

Supremacy 1341

Chapter 1341 The Destined Meeting

Sometime later...

The planet's blood-red sky, shot through with streaks of baleful violet, boiled with demonic energy.

Crumbled buildings loomed over vacant streets, while strange, monstrous creatures prowled amongst the wreckage, their growls and roars echoing eerily.

From the heart of this chaos, malevolent gray energy swirled, growing larger and denser until it ripped open a portal of shimmering whiteness.

Emerging from this dimensional rift was Lucifer, wrapped in his sable cloak, his eyes glowing with a cold and wicked light.

Behind him, three imposing figures emerged....Lokaka and the previous two dragon clan heads.

Lucifer had demonized many worthy leaders and fighters from the SGAlliance and already had capable subordinates under him, but he still used those three most often as they proved to be much greater than everyone else.

It was to be expected as the three of them were all in the top ten strongest fighters in the alliance.

"I can already smell his existence." Lucifer said after taking a deep breath with a look of pure bliss.

Ygos and the other two could only act ignorant at their lord's sus comments and actions toward Felix... They were pretty used to it by now.

"He is currently evacuating the refuges in his spaceship." Lokaka coughed.

"Good, good, let's greet him properly."

Lucifer broke into a cloud of evil energy and took off toward the mentioned location. It was quite nearby, so he didn't need to use another portal.

Lokaka and the dragons' heads chased after him with looks filled with anticipation.

Standing amidst a ruined city was Felix, his golden eyes reflecting the chaos around him as he was helping thousands of mixed citizens ascent multiple small spaceships to deliver them to the Eternal Nautilus.

"They are here," Felix uttered calmly without bothering to even turn his head.

He didn't need to as he had gotten familiar with his wisdom eye to the point it allowed him to sense any evil thoughts targeting him from thousands of kilometers!

"Candace, take care of the evacuation." Felix ordered.

"Leave it to me."

Felix turned around and teleported in the blink of an eye under the eyes of the refugees...But no one felt unsafe or caused trouble as Candace was even scarier than him.

When Felix reappeared in the middle of nowhere, he looked at the rushing three evil auras and waved his hand in a gentle manner, seemingly releasing a transparent ethereal glow around him.

Then, he retracted it and waited patiently for the guests...His actions were somewhat bizarre, but thankfully, no one was near to see him.

It didn't take even a couple of seconds before Lucifer and his subordinates landed in front of him.

Felix's gaze hardened when he saw Lucifer manifest from a cloud of evil energy.

"Lucifer," he greeted, his voice echoing through the deserted farming field, a challenge ringing clear.

Lucifer raised an eyebrow, his lips curling into a cruel smile.

"Felix," he responded, his voice a poisonous whisper, "Our destinies have finally clashed."

The tension between the two was palpable, one could say a cosmic struggle between the elements and the force that sought to corrupt them.

"You started this whole mess for the sake of meeting me, well, I am here." Felix called with a cold tone, "What do you have to say?"

"Look at this vermin, thinking himself worthy to make our lord explain his thoughts." Ygos sneered, puffing out corrupted dark red flames from his nostrils.

"Heh, he thinks his authority as a grand supreme amount to anything here." Lokaka mocked, "You should have stayed hiding."

Felix didn't even bother to glance in their direction. He focused on Lucifer and asked with a flat tone, "You should have told me you will bring cheerleaders with you."

"You!!"

"Motherf* cker!"

"Please lord! Give us permission to kill him!"

Even when he wasn't trying, Felix's words cut through their pride like it was a piece of paper.

After all, they were the highest authoritative figures in the alliance before they had gotten demonized.

Although they became docile and obsessively loyal to Lucifer, their original pride was still intact.

Alas, they might be loyal to Lucifer, but he saw them as mere bugs under his command.

"Kill him? You aren't worthy to lick his shoes."

Lucifer eyed them coldly, "Now, shut your damn mouths and wait silently at the side.

All of them felt hot blood rush to their faces in shame as they didn't expect their lord to side with Felix and humiliate them in front of their mortal enemy.

Sadly, they couldn't open their mouths and defy Lucifer's orders.

"I was always curious how can you make your demonized subjects loyal to this degree?" Felix inquired.

The sight of those three prideful authoritative figures being subdued like pets was too weird for him...Especially, when he knew that demons were individualists without an ounce of loyalty to anyone but themselves and they needed soul contracts to trust each other.

Lucifer chuckled as he walked next to Lokaka and started patting him on the head without him daring to utter a single complaint.

"It's simple really, people are slaves to evil energy and evil energy is a slave to me." Lucifer smiled.

"How is that possible?" Felix frowned, finding it hard to believe his answer.

It was understandable as it was the same as him saying that he had absolute control over evil energy instead of bending and wielding it to his desire.

There was a massive difference.

"It's possible if you are evil energy itself." Before

Felix could react to this statement, Lucifer clapped his hands twice, "I didn't come here to chitchat on such useless matters. I have waited too long for this moment, and I can't wait another second."

The moment he finished talking, Lucifer pointed his finger at Felix and released his potent spiritual pressure freely, causing a dust storm to emerge around him, making him seem like he was surrounded by a transparent aura.

'Ha-ha! It's happening.'

'Let's see how cocky you will be after this.'

Lokaka and the others had gotten energized at the notion of Felix getting flattened to the ground through their Lord's spiritual pressure.

"Forgive me for this, but I need you standing still during the ascension process." Lucifer gave a noble apology as he pointed his finger at the expressionless Felix.

Whoosh!! Whoosh!!

In a heart-stopping moment, both released their attacks simultaneously, two colossal waves of spiritual pressure surging toward each other!

The resulting collision was cataclysmic. The very air rippled, a shockwave of energy radiating from the epicenter!

The planet seemed to have quaked beneath them, the sky above them roared, and a brilliant kaleidoscope of white and dark light painted an extraordinary tableau against the red backdrop!

Their energies were evenly matched, each fighting for dominance in this chaotic dance of power, a stunning testament to their respective strengths!

'Impossible!'

'How can this be?!'

'What the hell?!'

This wasn't the sight Lokaka and the dragons' heads had expected, leaving them staring at the evenly spiritual clash with mouths wide open!

They knew that their lord's spiritual pressure was on a primogenitor's level, which made them incapable of believing what their eyes were feeding them!

The implications were just too much for them to accept!

Meanwhile, Lucifer showed the exact opposite reaction.

Immediately after both spiritual pressures negated each other, he broke into a laughing spree. "Hahahaha! As expected of my other half! I would have been disappointed if you haven't already reached this stage."

"You thought I will be that foolish to appear before you without becoming a deity first?" Felix said with a flat tone.

"My fault, my fault, I honestly thought that you wouldn't remain hiding for long when your people were suffering across the entire universe." Lucifer smiled, "But don't overthink this, you being a deity only made this a bit more interesting."

"We shall see."

Felix's power roared to life, his first ability forming a sphere of sparkling purplish water around Lucifer, who grinned at the display.

But then, Felix transmuted the water into countless ice spears. With a flick of his wrist, they shot toward Lucifer.

Lucifer was more than ready as he had been dealing with ice attacks for a long while now.

He twisted his dark power, corrupting the incoming ice spears...One by one, they transformed, twisting into nightmarish, obsidian shards that redirected back towards Felix!

Felix acted quickly. He conjured a shield of white adamantine.

The corrupted shards clashed against his defense, resulting in a resonating explosion of shattered ice and dark energy.

Unfazed, Felix quickly moved to his next spell.

RUMBLE!!

With a flick of his hand and suddenly a bolt of lightning split the heavens, its brilliance a stark contrast to the pallid moonlight!

The air was alit with static energy, a palpable tension buzzing between the combatants.

"Is this a joke?"

Lucifer laughed, his voice a dissonant melody against the resounding thunder...His power thrummed in response, corrupting the bolt into a snake of seething darkness, reversing its trajectory towards Felix!

In a brilliant flash, Felix invoked the lesser time spell, Temporal Freeze!

Time itself bowed to his will as the lethal bolt of lightning hung suspended in midair, its deadly dance stilled by the spell's unyielding grasp!

He then used a spatial spell to shift the frozen bolt away, hurling it into the moonlit horizon.

"You even mastered time spells? You are making me want you more and more." Lucifer licked his lips akin to a starving hyena, seemingly unafraid in the slightest by Felix's time spells.

It was understandable as his reaction speed would make it extremely difficult to get ensnared by a time spell unless Felix was capable of activating it in less than 0.0001 seconds!

Meanwhile, Fenrir's ultimate ability was undodgeable as it affected an entire planet in less than a few seconds!

"This is nothing."

Felix changed the rules of engagement.

In the next instant, Felix summoned an enormous wave of water, a liquid wall racing toward Lucifer.

With the water, he mixed his most potent poison, True Poison, turning the massive surge into a deadly torrent.

But Lucifer merely chuckled...He twisted his energy, corrupting the poison within the water, turning it harmless.

"If this is all you can offer, then this will end faster than I anticipated." Lucifer commentated as he manifested a magnificent dimension of potent sinister power source above him.

Then, without an ounce of hesitation, he transformed the dimension into millions of disgusting living leeches and sent them in the direction of his enemy!

With a subtle shift in his stance, Felix turned to face the swarm of living leeches, a nauseating mass birthed from corrupted energy.

Then, with a decisive thrust forward of his palm, he activated Concept Erasure!

In an instant, the power source leeches were met by a crimson palm manifested of out destruction energy, their existence challenged by the counterforce of Felix's ability!

One by one, millions of leeches disintegrated, their essence erased from reality, their threat neutralized by the absolute power of Felix's palm, leaving nothing behind but the echoes of their malevolent hisses...

"You do not seem to get it..." Felix stated calmly as he eyed Lucifer, "The only thing you had over me was spiritual pressure and reaction speed, but now? You should feel grateful I haven't ended this fight in the first second."

"So, drop your baseless pride and answer my question... Why are you coming after me?"

Chapter 1342 The Destined Meeting

Sometime later...

The planet's blood-red sky, shot through with streaks of baleful violet, boiled with demonic energy.

Crumbled buildings loomed over vacant streets, while strange, monstrous creatures prowled amongst the wreckage, their growls and roars echoing eerily.

From the heart of this chaos, malevolent gray energy swirled, growing larger and denser until it ripped open a portal of shimmering whiteness.

Emerging from this dimensional rift was Lucifer, wrapped in his sable cloak, his eyes glowing with a cold and wicked light.

Behind him, three imposing figures emerged....Lokaka and the previous two dragon clan heads.

Lucifer had demonized many worthy leaders and fighters from the SGAlliance and already had capable subordinates under him, but he still used those three most often as they proved to be much greater than everyone else.

It was to be expected as the three of them were all in the top ten strongest fighters in the alliance.

"I can already smell his existence." Lucifer said after taking a deep breath with a look of pure bliss.

Ygos and the other two could only act ignorant at their lord's sus comments and actions toward Felix... They were pretty used to it by now.

"He is currently evacuating the refugees in his spaceship." Lokaka coughed.

"Good, good, let's greet him properly."

Lucifer broke into a cloud of evil energy and took off toward the mentioned location. It was quite nearby, so he didn't need to use another portal.

Lokaka and the dragons' heads chased after him with looks filled with anticipation.

Standing amidst a ruined city was Felix, his golden eyes reflecting the chaos around him as he was helping thousands of mixed citizens ascent multiple small spaceships to deliver them to the Eternal Nautilus.

"They are here," Felix uttered calmly without bothering to even turn his head.

He didn't need to as he had gotten familiar with his wisdom eye to the point it allowed him to sense any evil thoughts targeting him from thousands of kilometers!

"Candace, take care of the evacuation." Felix ordered.

"Leave it to me."

Felix turned around and teleported in the blink of an eye under the eyes of the refugees...But no one felt unsafe or caused trouble as Candace was even scarier than him.

When Felix reappeared in the middle of nowhere, he looked at the rushing three evil auras and waved his hand in a gentle manner, seemingly releasing a transparent ethereal glow around him.

Then, he retracted it and waited patiently for the guests...His actions were somewhat bizarre, but thankfully, no one was near to see him.

It didn't take even a couple of seconds before Lucifer and his subordinates landed in front of him.

Felix's gaze hardened when he saw Lucifer manifest from a cloud of evil energy.

"Lucifer," he greeted, his voice echoing through the deserted farming field, a challenge ringing clear.

Lucifer raised an eyebrow, his lips curling into a cruel smile.

"Felix," he responded, his voice a poisonous whisper, "Our destinies have finally clashed."

The tension between the two was palpable, one could say a cosmic struggle between the elements and the force that sought to corrupt them.

"You started this whole mess for the sake of meeting me, well, I am here." Felix called with a cold tone, "What do you have to say?"

"Look at this vermin, thinking himself worthy to make our lord explain his thoughts." Ygos sneered, puffing out corrupted dark red flames from his nostrils.

"Heh, he thinks his authority as a grand supreme amount to anything here." Lokaka mocked, "You should have stayed hiding."

Felix didn't even bother to glance in their direction. He focused on Lucifer and asked with a flat tone, "You should have told me you will bring cheerleaders with you."

"You!!"

"Motherf* cker!"

"Please lord! Give us permission to kill him!"

Even when he wasn't trying, Felix's words cut through their pride like it was a piece of paper.

After all, they were the highest authoritative figures in the alliance before they had gotten demonized.

Although they became docile and obsessively loyal to Lucifer, their original pride was still intact.

Alas, they might be loyal to Lucifer, but he saw them as mere bugs under his command.

"Kill him? You aren't worthy to lick his shoes."

Lucifer eyed them coldly, "Now, shut your damn mouths and wait silently at the side.

All of them felt hot blood rush to their faces in shame as they didn't expect their lord to side with Felix and humiliate them in front of their mortal enemy.

Sadly, they couldn't open their mouths and defy Lucifer's orders.

"I was always curious how can you make your demonized subjects loyal to this degree?" Felix inquired.

The sight of those three prideful authoritative figures being subdued like pets was too weird for him...Especially, when he knew that demons were individualists without an ounce of loyalty to anyone but themselves and they needed soul contracts to trust each other.

Lucifer chuckled as he walked next to Lokaka and started patting him on the head without him daring to utter a single complaint.

"It's simple really, people are slaves to evil energy and evil energy is a slave to me." Lucifer smiled.

"How is that possible?" Felix frowned, finding it hard to believe his answer.

It was understandable as it was the same as him saying that he had absolute control over evil energy instead of bending and wielding it to his desire.

There was a massive difference.

"It's possible if you are evil energy itself." Before

Felix could react to this statement, Lucifer clapped his hands twice, "I didn't come here to chitchat on such useless matters. I have waited too long for this moment, and I can't wait another second."

The moment he finished talking, Lucifer pointed his finger at Felix and released his potent spiritual pressure freely, causing a dust storm to emerge around him, making him seem like he was surrounded by a transparent aura.

'Ha-ha! It's happening.'

'Let's see how cocky you will be after this.'

Lokaka and the others had gotten energized at the notion of Felix getting flattened to the ground through their Lord's spiritual pressure.

"Forgive me for this, but I need you standing still during the ascension process."
Lucifer gave a noble apology as he pointed his finger at the expressionless Felix.

Whoosh!! Whoosh!!

In a heart-stopping moment, both released their attacks simultaneously, two colossal waves of spiritual pressure surging toward each other!

The resulting collision was cataclysmic. The very air rippled, a shockwave of energy radiating from the epicenter!

The planet seemed to have quaked beneath them, the sky above them roared, and a brilliant kaleidoscope of white and dark light painted an extraordinary tableau against the red backdrop!

Their energies were evenly matched, each fighting for dominance in this chaotic dance of power, a stunning testament to their respective strengths!

'Impossible!'

'How can this be?!'

'What the hell?!'

This wasn't the sight Lokaka and the dragons' heads had expected, leaving them staring at the evenly spiritual clash with mouths wide open!

They knew that their lord's spiritual pressure was on a primogenitor's level, which made them incapable of believing what their eyes were feeding them!

The implications were just too much for them to accept!

Meanwhile, Lucifer showed the exact opposite reaction.

Immediately after both spiritual pressures negated each other, he broke into a laughing spree. "Hahahaha! As expected of my other half! I would have been disappointed if you haven't already reached this stage."

"You thought I will be that foolish to appear before you without becoming a deity first?" Felix said with a flat tone.

"My fault, my fault, I honestly thought that you wouldn't remain hiding for long when your people were suffering across the entire universe." Lucifer smiled, "But don't overthink this, you being a deity only made this a bit more interesting."

"We shall see."

Felix's power roared to life, his first ability forming a sphere of sparkling purplish water around Lucifer, who grinned at the display.

But then, Felix transmuted the water into countless ice spears. With a flick of his wrist, they shot toward Lucifer.

Lucifer was more than ready as he had been dealing with ice attacks for a long while now.

He twisted his dark power, corrupting the incoming ice spears...One by one, they transformed, twisting into nightmarish, obsidian shards that redirected back towards Felix!

Felix acted quickly. He conjured a shield of white adamantine.

The corrupted shards clashed against his defense, resulting in a resonating explosion of shattered ice and dark energy.

Unfazed, Felix quickly moved to his next spell.

RUMBLE!!

With a flick of his hand and suddenly a bolt of lightning split the heavens, its brilliance a stark contrast to the pallid moonlight!

The air was alit with static energy, a palpable tension buzzing between the combatants.

"Is this a joke?"

Lucifer laughed, his voice a dissonant melody against the resounding thunder...His power thrummed in response, corrupting the bolt into a snake of seething darkness, reversing its trajectory towards Felix!

In a brilliant flash, Felix invoked the lesser time spell, Temporal Freeze!

Time itself bowed to his will as the lethal bolt of lightning hung suspended in midair, its deadly dance stilled by the spell's unyielding grasp!

He then used a spatial spell to shift the frozen bolt away, hurling it into the moonlit horizon.

"You even mastered time spells? You are making me want you more and more."
Lucifer licked his lips akin to a starving hyena, seemingly unafraid in the slightest by Felix's time spells.

It was understandable as his reaction speed would make it extremely difficult to get ensnared by a time spell unless Felix was capable of activating it in less than 0.0001 seconds!

Meanwhile, Fenrir's ultimate ability was undodgeable as it affected an entire planet in less than a few seconds!

"This is nothing."

Felix changed the rules of engagement.

In the next instant, Felix summoned an enormous wave of water, a liquid wall racing toward Lucifer.

With the water, he mixed his most potent poison, True Poison, turning the massive surge into a deadly torrent.

But Lucifer merely chuckled...He twisted his energy, corrupting the poison within the water, turning it harmless.

"If this is all you can offer, then this will end faster than I anticipated." Lucifer commentated as he manifested a magnificent dimension of potent sinister power source above him.

Then, without an ounce of hesitation, he transformed the dimension into millions of disgusting living leeches and sent them in the direction of his enemy!

With a subtle shift in his stance, Felix turned to face the swarm of living leeches, a nauseating mass birthed from corrupted energy.

Then, with a decisive thrust forward of his palm, he activated Concept Erasure!

In an instant, the power source leeches were met by a crimson palm manifested of out destruction energy, their existence challenged by the counterforce of Felix's ability!

One by one, millions of leeches disintegrated, their essence erased from reality, their threat neutralized by the absolute power of Felix's palm, leaving nothing behind but the echoes of their malevolent hisses...

"You do not seem to get it..." Felix stated calmly as he eyed Lucifer, "The only thing you had over me was spiritual pressure and reaction speed, but now? You should feel grateful I haven't ended this fight in the first second."

"So, drop your baseless pride and answer my question... Why are you coming after me?"

Chapter 1343 The Universal Conquest!

As Lucifer, reborn and ascended, began his universal rampage, the cosmos resonated with his sinister, indomitable presence!

With Felix's ultimate abilities, the ascension enhancement, and his original gifts, he seemed absolutely unstoppable!

He increased his size to that of celestial bodies using size manipulation ultimate ability, causing each step he took to echo across the void of space with the frightening tune of his power!

The crimson-haired titan traveled between celestial bodies with terrifying ease, his demonic form wreathed in an unholy aura.

With a mere sweep of his hand, he released unfathomable levels of evil energy that engulfed planets and sucked the last drop of purity from them!

'This is the good stuff!' Lucifer enjoyed the sensation very much as those purities were capable of enhancing his strength in all departments!

Unlike other demons, he wasn't affected by petty amounts, but devouring purities from celestial bodies whether populated or not was a different matter entirely.

His power, once merely a potent force, kept growing exponentially with each feast.

When he was done with planets, he moved to stars, leaving them dim in his wake, their energies sapped to the limit.

News of Lucifer's devastating conquest reverberated across the universe, eventually reaching the primogenitors.

Together, they confronted Lucifer, their combined power threatening to shake the very cosmos.

However, the reborn demon lord, now endowed with unparalleled strength, stood his ground.

The ensuing clash was cataclysmic, a tempest of clashing powers that twisted and warped the surrounding universe.

One by one, the primogenitors fell before Lucifer's unstoppable might. Lord Osiris, with his power over mortality, was reduced to dust.

Lord Quetzalcoatl, a symbol of life and growth, wilted and decayed under Lucifer's touch.

Lady Sphinx crumbled, grains dispersing into the endless void. Fenrir's chilling form melted away, and Lady Yggdrasil's verdant life force withered and browned.

With each defeat, Lucifer grew stronger, their fallen essences absorbed and integrated into his own...The universe trembled under his might as he claimed dominion overall.

In time, the cosmos fell under Lucifer's ironclad rule, its countless celestial bodies bending to his indomitable will.

His conquest was complete, and the universe was turned into his kingdom, a realm of darkness presided over by a monarch of unparalleled might: Lucifer, the ascended Demon God!

As Lucifer finally decided to take a break and sit on his throne to enjoy the fruits of his labor, memories of the past war-filled millennia surfaced in his mind.

"This happened exactly the same as my mother told me." Lucifer showed a pleased smile, "The moment I merge with my other half and ascend to my godhood, not a single being would be able to stop me."

"I just didn't expect those self-proclaimed gods to be slain so easily." Lucifer sneered, "What a joke."

It took him merely a few thousand years to completely conquer the universe and enslave everyone on it.

With him sucking purities out of millions of celestial bodies, primogenitors, and trillions of innocent lives, the universe might have been turned a bit quieter, but his strength could be said to have reached the final barrier...The barrier between a primogenitor and a Unigin.

With Lucifer's insane ambition, there was no way he was going to settle down like this for the rest of his life.

"I will be the true owner of the universe only after I deal with its guardians." Lucifer smiled coldly.

Although his confidence was brimming, Lucifer still understood that unigins were a different entity than primogenitors and he needed help from his mother to break past that wall.

So, after relaxing for less than a couple of days, Lucifer embarked on a journey back to the Darkness Well.

'Mother, as you have seen, I haven't disappointed you...The universe is now ours.' Lucifer said with a caring tone, something he never demonstrated to anyone before.

Even more, he was sitting in a meditation position with his head lowered in respect before the darkness well.

'Very good, my son, very good. His mother praised him with a proud tone, making Lucifer feel a tint of warmth in his frozen solid heart.

'But I still think this isn't over yet.' Lucifer stated coldly, 'I have done nothing but eradicate the primogenitors' pests, which the universe didn't want in the first place. I feel like the only way to truly rule over the universe is by getting rid of the guardians of the laws.'

'That's not easy.' His mother advised, "The guardians of laws are considered immortal beings for a reason. Even if you killed them, the universe would give birth to new ones in time. With their memories aligning together with their past selves, they will come for you.'

'It doesn't matter, I can just kill them again and keep killing them until the universe decides to bestow me with the freedom to rule it to maintain its integrity.' Lucifer requested, 'But to do that, I need to find out a way to break past the unigins' barrier and become as strong as them.'

"Unfortunately, that's impossible.' His Mother said.

'You always said that there is nothing as impossible.' Lucifer frowned.

'I lied.'

'But you never lie to me, you feel that's beneath you.' Lucifer's frown deepened, 'What happened to you, Mother?'

The voice from the other side kept to itself for a long while, which made Lucifer even more agitated and confused about the situation.

Crack!!! Crack!!!

The instant a single thought of suspicion had taken root in his mind, glass-shattering noise echoed in his mind like mirrors falling on the ground...

When he started looking around him, the mighty halls of his conquered kingdom seemed to have cracks on them.

The infinite cosmos seemed so close to him like he was merely sitting in a four-dimensional glass cube with cracks on its walls.

'What the hell is going on...'

A strange dread gripped him, an icy shiver curling around his heart... The universe seemed to sway, spinning out of control. His realm, his victory, his conquest - everything wavered like a mirage in the scorching desert heat. It was as if reality itself was shattering, breaking apart under the immense weight of his pride!

Then it happened.

The illusion that was his conquest crumbled into dust, and reality crashed down around him.

The feeling was akin to plunging from the highest pinnacle of celestial glory into the coldest abyss of mortal despair.

The palatial throne room with its grotesque grandeur, the unending sea of his damned followers, the primogenitors' corpses floating in the sea of nothingness, and the millions of stars and planets dimmed down, all vanished into nothingness...

The reality, stark and unwavering, rose up to greet him. His eyes were finally opened to the sight of a bleak farming field under a crimson sky.

A recognizable environment from thousands of years ago, as he could never forget the day of his triumph over Felix and ascension to godhood.

And there, standing before him, was Felix.

Unharméd. Unscathed. Not a single scratch marred his visage.

When he turned around and saw his three subordinates giving Felix murderous glares like the first time they had met, he couldn't help but open his mouth, but no words came out...

He merely turned to stare back at Felix and shared a moment of silence, seemingly trying his best to make sense of this impossible scene.

The triumph in his heart turned to ashes, replaced by a sudden, all-consuming realization.

"It was all a dream, a fantasy..." He murmured under his breath, making Lokaka and the two dragons' heads give him weird looks.

"My Lord?"

Lucifer ignored their calls as his mind was consumed with a single thought... He had been dreaming a bitter fantasy, and now he was awake.

"How...?"

Lucifer asked against his own will. His question targeted Felix as he knew it was his own doing.

"Just like in your fantasy, you refused to answer my questions. So, there is no point in sharing my answers with you." Felix replied calmly.

Before Lucifer or his baffled subordinate could react to his statement, Felix turned around and walked away.

"Where the f*ck you think you're going?!"

When Lokaka realized that his lord was out of it, he took it upon himself to stop Felix from escaping.

He pointed his antennas in his direction and attempted to cast a spatial freezing ability to keep Felix in place.

"I have gotten all I need from you."

Felix didn't even bother to turn around...He merely murmured with a low voice, but it was carrying a sense of undeniable authority.

"Totality Collapse,"

The atmosphere around him thickened, a tangible weight pressing down upon the entire realm.

His feet dug into the cracked ground beneath him as the essence of his being started to resonate with the very fabric of existence.

Then, he lifted his hands, palms upturned towards the heavens and the hells, and the resonance amplified.

RUMBLE! RUMBLE!!

Reality stuttered, shivering under the weight of his power. The ground began to crack open, vast chasms spreading out from beneath his feet!

Overhead, the sky roared in agony, seeming to tear apart at its very seams. A cataclysmic symphony of destruction resonated, its melody heralding the end of everything!!

Reality itself trembled as gravity, time, and space were drawn into the maelstrom of Felix's power!

Lucifer and his subordinates could only watch in horrified awe as their existence started to crumble.

Stones and debris started lifting off the ground, losing their gravity and floating toward the epicenter of the collapse.

Time distorted, stretching and compressing in wild fluctuations. Space itself seemed to warp and twist, a surreal painting by a maddened artist!

A final, deafening crack echoed out as the sky shattered entirely, revealing nothing but an all-encompassing, eternal darkness.

It was an abyss, an endless void, swallowing everything that once was.

The ground, too, finally gave in, crumbling into nothingness and leaving them suspended in the infinite dark.

The Totality Collapse had completed its course.

All that remained was Felix, standing amidst the void, the eternal darkness mirroring the determined emptiness in his eyes.

Around him, Lucifer and his subordinates were gone, along with their illusions of universal conquest.

Their existences were utterly erased from reality...

Chapter 1344 The Absurd And The Logical.

Felix stood alone in the void of nothingness, surrounded by the remnants of a shattered reality.

'Construction Cube:

He brought forth the mastered blue

Construction Cube...The cube hovered above his palm, pulsating with an energy that was capable of reassembling the fabric of existence.

"Expand." he commanded, his voice going silent in the void.

The Cube responded, brightening and emitting waves of energy that rippled out into the eternal darkness while getting bigger.

The energy pulsed rhythmically, like the beating of a cosmic heart, each pulse growing stronger and more potent!

First, it started with the ground. From nothingness, the energy began to weave strands of existence, drawing on the memory of what was.

Chunks of earth and stone materialized.

gradually filling the void. Grass sprouted, trees sprouted up, each growing rapidly as if time itself was compensating for its absence.

The sky followed suit, the eternal darkness giving way to a brilliant canvas of blue. Clouds took form, painting fluffy white streaks across the sky, and the sun, a glowing sphere of warmth, punctuated the heavens.

Finally, the cube pulsed one last time, as it reconstructed the intricacies of existence that everyone took for granted.

The flow of time resumed its steady rhythm, gravity reasserted its invisible pull, and space wrapped itself around everything, restoring everything that had been annihilated.

Even Lokaka and the two dragons' corpses were created on the ground without an ounce of life in their soulless eyes.

Felix lowered his hand, the cube going dormant once more. He stood amidst the restored environment, his eyes reflecting the returned beauty of the world around him.

The once-crumbling reality was now vibrant and full of life, a testament to the power of creation after destruction!

Felix had restored everything but Lucifer even though he knew that souls could never be reconstructed with his abilities.

Knowing that bastard possessed uncanny immortality, he didn't want to risk restoring his corpse just for him to return to life.

"Do you think he has died for real?" Asna inquired.

"The only way to be sure is to visit the darkness well and check there." Felix said with a solemn tone.

Felix was told that totality collapse was more than capable of erasing Lucifer from reality... But, after watching and hearing everything that happened in his fantasy, he wasn't so sure anymore.

Felix had heard and seen everything inside

Lucifer's fantasy even when it seemed like thousands of years had gone by.

That's because the conception of time was screwed up immensely in his fantasy and Lucifer had no idea about it.

'The ability used to tool Lucifer wasn't illusion domain as Felix hadn't reached 99% yet in his integration.

It was an active ability called, Fantasy Manifestation, and he had unlocked it at 30%.

It caused the target to have his most desired fantasy come to life by filling in the details himself and how he perceived it would end.

The illusion could be interrupted only when the details were questioned by the user just like what happened to Lucifer.

Felix had cast this ability before Lucifer and his subordinates got close to him...When they stepped into its invisible range, Felix targeted only Lucifer.

The reason Felix managed to sell it at the start was because he got himself inside the fantasy and played along with Lucifer until the moment he used his own evil energy to cripple him.

Felix ditched the fantasy and let it play out as Lucifer anticipated.

This was the reason Felix's consciousness space was empty and the takeover of his soul hadn't involved Asna in the slightest.

How could Lucifer fill in the details of something he had no idea about?

"The ascension, demon god, mother, and the overbearing strength he showed against the primogenitors. Thor shook his head, "It's hard to figure out what was real and what was made up by his own beliefs."

At the end of the day, a fantasy was nothing but a world of imagination and wish fulfillment.

If Lucifer was acting on wish fulfillment, then many scenes could be questioned.

"Since he went to request help from his 'mother' to overthrow the unigins, it means that his beliefs weren't completely irrational. Otherwise, he would have already made up something and destroyed them as well." Lady Sphinx said.

"That's true..." Felix knitted his eyebrows, "For him to seek his mother's help while inside his own fantasy means that he sees her as above him even when he had already conquered the universe and killed all the primogenitors that stood in front of him."

In this universe, only unigins and those beings were known to be above primogenitors...

"I guess she really has woken up. J?rmungandr said with a serious tone.

Just like the discussion had summoned him, Lord Khaos appeared on his chair at the meeting table and uttered expressionlessly, "The Paragon of Sins."

Everyone nodded with heavy looks. None of them were pleased by the news in the slightest since the paragon always made a mess in the universe.

The current demonic plague was enough proof of her sinister nature.

"If she is involved in this, then don't be foolish to believe that it's over." Lord Khoas remarked calmly.

"The fact that Lucifer calls her his mother implies that she has created him, which makes it even harder to believe that he has been gone for good." Asna added.

"Well, his soul has been erased from existence and unless she can give birth to another demon similar to Lucifer, then I don't see him reviving again. Elder Kraken interjected.

As a soul expert, he was certain that it would be impossible for Lucifer to be revived with his memories and such intact after being hit by Totality Collapse.

Soul erasure was nothing like normal death as it implied complete removal from the universe and all of its dimensions... Even primogenitors would have no way of ever coming back if their souls were gone.

"If he can't be revived, then I have a feeling she will create another one to finish her peculiar mission." Thor rubbed his chin as he recalled the scenes from Lucifer's fantasy.

"I am honestly confused about the whole matter."

Asna uttered with a puzzled tone, "It's clear as day from the fantasy that Lucifer is under the assumption that he could steal Felix's body and ascend to a Demon God. The Paragon of Sins is the one putting him under such an insane assumption. So, is the ascension a real thing or not? I am finding it hard to believe that the Paragon of Sins put Lucifer into this as a prank, but at the same time, I find it absolutely absurd."

From what they had witnessed, the ascension seemed like it was destined to happen as the moment Lucifer took over Felix's body, he gained insane strength enhancement in addition to a new makeover.

It was like they were missing soulmates and when he took over, he became whole again.

"I don't know if the ascension is a real thing or not, but him defeating Felix in the consciousness space was logical." Lady Sphinx shared her observation, "He believed that Felix's soul was normal and if he defeats Felix, he could kill his consciousness and own both his soul and body.

It's quite possible since it will be the same as the demonization process, only this time, instead of merging evil energy with one's soul, it will be Lucifer."

"He did say that he is the evil energy." Thor nodded, "I can totally see it happening now."

Felix and others understood Lady Sphinx's explanation as it made the most sense.

Asna believed that the whole situation was absurd since she understood that souls need to be compatible to either merge or take over the other and control the body without any problems.

She had personal experience with this as she spent millions of years trying to find a soul compatible with her, which was a miracle on its own as it almost never happens.

But this clearly didn't apply to Lucifer due to the unique invasive nature of evil energy!

When people get demonized, they end up having evil energy merged with their souls without an issue, providing them with immortality and other goodies for a price...It could be considered a parasite that needed a host to continue existing.

But, if Lucifer was the consciousness of evil energy, then he would be able to steal anyone's body and control them!

"This also explains why Lucifer's personally demonized subordinates keep their memories and their original powers while being brainwashed by him. Felix stressed, "He must be leaving his own personal evil power source inside their soul, making it possible to contain the nasty side effects and for them to never betray him since he could literally control them like his puppets if he wanted.

"Seems logical.

The tenants agreed with Felix's assumption as it checked over the boxes of their theory.

"If he knew about Asna's existence, he would not have dared to go for it as it would be impossible to own the entire soul without dealing with her." Thor said.

"This means that the Paragon of Sins also has no clue about my existence since she will know that her mission was bound to fail" Asna remarked.

Just as the tenants were about to agree with her, Lord Khoas disclosed emotionlessly, "I can't speak for anything else, but the Paragon of Sins never does anything meaningless."

"Whether she knew or not, there must be another end goal here that we aren't seeing.

Lady Sphinx and the others understood that Lord Khoas knew the most about the Paragon of Sins, and if he said this about her, then they could only trust his judgment.

"For now, I'll focus on freeing my people from this demonic plague." Felix uttered with a stern tone, "Whether she sends Lucifer or a new demon with the same strength as him, this time, I will make sure to open his brain and find out the entire truth.

Chapter 1345 Sharing The News!

Felix walked to the Lokaka and the dragons' corpses. Then, he beamed them in his spatial card.

He planned on taking them to Olivia to reverse the demonization process as their bodies still remained in their demonic form even after they were killed.

It was normal since the evil energy attached to their physical bodies was also restored. Though, it would be much easier to reverse the process for them due to their souls being gone.

Felix wanted to do this for two reasons. Give Lokaka's wife his corpse as a closure and take away the royal gemstones from the two dragon clan heads before handing out their corpses to their respective families.

"You think they will be pleased to know that you are the killer?" Asna commented.

"I don't care." Felix replied, "I am doing the right thing as the grand supreme, whether they accept it or take it negatively, that's up to them."

While Felix had no ulterior motives for this, he would rather have them take it in a positive matter and support his back, finally burying the hatchet between them...If not, it wouldn't matter much as with his current strength, no one in the alliance could stand against him anymore.

It was like a primogenitor becoming the alliance's leader...Everyone would bow their heads respectfully as they knew that a single glance from him was capable of killing them.

"Candance, give me information for the other princes' locations." Felix requested as he teleported inside the Eternal Nautilus' cockpit, scaring the temporarily hired crewmates.

Felix didn't find much trouble getting them when he had saved more than tens of millions of refugees of all occupations and fields.

The only reason everything was going smoothly in the spaceship was due to the people volunteering their help in all departments.

"Grand Supreme!"

After a respectful greeting from his cremates, Felix sat in the captain's cockpit and handed them new coordinates.

"Take us here after the evacuation process ends." Felix ordered.

He had just received the location from Candace, and she told him that it was the latest known position of Prince Satan as he had taken an entire solar system inside the ores' galaxy as his newly arising kingdom.

In the past months, Felix ignored the princes and focused on saving as many people as possible while heading back to his galaxy.

In his eyes, if Lucifer made a move on his bait, then it would be for the best, but if he ignored him, he wouldn't be losing anything.

But now that he had taken care of Lucifer, it was time to get rid of the remaining snake heads to leave the demons without leaders.

Demons without leaders have absolutely no idea what to do besides chasing after purities.

'Log in'

As the grand supreme, Felix had to update the rest of the leaders about the situation to switch the entire flow of the war from defense to offense.

After the meeting was set up and most inner circle leaders had attended it, Felix skipped the bullsh*t and announced with an emotionless tone, "I have killed Lucifer using a destruction ability capable of erasing souls. I don't know if he will be revived or not, but I am certain he won't be bothering with leading the demonic invasion anymore."

The inner circle leaders sat frozen in the assembly hall, eyes wide in disbelief and shock.

The news of Felix's audacious act hit them like a bolt of lightning out of a clear sky - he had slain

Lucifer, the menacing force that had overshadowed their lives for more than six decades!

A stunned silence filled the room as they wrestled with the enormity of the revelation.

The power dynamics they had accepted as unchangeable were disrupted, leaving them grappling with profound shock.

Seeing their reaction, Felix waved his hand and showed them the last moment of Lucifer and his subordinates before getting devoured by Totality Collapse.

Queen Alfreda was the first to break the silence.

"Felix, you have confronted a terror we dared not even dream of facing. And yet, the video you have shown us... It's unbelievable."

With a mix of awe and trepidation in his voice, Werewolves King Treznor echoed his sentiments. "We knew you had strength, Felix, but this. This means you have become a deity!"

This was one of the reasons every one of them was stunned at the news...They understood that unless Felix became a deity, he could never defeat Lucifer!

"I did."

While they still anticipated it, the revelation hit the inner circle leaders like an unexpected wave after Felix confirmed it.

Their faces lit up with an electrifying mix of awe and excitement as Felix declared his transformation into a deity.

Yet, beneath the surface, a bitter undertow ran strong.

Felix, a mere human, had ascended beyond their reach, touching the divine... Each leader couldn't help but feel a twinge of envy, a stab of melancholy.

They celebrated for him but also mourned for themselves.

A human had become a deity, crossing a boundary they had once deemed impassable, and in their hearts, they understood that the divide between them had deepened.

They smiled and cheered for Felix as they knew that his ascension implied the ascension of the alliance, but in the solitude of their minds, a quiet sadness seeped in, tainted by a fit of jealousy they could not express...

All of them made sure to keep those emotions buried in their hearts.

"The ramifications of this are huge," The Spider Kin's Princess Maeralya uttered with an upbeat tone, "Your power can change the entire tide of this war!"

"The tide has already changed with Lucifer's death." Queen Alfreda addressed, "We have to make a universal wide announcement to include everyone on the news"

"Agreed!"

Everyone approved the decision even when it seemed dangerous to alert the demons of their king's death.

It was understandable... The SGAlliance had their asses kicked for the past six decades and everyone's morals were at a new-time low.

They needed a win desperately to lift them up and there was nothing better than an announcement of the worst demon getting slain by their own Grand Supreme!

"Do as you see fit." Felix approved, "I will be handling the remaining princes in the meantime."

Felix took his leave after that statement...He didn't even give time for Lokaka's wife to speak about her husband as she was still dazed by the sight of seeing him getting erased from existence in the video.

Alas, even if she woke up from her daze in time, she had nothing to say against Felix... He had killed Lucifer and those three were mere unavoidable collateral damage.

If she dared to accuse him of anything, the other leaders would make sure to put her down without needing Felix to open his mouth.

"Queen, please contact Olivia, Noah, Selphie, and Bodidi, and put them in one video call' Felix requested.

After a few beeping noises, the calls were picked up one by one until all of them were on one giant holographic screen.

There were no surprised pleasantries or such as Felix had already contacted them the moment he departed from the Elementals Galaxy.

Though, they had no clue about him becoming a deity or replacing his bloodline yet again.

"Good work on Lucifer."

Unexpectedly, Noah was the first to speak as he gave a compliment with the most serious expression ever.

Clearly, he had heard the news from his master Fenrir.

"I just gave him the meeting that he always wanted." Felix joked as he smiled faintly, dropping his guard in front of his friends.

"You actually killed him?!" Olivia reacted excitedly as always, "Does this means we won't need to worry about new demons?!"

"As long as we reverse every single demon and completely annihilate evil energy from our territories, there will always be new demons being born." Felix said, "Though, the good news is that it won't be as aggressive and rapid as before."

Lucifer was doing more damage than all demons combined since he was capable of demonizing entire planets in less than a day.

The worst part, he could open portals inside planets with the help of Lokaka or other space worms and avoid all defensive measures.

If it wasn't for him, this demonic plague would have ended much differently as the SGAliaance's forces weren't to be underestimated.

With him gone and Felix going after the princes, there would be really fewer and fewer demons being born.

"Felix, does this means you have become an origin bloodliner?" Selphie questioned in confusion, "Why does your appearance look the same? Are you contacting us from the UVR and keeping the previous one?"

This question made everyone curious as they knew that Felix's origin realm was going to be widely different from any other human...After all, he used only primogenitors' bloodlines in his path.

But Felix threw a curveball at them.

"I haven't reached the origin realm yet."

"Huh?!"

Before they could react to his statement, Felix canceled his shapeshifting and showed them his new appearance with somewhat of an embarrassed look.

"I have replaced my bloodline for the last time."

"What. The."

Chapter 1346 The Awakening of The Paragon of Sins.

While Felix was being grilled for answers about the method used to push past the sixth bloodline by his friends, an event of cosmic magnitude was transpiring in the depth of the void realm on the other side of the universe.

Here where reality bowed to mystery and the fabric of existence danced to unseen forces, the Paragon of Sins was beginning to awaken.

Her eyelids, vast expanses of cosmic canvas, began to flutter. The texture of her skin, a deep purplish hue, seemed to ripple and shimmer, as though filled with entire galaxies.

Nebulae, supernovae, and celestial bodies all were vividly represented in the tapestry of her flesh, each contributing to a mesmerizing spectacle of cosmic grandeur.

Even the void, in her presence, seemed to concede its starkness, as if the constellations within her were radiating an ethereal glow that defied the inherent desolation.

Then, her eyes began to open, a moment that turned the event horizon into the most splendid stage.

As her eyes fully opened, light erupted from them, a brilliance that spread outwards like the birth of a supernova, irradiating the void realm with vibrant, life-affirming radiance!

The magnitude of her size was staggering, comparable to a galaxy's quasar. There she floated, a colossal celestial deity, her vast silhouette dominating the void.

Here in the unforgiving void, the Paragon of Sins awoke, a beautiful gargantuan woman wrapped in the skin of the cosmos, and with eyes that ignited existence itself...And she didn't seem pleased one bit.

'He somehow failed to achieve both plans. Now that he has given his end goal and the method, the kid will make it extremely difficult for him to give it another go.' The Paragon's thoughts seemed to rumble in the silent expanse of the void realm.

Unbeknownst to Felix and the tenants, she did know about Asna's existence and a lot more about Felix than they could imagine.

She didn't care about whether Lucifer failed or succeeded in the merge, it would still serve as part of her plan if the merge went through.

But, she didn't expect that Lucifer would get blindsided this badly and end up exposing his cards inside an illusion, making Felix end him without commencing the merge.

'This is quite a setback, but nothing that can't be handled.' The Paragon murmured, 'Doing this will force me to go into slumber for a while again, but it's worth it to attain my eternal freedom...'

A subtle vibration of energy began to ripple around her, emanating from a locus of malicious energy that clung to her gigantic form.

The Paragon closed her pink, luminous eyes, her divine consciousness rippling in tandem with the void.

In the sprawling expanse of her mind, she reached in, carving out a fragment of her own consciousness.

With an ethereal grace, she reached out and took the sliver of consciousness.

The piece was trembling, vibrant with sentience and potential, a sharp contrast to the corruption that awaited it.

Then, with an act of will that echoed across the cosmos, she pushed it into the crimson energy mass.

The moment the fragment of consciousness touched the energy, a brilliant explosion erupted, cascading waves of pink and purple light across the void.

As the light subsided, a flux of memories began to flow into the nascent consciousness. These were not ordinary memories; they were the collective recollections of Lucifer from the moment he was born.

As the tide of Lucifer's memories washed over the newborn consciousness, a miraculous transformation began to occur.

The energy mass began to change, to morph, until it resembled Lucifer in form.

This was Lucifer reborn, sculpted from the raw energy of the Paragon's sin, endowed with a new consciousness, and nourished on the memories of his previous existence!

Despite the same memories, this Lucifer was different, a reincarnation infused with a part of the Paragon herself, unlike his past self!

He was born of her, and through her, given a second chance to redeem himself!

'Mother...I have failed you and I am undeserving of your grace.'

The first thing that Lucifer did was kneel down with a distraught expression, knowing exactly how big he screwed up against Felix.

While his loss had affected him badly, disappointing his celestial mother was even worse.

'I don't have time for excuses.' The Paragon spoke with a faint voice like a candle on the verge of being extinguished. 'Listen, I have bestowed upon you a tiny fragment of my consciousness and it might not be able to overpower his spiritual pressure, but it will help you resist any similar mental attacks. So, do not fall for the same trick twice and bring me desirable results. I don't care if you had to use outside help or sacrifice the entire demon race, just make the merge happen...'

As she had reached the last sentence, the Paragon's breathtaking eyes seemed to have closed on their own while the shimmering brilliant light of her celestial body dimmed down akin to a dying star.

In a few moments at best, the void realm had returned to its peaceful state and Lucifer was left all alone with a solemn expression.

He knew that his mother was punished for reviving him as the same had happened during his birth.

While the other princes and everyone else were under the impression that the seven princes were the only demons born out of evil energy, Lucifer was the only one knowing the whole truth.

He was in fact, the consciousness of the evil energy being born after getting fed neutral energy through the Paragon of Sins for a very, very long time!

Lucifer wasn't calling The Paragon of Sins his mother for no reason...He knew that she made his birth possible and without her, there wouldn't be even something called evil energy in the first place.

As an outsider Elemental, he didn't have a god figure like Foremother Siamese who could revive him infinitely in case his consciousness got obliterated without consequences.

Lucifer's consciousness was more than obliterated as it was erased from reality through Totality Collapse, which meant The Paragon of Sins had to go the extra mile to bring him back with his memories still intact.

It was more than possible with the Greed Sin laws that were capable of fulfilling any wish as long as the price was right.

In this case, it had cost her plenty of years of deep slumber.

Meanwhile, the other six princes were actually born because of Lucifer to help him spread out his roots on a wider scale without him needing to do anything.

Since he didn't give a crap about authority over demons or such as they were a mere tool to fulfill his destiny, he left them to believe that they were his equals.

This was the source of the misinformation.

'I can't disappoint Mother again as she won't be merciful the next time.' Lucifer narrowed his eyes coldly, 'That bastard must believe that I have been slain, and the only way to keep this assumption alive is to leave my race to die out and for his alliance to win the war.'

Lucifer was planning to change his entire approach to the matter.

At first, he was confident that he was unkillable and that Felix's end would be the same no matter what he tried.

But now? It was time to be smart about it and he had no problem with acting like a snake, waiting for the perfect opportunity to pounce, even if it meant giving up on the demonic invasion and his entire race!

'I have one more chance and I won't blow it again.'

Lucifer uttered with a suppressed tone as he exited the void realm from the darkness well and went into hiding...

A couple of days later...

The SGAlliance and the demons across the entire universe were rocked with the news of the Grand Supreme slaying The Demon King!

The impact of this revelation was as potent as an earthquake...Within the ranks of the SGAlliance, a seismic shift took place.

Soldiers who had once been desolate, weighed down by the rigors of war, now stood tall, their spirits soaring.

They began to fight with renewed vigor, the morale boost fueling their courage, and their tenacity amplified.

On the other side, the demon hordes were dealt a staggering blow. The news of Lucifer's downfall spread like wildfire, seeping into their ranks and sapping the morale of their forces.

Their roars of defiance became subdued, and their once fiery eyes now flickered with uncertainty...The icon of their rebellion, their prince, was gone, and with his absence, their resolve was shattered.

The fact that days went by and Lucifer hadn't come out to disapprove of the news made it even harder to stomach...

The six princes were affected the worst as they knew that their entire invasion was heavily reliant on Lucifer's overbearing strength.

What scared them even more was Lucifer's silence...They could understand him getting defeated by Felix or even killed, but the notion of him not being revived sent shivers down their spine.

"Lucifer had fought the ice primogenitors tens of times and emerged unaffected." Prince Beelzebub said nervously, "He can't have been killed for real? Right? He just can't."

"Whether he died for real or not, we are next on the menu for their leader." Prince Satan uttered with a solemn tone, "We have to go into hiding to protect ourselves."

"But the war..."

"Screw the war, I refuse to die here!"

Chapter 1347 Seeking A New Method.

"He is right, this is not the time to worry about our territories." Prince Abaddon said with a solemn tone, "For Lucifer to get defeated, he must have become a deity and you know damn well, he can kill us with a mere glance."

With Lucifer being super active in this war and exposing his real strength, the six princes dropped any thoughts they had about the throne.

If they knew about it beforehand, they wouldn't have even considered it.

"I am ditching my kingdom and going into hiding." Prince Satan advised, "I suggest you do the same if you value your life."

While this decision had upset them immensely, they understood that it was the only way to save themselves.

...

On the other side of the universe, three more beings were hit the hardest by the news of Lucifer's death under Felix's hands...The Darkins!

"It finally happened...That annoying brat has reached our level." Saurous didn't know whether to be depressed or angry with how things turned out.

If someone came to him before he met Felix and he told him that in eight decades, this worthless human kid would become a deity, he would have laughed him out of the room.

But, here he was...Hiding in a corner of the universe with his partners because of the same kid, hoping for him to get killed by any means possible.

"I really thought that demon has it in the bag, but I have been disappointed too many times, I am starting to feel that unless we killed him with our two hands, it won't happen." Wendigo sighed.

"Then, let's start preparing ourselves." Manananggal said calmly, "Now, that he has reached a deity level, he is bound to target us of his own volition with his masters."

"It will be five against three." Saurous frowned, "But, he is still a mere newbie and he needs millions of years to reach our elemental range if not more."

"I am done underestimating that brat." Wendigo shook his head, "His elemental range might be trash compared to us, but he has multiple ultimate abilities in his arsenal, and that translates to billions of years of effort stacked on each other."

His partners agreed with his statement as much as they disliked the sound of it. There were plenty of things that separated a primogenitor from any deity.

Besides the reaction speed and spiritual pressure, it was the immense time they took to master their elements...Ultimate abilities were considered the pinnacle of their effort, struggle, and hard work.

Felix possessed five ultimate abilities if the void domain was considered.

This implied that only elemental range, battle experience, and immortality were the difference between him and a primogenitor.

Five ultimate abilities were potent enough to make those differences obsolete if they underestimated him and ended up getting hit by them.

"What's worse, he has the concept destruction ability, which helps him avoid any damages caused by our elements if he marked them." Wendigo frowned, "This means the only way to kill him is to assassinate him from a long distance, giving him no time to react."

"That's why I said we need to prepare." Manananggal stated, "We have to make our assassination plan tight-proof, unlike the last time."

Outnumbered or not, the darkins had no intentions of hiding in the corner like rats if Felix dared to step foot in the seven demon realms.

One could only wonder what would their reaction be if they found out that J? rmungandr and Thor weren't even in the picture.

Five Days Later...

The blood-red sun began to rise as Felix approached the ominous perimeters of Prince Satan's demonic city.

A city that had once throbbed with the energy of malevolent power and diabolical life now lay vacant and eerily silent.

"As expected, the announcements have scared them off." Felix uttered nonchalantly as he ventured through the ghostly streets.

Using his evil vision, he could see that not a single demon was left in the city, which meant either Prince Satan had taken them with him or sent them away.

"Well, they can hide for as long as they want. But, they can't continue demonizing more of our people without exposing themselves." Candace sneered.

"The others must have abandoned their kingdoms as well." Felix ordered, "Let's get out of here."

Although the planet was packed with demons, Felix had no intentions of killing them...It was best to leave them be until Olivia help them reverse the demonization process.

'Queen, call Olivia.'

'Olivia is unavailable at the moment.' Queen Ai replied, making Felix understand that she must be busy with another demon batch.

So, he called Noah and asked for updates.

"The demonization reversal process is going smoothly." Noah shared expressionlessly.

"How much percentage do you reckon you have done?"

"Based on the latest Intel, we must have reversed the process for at least 3% across the galaxy."

"That's it?" Felix frowned, "It's way too slow."

"It can't be helped, Olivia is all alone in this and we can do nothing but increase the number of demons." Noah responded.

"I know, but it's still too slow. I have to figure out an alternative if we want to reverse the process for most people before they lose their rationality." Felix said with a serious tone.

Felix knew that it would take Olivia centuries if not more to reverse the process for the majority of the demons in the universe.

By then, most demons would have become animalistic and even if the process was reversed, they would become vegetables.

Felix had no intentions of having hundreds of billions of demonized citizens turn into vegetables on his watch.

After he hung up on Noah, Felix sat down with his thoughts and began brainstorming a new plan to accelerate the reversal process.

With Olivia already coming up with a method, he didn't stride away from it.

"Olivia is using Lady Yggdrasil's ultimate ability and a perfect balance of sucking evil energy and pushing pure energy to reverse the demonization." Felix pondered, "While she needs to supervise each demonization process, the same doesn't apply to Lady Yggdrasil."

"Are you thinking of requesting Lady Yggdrasil to help out?" Asna asked.

"I don't see another way." Felix nodded, "Unlike Olivia, Lady Yggdrasil could create hundreds to even thousands of seeds of life and control them from a distance through a consciousness link. This means it's possible to accelerate the process by hundreds of times if she hands out the seeds of life to us and we plant them on the most affected planets."

"Olivia already did the dirty irritating work of finding the perfect balance, if she shared it with Lady Yggdrasil, she wouldn't really be putting much effort into the demonization reversal."

"It's feasible, but will Lady Yggdrasil help out?" Asna shook her head, "She might be kinder than most primogenitors, but she wasn't known for being charitable either."

Ever since the war started, the primogenitors merely sat in the shadows and spectated the whole thing without lifting a finger.

Even when some races were on the verge of extinction, they still kept to themselves.

It was expected...The primogenitors take the pact of staying out of mortal matters quite seriously.

Since even Fenrir wasn't capable of handling Lucifer, none of them felt the need to get themselves involved in this...At least, not until the universe itself gets endangered.

Lady Yggdrasil had also kept to herself and didn't bother helping out the demonized elves on the eighth and ninth elvish realms since they were situated the furthest from her body.

The remaining realms were protected by her immense life force that transform into pure energy the moment it sensed evil energy in the vicinity, but the remaining two weren't so lucky.

Selphie was situated in that ninth realm for the past six decades and tried her best to lead the resistance to save everyone.

The eighth realm didn't have it as bad as the ninth realm since the latter was packed with half-blood/Mixed breed elves and other races, making them not prioritized by the elvish armies.

If Lady Yggdrasil even ignored the woes of citizens in her own body, one could only imagine her response when Felix request thousands of constant seeds of life.

"The only way to move a primogenitor is through a favor or a trade." Felix smirked faintly, "I just need to make an offer that she finds irresistible, and I think I know what it is."

Chapter 1348 The Deal With Lady Yggdrasil.

Sometime later...

Felix was back in Lady Yggdrasil's personal garden inside the UVR.

It was a serene oasis, shimmering under a celestial light, a living testament to her divine connection with nature. Enigmatic, ancient trees towered above, their branches whispering age-old secrets.

Vibrant, mystic flowers bloomed in abundance, their enchanting scents permeating the air with a celestial sweetness.

At the garden's heart stood the grand Yggdrasil tree, the lifeblood of her domain, its mighty branches reaching out as if to embrace the cosmos.

Each element of the garden seemed infused with Lady Yggdrasil's energy, creating a sacred sanctuary that was as timeless as she.

Felix walked with Selphie at his side toward the center tree. She was the one setting up the meeting with her mother and she wanted to accompany him.

Felix found no reason to reject her since she could help him sway Lady Yggdrasil's decision in their favor.

When they arrived, they noticed that Lady Yggdrasil was sitting under the tree with a cup of tea in one hand and a book in the other.

The same picture that was stuck in Felix's mind after his last meeting with her.

"Elder, I am here to ask for a favor." Felix went straight to the subject as he requested with his head lowered respectfully.

"Favor? I hope you don't think that you can ask for free favors from primogenitors now that you have become a deity." Lady Yggdrasil chuckled softly.

"I wouldn't dare." Felix shook his head.

He understood that asking for favors from primogenitors was a serious matter and all of them avoid having to resort to it at all costs since returning those favors was a must.

In other words, if Felix asked for a favor, then he should expect that Lady Yggdrasil would ask him for one later on and regardless of its content, he had to try his best to make it happen.

No one would want to have such a sword hanging down their necks.

"Speak up, then." Lady Yggdrasil smiled, "If it's a small one, I can do it free of charge for taking care of my daughter in the Elementals Galaxy."

"First, she took care of me and I would forever be indebted to her." Felix smiled as he gazed at Selphie's shy demeanor. Then, he added with a serious tone, "Secondly, it's not a small one. I am hoping that you can lend us your help to accelerate the demonization process and save as many citizens as possible."

"I see...That's indeed not a small favor." Lady Yggdrasil closed her book gently and said, "You know that you are asking me to break the pact and interfere in matters unrelated to primogenitors."

"But mom..." Selphie wanted to help.

"I am not finished." Lady Yggdrasil raised her finger and continued on calmly, "You are the ones who decided to invade the demons' territories for the sake of riches and territories. If you were just content with your situation, none of this would have happened."

Neither Felix nor Selphie was able to retort.

While Selphie had nothing to do with the decision, Felix was the one announcing that his first order as the Grand Supreme was to conquer the other side.

No one pushed him to do it.

Now that the situation had developed to this state, it wasn't honest of him to come seeking help from primogenitors to fix his own mess.

"If that deity demon was still running rampant and threatening our stability, we would have stopped him without any of you finding out." Lady Yggdrasil said, "You have taken care of him, and applaud you for that. However, the aftermath of the war isn't really our problem to solve."

In other words, all the demonized citizens could go to flames and none of them would bat an eye.

As primogenitors who lived through multiple eras, tens of billions of deaths were nothing to them as they knew that more would be born in the future.

This massacre would serve as a lesson to the alliance to never antagonize a race without proper research.

"I am not trying to avoid responsibility and I know that I have played a big part in how the situation developed," Felix responded with a bitter smile. "But, I refuse to leave it to end like this when I know that there is something to be done."

"So, if a favor won't do, then how about a deal?"

"A deal?" Lady Yggdrasil was intrigued. "Is it coming from you or your masters?"

"Me and me alone."

Felix replied, understanding that she implied his inability to offer anything that could be considered worth having her break the pact and get her hands dirty.

"My interest is piqued." Lady Yggdrasil smiled.

'You really have something to offer?'

Even Selphie was curious.

'I do.' Felix looked straight into Lady Yggdrasil's eyes and proposed, "I am willing to help you with analyzing the runic codex until its completion."

"..."

"..."

Both Lady Yggdrasil and Selphie shared a similar startled expression at his bold statement. Felix had expected such a reaction as he knew that his offer was more than questionable.

After all, even after billions of years, Lady Yggdrasil had yet to finish analyzing the entire book.

In fact, it was believed that she barely analyzed half of it and the remaining half was still filled with millions of all possible spells using all known elements!

Some were even confident that omnipotent spells weren't the end of the rope and that there were even more complex spells that could rival primogenitors' ultimate abilities!

Such a theory had some legit basis as it was known that runic spells were similar to elemental abilities in all departments but the medium used to achieve them.

This implied similar ultimate abilities could be extrapolated from the runic codex or even unknown ones if a worthy person was capable of doing it.

But, when even Lady Yggdrasil had failed to create new spells above omnipotent grade, no one thought there could be another one capable of doing it.

Even Selphie with her monstrous talent would end up facing a massive wall if she dared to create the impossible.

"I understand that saying this makes me seem way out of my head." Felix shared with a serious tone, "But, I am confident in my ability to help."

"I will entertain you." Lady Yggdrasil chuckled and asked, "How will you help?"

"With those two."

Felix pointed at his eyes as he activated his wisdom eyes and turned them completely black.

"Wisdom eyes." Lady Yggdrasil commentated.

"Yes." Felix spoke with a confident tone, "Lord Shiva has helped me master them and I have utilized their best capabilities in my space/time spells. In a short period, I have mastered four lesser time spells, and the only reason I didn't commit to all of them is due to having other strengths that needed focus."

"Also, because I knew that there are barely less than fifteen-time spells and there is no rush to master them all."

"How is this any different than what my daughter is doing?" Lady Yggdrasil shook her head, "Wisdom eyes are amazing alright, but they did nothing but bridge the gap between you and Selphie. If your comprehension was already on Selphie's level, then having those wisdom eyes will be the same as giving wings to a tiger. Then, I would have actually considered the proposal and helped you with this eternal goal of mine...Alas."

Lady Yggdrasil wasn't trying to put Felix down and he knew it. Wisdom's eyes were an amplifying tool.

In Felix's case, his comprehension of the runes was absolutely dog sh*t in the first place.

With their assistance, he managed to get around the complexity of lesser time spells by simplifying them for him.

However, if he tried to use them for greater or even omnipotent time spells, even the simplified version would be too complex for him and it would take him a long while to master them.

On the other hand, if Selphie possessed wisdom eyes, omnipotent spells would seem like lesser spells!!

A genius being given a supercomputer at his disposal wouldn't provide the same results as being in the hands of someone else.

Felix had no problems admitting to this and his original plan was leading to this point.

"Then, how about this." Felix smiled, "I will offer Selphie my help to obtain the wisdom eyes and she can focus on analyzing the runic codex."

"Huh?" Selphie was shocked.

"Now, it's getting interesting." Lady Yggdrasil narrowed her eyes at him, "How are you planning to do that?"

"I can't help her possess the real thing, but I can make sure to bend reality to make it seem like she possesses it with the help of Illusion Domain." Felix smirked faintly.

Chapter 1349 The End Of The Demonic Invasion!

The moment Lady Yggdrasil heard this, she couldn't help but show a content smile.

"I am familiar with the illusion domain's true potency and if you really unlocked the ability, then I can see this deal going through."

"I have yet to unlock it, but I am 100% certain I will do so when I reach 99% in my integration." Felix assured.

Although Felix knew that Lord Loki might possess an ultimate ability plus an elemental domain, he was certain that the domain would be picked.freewebrnoveℓ.com

It was because the last unlocked ability always targeted the most remarkable ability of the bloodline owner, and ultimate abilities had nothing against elemental domains in this department.

Lady Yggdrasil took a few moments to look at Selphie and asked, "Are you willing to take this mission? Creating new spells from the runic codex is already immensely difficult, attempting to analyze it to completion is no easy task and it might take you a lifetime and still not achieve it."

Lady Yggdrasil wanted Selphie to learn and master time spells and become the greatest spellcaster of all time, but she never thought of placing her dream and goal on her shoulder.

"As long as you help me Mother, I believe we can do it together." Selphie smiled, her eyes glowing with a new purpose.

"I will be there every step of the way." Lady Yggdrasil smiled back.

"Then, I guess we have a deal?" Felix inquired.

Lady Yggdrasil nodded before asking, "I believe you want to plant multiple seeds of life across the corrupted planets and make me reverse the demonization, correct?"

It wasn't hard for Lady Yggdrasil to figure out Felix's plan the moment he shared his request.

"Exactly." Felix didn't beat around the bush, "There are more than seven hundred billion demonized citizens across the entire alliance's territory. This is the known number and it might even have crossed one trillion if we counted the isolated civilizations. I hope you can share with us as many seeds of life as you can manage and help us fight through this."

"Hmmm, alright then." Lady Yggdrasil agreed without any more questions.

"Much appreciated." Felix bowed deeply in gratitude.

Although he had traded his time for this, in reality, he would have helped Selphie in analyzing the runic codex anyways since it was beneficial to him as well.

After all, the more time spells she created, the more he would add to his arsenal...He had no time to invest in analyzing the runic codex when he had many other problems to cover.

So, he wasn't really losing anything from this deal.

....

After the deal was concluded, Felix shared the news with the inner circle leaders and worked with them to create a new powerful division responsible for the delivery of the seeds of life and overseeing the process.

Obviously, Felix had gotten credit for this from the leaders as everyone was more than pleased to learn that he had convinced a primogenitor to involve themselves in their mess.

But Felix didn't give a sh*t about such a needless ego boost and made everyone work the extra mile to conclude the creation of this division and start with the universal wide demonization reversal.

With him putting his foot on this, no one tried to play politics and attempt to steal as many seeds of life as possible to prioritize their own territories.

Felix made it clear that the oldest invaded planets would be prioritized since the citizens there were on the verge of sucking their planets dry from purities and being left with no rationality intact.

With all preparation set and Lady Yggdrasil delivering her promise and handing out hundreds of seeds of life to the responsible division, the project was fully commenced in less than a week.

In the throbbing heart of the vast, star-speckled cosmos, the SGAlliance's fleets surged forward like a surge of silvery fish cutting through the ocean's abyss.

Each ship was a glistening titan, its streamlined hull gleaming in the harsh, white starlight, wings outspread in a show of might and solidarity.

Each world they approached was a harrowing sight to behold. Once vibrant and teeming with life, the planets now writhed under an eerie, baleful aura.

Their surfaces were twisted and distorted, marred by the unnatural horrors that had turned their own citizens into creatures of unimaginable torment.

The faces of once-kind neighbors, friends, and family were now marred with demonic snarls, twisted by the raw agony of their transformation.

But now there was a beacon of hope.

Once the seeds were planted in said planets, under Lady Yggdrasil's remote control, the seeds began to sprout, erupting from the ground like shimmering pillars of verdant green.

Slowly but surely, the mighty World Trees rose, spreading their enormous canopies across the corrupted landscapes.

The sight of their growth was nothing short of a miracle, a testament to life's enduring perseverance against the most horrifying of odds.

From each tree, waves of pure, revitalizing energy pulsed, penetrating the bodies of the demonic citizens.

The energy did not harm them; rather, it gently and surely started the process of reversal, the trees working in tandem with Lady Yggdrasil to untwist the demonization that had corrupted these beings.

"As expected, Lady Yggdrasil is so much better at this than Olivia." Felix commentated as he watched the process of hundreds of world trees in his cockpit.

Olivia deserved a great amount of credit for figuring out the balance, but when it was given to Lady Yggdrasil, she didn't even need to put the demons into cocoons.

To make matters even better, Lady Yggdrasil allowed her trees to grow into an unfathomable size until half it was floating in the exosphere.

With roots spreading across the planet's underground world, she sucked the evil energy of it and released it into space while feeding them with much-needed life force to revitalize them.

So, she wasn't just reversing the demonization of the citizens, but also returning their homes to them as a bonus, something that even Olivia found hard to achieve!

When the news of this had gotten out, it was impossible to keep Lady Yggdrasil's identity hidden any longer as this was obviously a work of a god.

In this universe, there was only one known goddess and it was the Goddess of Nature!

This time, not just the elves who prayed for her, but even other races across the entire universe.

The inner circle leaders' knew that the primogenitors wanted to keep their existence hidden, so no one came forward and confirmed that this was the doing of Lady Yggdrasil, but at the same time, they didn't deny it.

There was simply no other explanation, and the public wasn't stupid to not see through such an obvious lie.

And so, under Lady Yggdrasil's careful supervision and the public's morals on the rise, the SGAlliance's fleets continued their noble mission across their territory, planet by planet, turning the tide against the demonic plague.

As they traveled, the once-tormented worlds behind them slowly returned to their natural state, their surfaces flourishing with verdant life and their citizens restored, standing as living testimonies to the resilience of life and the indefatigable spirit of the SGAlliance!

In less than a year, the entire SGAlliance's territories were cleared out of more than 90% of demons and the numbers were still on the rise.

The smart demons like the princes had already picked whatever spaceship before them and took off towards the other side of the universe, returning to their original homes.

They knew that as long as they remained in the SGAlliance's territory, it would get worse and worse for them.

After all, they had no protection from the princes and their demon king was gone for good.

The fact that they need purities to survive made them incapable of staying in outer space for too long, which would result in them getting hunted down the moment a piece of information gets released about them.

With this mass exodus of the demon race back to their territories, the SGAlliance did nothing to stop them and kept on prioritizing their own citizens first.

This was under Felix's orders as he understood that those demons might run but they had nowhere to hide.

When he was done with healing his home, he would pay them a visit again.

This time, he would go there personally and make sure that not a single demon would exist in this universe ever again!

...

"Besides a couple of demons on the run and causing trouble and some planets being too ruined to be fixed, it's safe to say that the alliance is on track to be back to normal again." Asna wondered with a lazy tone as she had her head placed on Felix's lap.

"What's your next move now? Are you going after the darkins right away?"

"Not yet." Felix shook his head, "They must have heard about me and they are planning to either ambush or assault me the instant I enter the other side. I have to be fully prepared to take at least one of them down in our first contact since if I exposed all of my cards and failed in doing so, it will get much harder to slay them later on."

"I see...So, who are you planning to target of them?"

"You know the answer." Felix narrowed his eyes coldly as he envisioned The Blood Primogenitor, Manananggal blowing his home and killing everyone in it...

His hatred of Saurous and Wendigo was at its limit, but his heart had a different place for the one who pulled the trigger.

Whether Manananggal possessed true immortality or not, Felix was going to show him that his greatest gift would be his downfall before him!

"It's finally time to hunt down those f*ckers and get our revenge." Asna grinned sadistically.

"It sure is...It sure is." Felix smirked coldly as he caressed her cheek in a gentle manner, completely opposite to his murderous aura.

Chapter 1350 Unwelcomed Visitor.

A few months later...

Felix could be seen sitting on a small puddle of sweat in a meditation position with Nimo fooling around beside him.

"99% at last." He exhaled deeply as he opened his closed eyes and stared at the faraway ceiling of his spaceship.

"Now, you have finally reached the end of your bloodline path." Asna commented.

"I don't know if I am going to miss this or not, but I am somewhat relieved it ended after everything that happened in this wild journey." Felix showed a tiny smile.

For everyone else, their bloodline path ended in a couple of years at best due to not having many benefits of waiting things out.

Felix took more than six thousand years to finally hit the limit in his bloodline path, and everyone else must already assume that he had become an origin bloodliner.

"You can reminisce later, there is someone wanting to meet you." Thor shared with an irritated voice.

"On my way." Felix narrowed his eyes coldly as he entered the consciousness space, knowing that Lord Loki's wisp had been awakened.

...

"It's a pleasure to finally meet my superstar."

Lord Loki appeared with a new appearance of a male elderly human with a gray beard and receding hairline, resembling any average geezer.

He stretched his arms widely as he had a big grin on his face. He walked towards Felix, seemingly attempting to give him a hug.

Alas, Felix's masters got in front of him and gave him a cold stare. "You are not welcome here."

Although Felix was using his bloodline, neither he nor his masters had any interest in entertaining Lord Loki's shenanigans.

His masters knew that he was untrustworthy and would do anything for the sake of his entertainment.

The proof was handing Felix's blood to his enemies just to watch them collide.

"Come on, I thought we buried the hatchet with our deal." Lord Loki acted upset.

"Whether we buried it or not, that's not for you to decide. Now, please leave while we are still asking nicely." Thor said indifferently.

Lord Loki ignored Thor and looked at the other tenants with a pitiful look, seemingly asking for their help.

Alas, the closest one to him was Lord Shiva and he didn't even bother to glance in his direction or admit his existence...He merely kept sunbathing peacefully.

"Fine, I will pay the fees to be admitted to the party." Lord Loki dropped his sulky attitude and offered, "If you let me stay, I will help you get better with illusion manipulation."

Felix raised an eyebrow in delight for a moment before returning to his stoic expression.

'What do you think, masters? Can he be trusted?' He discussed it with his masters.

'Trusted? He can't be trusted to watch a rock.' Thor sneered, 'But, his offer does seem too good to pass on.'

'I suggest we agree to his condition.' J?rmungandr nodded, 'With the UVR being involved if he wants to cause Felix trouble, he can easily do it anytime he wanted whether he is around us or not. At least now, we can watch over him.'

'That's true.' Thor agreed.

The most important thing was having Lord Loki as Felix's teacher would help him along the way in his illusion mastery.

If Felix didn't receive help from the previous owners of the manipulations, he wouldn't have mastered a single advanced ability even in millions of years!

It was expected since it would be the same as creating the advanced ability from scratch instead of being led along the way by the creator.

'We can get more than this.' Lady Sphinx said, 'Let me handle this.'

After hearing this, they remained silent and let Mama Sphinx take care of Lord Loki.

"Teaching him abilities is a good offer, but it's not enough to join the club."

Before Lord Loki could voice his displeasure, Lady Sphinx added, "If you want to truly be part of our faction, then you have to help us with the Darkins. This means giving us their locations constantly and their plans through spying on them in the UVR."

Felix and the tenants didn't expect Lady Sphinx to be this brutal and ask for Lord Loki to be their spy for the sake of hanging out with them.

He clearly was interested in playing cards, chess, and just enjoying his time in the company of his peers.

To make him go against the council's pact by spying on actual primogenitors was too much of a risk and they thought that he would reject it immediately.

Alas...This was Lord Loki.

"Consider it done!" Lord Loki sold out the Darkins with a wide sleazy smile faster than the tenants could take a breather.

"..."

"..."

"..."

Felix and the others didn't know whether to feel appreciative of his honesty or more worried about how easy it was for him to break such a sacred pact and give up on his peers, not giving a sh*t about his neutrality.

"I don't know why I expected for you to have a bit of honor in your word." Lady Sphinx sighed exasperatedly.

"My word goes to the highest bidder and at this moment, I feel like I get more value out of being part of your faction." Lord Loki replied casually.

Value in this context was nothing more than entertainment, which implied that as long as Felix and his people eased his boredom, he would always stand by their side.

If not, he had no problems with throwing his toys and picking new ones.

That's how Lord Loki operate and even though the primogenitors already knew about this, it never ceased to amaze them to see him staying true to his nature in the real world.

Especially, when he was considered as one of the five elemental lords with the highest level of authority in the universe below only the unigins.

'If he can throw away the darkins with a snap of a finger like that after helping them, then he will most definitely do the same to us in the future.' Asna said with a tone of discomfort.

'It's alright, at least we know that it's coming.' Felix smirked, 'I am more comfortable with this than having no clue where and when the hit would come.'

In Felix's eyes, it was only betrayal if he had no clue about it...If someone was going to betray him and he knew about it, yet, he did nothing to protect himself, it was on him.

"How about you consummate your entry with some good Intel?" Lady Sphinx requested.

"Sure thing." Lord Loki chuckled, his eyes displaying not an ounce of remorse. "The darkins have planned to assassinate your boy from a distance the moment he steps foot in their side of the universe."

"I guess we were right." Felix narrowed his eyes coldly.

He already anticipated as much, but now that it was confirmed, he understood that he needed to prepare as much as possible for the upcoming fight.

"Give us more details." Thor asked.

"I don't know more details at the moment." Lord Loki shrugged his shoulders, "You know I can't invade their minds without them finding out and most of their important discussion is held telepathically."

While the darkins had no clue that Lord Loki had joined Felix's side since he didn't expose any relation he had with him in public, this didn't mean that they would be foolish enough to put everything under his eyes.

All primogenitors knew that Lord Loki was too much of a weasel to not spy on them to ease his boredom and they didn't have much issue with this as long as he kept the information to himself.

"I see, well still, keep your eyes on them in case they shared something critical." Thor requested.

"Will do, will do, so now, what were you guys playing?"

A bit eager, Lord Loki asked as he rubbed his hands akin to a scammy merchant while staring at the circular table and the cards on it.

"Poker, interested?" Thor grinned from ear to ear.