

Supremacy 1291

Chapter 1291 Return Of The Samurai

After the commander exited the meeting room and closed the door behind him, the Luminaris still seemed sorrowful.

"Are you thinking about them?" Luminari elder Hognora asked with a bitter smile as he eyed Jakrka.

"Sigh..." Jakrka merely gave him a somber look before he closed his eyes.

Memories of the horror his city went through kept flashing in his mind, making it impossible for his heart to remain settled.

He lost all of his family members to the demons' invasion, from his wife to his two children.

As the man of the family, he was already ashamed that he was one of the few Luminaris that managed to avoid the demons' clutches.

But he was still hanging on by a thin string of hope that his family might not be dead yet even when they were kidnapped by the demons.

"Do you think we should request help from these people?" One of the Luminaris suggested with a soft tone.

"It's best to not get them involved in our mess...They already helped us a lot." Jakrka shook his head.

He desperately wanted to ask for a favor and his pride wasn't the one holding him back...He just felt that it was beyond ungrateful to put this impossible mission on his savior's back.

Even the Luminaris' royal family wouldn't help them out since no one dared to get close to the Netherlings' territory due to the potency of evil energy being off the roof.

In other words, the moment people get taken by demons to their territory, their fate was sealed to be either demonized or killed.

Unbeknownst to them, the meeting room was equipped with security cameras and microphones, allowing Felix and the others to hear everything they said.

"What do you think?" Queen Allura asked as she eyed Felix.

"If we want to have this planet under our grasp, we have to get rid of the Netherlings one way or another." Felix replied calmly, "Tell them what they want to hear and extract every piece of information from them."

From all the information in his pocket at the moment, Felix had concluded that demons could never coexist with the alliance.

It wasn't because they were evil but just because their fight against evil energy corruption would make it impossible for them to just sit tight and play friends.

It was in their instinct to devour whatever was pure to keep their rationality intact, which meant they were hard-wired to be enemies with anything that wasn't corrupted.

In other words, Felix had absolutely no intention of befriending or allying with a single demon and planned to eradicate them from existence at first glance!

A couple of hours later...

Felix could be seen docking his spaceship inside the eleventh Gamma Mothership.

All of the planets in this solar system had been found to be either inhabitable or utterly void of life besides Netherland and Gorrana.

Since Gorrana had already been conquered, there was no point in staying near it.

After Felix entered the Mothership, he was escorted to Commander Nethrael's commanding room, which was the cockpit.

"Grand Supreme." Commander Nethrael gave a formal army greeting with his crewmates to Felix the moment he stepped inside the cockpit.

"At ease." Felix sat on the first empty chair in his sight and said, "How far have you gone with the preparation?"

"We are ready to start. We have located all dungeons where the demons hold the captives." Commander Nethrael said as he displayed multiple holographic screens before Felix.

Each screen was showing a massive labyrinth-like underground dungeon mapped out using torches or whatever sources of light were inside of it.

The best giveaway was the humanoid infrared auras of thousands of people hurdled up in small cramped cells.

Those dungeons weren't really situated all under the demonic city but across the entire Netherlings' region.

"What's the plan?" Felix asked.

"First, we will send one-star fleets to each dungeon that's outside of the city. They will remain hidden in the sky above them while our main force will airstrike the city. When we finish with them, we can free the captives without worrying about reinforcements." Commander Nethrael shared his strategy.

"How about the captives under the city? Won't they get affected massively by the airstrike?" Felix inquired.

"We are planning on sending down an elite task force that is able to free those captives and bring them back to safety in the least amount of time." Commander Nethrael ensured, "We will start our airstrike only after they manage to rescue the captives."

"Good." Felix approved.

In the past hours, Jakrka and his people laid out everything on the table for the alliance after hearing that they are planning on taking down the demons with or without their information.

This made them over the moon as they were finally presented with real hope of saving their families.

Albeit skeptical about how they would do it, Jakrka still put his trust in them and told them everything he knew about the Netherlings.

As Felix anticipated, children of ages lower than ten were treated as premium goods by the demons while children under five were seen as products for only the Netherlings' King.

Since evil energy had no respect for the demons' rules and laws, the demons used the most hideous and traumatizing method to keep their captives safe from evil energy.

Speaking about the devil, a crewmate swiftly forwarded a new holographic screen as he reported, "Commander, we have detected a new demonic caravan!"

Felix's eyelids turned cold the moment he spotted a long dusty caravan that consisted of humanoid long-horned demons and disgustingly looking monsters dragging behind them massive metallic wagons.

The wagons resembled movable prison cells as it was possible to see through the bars. Unlike anyone's expectations, there was not a Luminari seen inside those cells.

Just a bunch of coffins stacked up one above the other. If one looked closely, he would realize that those coffins were made out of the same material as the demonic statue!

Flesh, bones, and organs blended up together until they became solid material.

What made Felix's blood boil was the sight of small coffins no bigger than half a meter.

He knew exactly that alive kids and even toddlers were kept in those disgusting and absolutely horrendous coffins...

Felix could accept many sh*tty things, but when it came to innocent children no older than ten years or even five years?

He just could not stand still and watch them go through this hellish experience even if they were from another race.

"Their path is leading to the demons' city. I think it's best to deal with them before they reach it as they might end up in the crossfire." Felix suggested with a cold tone.

"My thoughts exactly." Commander Nethrael nodded.

Without further ado, the commander gave out the order to the nearest fleet to the caravan.

As the sun began to set over the barren wasteland, the caravan emerged from the rocky terrain.

The demons leading it had their eyes glow with an eerie shade of red as they made their way toward the distant demon city on the horizon.

The demons were unlike any others that had been seen before. They were tall and lean, with sharp, angular features and long, sinewy limbs.

Their skin was a deep shade of obsidian, and it shimmered in the fading light as if it were covered in a layer of fine dust.

Each of the demons was adorned with intricate jewelry made from precious metals and gems.

The caravan was led by a powerful demon, his imposing figure looming over the others. He wore a crown made from polished bone, and his eyes burned with fierce intelligence.

Behind him, the other demons marched in perfect formation, their movements synchronized and precise.

"Hehehe, we will be getting paid handsomely by King Akshan after he sees the number of premium goods in our possession." Beleth said with a devilish wide grin as he stared at his captain.

His language was miles different than Luminaris or any other language as it resembled two metallic objects clacking with each other most of the time.

"I am getting hungry just thinking about it." One of the demons near him licked his lips while his body shivered in pure ecstasy.

"Don't let your guard down, the other f*ckers will definitely attempt to steal our goods and we will be left with nothing to show off." Demon Captain Tchort warned with a cold tone.

While Captain Tchort had his own rank and own lesser demons signing a soul contract with him, he was still considered one of the many followers of the King of the Netherlings, Akshan.

This implied that all of his squad was under the authority of King Akshan even if those lesser demons hadn't signed a direct soul contract with him.

Because of this diversion, there wasn't really any iron-clad friendship or loyalty between demon captains under King Akshan.

In other words, they wouldn't hesitate to take their stuff and leave them dead on the road, waiting to get revived by evil energy.

King Akshan wouldn't punish either party as long as he got his food delivered to him.

"You are worrying too much captain, hehe, we found those products hiding underground tower by chance and no one knows about them but us...How can they f..."

Slice!

Before Beleth could finish his sentence, the words were cut off his throat as his head was suddenly decapitated before anyone could react...

Thud!

The severed head flew a couple of meters in the air before landing on the road.

The speeding Caravan left it behind while the nearby demons were seen staring at the headless corpse of Beleth with stunned looks.

Slice Slice Slice!..

Alas, before this scene could register in their minds, other demons' heads began flying in the air across the entire caravan without an ounce of resistance!

Clingg!!

The only one who managed to escape the assassination was Captain Tchort as he instinctively placed his polarizing claws right in front of his neck, which resulted in sparks flying over instead of his head!

"Not bad..."

A humanoid feathery white owl suddenly appeared as silent as the wind above the ceiling of the captain's wagon.

He was wearing a tight white spacesuit and a helmet that resembled a kabuto.

He was carrying a long breathtaking but dangerously looking katana. His entire attire made him resemble the ancient Japanese samurai.

The katana was placed near his waist, allowing the disgusting demon's blood to drop from the tip.

"Who are you?!!" Demon Captain Tchort yelled furiously as he raised his guard to the limit.

"Me???"

The humanoid owl seemed to have understood him perfectly...He lifted his katana and pointed it at Demon Captain Tchort...Then, he uttered with an icy tone, "I am your Executioner."

Chapter 1292 He Is Dead For Real!

"Isn't that the Exonian you fought against in your maze's game?" Asna remarked with a surprised tone.

'He sure is.' Felix was just as taken back.

He didn't think for a second that he would be meeting The Executioner on this mission!

But, at the same time, he didn't find it too hard to believe as he understood that only the elites of the alliance were allowed to join this conquest mission!

Felix had a strong feeling that many other familiar faces he fought must have decided to join this mission as well.

After all, there was more than 30% of the universe unclaimed by the alliance...This was a massive opportunity for strong and lucky ones to get a piece of this new pie.

The risk was just as big as in the games but the rewards were incomparable, which would definitely cause many players to change their path.

'For him to cut the heads of hundreds of demons in less than a few seconds...He really became much deadlier and quicker than before.' Felix uttered with a faint smile.

Meanwhile, the demon captain Tchort was left with a confused expression after hearing gibberish coming out of The Executioner's mouth.

However, before he could bother to think too much about the meaning, hundreds of sleek aircraft removed their invisibility system and appeared right in front and above the Caravan.

This caused all the remaining demons to stare at them with mouths wide open in utter disbelief and shock.

"When did the Luminaris get their hands on such fine clean metal birds?!"

"Losing focus while in front of me? Foolish mistake."

By the time the last word entered the demon captain Tchort's ears, The Executioner was already putting his katana in his sheath in a seemingly slow fashion.

Click...

The instant the katana fully disappeared into the sheath, demon Captain Tchort's body had hundreds of lines appearing on it.

Pssssssssssss!!!!

A split second later, he was cut into multiple pieces akin to a fruit while his blood literally exploded out of his body.

He didn't even utter a single word before his sliced-apart corpse fell from the wagon and into the ground.

"Finish off the rest and rescue the captives before those demons get revived." The Executioner ordered calmly while disappearing into the wind.

"Yes, captain!"

In less than a few minutes, all the wagons on the caravan have been destroyed and left on the road with ruined corpses of lesser and animalistic demons...

Meanwhile, all of the coffins had been taken away.

Argh...

Abruptly, Demon Captain Tchort's groaned in pain after his body completed reconstruction from his head as the base.

When he looked around him and saw the mayhem left behind, his mind just couldn't process it properly.

"What did just happen..." Demon Captain Tchort mumbled as he recalled The Executioner's frightening prowess and the fleet of metal birds surrounding him.

It was understandable that he was in a state of shock as he managed to realize that he was neither ambushed by Luminaris or Demons.

He was so certain as he had never seen a Luminaris capable of taking down a captain-rank demon this quickly without using an ounce of light element.

"Captain! The captives are gone!! They are gone!!" Beleth screamed with an aghast expression the moment he was revived.

He didn't even bother to think for a second about the ambush as the only thing on his mind was eating purities.

Now that they had lost the captives, he knew that his weekly share of purities was going to be merely standard to ensure his rationality from going away.

"We got a much more serious sh*t to handle." Demon Captain Tchort scolded before using the demon contract between him and King Akshan to communicate.

'My king! My people have been ambushed by an unfamiliar strong race! I think our planet has been invad...'

'Motherf*cker! Get your ass back to the capital quickly! We are being invaded by them as we speak!' King Akshan cursed him off before cutting off the connection.

BOOOOOOOOOM!!

Just as he was about to react, Demon Captain Tchort picked up the noise of a thundering explosion coming from the city's direction.

When he turned his head to face the city's direction, his demonic red eyes widened to the limit at the sight of a long thin white beam from the sky connecting with a massive blinding dome.

One by one the demons remained staring at the white dome with similar horrified expressions the moment they were revived.

None of them knew what was that beam of light, but their instincts screamed at them to get the f*ck away from it if they value their lives.

"Captain...Can..Can we not return to the city so soon." Beleth gulped a mouthful in fear.

"We received an order to return. You know the rules."

As much as Demon Captain Tchort wanted desperately to listen to his instincts, King Akshan's order made it impossible.

Just as he was about to take his first step, his body suddenly shivered, making him halt in his place right away.

He knew immediately what caused this shiver and yet he couldn't believe it no matter what.

"Impossible...Impossible! How can he drop dead for real?!" He yelled out loud akin to a madman in front of his squad.

"Captain, what happened?" Beleth asked with a distressed tone.

He wasn't really worried about his captain but more about himself since his life depended on his captain's condition.

"King Akshan...King Akshan is dead." Demon Captain Tchort shared with a faint mumble like he wasn't physically capable of saying it.

"Huh? After that demonic explosion, it's doubtful for anyone to survive it." Beleth was confused, "Though, he will get revived after evil energy regathers itself."

"You don't get it..." Demon Captain Tchort looked at him with a never seen before level of terror in his eyes, "Our soul contract was severed. He is dead for real!"

The moment the last statement entered everyone's ears, a deathly silence fell in the area as everyone was left staring at their captain with a look of utter disbelief.

"??..."??

"??..."??

"??..."??

They wanted to call him a liar and bullsh*ter but they knew that their captain wouldn't be joking around in such a critical situation.

But at the same time, it was just too hard for them to believe that their demon king of more than hundred thousand years had dropped dead this easily.

Unbeknownst to them, the enemies they were facing were nothing like Luminaris or any other race they met.

This was just the beginning of The Conquest...

Chapter 1293 A Cowardly Queen?

"Target has been eliminated." Commander Nethrael announced calmly as he watched a mushroom cloud rising up to the sky.

It was so massive, it covered the entire demon city and outside of its walls, making it impossible to see the extent of the damage.

'I doubt any demon will be able to resurrect after this.' Asna remarked.

'Likewise.' Felix nodded with a solemn tone.

He was certain that even the Netherling King should have dropped dead for real since the nuke dropped on them had utterly wiped out hundreds of kilometers of surface area!

This was more than enough to erase whatever evil energy was in the vicinity.

Since demons' resurrections occur only when they had a link to nearby evil energy, cutting off their connection in such a forceful manner made it impossible for them to resurrect.

Unless there was another method of resurrection they had no clue about.

"Are the captives good?" Queen Allura asked.

"All of them must have been put into long slumbers as we are still unable to wake them up after breaking the coffins."

Commander Nethrael reported his findings.

Before the city was blown out, his elite task force consisting of strong fighters and battle space worms managed to hit all of the dungeons under the city and rescue the captives in less than ten seconds.

With the space worm's spatial portals, it was a light work mission...The other fleets also got into action and rescued the other captives around the demon territory.

"Since they are considered as nothing but stored food, they must have been put in comas to limit their energy consumption and in turn limit the required nutrition." Queen Allura ordered, "Start them on new diets and wait for them to wake up naturally to void any system shocks."

"Understood." Commander Nethrael nodded and forwarded the order to his subordinates.

"I honestly didn't think the demons will be this easy to handle." Emperor Lokhil grinned, "It's really easy to lose track of how strong the alliance's weaponry systems."

"Let's not get too cocky." Queen Alfrada said calmly, "The Netherlings are a mere bunch of rogue demons situated at the edge of their universe. They might not match us in technological advancements but this didn't mean that other demons are the same."

"She is right." Minister Aquiris supported with a stoic tone, "If demons lack in technology, they must have something just as better to help them conquer the other side and have seven demon realms in it."

The alliance's technology was obviously on a different level due to the metal race involvement...But, this didn't mean that other races would be nothing without them.

"Should we begin with eliminating the remaining demons around the planet?" Commander Nethrael requested permission.

"It will be difficult without nuke-level power or individuals capable of interdimensional abilities." Felix responded.

Felix didn't want to turn the planet into a wasteland more than it was by using mass destruction weapons for each small patch of demons...That was just madly inefficient.

"So, what do you suggest?"

"Leave them be for now." Felix said calmly, "We have already eliminated more than 80% of demons on this planet and even their king. As long as we gather all Luminaris in their capital city and protect them, those demons will be forced to group up and launch an invasion on the capital to feed on their purities. Then, we can nuke them before that happens."

With just a bit of information about demons and Felix was already finding their weaknesses left and right.

The fact that demons' greatest nightmare was associated with something controllable made it easier to predict and manipulate them.

"That's indeed much better than a useless goose chase."

No one disapproved of the plan as it made the most sense.

On the opposite side of the planet, the Luminaris capital city was as bustling and bright as ever...But this time, it was for a different reason entirely.

"Did a volcano erupt on the demons' territory?"

"God I hope so."

All of the Luminaris around the city was discussing the echo of the thundering explosion that traveled across the entire globe.

Everyone noticed that the source was in the demons' territory, which brightened the day of some and made others a bit worried.

"Are we going to be attacked by the demons?" A beautiful short-haired little girl murmured with a scared expression.

She was holding hands with a middle-aged man who had a long black mustache and somewhat dim-lighted wings, unlike the little girl.

"That's impossible unless they want to get themselves killed as well." The middle-aged man comforted his daughter with a confident tone.

"Why?"

"Because we are much stronger than them." The middle-aged man spoke with an exaggerated cocky tone but deep inside, he was smiling bitterly.

His child was still too young to understand the f*cked reality of their situation.

But, the moment she grew up, she would start seeing the truth, the hideous and traumatizing truth.

The truth of this capital and why was it still standing without a single demon coming near it...

"Daddy, what's that?"

Suddenly, his daughter pointed her finger at the sky with a curious expression.

When her father lifted his head, his eyes couldn't help but pop out of his sockets in utter shock at the unbelievable sight before him.

"Oh god..."

"Is the sky falling!"

"Mommy!!"

One by one, the pedestrians shared the middle-aged man's reaction as their feet were frozen in utter horror at the sight of the Gamma Mothership entering the atmosphere right above the city.

It was so freakishly massive, it was thousands of kilometers in the sky, casting a massive shadow on the city and completely hiding the sun forever!

Although the sun was nowhere to be seen, the Mothership was packed with blinking lights that made it resemble a canvas. Although the sun was nowhere to be seen, the Mothership was packed with blinking lights that made it resemble a canvas for a river of stars.

Meanwhile, in the biggest palace in the city, the Luminaris' royal family's members had their mouths agape and hearts clutched tightly in fear and agitation.

All of the royal family members in the throne chamber turned to look at their Queen for answers, but her stunned expression made them realize that she had nothing to do with this situation.

"My Quee..."

Just as the guard got control over his chaotic emotions and wanted to take his Queen to the safe room, an illuminating spatial portal opened up in the center of the throne chamber.

This caught everyone by surprise and made them activate their strongest light abilities to protect themselves and most importantly their Queen.

However, the instant Mika walked out of the spatial portal and released her spiritual pressure, everyone dropped to the ground but the Queen.

She wasn't tough, it was simply Mika taking it easy on her.

Mika stepped to the side and lowered her head in respect to her king who walked outside of the portal right after her.

The moment the Queen saw Felix's appearance, her eyes widened in disbelief while her heart sunk to the bottom of her stomach in horror.

Even her legs seemed to start shaking, making it impossible for her to remain standing on her feet.

When Felix saw her reaction, he was turned completely speechless.

He looked at Mika and asked, "Is there something in my face?"

"No?" Mika tilted her head in confusion at the Queen's reaction.

'Hahahaha! It must be your demonic appearance. You look more like a demon than demons themselves.' Asna laughed out loud in amusement.

'Is it really that?' Felix had a displeased look, 'I knew my appearance won't be too liked around here, but I didn't think a Queen will react this poorly. No wonder their race is f*cked.'

When the Luminaris Queen saw Felix's expression turning for the worst, she fell on her knees immediately and begged with a tearful tone, "Please forgive me! Please don't eradicate my people! Please! Please!"

"..."

"..."

"..."

This time even the inner circle leaders and ten rulers were left utterly speechless at this Queen's cowardness.

She literally knelt before she could even ask for Felix's name, which made them wonder if they went too much with the fear factor.

They got their mothership close to the city and sent their grand supreme to the meeting for the sake of making the royal family cave in as smoothly as possible.

But now? They had no clue what to think.

'Is it just me or does it seem like she recognizes you?' Thor wondered lazily.

'I think so too.' Jormungandr nodded.

'How can that be right??' Felix was bewildered by their assumption.

He had never shown himself around here and he doubt that the Luminaris were capable of seeing the future.

Before he could question their assumption any further, the Queen finally lifted her head and requested with a stutter, ""Oh great Dem..on King Lucifer, I am will..ng to make my race a farming zone under your allegiance. Just please don't eradicate us!!"

"Demon King Lucifer??

"Huh??"

"Come again??"

This time everyone was left stunneda?|

Chapter 1294 Is It Really A Coincidence?

Felix looked at Mika and saw that she was also looking back at him with the same baffled look.

"Woman, I think you are mistaking me for someone else." Felix said with a deep frown, "Do you see me releasing any evil energy?"

Luminaris' Queen first thought Felix was messing with her to ease his boredom. But, when she finally gathered her sh*t together and looked at him carefully, she realized that there wasn't an ounce of evil energy around him.

"Huh? It can't be..."

With a startled and confused expression, she slowly stood back up on her feet.

"What can't be? How can you have mistaken my liege for a demon king? Who even is this demon king that made you forsake your dignity like this?" Mika fired a chain of questions with a serious tone.

"You really aren't demon king Lucifer?" The Queen still seemed unable to accept this truth as she kept sizing up Felix from top to bottom.

"I am King Maxwell, the grand supreme of the SGAlliance. I came here with my people to free everyone from the demonic enslavement." Felix introduced himself with a noble cause to be looked at with a good perspective.

After all, no one would like the sound of the alliance coming here to conquer everything.

"SGAlliance...Freeing from the demonic enslavement?" The Queen murmured with a look of bewilderment.

Not saying much, Felix displayed two holographic screens in front of the Queen.

One showed the current erased Netherling's city and the other was displaying all of the Luminaris' captives sleeping in medical pods.

"Is that!" The Queen covered her mouth in shock, not daring to believe what her eyes were feeding her.

"Sit down, we have a lot to talk about." Felix said calmly.

Knowing that it was difficult to trust him, Felix took his time to explain everything to the Queen.

With the abundance of evidence backing him up, the Queen had no choice but to believe him and accept everything that she heard even when he was a spitting image of the infamous demon king Lucifer.

After an hour or less of such discussion, both parties seemed more comfortable with each other...Mika awakened the rest of the royal family while the alliance hid the mothership from the sky to avoid any more chaos arising in the city.

As for the Luminaris Queen, she introduced herself as the twelfth ruler Melisande Danika.

She finally acted as a respectful host and brought them to the meeting room to continue their discussion...Some of the royal family attended the meeting too.

"I really can't believe it...There was a much bigger universe on the other side of the eternal darkness."

Queen Danika shook her head, seemingly still having difficulty wrapping this idea in her mind even when she was shown more than enough evidence.

"There aren't demons there and all races are living in harmony and order...I'm starting to think that's more like paradise." Prince Callum uttered with an excited tone.

He was her son and the only heir to the throne after the king had passed away during the most brutal and cruel demon invasion the Luminaris had ever gone through in their history.

"You are all free to join as an alliance member. You will be subjected to the same rules and terms as every member while at the same time, you will benefit from everything the alliance can offer." Felix said calmly.

"What's the alternative?"

Queen Danika asked even though she had already made up her mind to join the alliance as it would be foolish to refuse the recruitment.

"You will be treated somewhat better than the demons." Felix replied with a stoic expression.

The moment the royal family members heard this, chills coursed down their spine after recalling a recording shown to them of the demon city getting absolutely obliterated in a split second.

They all knew the SGAlliance was just as fearsome as demons if not scarier.

"How do we join?" Queen Danika smiled.

"Before that, I believe you owe me an explanation." Felix narrowed his eyes at her.

"About that..."

Queen Danika looked at her son and family members, then she excused them from the meeting against their silent protests.

When it was just her, Felix, and Mika, she pointed her slender finger at the air and began waving it around.

As she moved her finger through the air, a trail of shimmering light followed in its wake. With each delicate gesture, the light grew more complex, weaving and looping in intricate colorful patterns that seemed to take on a life of their own.

Queen Danika's eyes were fixed on the ethereal canvas before her, her lips pursed in concentration as she continued to shape the vibrant hues with her fingertips.

As the colors swirled and danced around her, a faint hum filled the air as if the very fabric of reality were vibrating in response to the woman's magic.

It was clear that this was no ordinary art; it was a manifestation of her raw creativity and perfect manipulation of light wavelengths to gain access to all colors.

Before Felix and Mika could wake up from such a mesmerizing art form, Queen Danika pulled back her finger and introduced with a slight tremor in her voice, "This is demon king Lucifer, the first natural born demon from pure evil energy."

"You're screwing with me, right?"

Felix was left utterly speechless as the three-dimensional piece of art she made was that of himself!!

Tall overbearing man with shoulder-length crimson hair, two dark demonic horns, gray ashy skin, and almost a replica of his facial features!

The only difference was that the root gemstone in his forehead, the skin cracks, and nine sacred royal gemstones weren't there.

"You understand now why I misidentified you?" Queen Danika smiled wryly, "The resemblance is just too uncanny."

'It sure is.' Asna remarked with a curious tone.

"Well, your appearance is quite demonic, so this demon king Lucifer isn't the one looking like you, you are the one taking after his appearance...Plus, he was born much earlier than you.' Candace reasoned.

'That's true...But the resemblance is really too uncanny. It's like we were cut from the same mold.' Felix murmured as he got his face close to the light painting before him.

'Hehehe, she said that he was the first demon born out of pure evil energy...Yet, he has taken your features, I guess evil recognizes evil after all.' Asna giggled in amusement.

'Shut up.' Felix's eyelids twitched at her teasing.

'Is this really just a coincidence, though?' Jormungandr frowned.

'Huh? Can it be anything else?'

Asna and the others were somewhat taken aback by his suspicion.

In their eyes, even though it seemed weird for Felix to resemble the demon king Lucifer's appearance, they were sure it was nothing but a coincidence.

After all, Felix's facial features weren't that unique to not have a single person in the entire universe not match them.

'I don't know, after what happened during Lord Zurvan's visit, I find it hard to believe in such coincidences anymore.'

Jormungandr disclosed.

'You think it's those beings doing?' Thor narrowed his eyes.

'Hmm?'

When those beings were included in the conversation, Lord Shiva lowered his three-eyed sunglasses and watched the tenants up close with an interested expression.

"Well, if they were really the ones leaving the sealing hall for Felix to mess with him and Asna, then who can say that they didn't create an evil version of him for the sake of their entertainment?' Jormungandr suspected, 'We just found out that almost everyone in the universe is for their entertainment..It's not too far-fetched to believe the rest.'

'But, the demon king Lucifer must have been born tens of millions of years ago if not hundreds of millions. Do you really think they will go so far as to prepare this much just to create an entertaining scenario??' Thor doubted.

'You guys have no clue what those f*ckers will do to make their lives just slightly more amusing.'" Lord Shiva snickered.

"This is nothing to them.'

When even Lord Shiva supported this theory, Felix and Asna stopped taking this matter as a joke..But still, there wasn't really much to work with as they only had a mere resemblance to Felix.

"We have to learn more about this demon king Lucifer. If those beings really had a hand in this. then there must be some hints left behind.'

Even if this theory was far, far too fetched, Felix would rather investigate it like it was true and see where it would lead him.

Without further ado. Felix refocused on Queen Danika and asked with a solemn tone, "Please tell me everything you know about this guy, 'Lucifer'."

Chapter 1295 A Shocking Theory

"Well, I don't know much more than what was released by the demons themselves to the public." Queen Danika shared,

"Demon King Lucifer is said to be the first prince demon born out of evil energy and he was followed by the remaining six princes. Unlike them, the rest of the demons across the entire universe are born out of the corruption of the living."

"If he is a prince, why are you referring to him as a demon king?"

"All of the seven princes are considered demon kings in their own demon realms. But only Lucifer can be proclaimed as the sole demon king of all seven demon realms due to him being the strongest, most authoritative prince, plus having the biggest demon realm of them all."

"The remaining princes were at peace with this at the beginning since they couldn't beat him to the throne, but after the demon king Lucifer went into isolation at the depth of his realm for more than hundreds of thousands of years, the six princes have been vying to dethrone him for real."

"Isolation at the depth of his realm for such a long time?" Felix frowned, "Doesn't he care that he will lose his throne?"

"I don't know, and no one really knows what's in his mind...Not even the demon princes." Queen Danika shook her head.

"Does anyone know what he is doing in his isolation?"

"Well, there are some rumors." Queen Danika shared, "I have heard that he is praying in front of The Darkness Well for the Demon God to awaken and lead the demons to a better place."

"Darkness Well? Demon God? Leading to a better place? What are you talking about?"

The more Felix heard about the demons the more confused he got.

Unlike Queen Danika and others, he knew about the universe true higher up and he had never heard of the existence of a demon god, which made him assume that it was more of a religious belief.

Queen Danika confirmed it.

"Demons are believed to have been born because of the Darkness Well. I never saw it before but from the ancient documentation of my ancestors, it's a pitch-black hole that is releasing the most potent and purest form of evil energy in the entire universe. No one knows what's inside the pitch-black hole as anyone who went through it gets erased instantly from existence."

"With this kind of omnipotence and source of demons being related heavily to the Darkness Well, the demons started to believe that their god was living inside and considered the Darkness Well as their sacred worshipping ground."

'A pitch-black hole that emits potent evil energy and kills anyone stepping inside of it...Doesn't it remind you of something?' Felix asked as he looked at the tenants inside his consciousness space.

'A Void Rift?' Candace inquired.

'Exactly.' Felix nodded.

'You don't think?'

'I do, is there anything else that makes more sense?' Felix replied with a serious tone.

Evil energy, demons, a slumbering Paragon of Sins, uncontrollable pressure, Darkness Well, Demon God, and the list goes on.

When Felix connected the dots, he couldn't help but reach a reasonable but mind blowing truth.

'Evil energy's main source is the Paragon of Sins, which means those demons are born because of him!'

In Felix's mind, if the 'Darkness Well' was nothing but a natural-born permanent void rift that was opened extremely close to the Paragon of Sins slumber's area, then it wasn't farfetched to assume that he had a correlation to the birth of the demons.

As for the evil energy? While not even primogenitors seemed to know that it was related to the Paragon of Sins, he was considered the evilest entity in the universe by default.

If literal energy based on evil existed in the universe, it was sensible to assume that the Paragon of Sins had a hand in it!

Since demons were considered as a newly born race like humans, dragons, elves, and such races without connection to primogenitors' family tree, Felix discerned that the universe had given birth to the first seven demons after the potent evil energy interacted with something outside of the void realm.

'Do you think my theory is correct?' Felix asked as he looked at Lady Sphinx.

'I can't confirm it, but based on our current Intel, it's the closest to the truth.' Lady Sphinx replied.

It was a solid theory and Lady Sphinx had already considered it way before but because there wasn't any concrete evidence to support it, she had no reason to publish it.

"This is really shocking. Even while he is asleep, he is still spreading chaos in the universe.' Thor commented.

'Are you saying demons are actually the void creatures' cousins?' Candace wasn't too pleased with this assumption.

'Most likely, but it's still weird that demons can't survive void energy or interact with it while you guys also can't manipulate evil energy.' Felix frowned.

Felix had already made Mika and many other void nation's subordinates attempt to freely interact with the evil energy.

But instead of getting corrupted like the living, the evil energy completely ignored their existence...At the same time, they couldn't control it to do anything for them.

It was like both parties acknowledging each other's existence but had no effect on the other.

Meanwhile, the demons' interaction with void energy was just as brutal as anyone without immunity...But, Felix wasn't planning to take these results as the final verdict since the seven princes were clearly born out of a different mold than the rest of the demons.

"Well, we do have a little Paragon of Sins in our hands." Asna suggested lazily, 'Just see if he can control evil energy, a demon or such. If the other paragon can do it, so can Nimo."

'Already planning to do it." Felix sighed in relief, 'Good thing we didn't send Nimo with my main consciousness."

Felix kept Nimo with his clone the moment he realized that other void creatures could not enter the void realm due to the Paragon of Sins' uncounterable pressure.

He didn't think that this decision would come in handy much sooner than anticipated.

For now, he decided to continue getting information about Lucifer and the other princes.

"Sorry for spacing out." Felix apologized first before asking, "Do the demon king and other princes have different kinds of powers than lesser demons? Like the ability to grant wishes, get bigger through food, manipulate people with lust, or such unique abilities?"

"Hmmm, not that I know of?" Queen Danika placed a finger on her lips as she recalled, "I don't know about the abilities you named, but I know that they can manipulate almost all elements by corrupting them first with evil energy."

"Heeeh??" Felix's eyes widened in shock at the sound of that.

"You didn't know??" Queen Danika showed a stern expression before warning him, "You should not underestimate those princes. Their manipulation of evil energy is so great they can swiftly corrupt any solid, liquid, gas, or energy-based element and be able to manipulate it too."

"For example. if they were fighting against a fire elemental, any fire ability used against them will be turned into corrupted dark flames and it will gain the properties of evil energy. This means the fire elemental will have no control over it and the princes can use it to corrupt him."

"That's ind  ed worrisome."

Felix was told that evil energy could corrupt even elements. but he didn't expect that the demon princes could take advantage of it this much.

It literally made them immune to all elements that weren't considered concepts or forceful enough to ignore the corruption like void energy.

"I am not done yet." Queen Danika added, "What's scary about them the most is the fact that they can get resurrected in any area of the universe as long as they have a mere hair strand or a body part near an evil energy source."

"This means they are unkillable even if you used that powerful laser weapon!!"

Chapter 1296 A Livestock Farm...

"That does change everything." Felix frowned.

Felix knew that the alliance could handle anything thrown at them by the demons, but this was going to be really tough to deal with.

The fact that the seven princes were capable of resurrecting themselves anywhere made it close to impossible to eradicate the demons no matter how hard the alliance tried.

They could weaken them and even conquer the entire seven demon realms...But, as long as the seven princes were alive, they would always be able to demonize the living and create a neverending army.

"We have to come up with something to deal with them." Queen Alfreda said.

"Hmm, we can invade their memories and find out all the locations of their spread-out body parts." Queen Allura suggested.

"First, it's doubtful if even they knew of their locations as they can just give them to their subordinates and tell them to hide them. Second, those princes are clearly too strong for us to risk capturing them instead of straight out killing them."

Emperor Lokhil retorted.

"Let's leave this for later." Minister Aquiris said as refocused on Felix's discussion with Queen Danika.

"The seven princes' immortality is what helped them conquer our universe." Queen Danika sighed, "Back in the day, my race had an entire empire covering more than 20% of the seven realm demons' territory. There were other races just as strong if not stronger than us. We ruled our side of the universe and lived in a conflicted but manageable situation. All of this changed when the seven princes were born and began spreading evil energy on each planet they stepped on. From mere seven princes, hundred, thousands, and before we know it, millions of demons were born and an unfathomable number of planets have fallen. Against this common enemy, all empires and kingdoms have created an alliance and fought against them."

"You failed?"

"No, we actually succeeded in killing most of the demons and even six princes besides Lucifer." Queen Danika shook her head, "But, we had no clue at that time about the princes' immortality. They went into hiding for a long duration, taking their sweet time to build new armies. When our empires started raging actual wars with each other for territory, they launched their attack and ended up triumphing over us at our weakest. Ever since then, the empires began losing their territories and people at a rapid pace until the seven demon realms were born."

"The only citizen left from those empires were either used in farming areas or had escaped to the edges of the universe and rebuilt their civilizations." Queen Danika smiled wryly, "My people are the last line of the Luminaris race and as their Queen, I feel obliged to try everything to keep our bloodline alive."

"That's why you offered to turn your race into a farm under Lucifer's allegiance when you saw me." Felix stated.

Queen Danika nodded her head with a tint of shame in her eyes.

"Mind if I ask how it works?" Felix inquired.

"You knew?"

Queen Danika tightened her fists under the table while keeping her expression as stoic as possible.

"It wasn't difficult to guess."

The moment Felix learned about the demons' food and their way of getting it, he already foresaw that the demons would always prioritize a peaceful treaty with other races.

A peace treaty in the sense that the demons wouldn't need to invade their targets' territories and let them live a peaceful life.

However, they would be forced to hand them a constant supply of captives to keep both parties alive!

This was the real meaning of becoming a demon's farm as those races existed for the sake of the demons' survivability!

The demons were smart enough to realize that the moment they get rid of their 'livestock', they would lose any more sources of food and end up without their rationality.

In this case, the Luminaris' royal family was clearly in a peace treaty with the Netherlings.

Otherwise, there was no way both parties would have coexisted for such a long time on a single planet!

Queen Danika found it difficult to talk about this as it was really not a pleasant subject.

"It must have been hard."

"You have no idea..."

Queen Danika bit her lower lip until it was about to bleed.

"No one here is going to judge you. I just want to know how does this 'farm system' works." Felix comforted.

He truly had no plans to judge her as he wasn't put in a similar scenario before. This scenario was far more brutal than anything one could go through.

To be given two options, either peacefully sacrificing a portion of their race or having them all killed off, was no simple choice to make.

"My late husband has always refused to cooperate with the Netherlings and agree to turn our kingdom into a farm. He has paid the price for his stubbornness and caused more than 60% of our people to get either demonized or killed off. Almost all of the cities across the continent have fallen under his rulership." Queen Danika spoke with a look of resentment, "I know that he was the king and he has the royal family's dignity to uphold, but this should be an option only if he had a chance to win against those villainous demons!"

"As much as I take pride in my race and kingdom, I knew from the start that we have zero chance of defeating the Netherlings. Our bodies are weak and our elemental abilities can't be used when our energy stones mines have been raided by the demons and destroyed. We were utterly hopeless to their invasions and he still refused to accept the deal...He could have saved us all, but he was too proud to surrender...Too proud..."

Tears stung her eyes as she thought of the carnage that had followed her husband's refusal to surrender to the demon invaders. The streets had run red with the blood of her people, their screams still echoing in her ears.

"If he had listened to me, we would have had much more of our citizens still breathing and alive." Queen Danika lifted her head and looked at Felix with moist reddened eyes, "See, I made the right decision, right? I made the right decision..."

It was like she was asking for a confirmation to ease just a bit of her crippling guilt about turning her kingdom into the Netherlings' livestock farm.

God knows how much of her own citizens she actively handed to the Netherlings' demons. Whether it was one or thousands, the guilt would eat anyone alive...

"There are no wrong or right decisions in your situation." Felix narrowed his eyes, "There are just results...In your case, your bet has paid off and your bloodline has been saved."

"As long as you are a member of the SGAlliance, your race won't need to worry ever again about demons." Mika added calmly.

Queen Danika lowered her head and left her tears falling unchecked...She knew that her anger and guilt would never fade, but she would carry them with her always.

A reminder of the cost of her husband's pride and her weakness as a ruler who couldn't protect her citizens through and through...

When Queen Danika regained control over her emotions, she cleaned herself up and restored her royal image...If it wasn't for Felix and Mika being outsiders and of a much higher position than her, she would have kept everything bottled up.

But now, she was somewhat at peace with speaking about the farm's details.

"I don't know about other demons and their farm deals. but the one erected with the Netherlings is simple in nature."

Queen Danika shared, "On a yearly basis, I have to release at least a hundred random citizens above the age of eighteen to the wilderness. Whatever happens to them won't be the capital city's problem."

"The citizens are okay with this??" Felix raised an eyebrow in surprise.

"They aren't dumb..We never had a problem with a yearly batch before since all adults understand that the only reason the capital is still standing is because of this secret peace treaty." Queen Danika smiled bitterly.

If Felix managed to come to the conclusion that the demons and Luminaris' were in a deal to keep the balance, then it was obvious that the rest of the Luminaris would be on to this.

Since they were getting kicked out of the city instead of being handed directly into the demons. This gave them at least a bit of hope of survival.

"We direct them to hidden underground locations and give them some resources to live by. Our part of the deal is done and it's up to the demons to find them."

"Why did the Netherlings accept this deal?"

"Just like we have no choice but to do this to ensure our bloodline survival, they also have no choice but to accept our conditions." Queen Danika said coldly, "I refuse to hand my people directly in their hands..That's my bottom line."

Chapter 1297 Busting Nimo's Alter Ego!

"Understandable." Felix nodded before sharing, "By the way, we have rescued some survivors living underneath a ruined city...They told us that the city was recently invaded like in a couple of years back or less."

"That must be the city of Samaria." Queen Danika sighed, "It's the furthest city from the capital. If our source of communication hasn't been cut off from them. I would have told them to drop their weapons and surrender like us."

"That's unfortunate...Anyhow, I believe we have spoken enough for today. I will send my subordinates to handle your recruitment process. You can share the news with the citizens and let them know that their days of darkness are over."

"I don't know how can I ever thank you for your help...You are truly our savior."

"Just help us out with recruiting other races during our upcoming exploration. We need a native to make it easier to convince others."

After finishing his piece with a smile, Felix took off from within a spatial portal and reappeared on his spaceship.

The rest of the integration could be handled by the appropriate alliance's staff.

A couple of hours later, the city was packed with festivities as the Luminaris were all celebrating their successful recruitment to the SGAlliance and the elimination of their mortal enemies, The Netherlings.

Most of the captives had woken up and regrouped with their family members, making their day just get even better.

As the ones responsible for fulfilling those wishes, the SGAlliance had been praised and glorified by the Luminaris.

This successful conquest and rescue story had been edited and shared with the public, gaining even more applause and gratification from the SGAlliance's citizens.

Right now, the alliance's staff were focusing on fortifying the city defenses with their advanced technologies and also handing out AP Bracelets and teaching the Luminaris how to use them.

Unlike the situation with the Earthlings, the Luminaris were helped to hasten their integration since their planet was one of the Alliance's first strongholds on the other side.

While all of this was happening, Felix was focusing on his own experiment.

"Nothing?"

Eee Eee!

"Hmmm, is our original theory wrong fundamentally?" Felix pondered as he watched Nimo fooling around with a piece of Beelzebub's demonic statue.

It was still releasing a tiny bit of evil energy and Felix handed it to Nimo so he could test out if it was possible for him to manipulate it.

Unfortunately, Nimo seemed detached from the evil energy.

"It's highly unlikely that it's wrong. It makes too much sense to be wrong." Asna said.

"Then? Why isn't he responding to evil energy?" Felix held his chin thoughtfully, "Nimo is the Paragon of Sins replacement so he is supposed to be his perfect copy."

"Maybe he hasn't awakened it yet?" Asna probed, "Nimo can't even use the seven sins laws as well as his alter's ego.

Maybe evil energy manipulation and such could be unlocked only after his awakening?"

"That makes sense." Felix supported.

He had already noticed the massive difference between Nimo and his alter ego when it came to law manipulation.

"If Nimo doesn't know he can control evil energy, then his alter ego should know." Felix narrowed his eyes, "How do we get him to cooperate though?"

Felix knew that bastard would most definitely either lie to them or ignore them completely.

"Ask him and see." Asna shrugged her shoulders.

"I got it." Felix smirked, "Nimo, can you bring out your alter ego?"

Eee Eee...

Nimo's facial expression got annoyed at the request, clearly, he didn't want to let that prick out, but he still obliged.

Whoosh!

Akin to a dragon arising, Nimo's alter ego emerged from the little raccoon...He lowered his horse-like head and gave Felix a condescending glare.

"What?"

Unbeknownst to Felix and the others, he was feeling a bit nervous at the thought of his secret plan getting found out before he could even kick it off.

"Be honest, can you manipulate evil energy?" Felix asked in a straightforward manner.

"Even if I could, you think I will tell you? Idiot." Nimo's alter ego scoffed.

"So, you're telling me you can manipulate it? That's good to hear."

"No! I said even if I can manipulate it I won't say it!"

"All I am hearing is that you can manipulate it and you refuse to accept it."

"Stop twisting my words! I can't manipulate it! Alright?!"

"Now you are just trying to gaslight me."

"Choose whatever you want to believe, you annoying prick!"

"I choose to believe that you can control it and you are hiding it for some reason."

"Argh, I am done here! Don't f*cking call me again!"

With a series of censored angry curses, Nimo's alter ego went away as swiftly as he appeared.

"I don't know why is he always so mad." Felix said with an innocent look.

Asna ignored his shameless innocent act and asked, "You really think he can manipulate evil energy and possibly even demons but he is hiding it?"

"Let's ask the expert." Felix inquired, "Master, was he telling the truth?"

"No." Lady Sphinx replied calmly.

"Now we have a certain answer." Felix smirked faintly.

Felix wanted Nimo's alter ego to directly say that he couldn't control evil energy so Lady Sphinx's lie radar would be activated.

If he kept his answer vague and ambiguous, it would have been much more difficult!

'Bastard!'

Nimo's alter ego didn't like falling into this trap one bit as his resentment towards Felix just got worse.

"Now that we have confirmed it, the demons were really born because of the Paragon of Sins." Felix sighed.

Felix would have been much happier with these results if Nimo and his alter ego were merged.

After all, those demons would be turned into his subordinates just like the void creatures with Nimo's innate domination.

This would make this conquest end in less than a couple of years at best.

"That irritating prick doesn't seem like he is planning on giving up anytime soon." Felix said with a vexed tone as he rubbed Nimo's belly.

"You should work harder on helping them merge together." Lady Sphinx warned, "If Nimo's alter ego can manipulate evil energy, this means he can also absorb it. Since Nimo has absolutely no control over evil energy, he can't stop him even if he wanted."

Felix and Asna were left startled as this issue didn't come up in their minds at all!

"Sh*t, maybe this bastard wasn't giving up because of this?" Felix narrowed his eyes coldly.

He realized that if Nimo's alter ego was truly plotting to gain control in this manner, then there was no reason for him to consider the merge in the first place!

'Damn it, damn it, damn it!' Nimo's alter ego wasn't pleased in the slightest by getting found out this early.

He knew that even if they kept Nimo around, they would make sure that he never come close to evil energy.

"I am done playing games. This is getting too dangerous, we need a new way to either force the merge or get rid of him."

Asna noted with an icy tone.

Asna loved Nimo dearly, but he proved to be a walking time bomb and they had no idea when it would blow in Felix's face.

If she had to be a cold b*tch for Felix's safety and send Nimo away, then so be it.

"We can just keep him away from evil energy."

"No, he will find another way to gain control." Asna stressed, "'Your method isn't working and it's foolish to keep giving him free time like this."

"Then what am I supposed to do? Don't suggest throwing Nimo away." Felix said with a stern tone.

Felix would rather keep on trying to humiliate Nimo's alter ego until he gave in than send Nimo away.

For starters, he couldn't do that to Nimo as he considered him as a family. Secondly, he believed that it was best to keep Nimo around him to supervise him.

After all, if his alter's ego won the battle and gained control, there was a good chance that he would hunt down Felix as a payback for all the humiliation he went through.

He was already struggling against three primogenitors, he had no plans to add a literal Unigin to his enemies list.

"You can't even solve this and you want my destruction manipulation?" Lord Shiva suddenly mocked.

"..." Felix remained silent.

He knew that each primogenitor had criteria to bestow their perfect manipulations.

While he had gotten it easy with other primogenitors, Lord Shiva clearly had many doubts about him even with all of his achievements.

That's because he was one of the few ones who knew how terrifying those beings were.

So, unless Felix managed to convince him of his potential, he could forget about earning his perfect manipulation.

Felix closed his eyes and got in the zone to brainstorm a solution to this predicament.

'Lord Shiva is always a silent observant. Yet, he commentated on this situation..This signifies that he found a method to solve this problem. Since no one else has figured it out, it must be related to his destruction element.'

Felix didn't know if he was on the right track or not, but he kept brainstorming, 'Is there really a way to use a destruction ability to handle this situation??'

Felix started by applying each destruction ability in his possession to this dilemma and seeing if one would stick.

When he reached concept destruction trident and applied it in multiple different ways, it finally clicked in his mind.

'How did I miss this?!' Felix exclaimed, 'I can use concept destruction trident to mark Nimo's alter ego consciousness and erase it from existence, leaving only Nimo's consciousness!!'

Chapter 1298 The Plan To Get Rid Of Nimo's Alter Ego I

"That can be done?" Asna raised an eyebrow in surprise.

"Theoretically, yes.' Felix paced back and forth with an excited expression as he explained, "Concept destruction trident can destroy anything marked and leave the rest untouched. Since Nimo possessed two consciousness and one soul, I can totally get rid of his alter ego in this fashion without harming Nimo at all!"

Everyone turned to look at Lord Shiva for confirmation and his nonchalant attitude made them realize that it was totally doable!

Alas, life wasn't this easy.

'Don't get too excited.' Lady Sphinx shared, 'If you got rid of Nimo's alter ego, there is a high chance he will be gone with all of his awakening memories and power-ups...This means Nimo would possibly be left stagnated in this form forever unless the universe did something to fix it.'

'Uugh, that does sound likely to happen.' Felix's excitement died off immediately as he returned to his seat with somewhat of a dejected expression.

Felix wanted Nimo to stay with him and be safe and sound, but at the same time, he felt hesitant to completely kill off his future.

The universe wouldn't be too pleased with this and would most likely create a new replacement for the replacement.

In addition, Lord Khaos wouldn't approve of this as he had told him during their deal that Felix shouldn't interfere in Nimo's natural development.

"Well, even if Nimo's replacement was born, it will take a very long time before he hatches from the egg and matures to the point he will be a threat to you.' Asna said, 'I honestly would rather have Nimo remain this cutie forever than merge with that irritating bastard.'

'Still, it's not alright to hinder Nimo's growth forever.' Felix murmured, 'There has to be another way.'

Now that Felix knew that he could use the concept destruction trident, he brainstormed for a new method.

"What if I used the trident to mark not Nimo's alter ego consciousness but the link that keeps them connected?' Felix pondered, 'If this link is destroyed, there will be two Nimos with two different souls.'

'Highly doubtful if it is going to work...Souls shouldn't be messed with if you have no idea what you are doing.' Asna shook her head.

"What do you think, Elder Kraken?' Felix inquired.

'It really depends on the trident and mark's accuracy.' Elder Kraken replied as he eyed Lord Shiva.

'My abilities are precise.'

Lord Shiva didn't bother to glance at him.

'If they are accurate, then it's possible to sever two consciousnesses in one soul if the soul itself was powerful enough to handle the separation.' Elder Kraken said calmly.

"Wait a second...If this is actually doable, then can it be used on Asna and Felix to separate their soul?' Thor disclosed with a surprised tone.

Felix and Asna looked at each other with frozen expressions at the sound of that.

Both of their hearts started accelerating as various emotions raged inside their minds and bodies at the notion of their souls finally separating apart.

Alas, before those emotions could spill out, Elder Kraken brought them crashing down with, "Their situation isn't the same though. Nimo has one soul and two consciousness while Asna and Felix had two souls merged as one. They shouldn't even have a link connecting them together as the merge was too perfect. This means if the trident was used, it will be extremely tough on Asna's soul but Felix's soul won't be able to even handle a second of the process and would die out.'

'I see...That's unfortunate.' Felix sighed in disappointment.

'It's okay, we still have our original plan in hand.' Asna comforted him with a gentle smile.

'I will make it work no matter what.' Felix promised.

'I know.' Asna smiled.

'Sorry to interrupt your lovey-dovey thing, but even if we managed to separate Nimo and his alter ego's consciousness, what will we do next?' Thor shook his head, 'Kill the alter's ego? We can do it already. Send him away? It's too risky and he might come back for vengeance and to reconnect with Nimo to be at his full strength.'

'I was thinking of using this.' Felix said as he took out the fake sun-disk earring.

'Interesting.' Jormungandr and others showed intrigued looks.

They understood immediately that Felix planned on sealing Nimo's alter ego consciousness within the sealing hall!

Since it was powerful enough to seal even Asna for millions of years, there was no way Nimo's alter ego would be able to

Since it was powerful enough to seal even Asna for millions of years, there was no way Nimo's alter ego would be able to escape on his own!

The fact that Asna was sealed for more than twenty million years and the universe hadn't bothered to make a replacement for her only meant that it wasn't a severe situation like the Paragon of Sins who lost the plot and kept abusing his powers.

"This is shaping to be an actual solid plan.' Thor remarked, 'Though, does any one of you knows how to use it?"

When he said this, everyone turned to look at Asna...In their eyes, she must have studied everything about the sealing hall to free herself.

As expected, Asna nodded her head with a look of slight discomfort.

'Is everything okay?' Felix stressed, 'We don't need to do this if you weren't feeling it.'

"It's alright, I just recalled some bad moments. I am fully ready to do this.' Asna returned to her sadistic persona as she smiled coldly, 'Plus, it feels nice knowing that the exact sealing hall will be used for someone who deserves it."

If Nimo's alter ego wasn't so sh*tty and hell-bent on killing them right after he was awakened, she would have minded sealing him since that wasn't a fate she wished on anyone.

'Good thing my main consciousness had yet to arrive at the Elementals Galaxy.'

Without an ounce of hesitation, Felix requested Candace to bring his main consciousness and real body back to the wormhole.

He knew that this had to be finished as fast as possible so he could send the sealed consciousness of Nimo's alter ego with his main body to the Elementals Galaxy.

He had no plans on keeping the real earring with a mere weakling clone.

Fifteen Days Later...

The SGAlliance had just celebrated conquering the entire Revria N1 solar system.

Besides some runaway demons in Lumurous planet, this solar system could be said to be placed on an air-tight lockdown.

It made it impossible for anything or anyone to leave it without alarming the appropriate authorities.

After securing such a stronghold for themselves, the SGAlliance started preparing for spreading their troops across the seventh demon realm, Tartarus.

Meanwhile, Felix was busy with his own project.

He could be seen inside his main spaceship the Eternal Nautilus which was docked outside of the wormhole leading to the other side.

He had to carry the process on this side to avoid dealing with the darkins as he had no clue if they were still camping near the wormhole or not.

"Do you trust me?" Felix asked with a solemn tone as he eyed Nimo.

Eee Eee!

Nimo nodded enthusiastically without a shred of doubt in his eyes.

"Good." Felix patted his head with a loving look.

To avoid alerting Nimo's alter ego, he never told him about their sealing plan and he had no intentions of telling him now.

Without delay, Felix removed the sun-disk earring and placed it on a table...Then, he opened the spatial gate and jumped inside with Nimo.

As a spatial divine equipment, it was habitable, unlike the spatial cards.

When Felix opened his eyes, he couldn't help but feel his buttohole tightening up reflexively at the sight of the four guardian statues and the intricate floating platform.

Asna wanted to chuckle at his reaction but her PTSD activated and made her be as quiet as a mouse.

When Felix sensed that she was having a panic attack, he comforted her, 'It's okay, we will be out in a second.'

'Mmmm...' Asna closed her eyes shut and tried her best to focus only on Felix's voice and ignore everything else...This helped her ease the panic attack and regain control over her emotions.

While some prisoners might feel nostalgic to return to their prison cells, Asna felt nothing but utter hatred.

Eee Eee!!

Nimo jumped from Felix's lap and started running around with a curious but excited expression at such an unfamiliar environment.

Felix let him do as he pleased. knowing that the sealing hall could be activated only by fulfilling one condition.

'Lét's run it back one time. You only have one chance at this.' Thor said with a stern tone.

'I know.' Felix nodded, 'First I will place Nimo on the platform and then destroy the link between him and his alter ego.

When they get separated both physically and spiritually, they will both be semi--unconscious due to the trauma on their soul. I will take advantage of that duration and activate the sealing hall when the process near the end I will save Nimo."

'You have to be fast and precise. you will probably be given merely a second or less before his alter's ego readjust himself.' Jormungandr warned, 'He might use that moment to blow your soul with his spiritual pressure."

'I will make sure that never happens.' Felix cracked his knuckles, 'Let's begin."

Chapter 1299 The Plan To Get Rid Of Nimo's Alter Ego II

Felix teleported next to Nimo and picked him up...Then, he hovered towards the platform and placed him in the center.

"No matter what happens, don't move okay?" Felix said with a serious tone.

Eee Eee!

Nimo nodded his head and sat on all four akin to a cat. Felix returned to his position, putting a fair distance between himself and the platform...Then, he created a gemstone and placed it on the ground next to him.

He cast a spatial spell on the gemstone, creating a gray runic hex above it. But, this hex seemed turned off as it did nothing to the gemstone.

"What is he up to? Why do I have a bad feeling?"

Nimo's alter ego kept getting agitated as his instincts tingled like crazy at this unknown situation he was in.

But, no matter how hard he thought about it, he just couldn't find any method that would allow Felix to harm him.

After all, he was a Unigin and feared nothing in this universe but the universe itself.

This created conflict within himself as his instincts were saying one thing while his rationality was saying another.

Oblivious to Nimo's alter ego's thoughts, Felix took a deep breath and manifested the concept destruction trident.

He marked the spiritual link between Nimo and his alter ego and then hurled the trident in Nimo's direction!

Eee Eee?

Nimo's survival instincts were activated the moment he saw the flying trident, but he trusted wholeheartedly that Felix would never do anything to harm him!

'DODGE IT YOU BASTARD!! DODGE IT!! DODGE IT!!'

The same couldn't be applied to his alter ego as he kept screaming in his ears with a maddened tone.

He had no clue what this trident was going to do to them, but his instincts warned him that it was going to be pleasant.

Alas, Nimo remained affixed on his position while giving Felix a curious look, seemingly asking him about what game he was playing with him.

Felix merely gave him an apologetic look, knowing that this wasn't going to be painless at all.

Whoosh!!

In a split second, the crimson trident went through Nimo's body and exited from the other side resembling a ghost going through him.

Eeeeeeeeeee!!!

The moment the trident emerged from the other side, Nimo released a loud agonizing squeeze like his guts were being ripped from his stomach.

It was understandable when both his soul and body were being ripped apart in half to accommodate both consciousnesses after the separation...

Eeeeeeeeeee!!

Although he was squealing in pain, Nimo still remained on the platform, which made Felix's heart twist and curls at the notion of putting Nimo through all of this while he still listened to his request.

'Focus! He is coming out, you should start the sealing process!'

Thor called out loud after seeing Nimo's physical body turn into a blob of pitch-black darkness before cutting off right from the center.

One side had green eyes and the other had red eyes...They were both trying to pull away from the other, hastening the separation process even more!

When Felix saw this, he extended two fingers forward and began reciting with a loud tone a peculiar-sounding language!

His voice was low and powerful, each word imbued with a weight that seemed to move mountains!

As he continued, the air around him grew thick with energy. Shadows seemed to writhe and twist in the corners of the sealing room, and the temperature dropped several degrees.

Felix ignored it all, his focus solely on the chant. He spoke louder now, his voice ringing out with a commanding tone.

Cling!! Cling!! Cling!!

Suddenly, there was a sharp noise of metal chains clinging in the air.

This was exactly what was going on as the purplish chains, that were connected with the platform and held by the four statues, were beginning to tighten up at a moderate pace.

This caused the hovering platform to get lifted up higher and higher!

As the purplish chains were getting tightened up, the peculiar inscriptions on the guardians began to illuminate brightly from the base of their legs into their heads.

When they were fully illuminated, the light traveled to the inscriptions on the purplish chain, causing each word to pop off individually.

It kept going until the light reached the platform from four directions and helped it cast a blinding light into the two pitch-black blobs!

'Spatial Displacement!'

While he was reaching the last sentences of his chant, Felix snapped his finger abruptly, causing the left pitch-black blob to switch locations with the gemstone next to him instantly!!!

The moment he spotted the gemstone next to the other pitch-black blob, Felix concluded the chant with a booming yell,

"ON!"

The clinging purplish chains went silent and the light across the entire sealing hall began dimming down...Especially, the blinding light on top of the platform.

When the light completely disappeared and the sealing hall seemed to have returned to normal, everyone had their eyes affixed on a floating pitch-black flickering flame in the center of the platform.

"We did it..."

Thud!

Felix fell on his ass with a stunned expression, unable to believe the reality before him.

Although he was told that it was going to work 100% as long as he didn't f*ck up, it was still difficult for him to believe it.

Who could blame him, he literally just did what those beings did to Asna, sealing an actual Unigin with nothing but a merely memorized chant!

Even primogenitors and other Unigins would be left shocked if they ever heard about this.

"Argh...What did you do to me? Why can't I move? WHAT DID YOU DO TO ME!!"

Felix was forced to wake up from his daze after hearing Nimo's alter ego going absolutely batsh*t.

"Finally getting rid of your annoyance for good."

Unafraid, Felix sneered as he stood back up on his feet.

He was told by Asna that no matter how good Nimo's alter ego was, it would take him a very, very long time before he could figure out the same method that helped her free a tiny bit of energy from the seal.

"What did you do?!"

"Isn't it obvious?" Felix grinned widely, "You have been sealed."

"Seal? Hah? Seal me?! No one can seal a unigin but them!"

Nimo's alter ego found the notion laughable as he knew from his memories that only those beings had the authority to create a seal strong enough to keep even Unigins locked shut.

"You are free to give it a try." Felix chuckled as he leaned down and picked Nimo up.

While his alter ego was forcefully turned into a black flame, Nimo returned to his original raccoon form.

Eee..Eee?

A bit dazed, Nimo kept looking around him while enjoying Felix rubbing his back in a gentle manner.

"I am sorry for putting you through this, but it's over now." Felix apologized with a warm smile.

Eee Eee!

Nimo was still clueless about the whole situation and he didn't seem to have any plans of questioning Felix...He merely laid back on his back and allowed Felix to rub his belly, completely forgetting about both the pain and his irritating alter's ego.

'Void rift! Void Blackhole! Void Annihilation! Greed Laws, I trade 80% of my energy for a wish to be freed from this!

Wrath Laws, Strength Multiplication x10! Gluttony Laws, Devour! Evil Corruption!

Meanwhile, Nimo's alter ego pulled absolutely no stop as he kept attempting to use all of his unlocked abilities to free himself from the seal.

Alas, regardless of void laws, sins laws, or even the evil energy corruption, nothing was activated...It was like the sealing hall had utterly stripped him of his gifts, leaving him powerless.

'It can't be, huff, huff, this is impossible, Unigins can't be sealed...Unigins can't be sealed!'

Nimo's alter ego fell into a hard denial stage as he didn't give up on freeing himself with whatever trick was in his pocket.

'Poor thing, he will learn the hard way.' Asna murmured as she recalled the first--week memories of being sealed.

She left no stone unturned in an attempt to free herself, but alas, the seal was just too powerful..

"Call me when you are ready to merge with Nimo." Felix waved his hand at the black flame and teleported outside of the sealing hall under a fierce tirade of curses.

"COME BACK HERE AND FREE ME, YOU BASTARD!!!

"I WILL KILL YOU!!! I SWEAR I WILL END YOU AND YOUR WHOLE ALLIANCE!!!"

"COME BACK!!!"

Too bad for Nimo's alter ego, Felix was long gone, leaving him alone in this silent and somewhat creepy hall.

The saying goes, f*ck around and you will find out..It was at this moment that Nimo's alter ego realized that he really f*cked up!

Chapter 1300 Demonic Taming Of Beasts/Monsters

"Finally, a breather."

Felix sighed in relief the moment he exited the sun-disk earring pocket dimension.

"With my lord's pride, I doubt he will give in and merge with Nimo even at the threat of eternal imprisonment." Candace uttered with a worried tone.

Candace had decided to be an obedient servant to Felix for the sake of having her lust powers enhanced when Nimo overthrew the Paragon of Sins.

But with this development, she started to doubt if that was ever going to happen.

"His pride will get in the way for sure, but when he realizes that the sealing hall has the ability to slowly steal the prisoner's powers to fuel the seal's strength, he will have no option but to give up." Asna answered with a confident tone.

Asna knew that the side effect wasn't lasting but it sure was going to scare Nimo's alter ego as he had no idea if his powers would ever return.

"I still can't believe those beings created such a complicated sealing hall and made its activation bound to a chant that anyone could recite." Felix remarked with a deep frown.

"The chant is useless without the sealing hall and no one can create it besides those beings. So, knowing the chant is the same as having a key to an unobtainable chest." Lady Sphinx said, "The fact that you obtained it is a much bigger mystery."

"I suppose so..."

Knowing that he wouldn't find any answers even if he dug deeper, Felix dropped the subject.

'Are you planning to restart your journey to the Elementals Galaxy right now?' Candace inquired.

'I will give Nimo's alter ego two weeks to give up and merge with Nimo. If he is still adamant, I will take him with me.'

Felix knew that the moment he stepped inside the Elementals Galaxy, he wouldn't leave it until he made a breakthrough.

This meant Nimo's alter ego would stay with him for thousands of years if not more even if he came to his senses and wanted to merge with Nimo.

After all, Nimo would be accompanying Felix's copy in the seven demon realms and there was no way for them to get together unless Foremother Siaseme made an exception.

Felix was certain that wasn't happening anytime soon.

So, he delivered his ultimate to Nimo's alter ego and closed the consciousness link with the sun-disk earring the moment he heard a series of insults thrown at him.

*k ok ok One Month Later...

Felix stayed true to his word and took off to the Elementals Galaxy with the sun-disk earring. Obviously, he found no luck with Nimo's alter ego and the situation remained as it was.

Everyone was cool with this even Lord Khoas.

That's because he also wanted Nimo and his alter ego to get back together without anyone overpowering the other.

Nimo's alter ego didn't want to just merge but completely eradicate his soft spot in the process, which would give birth to truly the vilest Paragon of Sins in existence.

Meanwhile, the SGAlliance had already kicked off their main conquest journey as they sent an unfathomable number of geared-up fleets toward the nearest habitable solar systems.

With Queen Danika's information, they knew much about their destinations and what to expect from them.

While they were actively invading Tartarus' territory, the right arm of Prince Beelzebub had just arrived near Revria N1's solar system with his subordinates.

The moment they stepped inside the SGAlliance's territory, their existence was picked up by the radar.

"Sir, our radars have picked an unusual invader near Omanda's meteor belt." The crewman responsible reported the news to his supervisor.

"It does look unusual...Switch to the nearest camera to the invader and give me a complete read on it." The supervisor ordered.

The crewman did as he was commanded.

When the images were sent back, everyone was left stunned at the final results before them.

A colossal and terrifying creature, a space monster unlike any other was showcased right in front of their shocked eyes!

It was as massive as a moon and it resembled a long fleshy worm with a gaping maw, a black hole of immense proportions that served as the creature's mouth.

It possessed demonic features as it was surrounded by a massive cape of red mist and its tiny eyes were as red as blood.

Yet, what shocked the crewmen the most was the fact that this disgusting monstrous worm was exiting from a wormhole!!

"Was that wormhole there before?" One of the crewmen murmured.

"You know full well that it wasn't." The supervisor's expression got stoic immediately as he reached out to his AP Bracelet and called out loud, "Red Code! Red Code! We are being invaded!"

The ten rulers and inner circle leaders swiftly joined an emergency meeting the moment they received the news.

"Is it the demons?" King Lokhil asked.

"We have to send scouts to check." Queen Alfreda narrowed her eyes, "But, how can this worm-like monster create wormholes?"

"Well, I always wondered if my ancestor's bloodline has managed to give birth to non-intelligent creatures capable of using spatial abilities." High Chieftain Lokaka replied, "I guess they were hiding here all along."

Just like the beasts with multiple bloodline abilities, there were bound to be some kind of beasts with spatial abilities around the universe since Lord Dune had many descendants like the other primogenitors.

In fact, there could even be beasts with destruction abilities, hiding in isolation and saving the universe from an unspoken terror.

"It doesn't look anything like your race or Lord Dune." Queen Allura wondered, "Do you think it was demonized?"

"Based on its disgusting appearance and the red mist around it, there is a high possibility." Felix chimed in, "But, we will find out the truth after the scouts arrive."

The scouts didn't take long to arrive near the slow-moving monstrous worm.

With their advanced anti-surveillance system, they got closer to the beast and began scanning its entire humongous body.

They ended up finding a medium-sized leen black spaceship parked right on the top surface of the monstrous worm.

The spaceship seemed somewhat old-dated compared to the SGAlliance's current generation, but it was still an interstellar spaceship.

When the scout zoomed on the spaceship and spotted a uniquely shaped 'B' logo on its side, everyone uttered at the same time, "Beelzebub's troops."

"Looks like we still ended up alerting him." Queen Alfreda said.

"It doesn't matter, he was bound to find out about us eventually." Emperor Lokhil disclosed, "I am more interested in their ability to tame such a massive space-eating worm and use it for their travel."

Queen Danika had already told them that authoritative demons were capable of enslaving animalistic demons, making them obedient to their commands as long as they feed them purities.

But to do this for such a massive beast? It was truly mind boggling as even the alliance couldn't control such kinds of monsters!

"The spaceship is lifting off from the beast." The scout reported abruptly.

The black spaceship took off at the speed of light in the direction of planet Gorrana in front of everyone.

Yet, no one bothered to look in its direction as their eyes were affixed on the gigantic fleshy worm reversing back inside the wormhole.

After it disappeared inside of it, the wormhole collapsed on itself and the space deformity was gone, turning the area desolate again.

"Since Queen Danika hadn't told us about those worms, it only means that the demons have recently begun demonizing and taming them." Felix narrowed his eyes coldly, "Warn our troops to be careful of such demonized creatures. God knows what else have those demons tamed."

The leaders always had a sense of superiority when dealing with demons since they were too advanced in technology.

But after this finding, they had a bad feeling that the demons could have tamed much more dangerous monsters than their weapons...

"What do we do with that spaceship?"

"It must be a scouting squad sent by Prince Beelzebub."

"Since Prince Beelzebub was generous to send us some of his subordinates, then it would be impolite not to welcome them with open arms." Felix smirked faintly.

Everyone shared the same creepy smile as they knew exactly what Felix meant.

Unbeknownst to the 'warm welcome' that awaited him, Malgrath could be seen sitting akin to a demon lord on the captain's chair inside the cockpit.

His demonic subordinates were sitting around him silently, not touching a single button on the board before them.

This image seemed weird like the demons were out of place.

It wasn't farfetched to call it that since this spaceship didn't really belong to them but was built by the most technologically advanced race in the seven demon realms.

"This chair is so uncomfortable...It's like those bastards are making them like this to spite us." Malgrath asked with an irritated tone, "Are we close yet?"

"We will arrive at Gorrana in less than an hour." His subordinate answered after reading the distance from the monitor before him.

"Finally, we get to see those f*ckers who ruined my kings' precious harvesters. I will make sure to demonize them myself and watch them starve to death." Malgrath stated with a murderous tone.