymore?' Lord Quetzalcoatl seemed to have lost his upbeat lively attitude.

As the life primogenitor, it was really discouraging to see him talking about offing himself. But, it really seemed to everyone that their lives were doomed.

If they decided to hang around, they would do so while knowing that all of their experiences were for someone else's enjoyment...Their pride made it almost impossible for them to accept such a reality.

'Even telling Lord Shiva about our reality is a move from them to spectate our reaction.' Lord Osiris stated expressionlessly, 'They don't care about what we do next as long as it is entertaining.'

'How about we tell everyone about this and end our lives and descendants' lives at the same time? Let's see how fun it will be if the entire universe was turned into a deserted graveyard.'

Lord Loki suggested with no chill whatsoever.

'That seems too extreme, but I love it.' Lord Shiva smiled coldly. It was clear that the rest of the elemental lords seem to be on the same page about this plan.

Elder Kraken said that there were three choices, but in the eyes of the elemental lords, there was only one choice and that was flipping the board!

As for their death and massacring trillions of? They didn't give a sh*t as they knew that all primogenitors would take a part in their plan and have no issues in killing their own descendants.

In their eyes, they brought them to this universe and they had the authority to get them out of it.

However, just as they seemed to start ironing out the details of this plan, Lord Zurvan said with the same kind smile, 'It's not enough...They will just send out the same gifts yet again to other species and restart the game from scratch.'

'You're right...Sh*t.'

'Sigh, I can see that happening.'

'I think we should still go for it.' Lord Shiva asserted, 'It won't be perfect but it will cause them to wait billions of years again before they reach this point.'

'You think they have issues with time?' Lord Zurvan shook his head, 'Even trillions of years means nothing to them.'

"Then, we do nothing?" Lord Loki seemed irritated by this hopeless situation...More than five elemental lords allying against one problem and they still couldn't fix it.

'You guys aren't really flipping the board, you are just removing the pieces from it and they can always put them back on.' With a wide warm kind smile, Lord Zurvan proposed, 'The only way to truly destroy the board is if we destroy the entire universe as we know it.'

Chapter 1274 Truth In Lies, Lies In Truth? Who To Believe? IV

Author Disclaimer: My apologies for not releasing chapters yesterday, my best friend's brother has gotten himself into a horrible motorcycle incident and I had to be there for him. There will be a double release today and tomorrow to make up for yesterday...Thank you for your understanding.

"Lord Zurvan?!"

Felix exclaimed in shock after finding out that the respected and seemingly kind Lord Zurvan was the one who sought the destruction of the universe!

His reaction was shared with most tenants as no one saw this coming. 'Zurvy, I don't believe it for a second that you have become this savage to propose such an insane idea.'

Lord Loki narrowed his eyes. 'Spill it, you must have seen something in the future, right?'

The elemental lords clearly couldn't buy it either as they knew that Lord Zurvan rarely proposed anything as he was just like a boat in an ocean, going with the flow wherever it took him.

Lord Zurvan merely smiled at the judging eyes of his peers and remained quiet, making them understand that he wouldn't be sharing anything with them.

They knew that he had a frightening future vision that enabled him to see through even millions of years ahead of time as long as he remained as a mere spectator.

The moment he shared his information or tried to alter the future, his memories would be erased of everything that he had seen as a new future would be taking shape.

Seeing that grilling Lord Zurvan for information was as useless as always, Lord Loki could only click his tongue and drop the subject.

'Universal destruction...How can we even pull it off?' Lord Osiris shook his head, 'It just seems impossible even if all primogenitors combined their strength!'

Lord Osiris understood that even Unigins would struggle with pulling this off as the universe's size was just too unfathomable.

'Since Lord Zurvan suggested this, it only means there is a way to make it happen.'

Lord Shiva looked at Lord Zurvan and asked, 'So?'

Before Lord Zurvan could answer, Lord Shiva skipped the entire conversation while talking to the tenants, 'It's best to show you straight away what we talked about!'

A second later, the mirror was showing the same gathering of members with the addition of Lord Dune and the creation primogenitor.

They were gathered in the vacuum of space in the middle of nowhere.

The creation primogenitor seemed to be glowing with a white angelic light. Still, his features were distinguishable.

He was a towering figure, standing over ten meters tall, with broad shoulders and a muscular build.

He wore a suit of golden armor that glimmered in the far distant light of stars, adorned with intricate patterns and symbols that spoke of his power and authority.

A red cape hung from his shoulders, affixed in the vacuum of space.

His face was stern and resolute, with a thick brown beard and piercing eyes that seemed to gaze into the soul of whoever he looked upon.

His hair was long and braided, falling in golden strands around his shoulders. He had four sets of green feathery wings on his back, which made him seem even more deity-like than the rest.

'Is everyone ready?' Lord Shiva inquired.

'Let's begin.' Lord Khaos said expressionlessly as he opened a massive void rift in front of them.

As the creation primogenitor, he could create anything that existed in this universe, whether it was physical, energy-based, or spiritual!

When Lord Dune noticed that Lord Shiva had closed his eyes shut and began absorbing somewhat of an invisible black aura from his descendants, he teleported everyone away but Lord Marduk and the descendants.

Since everyone was watching from Lord Shiva's point of view, they had no idea where they went.

"We had to retreat to safety as Lord Shiva was going to cast his ultimate ability and no one is safe from it but his descendants and creation primogenitor." Lord Khaos clarified calmly.

"Why creation primogenitor is safe from it?" Candace murmured to herself, not expecting that Lord Khaos would bother himself to answer it.

"Because he can create destruction immunity on himself."

'Seriously?' Felix was left dazed at his answer.

Each time he hear about the creation primogenitor, he got more convinced that he was really the closest to being considered a true god in this universe.

The fact that he could create even immunities and mostly likely abilities of other elements made him truly an omnipotent being capable of doing everything and anything.

Abruptly, Lord Shiva's body seemed to be shaking like it was about to explode.

His skin cracks were turning brighter and brighter until his entire body disappeared under a halo of blinding light.

Then, he uttered with a flat tone in his mind, 'Totality Collapse!

The moment those two words echoed in his mind, the blinding light went off instantly and what came after it was long invisible cracks seemingly spreading from Lord Shiva as the source.

Those cracks were causing the vacuum of space to collapse at a noticeable speed as all of the invisible forces, energies, matters, and concepts were getting erased in the process!

If even gravity, dark matter, space, and time, weren't able to stop those cracks, there was no need to mention what would happen to planets, stars, meteors, and other cosmic entities!!

"Totality Collapse, one of the most frightening ultimate abilities a primogenitor could even create' Fenrir spoke with a solemn tone.

Even though Felix didn't hear about its details, he already figured out the simplicity of this ability.

'Total destruction...The last and most powerful type of destruction element.' Felix murmured.

Felix possessed abilities with normal destruction, construction, and even concept destruction, but not a single ability was capable of wiping out literally everything.

Unbeknownst to Felix and the tenants, the other elemental lords were having their own conversation.

'How is it looking?' Lord Osiris asked Lord Zurvan. Lord Loki and the others looked at Lord Zurvan with serious expressions, knowing that his answer would decide their fate.

'Sorry guys, it's still not enough.' Lord Zurvan shook his head with an apologetic look.

'Sh*t...How much?' Lord Quetzalcoatl inquired.

'35% give or take?'

'That's really too low.' Lord Dune frowned, 'Is there really no other future?'

'Unfortunately no.' Knowing that Lord Zurvan had no reason to lie to them, the elemental lords could only sigh in disappointment at the notion that their plan was bound to fail.

They knew that Lord Zurvan's future sight was affected by him telling others about it but in this case? There wasn't much to be affected by the future since there were only two endings.

Universal destruction and everyone died in it or partial destruction and they were still alive in it.

'I guess we should pull the plug.' Lord Quetzalcoatl stated, 'It's not worth it or fair to bring destruction upon a portion of the universe, killing everyone in it, and leaving the others untouched.'

The elemental lords might not care about the lives of their subjects, but they weren't mindless slaughters.

In their eyes, the destruction of the whole universe wasn't a fair fate for everyone but it was just as no one would be getting a different result...even them.

But, destroying merely a portion of the universe would neither bother those beings nor solve the primogenitors' issue.

'Lord Shiva, you can stop...It won't be enough to finish everything.' Lord Osiris used the death string connecting them to send the bad news.

Lord Shiva went quiet for a moment before asking with an icy tone, 'Not enough? How much.'

'35%. This number made Lord Shiva's expression turn for the worst.

'I can't...I can't stop, I have invested everything and those f*ckers watched me put my blood and sweat for hundreds of millions of years into this plan.'

Lord Shiva's tone got angrier and colder at the same time, 'I can't stop!'

While the other elemental lords barely invested a thing into this plan, Lord Shiva spent hundreds of millions of years mastering this godly ultimate ability.

In addition, he worked his ass off to create as many offspring as possible for the sake of creating an army of his descendants.

He did all of this while knowing that he was being watched as a mere clown by those beings. Now, he was being told that he needed to stop?

He could already imagine himself being turned into a laughingstock before those beings, who should have already anticipated this ending and still watched him make a fool of himself!

'Lord Shiva, what are you doing? We told you to stop' Lord Osiris hardened his tone.

'I told you, there is no way that's happening!' Lord Shiva said coldly, 'I am going through this even if it meant blowing off my soul to accelerate the process.'

Chapter 1275 Truth In Lies, Lies In Truth? Who To Believe? V (The End)

'Lord Marduk cut off his energy supply! Lord Osiris requested after updating him on the situation.

Lord Marduk did as he was told, making Lord Shiva get even angrier. 'Even you?'

'We can always get new ideas to deal with them.' Lord Marduk said calmly, 'This isn't the solution.'

'Isn't the solution?! It's the only f*cking solution! We can't even touch them if they didn't allow us!' Lord Shiva yelled, 'So, are you in or not?!'

Lord Marduk shook his head and pulled away from Lord Shiva. He neither tried to stop him nor help him, he just let him be.

'Bunch of cowards! I will do it by myself then!' Without an ounce of hesitation, Lord Shiva began absorbing everything there was to be gained from his descendants to boost his ultimate ability.

Before he was planning to just absorb bloodline force as his ultimate ability was too strong it required more than just elemental energy to fuel it.

However, the best thing about it was the fact that it just needed a strong jumpstart and the cracks would continue expanding across the entire universe on their own even if he wasn't alive!

They would be getting their source of energy from everything destroyed in their path!

This was the key to destroying the universe as it would be impossible otherwise when there were millions of light years of distance between galaxies.

Before the elemental lords could even try to talk some sense into him, Lord Shiva warned Lord Osiris and Lord Marduk, 'It's best that you guys stay as far as possible from me. Even your destruction immunity won't save you from what's coming!'

Lord Shiva made them realize that he was hellbent on getting his way after noticing that his soul was getting more chaotic!

'He is really planning to blow his soul to feed his ability!' Lord Quetzalcoatl exclaimed, 'I knew that trusting this lunatic with this was a bad idea!'

'Let's leave.' Lord Osiris said expressionlessly, 'He has made up his mind and there is nothing we can do to stop him.'

They knew that not a single ability used by them could affect Lord Shiva as those cracks would eat away anything they throw at him.

Since Lord Shiva was already on the countdown to blow out his soul, even Lord Marduk would be at risk due to soul implosion affecting not just the physical world but also the spiritual world!

'Just this time...Please be wrong!' With this last wishful thought appearing in Lord Shiva's mind, the mirror showed nothing but a black screen.

Lord Shiva was neither fought nor killed by the elemental lords as it was narrated...His life ended at his own hands in possibly the most selfish and unhinged manner.

“ ... ”

While all of this seemed like a lucid crazy dream, Felix was certain that it was nothing but the truth...The Final Truth.

The eternal Great Void was the evidence left behind to support it...Even an idiot would have connected the dots and realized that the mysterious existence of the Great Void could be explained only by this event.

"You really are something else..."

"Here I thought you deserve the benefits of the doubt." Lord Shiva could be said to have made himself the villain again in the eyes of Felix and the rest of the tenants after his story ended.

It was a wild ride that served nothing but to tell the real truth and not help Lord Shiva look good in the slightest.

All of their judging eyes made him look back at them with the same cold look from the Memories.

"I have no intentions of seeking forgiveness. If I was put in the same situation, I would still do the same even if there was merely 0.00001% of the entire universe collapsing."

"You are really a madman." Asna cursed without an ounce of fear.

As one who harbored the most hatred for those beings, she would have supported Lord Shiva's decision if it actually harmed them.

But, to be told that it was going to fail and still go for it even knowing that it would do nothing but harm mortals, she could never go this far.

"Call me crazy, a lunatic, a madman, unhinged, I have heard them all." Lord Shiva sneered, "But at least I have the guts to attempt to rescue everyone from this clown world and offered my own life to make it happen."

"If those bastards stuck with the plan and even used soul implosions as well, we might have had a much bigger chance to cover at least 65% of the universe."

Lord Shiva glared at Lord Khoas, "The speed of totality collapse might slow down drastically after that, but there is hope that it won't run out of fuel until it cover at least 90% of the universe."

"These are mere baseless speculation and you know it. You want us to ignore a decided future for the sake of one last mad attempt that is definitely not going to work." Lord Khaos shot it down immediately.

"A future told by Lord Zurvan who we have no f*cking clue what is on his mind." Lord Shiva scoffed, "For all we know, all of this is the future that he desired and we are nothing but cogs in his machine."

"Maybe."

Lord Khoas didn't jump to defend Lord Zurvan instantly as he always had his own doubts too. It was just foolish to completely trust the words of someone capable of seeing so far into the future as it was just impossible to figure out his end game.

"But still, I trust that he is on our side."

Not knowing his end game was one thing and not trusting him to be on their side was another.

So, even when Lord Zurvan wasn't fully trustworthy by his peers, they knew that he would never be on the side of those beings.

"Enough of this finger-blaming already...You are making yourselves look bad." Lady Sphinx interjected with an emotionless tone, "What's done is done."

"Fortunately, you guys have chosen the least populated area to start the universal collapse, so not many casualties resulted in Lord Shiva going rogue." Thor mentioned to calm the atmosphere a little.

Don't be mistaken, 20% more or less of the universe getting deleted had caused the death of hundreds of trillions of lives whether intelligent or non-intelligent.

But still, it would have been nowhere close if they went for it in a populated zone.

"I assume you decided to imprison what remained of Lord Shiva's descendants as scapegoats to calm our anger." Elder Kraken informed.

"My descendants as scapegoats?"

Lord Shiva didn't seem too pleased with this kind of information...But at the same time, he understood that the elemental lords had to punish his descendants to sell the story that he went mad with his descendants and this was all of their doing.

If they didn't go this far, questions would be asked that none of them were ready to answer yet.

"I don't care if you will be forced to alter your story, I want my descendants freed right this instant." Lord Shiva demanded.

"Take it up with Lord Marduk."

Not bothering to entertain him any longer, Lord Khaos took off from the meeting and returned to his slumber.

He didn't even bother to request Lady Sphinx and the others to keep the information to themselves.

In his eyes, there were already too many people knowing about this and he had no plans to waste his time monitoring each one to keep it from leaking out.

After his departure, Felix was left staring at Lord Shiva with a complex look. His emotions were really shambled as he had no idea what to think anymore about the situation.

He picked and awakened Lord Shiva for his elemental manipulation even though he knew that he was crazy enough to destroy the universe.

But after finding out that the madman actually pulled it off and wiped out more than 20% of it, he felt like getting his elemental manipulation was the same as taking a bloody knife from a murderer.

Felix also caused billions of lives to be lost indirectly to him, but this was vastly different than going the extra distance to destroy the universe even when he knew that it wasn't going to work.

"What are you looking at?" Lord Shiva stared back at him expressionlessly, "Having doubts on whether it is worth sacrificing your morals for the sake of my elemental manipulation?"

"I..."

"Is this your hope to deal with those beings??" Lord Shiva sneered as he teleported away from the table, "What a bunch of soft amateurs."

Chapter 1276 Stealing Elder Dragon's Royal Gemstone!

It was clear to all that Lord Shiva had gone through Felix's memories while he was showing them his own to understand his reason for being here.

Obviously, he didn't see everything but only the key points related to him.

"Leave him be. Don't take his words to heart. Just because he doesn't use his brain and act as unhinged as he wanted, he expects everyone to be the same." Thor said with an irritated tone.

"Mmmm." Felix nodded in understanding as he kept looking at Lord Shiva's empty chair.

He already knew that getting his elemental manipulation wasn't going to be easy, but he didn't expect it would get this complex.

While both of them seemed to have the same goal, it was clear that Lord Shiva saw no hope in Felix to actually deal with those beings.

Still, this didn't change anything as Felix already knew that he was nowhere near touching those beings.

'I guess I have to prove to him that I deserve his elemental manipulation.'

Felix hadn't even completely accepted Lord Shiva as the news about his genocide was still raw in his mind.

Who knows, he might never accept it as he wasn't as indifferent and cold-blooded to life as primogenitors.

But, for the sake of his goals, Felix wasn't planning on letting this or anything stop him. 'I will get my revenge even if I had to hold hands with the devil himself.' Felix remarked coldly.

A week later...

The situation seemed to have cooled down a bit in the consciousness space as the tenants returned to their daily routines...Though, it was obvious that the primogenitors' mood was still down the gutter.

To not affect her other clones' projects, Lady Sphinx kept the heartbreaking news about her existence on this clone alone.

As for Thor and J?rmungandr? They seemed less reactive and always had deep frowns on their faces as they played chess together nonstop.

Meanwhile, Lord Shiva could be seen chilling with Carbuncle as they smoked cigars and drank alcohol while floating softly on the peaceful consciousness ocean.

Carbuncle was already in depressive mode due to his wife not being with him and was used to numbing it down with those substances...So, this wasn't a new experience for him.

"The atmosphere here is really depressing.' Asna commentated as she sat next to Felix and watched those respected elders resemble walking zombies.

'They just need time and they will eventually adapt to their reality! Felix replied, might never accept it, but they will continue living!'
"They

'True. Asna nodded, 'I guess they have decided to keep the information to themselves.'

'As they should.' Felix knitted his eyebrows,

'Most of the primogenitors are passing their time with the games to get some entertainment. If they ever heard of their f*cked up purpose for existence, some of them will most definitely uproot the entire alliance to vent their anger!'

Felix was all for keeping this kind of damaging information in the shadows. It would really be the biggest irony to have the SGAlliance destroyed the moment he took over its leadership.

'Well, you better get strong enough quick to protect it.' Asna warned, 'I doubt it will remain hidden forever!'

Even if Felix's masters didn't open their mouths, Lord Shiva possessed an AP Bracelet of his own and could access the UVR whenever he desired.

With his unpredictable personality, there was no telling if he would just group up all of his peers and lay the truth on them.

'That's why I'm making my move on Elder Dragon's royal gemstone much sooner than I planned' Felix responded as he switched his focus to his main consciousness.

He could be seen traveling through the void realm at an unprecedented speed towards Icarius Galaxy, the land of the dragons.

Felix planned on waiting a couple of months until Elder Dragon's death wasn't as impactful before making his move on his royal gemstone.

He believed that the royal clans would somewhat drop their guards on protecting it from thievery.

After all, none of them knew that Felix could consume royal gemstones, which translated to him having no need for them.

But now? He had no such luxury. After seven more days on the road, he finally reached the capital planet Zhuham and most specifically, the black dragon clan region.

He had placed a spy on Elder Dragon's royal gemstone and he was updating him with information about its location and the four clans' situation on a daily basis.

"The royal gemstone is kept under the black clan's protection temporarily due to the Elder Dragon belonging to the clan.

Felix thought to himself, 'But, no decision has been made yet on who to accept and absorb the royal gemstone.'

Based on his spy's Intel, the four dragon clans had decided that the new leader would be the one absorbing the royal gemstone as it would help him immensely in his progression.

Unsurprisingly, clan heads Ygos and Azesdirth had the biggest chance of becoming new leaders as they were considered the strongest in their race.

Since the dragons were in desperate need of a strong leader to keep them on a leash, the four clans had no intentions of doing another ceremony to pick from rising youngsters like Anastasia or Chozzus.

'It's been decided that Ygos, Azesdirth, and Bymid are going to be challenging each other two days later in public duels.'

Felix didn't know whether to laugh or feel bad for them at the thought that their reward would be taken by him while they were battling for it.

'Shall we start?' Candace asked after stopping above the royal gemstone. Felix was able to see it through Candace's consciousness link.

The purplish royal gemstone was perched on the pedestal above a polished wood that was positioned in the middle of a dimly lit room.

It was protected with a clear container that was tightly sealed to keep out dust, moisture, and would-be thieves.

The walls were crowded with shelves upon shelves of books, enigmatic antiques, and rare treasures, and the air was thick with the musty smell of old books and antiquated artifacts.

Multiple humanoid dragons were stationed at each corner of the chamber, keeping an eye out for any potential dangers...They seem extremely vigilant and ready to take action at any time despite the room being silent.

'We have to be quick and silent.' Felix spoke with Candace as he beamed an exact replica of Elder Dragon's royal gemstone. As a gemstone elemental, it was extremely easy to create a perfect copy.

Since the royal gemstone was harvested from Elder Dragon while he was in his humanoid form, it was barely thirty centimeters long.

'I am ready when you are.' Candace said with a serious tone.

'Let's go!' Felix gave the order immediately after releasing a wave of green-colored flames from a scroll and pushed it inside a newly opened void rift, making it impossible for the guards to spot the rift!

"What the..." Just as the guards were about to react to this sudden assault, Felix swiftly manifested a massive concept destruction trident that engulfed the entire chamber.

This caused the guards to drop to the ground instantly akin to corpses after being touched by the concept destruction trident!

Not bothering to glance at them, Felix snapped his finger as he uttered in his mind, 'Spatial Displacement.'

A gray hexagon appeared above the fake gemstone and another one above the real royal gemstone.

In the blink of an eye, both gemstones switched their positions without needing Felix to even touch the glass!

Felix didn't take off after getting the royal gemstone as he wanted to completely erase his existence.

He flicked four spherical potions into the mouth of each guard and made them forcefully drink it...Those potent potions were capable of deleting the previous one minute of the target's memories without much of a side effect.

Then, he retracted the containers and uttered again in his mind, 'Construction Cube.'

The blue cube engulfed the entire room and reconstructed everything that was destroyed by Felix. In this case, it was nothing more than the guards' blood!

Felix had forced them into passing out instantly by cutting off the blood from their brains.

Since the entire operation's lifespan was less than a second, before their bodies could actually be in real danger, he reconstructed their bloodstream as before and took off without leaving behind me any trace!

In less than a minute, the four guards began waking up one after the other, feeling somewhat muddled like they had just taken a short nap.

"Did something happen?"

"I don't know..."

"Why do I feel like I am missing something?"

The guards looked at each for a mere second before their hearts skipped a beat...In a swift manner, they all switched their focus in the direction of the royal gemstone.

When they saw that it was there, their unsettling feeling somewhat went away...But as dragons, they trusted their instincts greatly.

So, even when the situation seemed normal and they had no memories of something 'bad' happening, they still decided to check their AP Bracelet recordings.

Look and behold...

The only thing that was recorded in the past minute was sudden green flames appearing from the ceiling before the screens went dark!

"What in the world.."

Chapter 1277 No Evidence = No Case.

The guards gulped a mouthful in agitation after realizing that they had been attacked without a single memory of it happening.

"It must be those green f*ckers! We have to inform the clan head!"

Since the only clue in their possession was green flames, it made them jump straight into accusing their rivals, the green dragon clan.

"The royal gemstone is still here and the alarm hasn't been activated." One of the guards sighed in relief, "They must have retreated after realizing that they won't make it out of here alive."

The glass barrier might seem simple, but those guards knew that it could detect even the faintest touch.

The moment it was touched, it would release a clan-wide alarm, causing everyone to drop whatever they were doing and participate in a strict martial lockdown!

Only the clan head was capable of disabling the alarm as it was linked with Queen Ai and it accepted only his permission.

In addition, the royal gemstone would instantly get pulled into a different sealed shut area, making it impossible to reach it without spatial abilities.

So, the guards had to inform their clan head about this assault so he could allow them to check on the royal gemstone safely.

After the news made it to the clan head's office, it didn't take him even a couple of seconds before appearing inside the chamber with a cold expression.

"Move." He ordered with an icy tone as he walked towards the glass.

Without needing to even touch the gemstone, he knew immediately that it was a fake one as it wasn't releasing even the faintest of Elder Dragon's aura.

Instead of exploding into a raging tirade, he closed his eyes shut and took a deep breath. Then, he turned around to face the guards and ordered with a chilling look, "Tell me exactly what happened."

They narrated the details of the assault, which weren't much in the first place.

This caused clan head Ygos to get even more pissed off as there weren't many clues for them to work with.

"If it's really a green clan scum, find him this instant! He shouldn't have gone far." He ordered with a wave of his hand as he walked outside of the chamber.

While the black dragons were seen flying around the palace with stone-cold expressions, trying to find out the culprit, they had no clue that he was already millions of kilometers away.....

"I doubt that would have worked." Asna commented, "The black lizard isn't an idiot and if he confronted the green lizard, he is bound to find out that he has no relation to the robbery."

It was quite easy for the clan head Azesdirth to make an alibi for all of his people with Queen Ai's involvement...Plus, Queen Ai could back him off if he denied having any relation to the robbery even when Felix tried his best to put it on them.

"I know." Still, Felix didn't seem too bothered by this. He already discerned that it would be impossible to put the blame on the green clan.

'I used the green flames scrolls for one purpose. Felix shared calmly, 'When those clans heads figure out that I am the biggest suspect, I would be able to use the green flames in my favor!'

'I see...Cheeky.' Asna giggled after understanding his end game. Felix had left absolutely no proof behind that connected him to the robbery.

This meant if they came for him, they would be accusing him without a piece of evidence and to make matters worse for them, they would be doing it while they had proof that the green clan had a relation to the robbery!

Unless Felix confessed, they could do nothing to him but continue suspecting him without any result. As expected, after a day went by, Felix was urgently asked to join the ten rulers' assembly.

When he took his chair, he saw the four clan heads standing at the center with not-so-pleased expressions.

Only Kyrsum seemed to be somewhat matching his peers' energy instead of being actually pissed off.

This was understandable as he already accepted his fate of never touching either the leadership position or the royal gemstone.

So, he really didn't give a sh*t if Felix took it or not. "What's the emergency?" Felix asked with a stern tone, "I was forced to interrupt my training."

"As embarrassing as it sounds, Elder Dragon's royal gemstone has been stolen from us." Clan head Bymid shared.

"How can that be possible?" Felix acted surprised, "Who will even be daring enough to steal it?"

"That's what we are here to find." Clan head Ygos said with narrowed eyes.

"Since you came here, it only means that it wasn't an insider job." Queen Alfreda inquired, "Have you made a thorough investigation?"

"We left no corner untouched when it came to our people." Clan head Azesdirth answered as he took a side glance at Felix, "We are certain that it's an outsider job and we believe that the culprit had to be strong enough to handle four royal dragons in less than a second while simultaneously stealing the royal gemstone without touching it."

After he was done speaking, clan head Bymid showed a holographic scene of the royal gemstone chamber.

Then, he narrated what happened to the guards and all of the possible theories for the robbery to be carried out perfectly.

The most logical theory was considering a partnership between a space worm and a void nation citizen.

One had the strength to knock out the royal dragons in less than a second and the other was able to steal the royal gemstone.

When this theory was presented, everyone turned towards Felix as they were smart enough to realize that it was far more believable that he would have carried out the job alone.

"Accusing me? Interesting." Felix narrowed his eyes coldly, "You have three seconds to confirm your accusation and present a piece of evidence. Otherwise, don't waste my time on such nonsense."

The ten rulers turned to look back at the clan heads with looks of anticipation, seemingly wondering if they really had something against Felix.

Too bad, their expectations were high for nothing.

"King Maxwell, no one is accusing you of anything." Clan head Ygos said calmly, "We really believe that one of your void citizens must have gone rogue and hired a space worm to rob us. Elder Dragon's royal gemstone isn't just the dragons' heritage but also the alliance. We really hope that we can join forces to apprehend the culprit."

'So, that's their approach?' Felix chuckled in his mind.

While the clan heads and even the ten rulers had the biggest suspicion of Felix, no one dared to accuse him directly as his current position wasn't to be f*cked with.

It was the same as a citizen accusing his king of stealing his money right in front of him.

His authority was just too threatening for anyone to attempt messing with him without expecting bad consequences.

"I am still displeased with the fact that you are accusing my good people of such a hideous crime just because they were considered evil before. The worst part? Elder Dragon's royal gemstone is useless for my people as it can only be sold for money. My people lived for a hundred million years before you were even born... You think they care about money?"

Felix chided with a stern tone, "But still I will play along and use Queen Ai to investigate every one of them to give you peace of mind,"

"But, when the results come back and I'm proven right, I expect the four of you to send a written apology to all of my citizens...Are we clear?"

'Motherf*cker, of course, you will be this confident when you know that you are the culprit.'

'Bastard!'

'It's really him!'

Clan head Ygos and his peers got peeved but they didn't dare show it in the open.

The ten rulers were really useless in this matter as without evidence, they couldn't back them even if they wanted.

"Send me your response to my email, I have already wasted too much time on this."

Without an ounce of hesitation, Felix teleported away, leaving the three clan heads seething in anger within.

They would have been even more pissed off if they knew that Felix was rushing to continue devouring their precious Elder Dragon's royal gemstone!

'You really are a menace! Asna giggled as she watched her man absorbing the royal gemstone without an ounce of shame.

Chapter 1278 Losing Hatred, Gaining Hatred.

While Felix was spending hours and hours of his time absorbing Elder Dragon's potent royal gemstone, he left one of his clones in the UVR to handle the investigation of his people to get rid of the clan heads off his back once and for all.

With Queen Ai's assistance and the low numbers of void citizens, the process ended in no time and the results were sent to the four clan heads.

It didn't please them one bit.

Alas, they realized that nothing much could be done to Felix anymore unless they managed to somehow find a piece of evidence or he came forth and confessed.

As for making him stand in a trial before Queen Ai and see if she would back him up? They knew that Felix wouldn't agree to it without evidence.

So, this situation ended with them writing apology letters to the void citizens with their hearts burning in anger and resentment.

Sometime later, Felix could be seen logging into the UVR and entering his private training room.

"Let's see how big of an enhancement I will get." He said with a look of anticipation as he massaged his hand while walking towards the testing machine.

He knew that the enhancement wasn't going to be even close to the bloodline replacement, but he could feel that it would be much better than both Devourer and Dragon marks by miles.

As he got in front of the machine, he swiftly whipped out his fist akin to a lightning bolt, smashing the red pad into oblivion!

BOOOOOOOOM!!

The feedback was perfect as the shockwave traveled many kilometers like he just threw a nuke!

Felix retracted his illuminating fist and glanced at the screen. In a short moment, a final number was displayed on it.

808,487 BF!

"Jeez! It boosted your physical strength by a whole 100K BF even at this high level?!" Candace was the first to react with widened eyes.

"Well, the stone is born after absorbing most of the ancient dragons' royal gemstones." Felix replied with a wide satisfied smile.

Knowing that getting just five hundred BF increase at this level was extremely difficult made this result even greater. Felix wasn't having any complaints at all.

'He is now only 200k BF away from the one million line. If Sphinx managed to find a way for him to hit another replacement and he made sure to add more marks on his cultivations, I don't think it will be impossible anymore to become a deity without origin realm.' Thor discussed this with his peers.

'That's a lot of ifs...But, it seems somewhat possible now.' J?rmungandr nodded in agreement.

When Felix was three hundred thousand BF away from the million line, no one bothered entertaining the idea that he could reach it even with another replacement enhancement.

That's because the last one hundred thousand was the same as a thick swamp that wouldn't allow a person to even move their legs an inch.

Elder Dragon had spent an entire month devouring tens of thousands of royal gemstones and he still didn't manage to pull it off naturally.

But now? There was really hope. Though, this hope relied heavily on Lady Sphinx's ability to find a way for Felix to add another primogenitor's bloodline to his 1% human bloodline.

'I already found a couple of methods, but each one had its own risks and sacrifices to pull it off. I am focusing on filtering the best one now.' Lady Sphinx replied calmly.

Since her clones were oblivious to the truth about their existence, they were carrying the experiments as normal.

"That's great to hear... Thor wanted to get happy, but he found out that he just couldn't do it.

It wasn't that he lost faith in Felix or anything, but he just couldn't feel the same way about his enmity with the darkins now that he knew it was the perfect source of entertainment for those beings.

It made him feel like he wasn't fighting for himself, but for the sake of making those beings amused, which was really a massive blow to his pride.

J?rmungandr and also Fenrir started having such thoughts...This was a normal reaction as they were clearly having an existential crisis.

Though, Felix didn't seem to give a sh*t about any of this as his hatred towards the darkins wasn't affected in the slightest.

In fact, it was getting stronger and stronger each day that went by.

Now, he wasn't even fighting for the sake of his masters, but for his own revenge, and nothing was going to make him stop!

Speaking about the darkins, they could be seen gathered in Manananggal's cozy living room in the UVR, discussing Felix's irritating movements.

"We can't catch up to him like this. We have to set up a trap and wait for him to come on his own." Saurous said with an irritated tone.

His reaction was understandable as just when they began to narrow Felix's location in the federation, he picked up his stuff and arrived at Icarius Galaxy in less than two weeks!

Meanwhile, their trip was going to take months!

The moment they decided to embark on the trip, Felix was seen moving to another location again at an incalculable speed. This really was about to drive them insane.

"The trial exploration run is going to happen in less than two months." Wendigo suggested with a cold tone, "He is most definitely going to attend it with the rest of the ten rulers and inner circle alliance leaders."

"His current direction does point to the great void." Manananggal mentioned.

"The only issue is that the area is going to be crowded." Wendigo said.

"That's not an issue, that's a bonus." Manananggal said with a faint creepy smile.

Without much discussion, the decision had been made.

"Saurous, contact Lord Dune and offer him another trade to create a wormhole directly to the great void." Wendigo said with an icy smirk, "Manananggal has to be there much earlier to welcome him."

"As for us? It's time that we take our leave."

While they finished plotting one of the most sinister assassination attempts, Felix could be seen traveling in the void realm towards the great void, oblivious that he was heading in direction of his damnation...

One Month Later...

As Felix exited from the void rift with Nimo on his shoulder, he came across an isolated planet unlike any other.

From space, it looked like a swirling mass of blues, purples, and pinks, with clouds of glittering gas and a faint aurora dancing in the sky.

This was considered the last discovered planet that was the closest to the great void.

Worthy of its title, Felix looked behind it and the only thing that came into his line of sight was pitch darkness.

There wasn't a single star in front of him even when he zoomed to the limit of his vision.

'Happy to see your end results?' Thor snickered at Lord Shiva, who was seen chilling in isolation.

Lord Shiva merely gave him the middle finger with all of his four hands without bothering to even glance at him.

'Tsk! Thor clicked his tongue in vexation and focused back on Felix who seemed to be casting a spatial spell.

In less than a second, Felix's body looked like nothing happened to it but at the same time, it went through a drastic change.

'You used spatial imprisonment on yourself again?' Asna wondered, 'Isn't better to use concept destruction trident.'

"The trident consumes too much of my energy and it won't be worth it as a mere precaution. Felix replied as he cast a levitation spell on himself and descended into the planet.

Felix had no clue if he would be targeted by his enemies during this gathering, but he was smart enough to use some defensive measures for extra safety.

After all, the location and the time had been published months ago, which he knew was the perfect recipe for disaster.

Although he understood that Lord Khoas should be scaring the darkins into not making a move on him, he wasn't foolish to put his safety on hopes and prayers.

The death of his people taught him the hard way to always think ten steps ahead when dealing with the darkins.

In fact, if he wasn't the grand supreme and his presence was a must during the trial run, he wouldn't have even bothered to come here.

As Felix made entry inside the planet, he noticed that the atmosphere was thick and hazy, making it difficult to see more than a few meters in front of him.

Still, he continued on his journey as he was flying in the direction of the location given to him by the ten rulers.

In a few minutes at best, he arrived at a gigantic illuminated glass dome that seemed like a beacon inside a foggy ocean.

This was Xalaxar City, a property owned by the alliance collectively and was habituated by only permitted individuals.

This was the gathering location for the ten rulers, inner circle leaders, outer circle leaders, and other important figures in the alliance.

After Felix entered the city without much of an issue, he flew towards the center plaza, where the alliance headquarters was situated.

On his way there, he noticed that the city was heavily guarded by the strongest fighters in the entire alliance!!

There were even royal dragons, and knight guards patrolling the city.

This was understandable when most of the authoritative figures in the alliance were gathered in one location.

'You finally arrived, brat..Hmmm?'

Chapter 1279 Extra, Extra, Cautious.

As Felix was heading toward the central plaza, he had no idea that he was being watched by a werewolf in a guard's outfit.

This was none other than Manananggal, using his perfect control over blood to recreate the perfect disguise for his assassination!

He knew that if he used his appearance, Lord Khoas would have already busted him and gotten rid of him before he could even step foot in the city.

Meanwhile, Saurous and Wendigo were watching all of this through a consciousness link mirror as the real Manananggal was with them.

They had already crossed the great void and settled on the nearest planet to them to focus on carrying the mission first.

'This little sh*t is really something else. Saurous cursed after noticing that Felix was using a spatial ability to keep him in a different dimension.

'He hadn't reached this far without being extremely cautious of his safety. Wendigo narrowed his eyes.

'What's the move now? You can't use your blood abilities or even your spiritual pressure.

Saurous asked, knowing that being in a different dimension isolated Felix completely from them.

Manananggal could use his spiritual pressure, but its prowess would be lowered significantly before reaching Felix...By then, he might survive it.

'We wait, he has no idea that we are here, he is just being extra cautious and guarded.' Manananggal spoke calmly, 'The exploration trial here will take weeks if not more and he has to be here to supervise it personally!

'I guess this is really the only way left! Saurous agreed.

He knew that Felix's spatial spells needed fuel to sustain them.

Since the spatial imprisonment locked him in a different dimension, he wouldn't be able to absorb spatial elemental energy to recharge his tank.

This meant that he was bound to exit the dimensional lockdown eventually for a quick recharge.

That's their chance to attack!

"Don't let go of your murderous intent and evil thoughts during this period. There is a high chance he has inherited Lord Shiva's evil vision." Wendigo reminded with a solemn tone.

"I know."

Manananggal was an extremely calm and composed individual compared to even the primogenitors.

So, even when he was burning with hatred and anger just like his peers, he was able to make it disappear with a single finger snap.

When Felix passed by Manananggal's disguise, he didn't pick an ounce of threat from him.

But, the same couldn't be said about the entity on his shoulder.

'Hehehe, this is interesting.' Nimo's alter ego crackled with a creepy smile.

As the master of seven sins and evil in general, no matter how much Manananggal was good at hiding his bad intentions, they could never escape Nimo's alter ego's awakened senses.

He didn't need his eyes to see the evil aura as he could smell it and feel it suppressed inside of Manananggal the moment Felix passed by him.

Since he could sense other people's levels of desires, he recognized that the werewolf was a mere disguise of a much, much stronger entity.

Everything could lie but The Pride Sin!

'It's finally my chance to reclaim my identity after putting up with this bastard's torture for the past months.'

Nimo's alter ego didn't seem like he had any plan of warning Felix about such danger.

He would be foolish to do so when he knew that such opportunities were impossible to occur twice.

He thought about merging with Nimo so many times before just to save himself from the humiliation of seeing his sacred body getting treated like a fluffy pet by Felix.

But, he fought against the urge over and over again... Now, he was rewarded at last.

Unfortunately, he waited and waited, and nothing seemed to happen as the werewolf completely ignored Felix's existence.

'I guess he is waiting for the spatial spell to be removed.' Nimo's alter ego reasoned. 'Fine, I have already waited a long time, this is nothing!'

Unbeknownst to his alter ego's thoughts, Nimo kept looking around him with a curious expression...His alter ego was capable of hearing Nimo's thoughts, but he couldn't do the same since he was much, much more powerful than him.

He was the awakened version of him after all.

"You have arrived early, that's quite unexpected of you." Queen Allura giggled as she walked in the direction of Felix after she met him on the headquarters' ground floor.

"You really have a bad misconception of me." Felix acted like he was wronged.

"Do I? Hmm, why does something feel off about you?" Queen Allura switched her tone after noticing a weird white line outlining his skin and clothes.

When she looked at it a bit more, she recognized it immediately as Felix had used it before in one of his battles.

"Is this spatial imprisonment?" She raised an eyebrow in surprise.

"Yes."

"Why are you using it? And even on yourself?"

"It's nothing, I am just being extra safe." Felix smiled.

The moment she heard this, Queen Allura's expression turned solemn as she asked telepathically, 'Do you think that someone is going to attack you or the gathering?'

She knew that if even Felix had to be extra safe and lock himself in a different dimension, then the enemy wasn't to be f*cked with!

"Don't worry, it's really nothing. I am just indulging in a bit of my paranoia, no need to spread it to others too." Felix comforted her.

"If you are so sure..." Queen Allura still had some doubts about this, but since Felix was insisting that nothing was wrong, then she could only trust him.

"I will wait for you above, the others should already be waiting for us." Felix changed the subject by flying into the ceiling, knowing that he could go through walls and such akin to a ghost.

As he said, most of the ten rulers and inner circle leaders were already sitting on their seats in a massive hall that resembled a parliament auditorium.

When Felix popped up from the ground, it sure caused everyone to quieten down and stare at him speechlessly.

Felix ignored their looks and went to stand on his seat, unable to even sit properly in his current condition.

Just as Queen Alfreda was about to open her mouth and ask what was on everyone's mind, Felix uttered with a stern tone, "I don't want to hear a single word about my condition. Anyone who brought it out will join me."

“ ... ”

“ ... ”

“ ... ”

Well, that did the trick as no one dared to open their mouth anymore and were forced to take their discussion telepathically...Felix was just that much scarier than Elder Dragon.

"Cough, I know that we set the schedule for the trial run in another month, but since most of the ten rulers and inner circle are here, I suggest we push forward the schedule to the next week."

Emperor Lokhil proposed to change the subject.

"I concur."

"Me too."

"Likewise."

One by one, the inner circle leaders began agreeing to the proposal as everyone had things to do in their territories and they didn't want to wait an entire month for late arrivals.

The only reason the first schedule was placed was for the sake of Felix and the other ten rulers to make it in time as their attendance was the most important.

"I agree."

After Felix voiced his agreement as well, the votes came flying in much faster until the decision had the majority of votes even when the absent votes were counted as opposition.

"It's been decided, the trial run will be occurring next week, make the announcement."

After staying behind for a couple of hours to listen to more decisions being made about the trial run, Felix decided to end his day early.

Even though he departed, the assembly still carried on without interruption.

He might be considered the grand supreme and even had two votes, but he was still not the alliance's leader and many decisions could be had without his attendance.

After Felix exited the hall, he didn't even bother going to his personal palace in the city.

He requested Candace to open a void rift and he jumped inside her aircraft..Then, she closed the void rift.

“ ... ”

“ ... ”

“ ... ”

When Mannanngal, Saurous, and Wendigo saw this from a distance, they were left with no words to describe their current emotions.

Only now did it click in their minds that when Felix did something, he made sure that it would be as perfect as possible.

In this case, he never had plans of recovering his lost spatial energy in the real world where he could do it under the safety of the void realm!

"This f*cking brat is making this harder than it is!!"

Chapter 1280 The Trial Run! I

After a couple of days, the darkins were forced to change their approach as Felix never made a single mistake in weakening his defenses.

He didn't even bother logging in to the UVR and just spent most of the days in the void realm, meditating and hanging out with the tenants in his mind.

'Let's brainstorm, I refuse to get outsmarted by a brat!' Saurous said with an irked tone.

'As long as he maintains this level of cautiousness, it will be really hard to take him down with our original plan. Wendigo suggested, 'We have to think outside of the box.'

In other words, a simple assassination method was no longer working on Felix and they had to come up with something clever to get his head.

After spending a few minutes thinking in silence, Mannanangal touched his chin thoughtfully before proposing, 'Since it's hopeless to kill him here, how about we take him down after he reaches the other side?'

'Hmmm, but won't we lose his location if we did this and be forced to keep chasing him around again?'

'It will be different. Manananggal smiled, "This time we will make sure to be with him wherever he goes.'

'Don't tell me you are planning on bugging his spaceship with a blood drop of yours?' Wendigo raised an eyebrow in surprise at his devious strategy.

He knew that this had a 100% chance of it succeeding unless Felix had no interest in going to the other side!

After all, he was bound to beam his spaceship from his spatial card to use the wormhole connecting them to the other side.

He just couldn't reach there by traveling the void realm without wasting years if not more... It was one thing to use the void realm alone and another to mix it up with wormholes.

'The boy is cautious alright, but he can't be that cautious to pick wasting multiple years without UVR and in utter loneliness when there is a much simpler choice.' Saurous snickered.

He was right, Felix never had the thought of crossing the other side by using just the void realm...He would have done it long ago if he was that desperate to reach it.

'But wait, I have seen his spaceship. It's one of the greatest models available and he even customized it with the most expensive systems. Wendigo frowned, 'I am fairly certain that even a blood drop of yours will get picked up by its scanning system as a foreign object and get either deleted or reported.'

Since Manananggal required some time to recreate his body from a mere blood drop, this implied that he would get either destroyed instantly or kicked out by the spaceship before he could even meet Felix.

'That's indeed an issue. Saurous nodded.

Manananggal chuckled as he showed them a holographic image of a blood drop, "It would have been a problem if we didn't have this."

"Haha! How did I even forget about this?"

Saurous and Wendigo laughed simultaneously with a gleeful look as they eyed the spinning blood drop.

It was none other than Felix's copied blood drop traded to them by Lord Loki!

In the hands of others, it was nothing but a useless drop of blood...But in the hands of the god of blood?

He could use it to copy Felix's DNA and bug his spaceship with his blood drop. This would fool even Queen Ai since it would recognize the blood drop as if it belonged to Felix!

Obviously, he wouldn't be able to use any of Felix's abilities and such. He was merely capable of creating a substanceless imitation. But, it was more than enough to do the trick.

"This all sounds good and all, but what if the prick left entering the other side until later?" Saurous knitted his eyebrows, 'If he left this place from the void realm after the trial run, we are f*cked.'

'He won't leave. Wendigo assured him with a confident tone, 'He is now considered the spearhead of the alliance and he made a promise in his coronation speech that he would be leading the alliance's exploration. This means if the trial run succeeded, he will be forced to stay behind with everyone and prepare for the real exploration quest.'

'That's good to hear, I guess the only way for our plan to go south is the failure of the trial run. Saurous smiled coldly.

He understood that the odds of it happening were extremely low as the metal race researchers never put a device on a live trial run unless there was 99% of it working as intended!

Time went by and before long the day of the trial run had arrived.

The ten rulers, inner circle leaders, and other attending figures had all taken off toward the decided location in their spaceships.

Only Felix traveled through the void realm and reached the location almost instantaneously.

It was hundreds of thousands of kilometers in the middle of nowhere while leaving the cloudy planet way on the back.

In a few minutes at best, spaceships started gathering near Felix, creating a stacked lineup that was pointing directly into the empty great void.

Felix joined Queen Allura's spaceship cockpit and watched a spaceship shaped like a giant bird with enormous wings that extended far beyond its body, giving it the appearance of a majestic Phoenix taking flight.

Yet, the most unique part about it was a giant silver cube that was placed on top of it... It had somewhat of a camera lens on the surface facing the great void.

This was the device that everyone's hopes were placed on.

"Everyone ready?" Felix asked calmly as he glanced at tens of holographic screens behind the cockpit's window...Each one was showing the face of a race leader.

When Felix saw everyone nodding their heads with solemn expressions, he turned his focus to the exploration spaceship and permitted, "Pioneers, you may begin."

The moment the order was voiced, the exploration crew started the device under the eyes of the entire alliance as this event was publicly streamed.

The cubic device neither spanned nor did any drastic movement...It just unlocked the camera lens that resembled a living eye.

Then, the data was sent back to the crewmates and the leaders on holographic screens.

It was instant feedback of billions of mesmerizing illuminating galaxies appearing like a colorful flower field in a paradise.

While the image was breathtaking, no one really reacted weirdly to it as all of their advanced telescopes were capable of the same feat.

"Start zooming in." Felix ordered.

The camera lens started getting narrower and narrower until it turned into a single dot...While it was doing this, the live feed on the screen changed from billions of galaxies into a single one.

"Continue." Felix ordered with a solemn look.

Now, it was the moment of truth...The real test for the device!

The living eye kept turning smaller and smaller until it was barely one millimeter long. Everyone glued their eyes on the screens and waited with held breaths in anticipation.

After a couple of seconds that seemed like an eternity, the screens finally displayed a high-definition live feed of an actual star and multiple unique planets orbiting it!

Clap Clap Clap!!!...WOAAH!!!!

Without a single word uttered, everyone spectating the stream began cheering with excited reddened cheeks as they had just found a hidden treasure!

"We did it. Give me a high five." Queen Allura laughed with an upbeat pitch as she placed her hand in front of Felix's face.

"It's not over yet. You know I can't touch you in this condition." Felix smiled as he pulled away a little from her hand, knowing that it wouldn't end well for her if she touched him while he was in spatial imprisonment.

"I know 3D modeling is left, but this is already enough to help us create a fairly exact wormhole to that solar system." Queen Allura replied.

"It's best to be accurate in these situations."

"He is right." High Chieftain Lokaka nodded, "It's not the time for celebration yet as without the 3D modeling, the wormhole can be opened directly in front of the star."

It was obvious that this was a bad exit point as it might end up killing everyone on board the spaceship.

"Create the solar system 3D model." Felix ordered after the celebration dialed down a bit.

The device started doing its magic as it kept taking all the data about the entire solar system from the planets' positions, sizes, light reflection, the distance between them and their star...etc.

In a mere few seconds, Queen Ai's godly computing power managed to manifest a perfectly minimized 3D hologram of the solar system that reflected the real thing!!

It even had the real distances, sizes, and all of those numbers written on lines on the hologram!!

"Now. we are talking." Felix finally cracked a pleased smile.

His delight was shared by everyone watching as they understood that the space worms would be able to pick the exact location of their exit point now without needing to even be there!!

"Where do you want us to exit, my king??" The exploration crew captain asked.

He was an imitator taking the form of a space worm allowing him to use their spatial manipulation just like them.

"Near the third planet." Felix shared with a nostalgic smile as he eyed the third planet that resembled Earth a big deal if it wasn't for its oceans being redder than blood.

"On it!!"