

Supremacy 1611

Chapter 1611 Seeking Clarifications. II

"What about the three rulers? How can they get fooled by you? Aren't their eyes everywhere? Aren't they the most knowledgeable beings in the universe?" Felix frowned, "I can't imagine you or anyone capable of pulling a fast one on them."

"Indeed, they are the most intelligent and knowledgeable beings in our universe. But, I am the most cunning." Lilith smirked faintly.

"That's not an answer." Felix's eyelids twitched.

"It is if you stopped thinking of them as untouchable gods." Lilith advised with a knowing tone, "You are about to become a unigin, the closest being to them in terms of powers and intelligence. The faster you accept this fact, the easier it will be for you to take them on. Otherwise, no matter how powerful you get, it wouldn't matter."

"..." Felix remained silent.

He would be lying if he said that the three rulers didn't scare the sh*t out of him...Ever since his rebirth, he was hearing about them being the most fearsome beings in the universe with the capability to handle anyone or anything, even unigins.

The fact that he got killed by a single smite of them and watched his beloved get abducted right before his eyes without the capability to even lift his head, didn't make his dread any better.

He believed them to be the final bosses in his journey and it didn't sit right in his mind to have them played by Lilith.

But, after hearing Lilith's speech, it started to come to him that he was a mere step away from their realm, and if he still considered them untouchable, he would be losing the battle before it started.

"When I was young I considered primogenitors as gods and now that I have surpassed them in strength, I see them no different than the rest of races." Felix thought to himself as narrowed his eyes at his palms, "They still surpass me in wisdom and maturity, but with my strength above them, none of that matters anymore."

"I don't know how Lilith managed to pull a fast one on them, but since she succeeded, it means that they are limited just like any other being." Felix frowned, "Gods aren't supposed to be limited, does that mean there is still a true god out there even above them? A true untouchable being?"

"Your thought process somehow makes me feel insulted." Lilith pouted in dissatisfaction, "Just because I did it, doesn't mean an idiot like you can do it too...Don't get too cocky, we are not the same."

Felix's eyelids twitched, but he had no retort.

He hated to admit it, but Lilith was indeed on a different level of cunningness and intelligence.

Just because she was able to make the three rulers have some hard time, it didn't mean that all unigins were able to do the same.

"Still, I will admit that I have gotten a bit lucky, no, we have gotten lucky." Lilith suddenly switched her tone to a serious one.

"What do you mean?"

"At the moment, the celestial energy within the eternal kingdom is at an all-time low after those morons attempted to forcefully break past the universe's heart and reach the other side. Their attempt didn't just fail, it also caused a disturbance in the universe's heart, making it spew less celestial energy than the norm. Now, they are considering giving it another chance and require an insane amount of celestial energy to pull it off, which made them act stringy in their actions."

"Is that why everyone in the eternal kingdom is at war with each other?" Felix raised an eyebrow in surprise.

Felix was quite knowledgeable about the eternal kingdom, including the universe's heart, the other side, territorial conflicts between unigins, upper celestial ranks, etc.

After all, he had Duke Humphrey all to himself and when he failed to explain something to him, he asked Lord Hades for clarifications.

By the time he left the heavenly plane, he was more familiar with the eternal kingdom than the universe.

Still, he had no clue that the three rulers were the ones putting the eternal kingdom in a permanent warmonger era due to the absence of celestial energy.

He realized just how important and dear celestial energy was to unigins.

"Yes."

"Why haven't unigins done anything to them? Can't they take them down if they combined their forces?"

"Who told you the unigins don't know about their plans?" Lilith shook her head, "How do you think the three rulers bought most of the unigins to their side? It was through the promise of reaching the other side and breaking free from their universal shackles."

"Is that so..."

Felix wouldn't say he was surprised as he had always assumed that the unigins wouldn't accept being in a hierarchy system unless there was a strong motive behind it.

"If you seek freedom just like them, why are you down here instead of helping them? Why have you chosen me to help you out? In fact, why aren't you taking control over my body, I believe it shouldn't be hard now that both your soul and core are within me." Felix frowned.

Felix genuinely thought that Lilith was bullshitting him before to gain his approval and when she resided in Asna's core, she would get rid of him or something.

So, when he woke up and found out nothing negative happened to him, he was a bit taken aback.

"Because their method would never succeed. As for why I am betting on you instead of taking control over your body?" Lilith smiled with a knowing beautiful smile, "You will come to understand in the future."

"Aren't you worried that I will kill you when I get stronger than you? Aren't you worried about losing your powers after I become the new paragon?"

There were so many ifs and holes in Lilith's plan of letting him take the lead when she had the ability to get rid of him right now and here.

Felix was incapable of trusting her motives no matter how cooperative she seemed.

He might not show it, but he had no intentions in the slightest of forgiving her even if she helped him out from now on without betraying him.

He understood that Lilith could feel the suppressed hatred and rage he was storing for her.

"Whether you believe me or not, I have no interest in leading your upcoming journey. It has to be you and when the time comes, you will see why." Lilith lowered her sunglasses and took a small sip from her glass. Then, she smiled, "As for killing me later on? All I can do is wish you good luck."

Felix remained silent, staying deep in his thoughts.

Lilith seemed a bit too confident in her ability to survive his revenge later on after giving him the freedom to operate as normal.

This disturbed him a bit.

'Does she think I will show her mercy if she helped me reach the top and save Asna?' He narrowed his eyes coldly, 'I understand you can hear me, so listen very well. At the first opportunity, I pledge you, I am going to make you regret the day you have chosen to f*ck with me.'

'I hope you can be rough.' Lilith licked her lips seductively, 'I love it rough.'

"B*tch." Felix gave her a revolting look.

Lilith merely giggled in amusement at his curse while Candace sensed her heart sink to the bottom in fear.

Her beauty and sexiness might be compared to Asna, but Felix didn't feel an ounce of affection or lust when handling her...Only disgust and hatred.

He wasn't afraid to show it in the open now that he understood his fate was interlocked with her and she could not achieve her goal without him.

While it seemed dumb to give Felix this kind of freedom and leverage over her, Felix realized that Lilith would never do this without a reason.

It was second nature for her to be manipulative and he perceived every word and every action she made with that goal as her target.

Lilith gave no head to his thoughts and asked. "Do you have any more questions?"

"You never told me how did the sealing hall not affect you," Felix mentioned.

"It did weaken me, but nothing as serious as what happened to your cute raccoon since our powers aren't on the same level." Lilith answered.

"Expected as much." Felix nodded after getting a confirmation.

Nimo had separated his soul into two while his entire soul in the first place wasn't complete since it was part of Lilith.

So, the level of damage done to him couldn't be compared to Lilith when using their laws.

"Have you satisfied your curiosity? Can we talk business now?" Lilith said.

Lilith had indeed answered most of Felix's questions about the situation and motives. Whether she was telling the truth or not, his truth eyes hadn't found an ounce of deceit in her tone.

Still, Felix wasn't planning to trust his eyes blindly, having a strong feeling that if Lilith wanted to lie, even the truth vision wouldn't capture it.

"Before we do that, I want my masters and tenants to return." Felix said with a cold tone, "This isn't negotiable."

Felix had no interest in carrying on their conversation without his masters and tenants being around.

"I don't mind, but I see no point in having them around you anymore." Lilith shared with a casual tone, "You are going to lose all of your elemental manipulations and their abilities after you become the paragon of sins."

"I guess it's inevitable?" Felix smiled wryly.

"What do you think?" Lilith rolled her eyes at him.

Chapter 1612 Forced To Start Fresh.

Felix wasn't really surprised to hear that he would be forced to drop all of his elemental manipulations after the ascension.

By now, even if no one had confirmed it to him, he was able to reason about the origin of the three rulers and their relation to the three celestial languages.

"If you dared to step into the eternal kingdom without getting rid of those ugly tattoos, you will be controlled akin to a doll by the three rulers." Lilith mentioned calmly, "The only reason none of them have tried to control you is because Asna's core can absorb the bits of celestial energy released at you from the eternal kingdom. That's also why they didn't bother to smite you again. But, it's a different story if you stepped into their home ground."

"Damn...That's unfortunate." Felix sighed while rubbing his eyelids.

"What are you on about?" Candace asked with a soft tone, having no idea what they were talking about.

"The universe is made out of five pillars...Three celestial languages, the laws, and elements. Elements can awaken their consciousness and become elementals. I believe the same had occurred with the laws and the three celestial languages. In other words, the three rulers are the consciousness of the three celestial languages." Felix shared with a solemn tone.

Ever since Felix heard that elements could awaken their consciousness, he always had the theory that maybe unigins were nothing but the consciousness of laws awakening.

If he took it even further, then the three rulers should be the souls of the three celestial languages.

The fact that three of the highest-ranked divinities were created by them and shared similar names to the three celestial languages made him believe his theory even more.

The only reason he wasn't 100% convinced yet was due to some holes.

Candace spotted them immediately.

"How can unigins be laws gaining consciousness? That doesn't make sense when considering that some unigins have control over multiple laws." She tilted her head in confusion.

"You're right." Felix glanced at Lilith, seemingly passing the question to her.

He was somewhat certain about the three rulers' origin, but his unigins' theory was a bit shaky because of that.

If he considered Asna as a celestial like the three rulers and not a normal unigin, then, she might have some special condition for her birth. But, other unigins' origin didn't make the most sense either.

For example, Lilith was the unigin of seven sins and void laws. Kronos controlled space and time. Lord Hades guarded over spirits and souls, which weren't the same thing either.

So, how could they be the consciousness of laws?

"Don't look at me." Lilith chuckled, "It's not fun if you were given all the answers, is it now?"

"..." Felix's eyelids twitched at her childish behavior...But, he knew that it was impossible to extract information from her unless she wanted to share it.

So, he dropped this matter and returned to his original theory, "Can you at least confirm if the three rulers are the consciousness of the three celestial languages?"

"All I can say is that they rule over the three celestial languages. Whether they are the consciousness of them or not, that's for you to figure out." Lilith replied with a half-assed answer again.

"As you can see, it will be near impossible for me to utilize my elemental manipulations in the eternal kingdom since their source in the first place was the three rulers." Felix sighed in disappointment, "They have helped me reach this far, but if I dared to keep the inscriptions on me, I would be an open target to them."

The worst part? Felix knew that he would be losing his elemental immunities, and bloodline abilities, such as void domain, illusion domain, etc!

After all, their origin was from primogenitors' bloodlines, and the origin of primogenitors' powers were the three rulers, their creators!

Just like vampires, heavenly turtles, shadowborns, and other races were born with limited elemental manipulation, which was inherited from their ancestors.

Even though they had no visible perfect inscriptions on their bodies, Lady Sphinx had found out that at the depth of their DNA, the universal codex was written!

In the case of elves and dwarves, they had the runic and divine codex also written in their DNA.

They were born with it straight from the universe instead of inheriting it from Lady Yggdrasil or Cyclope.

In conclusion, Felix could not possess an ounce of relation to the three rulers, and the only method to achieve this was by completely wiping out all of his abilities as well.

It was the same as beginning with a fresh character.

"That's unfortunate..." Candace smiled bitterly, "You have worked hard to obtain them and master their abilities. All of that effort would go to waste now."

"It is what it is."

Felix had long since accepted this fact and was prepared mentally for it...The only saving grace from this was the fact he would be in control of seven sins, void law, and evil energy.

Seven Sins' powers were too varied and powerful to cover all of the bases.

"Wait, is it possible to wish for elemental manipulations without the three rulers' constraints?" Candace wondered, "Or at least immunities?"

"I don't know, we will have to test it out later."

Felix was 99% convinced that it would fail in both scenarios since elemental immunities were also related to the three celestial languages.

Unless, he wished for immunities related to unigins, but he didn't know if they would be delivered or not since he understood that wishes related to unigins weren't approved by the universe often.

If it was easy to wish for permanent powers from unigins, then Lilith would have ruled the eternal kingdom a long while ago.

Greed laws were busted, but the universe had its limitations imputed to keep the balance.

Before Felix could test any of his new powers or move on with his discussion with Lilith, he wanted to reach out to Lady Sphinx, understanding that she should have gathered everyone in her consciousness space again.

However, since he was in the elemental galaxy, he had no connection to the UVR...Even his wisps outside were wiped out. It was normal considering his soul was on the verge of collapse.

Lilith left him be, having no interest in convincing him anymore to drop them.

The first thing Felix did was place a wisp in his consciousness space to keep Candace's company against Lilith's bullying...Then, he switched to his main consciousness and stepped outside of the cozy hatch.

'Felix?'

Immediately after, Foremother Siamese's voice resounded in Felix's mind.

'It's me.' Felix replied.

He understood that Foremother Siamese didn't reach out to him after waking up, because she had no clue if it was him or Lilith.

He didn't know how he made it back to the elemental galaxy, but it was clear that Lilith had dropped him off with her Nimo's form and Foremother Siamese could only allow it.

It was better to keep a close eye on him in her territory.

Whoosh!

With a faint breeze, Foremother Siamese manifested in front of Felix from the grass, dirt, and leaves near his hatch.

"How did it go? Sphinx has told me about what happened in the void." She inquired with a solemn tone.

"Is she in the galaxy?" Felix raised an eyebrow in surprise.

"She is in the fore..."

Before she could complete her sentence, Lady Sphinx appeared in front of Felix from the grain of sand on the ground.

Just as Felix opened his mouth after seeing her face, Lady Sphinx embraced him tightly.

"Master..."

Felix wasn't able to speak anything besides calling her name after sensing her hands clutching tightly into his clothes.

It was unusual for Lady Sphinx to be emotionally distressed, so this spoke volumes of how difficult the situation was for her too.

Felix had no idea that Lady Sphinx had been keeping a watch on him for the past five thousand years, not knowing if he would be the one waking up or Lilith.

All she could do was watch from a distance and wish for the best, knowing that it wasn't in her power to change the outcome anymore...

Whoosh Whoosh!

Suddenly, two gravitational gates opened up near Felix and Lady Sphinx. Wendigo and Saurous jumped out of them and landed on the ground in a kneeling position.

"We welcome back, the master." They uttered simultaneously with their heads lowered.

Chapter 1613 A New Way To Recover Elemental Manipulations?

Felix ignored them and continued his embrace for a moment until Lady Sphinx let go of him.

"I am glad that you are fine." She said with a warm smile as she held his cheeks together like a mother...Felix enjoyed her touch as he could feel her sincere care coursing through him.

Lady Sphinx might always seem rational, calculative, and distant, but when it came to Felix, she never shied from showing her genuine emotions.

"Did she do anything to you?" Lady Sphinx suddenly switched to a cold expression.

"No." Felix shook his head, "We just talked, I will share the details with you and the others. Speaking of them, are they with you?"

'We are here...Did that b*tch make your life difficult?' Thor responded with a stern tone.

'Do excuse us for not being of any assistance.' Elder Kraken sighed, 'She kicked us off the moment she gained control.'

'How strange, that manipulative vixen would never go this far and simply let you be.'
Lord Khoas intoned emotionlessly, but it had a tint of loathing buried in it.

The rest of the tenants each gave out their statements about the situation and the majority seemed concerned.

"Let's talk inside."

Instead of answering them, Felix reached out with his hand to Lady Sphinx, inviting them back into his consciousness space.

Lady Sphinx didn't hesitate to kick them off her mind.

After they entered his consciousness space, Felix glanced at the kneeling darkins and uttered, "You haven't tried to escape? How uncharacteristic of you."

"We wouldn't have dared." Wendigo and Saurous replied.

"Sure, sure." Felix snickered.

He knew that if he had genuinely died or Lilith took complete control over him, they wouldn't hesitate to ditch him...Evil energy made them loyal, but it didn't mean that they loved it.

Still, he also allowed them back into his consciousness space.

'Can I?' Foremother Siamese requested.

'Of course.' Felix permitted her attendance with open arms.

While Nimo's alter ego battle didn't end as he had anticipated, he was more than grateful for her assistance...She had given it her all and he appreciated it.

As everyone gathered, a silent consensus was achieved after they spotted Lilith sitting by the pool without a care in the world...All of their expressions went for the worst like they had seen their worst enemy.

"My little servants, you came back to take care of me again? I knew you would miss me." Lilith chuckled.

"What are you on about?" Felix frowned after noticing his masters and the tenants' expressions getting uglier.

When no one appeared to answer him, Felix glared at Wendigo and he immediately shared with him a memory package of what happened during his slumber.

In less than a second of viewing the package, Felix's rage increased tenfold until his eyes turned crimson red and reflected the symbol of a dragon.

"You really have no bottom line." He uttered with a bone-chilling tone while staring daggers at Lilith.

His reaction was within reason as the memory package showed him a film of humiliation and its protagonists were the tenants.

With her overbearing spiritual pressure and control over his body, Lilith made it impossible for anyone to leave his consciousness space and bossed them around for centuries.

He observed as his masters were turned into servants against their will, listening to her orders and whims forcefully.

Only when she was bored with playing with them and they commenced to irritate her with their noise did she kick them out and leave Candace behind.

"Bottom line? Did I do anything wrong?" Lilith acted confused, "I am a unigin and they are clowns born to entertain us. Isn't my treatment the correct dynamic between us?"

Her acid-laced words were like poisonous knives stabbing all the primogenitors straight in their souls.

But none of them were able to retort against her. After all, their purpose was indeed as described...Clowns, born for entertainment purposes.

"Big words from someone enslaved by the universe." Felix responded coldly, "You can't even use your powers without getting punished, like a child being spanked for misbehaving."

"True." Lilith chuckled, seemingly unaffected by his words. "You will soon join the party and understand how it feels."

Felix remained silent, knowing that any insults directed at her would reflect on him later on.

"Don't fall to her level, she has already shown us how childish she can be for the sake of her amusement." Lady Sphinx came forward.

"You are right." Felix couldn't agree more.

While Lilith was extremely shrewd and intelligent, her childish and playful personality was too irritating to deal with...It was best not to engage with her in such subjects as she could never lose.

"Let's sit down. I have much to share."

Felix and the tenants proceeded to the central table in the town, leaving Lilith alone near the pool.

She also didn't bother to join them...She lifted her sunglasses and continued her relaxation with a wide smile.

Meanwhile, Felix had spent the next half an hour informing everyone about what he had discussed with Lilith.

After he was done, he received mixed reactions.

"The fact she wants to remain hands out in your future journey is great and all, but I have a feeling that even after you become the new paragon of sins, she can still turn on you in the future." J?rmungandr uttered with a solemn tone, "There is no way she will give you this much control without having a guarantee."

Everyone nodded in agreement, even Felix considered the same.

"For now, we don't know what she has planned on the low and we can only move with the stream," Thor added.

Knowing that speculations wouldn't help them with anything at the moment, they could only close this subject.

"On the other hand, it's regrettable that you will be losing your manipulations and abilities." Elder Kraken shook his head in disappointment.

All of them assumed that it was bound to happen, but still, after receiving confirmation, it didn't feel good in the slightest...Especially for Thor and J?rmungandr who had spent the most time in training Felix's elemental manipulations.

"It had to be done, but not all hope is lost." Lady Sphinx narrowed her eyes in the direction of Lilith, "The fact that Asna's core can devour another unigin's core and obtain his powers means that there is a chance you can do the same with other unigins."

Everyone felt their hearts skip a beat at her bold statement...Absorbing the powers of other unigins? If this was possible, Felix could recover a much more powerful version of his previous elements!

For example, instead of the water element, he could absorb Poseidon's core and obtain control over the laws of water, ice, and fog!

He could even ignore his lost elements and go for other unigins like Apollo and Hephaestus!

"This sounds a bit insane, but I can see it working out." Felix knitted his eyebrows thoughtfully.

Just as Felix planned on seeking Lord Hades' help in confirming the theory, a spiritual mirror manifested before everyone...After a few ripples, Lord Hades' expressionless face was displayed on it.

The timing was perfect, which meant he was already watching everything since Felix had opened his eyes.

So, without bothering to greet anyone, he got straight to business.

"Asna's core is considered to be one of the most powerful cores in the universe, rivaling that of the three rulers before awakening." He confirmed with a monotonous voice, "In other words, there is no unigin's core capable of resisting its devouring capabilities."

Felix and the tenants' eyes glimmered in delight at the sound of that. However, before any of them could react, Lord Hades added, "However, whether Felix will be able to enjoy their powers post ascension is unknown."

Chapter 1614 Testing The Equal Trade Symbol.

"Is it because I will be a unigin?" Felix frowned.

Lord Hades nodded.

Felix understood that unigins were extremely powerful, but that power came with many limitations. The universal punishment was just one aspect of them.

The true limitation was the fact it was near impossible for unigins to utilize any other powers outside of their laws...Especially, if the powers were laws based.

It was like all unigins were in a stadium race and each unigin had their line. The universe made it impossible for them to tread on their peers' lines at all times.

"But, this isn't made in stone yet." Lady Sphinx remarked, "Felix won't be like any ordinary unigin. His origin is a human form and we already know that humans are the only species with the potential to utilize all elements...This might translate to laws."

"Indeed, Felix was never a natural born unigin and some of the universal laws might not apply to him." Thor added, "Who knows? He might not even experience the universal chains after his ascension."

"Hahahaha."

Before anyone could respond, a mocking and irritating giggle resounded from a distance.

Thor's lips twitched in annoyance. When he opened his mouth, wanting to retort against her, his brother Jurmi held him back with a shake of a head.

"It's not worth it."

"You're right." Thor exhaled and ignored that witch.

"There is no escaping from chains after the ascension...A unigin without anything to hold him back is no different than a free-spirited deity. The universe will never allow such a foolary." Lord Hades addressed calmly.

Primogenitors weren't chained because their influence was extremely small...Now, imagine Kronos, the guardian of time/space, without those chains.

He could literally reset the universe back to its original state if he desired...Such powers were too overwhelming to not be policed.

As much as Felix hated, no detested from the bottom of his soul, the thought of being chained and having his actions limited, he had to accept it for the sake of his beloved.

There weren't many chances to climb that insurmountable wall between a mortal and a unigin besides turning into one...

"Fortunately, the universe is somewhat just in its treatment," Felix remarked.

Unigins weren't punished for using their powers, but for abusing them, and there was a big difference.

For example, Lilith was punished only when she used her powers to separate her soul or when she created a new unnatural race with some of her abilities.

The universe wouldn't punish her if she used her powers within a limit.

"You may not know this, but most of the universal punishments are related to lesser beings or the balance of the universe." Lord Hades shared, "If your powers didn't affect those two aspects, it's rare for the universe to intervene. Also, it's very hard for the universe to make a judgment if the situation is too complicated."

"I have noticed this too." Felix nodded.

What occurred in the heavenly plane's war was the perfect example of this. Godfather Hephaestus had actively attacked Lord Hades, yet Lord Hades was the only one punished for all the spirits, which were erased from the universe.

If the universe had a reasonable consciousness, it would notice that Godfather Hephaestus was the culprit and the one deserving to be punished.

Instead, Lord Hades got shafted for failing his duties and Godfather Hephaestus walked freely.

"In other words, you have to understand the loopholes, the dos and don'ts, so you won't have the universe punish you for something not started by you," Thor mentioned with a serious tone.

Felix acknowledged in agreement.

"For now, how about you test out your laws with something simple?" Lady Sphinx suggested, "Try asking if you can use the powers of other unigins after devouring their cores post-ascension?"

Felix decided to go for it...Without delay, he switched his focus to his main consciousness and exited the hatch.

"Do I just will it? Like using bloodline abilities?" Felix asked.

"Yes." Lord Hades answered.

Felix closed his eyes and began to summon the greed laws, Equal Trade Symbol.

The air around him thickened, and a profound silence enveloped the space. Then, above Felix, a symbol began to manifest!

It started as a mere wisp, a curl of green mist, but it quickly took form and solidified into the shape of a fox.

The fox symbol, glowing a bright, ethereal green, was elegant yet complex, its many lines and swirls speaking of ancient contracts and cosmic balance.

Felix had seen this symbol so many times, but this was the very first time he was the one summoning it, which made him feel different inside.

"Now, state your wish and choose the payment." Lord Hades said.

"I will choose void energy."

Felix extended his hand forward and imagined a small void rift opening up in front of him.

Almost instantly, a black crack in space manifested and widened until it was big enough for one hand.

"Laws are really on a different level of simplicity..." Felix commented with a pleased look.

He understood that if it was void elemental manipulation, it wouldn't have been this easy. He would have needed to do some mind and elemental gymnastics before the same rift could open up.

Just like someone using concept destruction ability and a law-based version of the same ability.

Felix had to study and understand the properties of the desired concept he wanted to eliminate. But, if he had destruction laws? All he needed was a look and the concept would be gone.

"It makes sense." Lady Sphinx clarified, "Just like bloodlines are considered borrowed powers, the primogenitors are using borrowed abilities from the three rulers. The only difference is that we had to learn and master everything related to our elements while bloodline users receive already mastered abilities."

Felix and the others nodded in agreement.

In their eyes, the three rulers had given them a safe with millions of locks and made them search for the keys required to open every part of it.

Meanwhile, the unigins possessed some of the keys from birth and the rest after awakening.

All in all, no effort was required and Felix was more than pleased with this.

Soon, he placed his hand inside the void rift and drew forthan immense reservoir of void energy.

As the void energy coalesced around him, forming a vortex of dark, pulsating power, Felix spoke his wish inwardly, 'I seek the truth. Reveal to me whether it's possible to benefit from the Unigins' abilities if Asna's core devours their cores...I offer this void energy as my payment.'

Whoosh!! Whoosh!!

The universe seemed to not care about the spoken language as the Greed Laws responded to his call by absorbing an uncanny amount of void energy through the symbol, resembling an infinite black hole!

To everyone's surprise, the symbol kept on absorbing nonstop for a minute, five minutes, and then an hour!

"Isn't taking a bit too long?" Foremother Siamese murmured.

"It's normal, elemental energy is considered the cheapest currency used in those trades. Sometimes, the symbol may absorb it for more than a day and eventually cancel the trade." Candace answered her, "Djins avoid using it because of this."

Equal Trade Symbol worked based on value...Elemental energy and neutral energy were everywhere, which made their values at the bottom of the barrel.

The rarer and greater the payment, the better.

If Felix possessed some celestial energy in his tank, the trade would have been concluded in a few seconds at best due to its immense value.

Even though Felix knew this, he used void energy to also assay out the bottom line of the universe.

Unfortunately, he was left waiting patiently for more than twelve hours and when the trade was concluded and the response came to him, he was left speechless.

The universe didn't speak to him in words but implanted the response in his mind like he always knew it.

"Unknown? After painstakingly waiting for half a day, all I get is unknown. You kidding me?" Felix gazed at the sky with a wronged look like he had just gotten scammed.

Chapter 1615 Let's Pump Those Numbers.

"The universe doesn't answer questions or problems that have never been tested before."

Lilith suddenly appeared next to the central table and answered Felix while eating a red apple...She was still in her swimsuit but had a transparent robe over her.

Everyone went silent and gave her a deathly unwelcoming glare...But, she didn't seem bothered by them.

She pulled a chair and sat with them with a bored look...Without anyone asking her, she started sharing the limitations of the Equal Trade Symbol.

"If it's a one-on-one wish in the universe, it can't be canceled until the price is paid. Even if the price is paid, it doesn't mean that the universe will deliver satisfactory results. You aren't paying to fulfill the wish, you are paying to see if the wish is even possible or not. So, whether it fails or it succeeds, you should always know that your payment isn't refundable."

Felix waited until she finished and then uttered coldly, "Who asked?"

Just because she was teaching him about her laws, it didn't mean that he was willing to accept them with open arms...He wasn't that cheap after literally just witnessing his masters getting humiliated by her.

Plus, if she really cared, she could have come forward before taking the test, instead of letting them rot for twelve hours.

"I don't care about your touchy feelings." Lilith yawned lazily, "You are going to listen as I have no patience to watch you test every single law and its limitations."

"For someone with patience to wait one billion years for my birth, you sure are full of crap." Felix sneered.

Seeing that he wasn't planning to lend her an ear, Lilith merely snapped her fingers, and Felix's pupils widened after a memory package was forcefully shoved in his mind.

In less than a split second, he read and analyzed the package, making him more informed about all of the available symbols to him!

"You..."

"You're welcome,"

Lilith said as she bit a huge chunk from her apple, uncaring about the juices flowing down her cleavage in front of everyone.

After a couple more quick bites, she finished the apple and flicked it to the middle of the table. Then, she walked back to the pool, making a clucking noise with her sandals.

"What a freaky creature..." Thor commented, having a weird feeling that her personality was a mix of multiple characters.

The others had the same feeling too.

"I guess we can skip straight to the real deal now," Felix uttered reluctantly after the joy of testing his new laws was stolen from him.

"What are you planning to do?" Thor asked.

"Since I can use the laws now without the universe's judgment sword over my head, I am thinking of using some wishes for my friends, my race, answer some questions, and enhance my strength a bit before the ascension," Felix replied.

Felix knew that the moment he entered the eternal kingdom, he might never leave it.

Since he couldn't take his friends with him or protect his race, he wanted to do one last thing for them before taking off.

He wasn't doing it out of the goodness of his heart as that was long since erased...He simply had nothing to lose and he was a man of his word.

He always wanted to help his race get stronger to fend for themselves and the opportunity finally presented itself.

***

After Felix spent a couple of hours messing with his sin symbols, he left the elemental galaxy and headed to the void nation's dimensional pocket.

He achieved it with a single thought, creating a void portal that connected the dimensional pocket to his location!

It was the same as Lord Khoas' advanced portal ability and he was able to utilize it with a mere thought while Lord Khaos had spent god knows how many eons to master it!

The moment Felix emerged from the portal, a ripple of awareness spread through the void nation like a shockwave.

Every creature, from the smallest void-ling to the councilmen, felt an overwhelming presence wash over them.

'Hmmm?'

'What's that?'

'Why does it feel like little god's aura?'

It was more than just the return of their leader; it was the advent of something divine that resonated deep within their very essence.

Instinctively, everyone dropped whatever they were doing and rushed to the portal's area. When the crowd arrived and noticed Felix floating with an indifferent expression and a pure sinister aura revolving around him, everyone began to kneel as if compelled by a force greater than themselves.

It started with those nearest to Felix, their bodies bending in involuntary reverence, and spread outwards in a wave of submission and awe.

Each one felt an undeniable urge to show their respect, a deep sense of worship that was both bewildering and absolute.

Felix, standing amidst the sea of kneeling beings, took in the scene with a mixture of surprise and understanding.

'I can feel a deep sense of connection with everyone like I can erase their existence with a mere thought.'

He realized that the changes within him, the transformation and the power he had gained, emanated an aura of authority and divinity that the void nation was innately sensitive to.

As he walked through the ranks of his followers, a silent procession of kneeling figures on either side, Felix felt the weight of their reverence.

"My Lord, welcome back." Arthur greeted with his head lowered.

"Congratulations on the ascension. I always believed you would achieve it." Mammon uttered respectfully.

"Hahah! I can't believe this, my king has turned into my god." The Ruiner laughed boastfully as always, "It couldn't get any better!"

"The tattoos befit you," Meriam said with a tint of seduction in her voice.

'You haven't told them about what happened?' Felix asked Candace telepathically.

'It was for the best.' Candace nodded.

Felix agreed as there was no need to let his subordinates know that he had lost the battle and their real goddess was hitchhiking in his mind.

It would just make them confused about their loyalty.

Felix left them believing in his victory and ordered them to follow him to the wrathful creators' district.

Without asking questions, the councilmen chased after him while the rest of the void nation citizens returned to their duties with an uplifted spirit.

Knowing that their king possessed now the true powers of their creator was the greatest moment in their lives since it meant he could finally help them improve their powers!

...

Somewhere in the emptiness realm, Felix and his councilmen stood facing the wrathful creators.

These creatures, resembling giant nightmarish insects with massive abdomens and menacing mandibles, skittered and hissed, their presence a palpable threat.

There was an army of them consisting of hundreds lined up akin to factory workers. Meanwhile, the void creatures of all sorts of sizes and shapes kept emerging from the bottom of their abdomens.

"During your absence, we have managed to increase our family of wrathful creators by twenty. Now, we possess close to 90% of the total."

Arthur shared with a tint of pride in his voice as he watched the wrathful creators pumping out massive numbers of void creatures each minute.

"We have also collected close to twenty billion void creatures in the past five decades." Meriam added, "We knew that you would need a massive quantity to use as currency for your wishes after you return. So, we not once stopped or lazed around."

"Great job." Felix praised.

He was pleased with their efforts as he indeed desired a massive quantity of emptiness creatures for his upcoming wishes.

Still, twenty billion emptiness creatures weren't enough for the kind of vision he had.

"Let's pump those numbers a bit, shall we?" Felix remarked calmly as he floated closer to the wrathful creators.

Then, he pointed his finger at them and uttered calmly, "Flawless Clone Symbol."

As Felix activated the symbol, the black tattoo on his chest glowed with a sinister dark light and was followed by the emergence of a similar symbol above the wrathful creators.

A stream of invisible dark light shot from the symbol, encapsulating the wrathful creators in an ethereal glow.

Within moments, a remarkable transformation occurred.

Next to the original wrathful creators, exact duplicates began to materialize!

These clones were a perfect replica, mirroring every detail of the original, from the terrifying mandibles to the intricate patterns on its abdomen!

The recently cloned wrathful creators turned their attention to Felix...With a commanding gesture, Felix directed the clones to begin the breeding process of emptiness creatures.

The councilmen and the tenants watched with widened pupils at the recently emerging army of wrathful creators, doubling down the numbers of created emptiness creatures in a matter of seconds!!

Chapter 1616 Can't Delay it Any Longer.

"I have never seen this symbol before..."

Even Arthur was taken aback...It was understandable as no one truly knew about all of the paragon of sins' symbols.

Nimo merely had a couple of them unlocked while his awakened version had the majority. Even then, Nimo's alter ego never showed all of his symbols and skills for two reasons.

First, Felix had immunities, and second, Lilith had no interest in destroying Felix right from the get-go.

So, she hid quite a lot of her symbols, powers, and techniques, which couldn't even be comprehended!

"Is this symbol better than perfect imitation? I can't imagine having the powers to create perfect clones in hundreds." Candace remarked with a surprised tone.

"It's neither better nor worse, both have their advantages and limitations. Perfect imitation allows me to imitate the complex powers of much stronger targets. But, I can't imitate more than one target at a time and I lose my powers in the meantime. On the other hand, flawless cloning can be used on lesser complex beings and it can't be used on myself."

Felix answered calmly while placing another symbol, but this time above the void-lings, cloning them passively too.

"Interesting, it's like two faces of the same coin," Arthur replied with a hint of desire.

Felix could sense that he wanted to possess this symbol badly due to the spiritual connection he had with them.

He wasn't bothered by it as he knew right from the start that Candace, Arthur, and the rest of the void nation chose his side and invested in him for the sake of their power-ups.

All of them were able to use only one Symbol and if it was possible, he had no problem with adding a couple more symbols in their arsenal.

As long as the universe didn't consider him abusing his powers of course.

...

Soon, Felix left the wrathful creators' district and was guided to the new place, where the councilmen kept the collected void creatures.

After they reached the place, Felix raised his eyebrows slightly after noticing that there were close to a hundred void nation citizens, using powerful sources of life to keep the void creatures floating in a massive circle.

"Five decades ago, our little god's authority was lifted off the void creatures and they went nuts for any source of life to devour," Arthur explained the scene before him. "We had to do this to keep them in place. Otherwise, they would have started with consuming our empire."

"It's good that you have kept things under control."

Felix nodded for a moment and then instantly appeared next to the astronomical blob of void creatures...He gave it a single look and uttered, "Freeze."

The billions of void creatures froze in place almost instantly like knights listening to a royal decree!

Then, Felix snapped his finger and everyone involved was teleported back to the void nation!

Whether it was the councilmen, the void citizens maintaining the void creatures, or the void creatures themselves...Everyone got blinked!

"Good work, you are excused."

Felix gave a slight head nod at the stunned void citizens and teleported them back to the city while he remained with the others near the palace...Then, he turned to his councilmen and told them that he would like a moment of privacy.

Arthur and the rest didn't dare voice a single word of complaint or questioning...They bowed for a moment and left him to his devices.

"Are you going to wish for the truth about Nimo?" Candace inquired with a soft tone.

"Yes, I have delayed it enough." Felix nodded.

While he seemed relaxed and calm, in reality, Felix was nowhere that.

He truly feared from the bottom of his heart to hear that Lilith was bullsh*ing him as always. And that Nimo's soul split was also part of her plan to manipulate him or just to f*ck with him.

Doubts swirled in his mind like a tempest, each one a sharp sting of betrayal and uncertainty.

Determined to seek the truth, Felix called upon the Equal Trade Symbol...As he focused his intent, the symbol began to materialize above him.

Felix spoke firmly into the void, 'I wish to know if Lilith has told me the truth about Nimo's story of splitting his soul. Yes or no?'

The words hung in his mind, charged with the weight of his need for clarity.

"So distrustful." Lilith rolled her eyes at his attempt and continued her sunbathing.

Meanwhile, the green fox glowed brighter, its form pulsating as it absorbed the void creatures as a sacrifice.

Moments passed, the tension palpable as Felix awaited the verdict. Then, the Equal Trade Symbol pulsed once and stopped its devouring process, a clear and unmistakable signal for the conclusion of the trade.

The moment that happened, a genuine smile manifested on Felix's face after the universe delivered its response in his mind...Yes.

It was direct and simple, yet the realization washed over Felix like a wave, bringing with it an overwhelming sense of relief.

In that instant, it felt as if the shattered pieces of his heart, fragmented by betrayal and doubt, began to find their way back to their rightful place.

The heaviness that had burdened his soul lifted slightly, replaced by a budding sense of hope and reassurance.

Felix lowered his head, a silent thank you to the Equal Trade Symbol, which began to fade, its purpose fulfilled.

"I knew that little cutie can't be controlled by that witch." Thor smiled.

"Nimo has always gone against the stream and even attempted to revive you. If he was controlled by Lilith, she wouldn't have wasted this much effort."

Lady Sphinx approved, understanding that if Lilith had a vision of the future, then she would have seen that Felix's revival would happen without needing her intervention.

Still, it was never bad to be safe against her.

"Using the universe as a lie detector is something I never thought I would see in my life." Lord Marduk commentated.

"As long as it works, why not?" Elder Kraken chuckled.

"Are you going to revive him now?" Lady Sphinx asked.

"Yes." Felix nodded.

"Let's hope it works."

The tenants knew that Felix was planning to use a portion of his soul to revive Nimo, so he would completely cut off any relationship he had with Lilith.

But, none of them knew if it was going to work. After all, he might come back a different entity due to the soul difference.

"All I can do is install all of my memories I had with him in the wish and hope that the real Nimo will come back."

It was uttered that the origin of a personality was memories and Felix hoped that it would be enough to restore Nimo's identity.

With a resolute breath, Felix materialized a new trade and focused on the symbol above him.

He then spoke his wish internally and made sure to put as many details as possible to reduce the failure rate.

The moment he finished, the green fox's eyes locked onto Felix, its gaze piercing into the depths of his soul.

Then, a piece of Felix's soul began to separate from him, a luminescent wisp that contained the very essence of his life force.

It hovered before him, a glowing testament to his willingness to sacrifice for the sake of his friend.

Meanwhile, the symbol began consuming the void creatures like there was no tomorrow.

Millions were gone in seconds and then billions!

The speed was so terrifying, that Felix began to doubt if even those twenty billion void creatures were enough.

So, he swiftly decided to put some extra measures by cloning those void creatures by the millions, using an insane amount of void energy to pull it off!

Fortunately, Felix had already offered the vessel and the memories, leaving the universe with the least possible amount of work.

So, after the symbol consumed fifteen billion void creatures, it closed its blackhole, and accepted the fragment of Felix's soul, disappearing into its glowing form.

In exchange, a new energy began to manifest, a nascent life force that held the promise of Nimo's return.

'Please work...'

Felix watched with a mixture of hope and apprehension as the energy slowly took shape, forming a vessel suitable for Nimo's return.

When the vessel solidified, it turned into a pitch-black cube. Felix felt a deep connection to it, a bond forged by the piece of himself that now resided within.

The Equal Trade Symbol began to fade, its task completed.

Felix swiftly teleported next to the cube and held it gently in his palms, staring at it with a hint of love and reminiscing on the day he first found Nimo.

The only difference was that now, he could feel a being living within from the first touch...

"I guess I have to feed him again to help him hatch." Felix smiled.

"Can you imagine that when he hatches, he emerges as a rat or another animal?" Thor laughed.

"What if he emerged into a human?" Lord Loki remarked while scratching his chin thoughtfully.

"..."

"..."

"..."

Everyone went radio silent and looked at each other, having a deep sense of dread at the thought of it becoming a reality

The cute Nimo, turning into a human? It was a monstrous thought that sent shivers down their spine.

But at the same time, Nimo was created with a part of Felix's soul, so, the possibility wasn't zero...

'Asna will beat the living sh*t out of him if I restored Nimo to her as a human.' Felix sweated a bit.

Chapter 1617 Needing To Be Fed Again.

A couple of hours later...

Felix could be seen sitting on his throne while fiddling with Nimo's cube in his hand. He had a deep frown on his face like he was faced with an unsolvable puzzle.

"Why isn't he hatching?" He murmured to himself, "I have fed him the purest forms of void energy for hours now, it should be even more than the last time he consumed before he hatched."

Felix assumed that Nimo would need some energy and he would hatch like the last time. But, no matter how much he pushed into him, it disappeared instantly.

"The previous time Nimo hatched, he might have already devoured void energy for millions of years to even a billion before you found him." Lady Sphinx shared with a solemn tone, "So, you can't use the amount you fed him as an exact measure."

"You mean he fed that much? I thought since that witch created him for the sake of fooling us, he shouldn't go through the real hatching process?" Felix remarked.

Felix knew about their original theory of Nimo spending so much time in the heart of the void realm, feeding on the purest forms of void energy for its birth. But, in his eyes, that theory applied only if they assumed that the universe was the one putting him on the map, not Lilith.

"I am not that sloppy." Lilith broke apart his reasoning with a neutral tone, "You might have been fooled, but Asna will notice that Nimo can't be a genuine unigin if he hatches without a massive reservoir of energy."

"...So, you are saying that Nimo genuinely had absorbed pure void energy for close to a billion years before I found him?" Felix felt a cold shudder at the thought.

"Found him? I was the one putting him in your path when I noticed that he only needed the last shove of energy to hatch." Lilith yawned lazily while creating a mirror before everyone.

The scenes displayed in the mirror made everyone feel a tingle of dread in their hearts...Especially, for Felix.

He watched with his own eyes as Lilith opened a void portal straight into the royal pyramid hall, where there were ten statues of warriors and the gigantic statue of the kingly guardian, sitting on the throne.

She walked in the air with graceful steps until she arrived at the extended palm of the guardian...Then, she positioned Nimo in his cube form on top of it.

"Hmmm, it's a bit too easy like this. Let's make it fun for him." Lilith giggled while using her law powers to manipulate the kingly guardian to protect Nimo until death.

The statue seemed to respond, the ethereal light around it pulsating with a newfound purpose. A silent understanding passed between Lilith and the kingly guardian, a pact sealed by the power of her laws.

She even hid Nimo's existence, making it impossible for anyone to see him without the right conditions.

"This should be enough."

Lilith walked away with a faint smile towards the void portal, disappearing through it and returning the chamber to its usual dimness...

After that, the mirror pinpointed the next scene of Felix's squad heading toward the Shurima's temple with big foolish smiles and eyes glimmering with riches yet to come.

"..."

Felix watched the whole thing with his lip twitching once in a while.

He had assumed that this might be what happened, but getting its confirmation didn't make him feel any better.

He couldn't help but remember when half of his body got split by the guardian statue's laser beam.

All of this for the sake of Nimo...Yet, it spun out that he almost died to fulfill Lilith's dream...At that time, he didn't even know about her existence.

"You are the worst..." Felix didn't even have the proper words to insult her.

"Heheh, thank you, thank you." Lilith chuckled in enjoyment like she was getting praised.

Felix's eyelids twitched in irritation.

Ultimately, he decided to ignore her, knowing that nothing good would come out of engaging with her.

"Now what? One billion worth of pure void energy isn't cheap for a wish." Thor mentioned.

"It will bankrupt me for the next thousand years if not more." Felix nodded with a serious look.

He understood that the equal trade symbol would not give him a break if he dared wish to awaken Nimo.

"I am more curious why does he even need that much?" Lady Sphinx narrowed her eyes, "The original Nimo possessed the paragon's core and she had to recreate everything to make him resemble a new unigin being born. But, this one doesn't have a core and he has already existed before. Logically, he shouldn't require that much."

"True, maybe he needs less than 30% of what Nimo had absorbed or even lower." Elder Kraken approved.

"There is only one way to find out."

Without bothering to waste his time on speculation, Felix utilized his greed laws again to seek the universe's help.

After a proper sacrifice of void creatures, the universe gave him an exact answer since this situation had already occurred before.

"Ten million years worth of pure void energy." Felix furrowed his eyebrows deeply, "It's not a billion years at least, but still, it's too much."

Felix still had no plans to use a wish for this as it was way too expensive.

"I guess I can only be patient."

"You are thinking of accelerating time in an area while feeding him?" Lady Sphinx asked.

"Yes." Felix nodded, "I will travel to the heart of the void realm, where energy is at its purest, and I will leave him in a dimensional pocket connected to it with accelerated time."

This was the best and cheapest plan he had at the moment. Plus, since he still needed to tie some loose ends, by the time he finished with them, Nimo would be near hatching.

Without wasting time, Felix entered the void realm and closed his eyes to sense the void energy.

It took him almost no time to find out the location of the purest area in the void realm.

'Let's see if this will work.' Felix kept his eyes closed and imagined himself transmuting into void energy.

A split second later, his body got broken up into a cloud of void energy particles!

'Laws rule!'

Felix stated with an elated voice as he swiftly imagined himself manifesting his body in the heart of the void realm.

In no time, Felix's body was reconstructed in a primordial nexus, where void energy existed in its purest and most potent state. It was swirling around in thick, gooey streams that defied the laws of physics and reality.

'It's so condensed...' Even Felix was surprised.

He always heard about the heart of the void realm, where the void energy was so potent, that even void creatures discovered it difficult to exist in it. Yet, he never thought it would be this condensed!

The moment Felix brought out Nimo, the cube began sucking the liquid-like void energy akin to a tiny blackhole.

'I can't believe he had consumed one billion years worth of this kind of pure energy...What a monster.'

Felix left him be and used his runic spatial manipulation to create a small pocket dimension connected with this place.

Then, he jumped inside and pulled Nimo with him, uncaring about the flood of void energy accompanying him...Next, he utilized his illusion domain to accelerate the speed of time to match ten million years to a year.

He could even go for a much better time difference, but he didn't want to affect his illusion domain too much.

After all, this kind of pure void energy was capable of disintegrating his illusion domain little by little even if it wasn't as potent as a void domain.

As for unigins' immunity to illusions? The illusion domain would fail to work on Nimo only after he woke up and unlocked his eyes.

That's because unigins weren't immune to illusions in the same sense as having a direct illusion immunity.

They simply possessed god-like eyes, resembling Lady Sphinx's Truth Eyes, which allowed them to see through illusions.

The same applied to poison and such effects...They didn't have immunities, but their bodies were resistant to any kind of mortal poison used on them, as they were too weak to affect them.

Unigins had perfect immunities only to their laws.

"This should do it."

Felix dusted his hands as he observed Nimo devouring years' worth of void energy in the space of split seconds.

"Now, let's see what kind of cultivation system I can create and help my race turn a better leaf in the future." Felix smiled, a bit interested in the experiment.

Chapter 1618 Returning To Earth.

Felix now had all the tools and time to help his race establish themselves strongly and collectively in the universe, instead of relying on a couple of powerful beings to carry them.

The first thing he did was contact Noah, Olivia, Selphie, Malak, and Bodidi as he needed their help to make his vision clear.

He already had a cultivation system in mind, which was considered perfect for humans if he succeeded.

"Meet me next to Earth." He left them this cryptic message and took off without bothering to explain much.

Noah and the rest made their move the moment they received his message...None of them seemed shocked by his sudden return after more than five decades.

Felix had already informed them before he took Nimo's fight, that he might be gone for a long time and they shouldn't be too concerned.

...

Sometime later...

Felix, having journeyed through realms and realities far beyond the ordinary scope of existence, was finally returning to a place that, despite its cosmic insignificance, held a deep and personal significance for him...Earth.

As Felix approached the solar system, his form, a silhouette against the backdrop of stars and planets, began decelerating.

He had traveled as a being of void particles, a formless entity moving through the cosmos, but now, as he neared his destination, he solidified back to form.

As Felix gazed upon Earth after eons, the sight of the once vibrant planet now completely enshrouded in ice sent a chill through his heart.

The massive, gaping hole in the Pacific Ocean, a dark abyss amidst the frozen expanse, stood as a haunting testament to the changes and turmoil the world had endured because of him...

'Is it possible to revive forty billion people with the greed laws?' Felix murmured to himself.

He came here with plans to return the planet back to its glorious and peaceful days...But, he couldn't help but wonder if he could revive all the lives lost in it during that apocalyptic day.

"It's possible, but only if you are considered a true unigin." Lilith answered with a faint curious grin, "Even then, you will be subjected to one of the most gruesome punishments you have experienced."

"..." Felix smiled bitterly.

He knew that witch answered him to see what his decision would be.

Would he be selfish enough to ignore remedying his mistake now that he possessed the powers necessary to make it happen...Or, he would go for it, uncaring about what would happen to him.

As for why he needed to be a unigin first? Felix knew that wishes' reach and powers were affected by the level of the being.

Djins' wishes were the most limited, Nimo came second, and then his alter ego since he possessed the core and was considered an 'awakened'...Lilith was last.

In the case of Felix, his wishes were considered on the same level as Nimo's...He possessed the paragon of sins' powers, but he had no control over the core since he wasn't a unigin yet.

So, for such ground-breaking wishes, he needed the right requirements to make the trade with the universe.

"Even if you could and you want to do it, you should drop the thought from your mind." Elder Kraken advised, "Reviving forty billion people, no, reviving just a couple thousand is enough to warrant Lord Hades' attention...Now, that he is weakened more than ever, he will see it as a sign of disrespect."

Lord Hades was a stickler for the rules and reviving anyone without his approval first was extremely disrespectful.

This was the reason he punished Lord Quetzalcoatl when he caught him later on.

While Felix was close to him, he would not permit him to resurrect that many spirits no matter what he offered him.

If it was that easy for him to bend his rules, he would have approved of at least helping Felix's grandfather and family members settle down in the heavenly plane.

"It's for the best." Felix's expression went cold as he stared above him, "Even if there were no penalties, reviving them will do nothing but give my enemies ammo to deal with me."

Felix understood that the same scenario would repeat if he revived his loved ones while still having too many powerful enemies lying await.

Getting them killed once was already too much, he would never forgive himself if he revived them and they ended up with the same fate because he couldn't protect them.

So, he decided to bring them back only after he obtained the necessary strength to protect them from anything.

"For now, Let's fix my home."

Felix looked upon the frozen Earth, its beauty marred by the gaping maw in the Pacific and the icy sheath that enveloped it.

Felix called upon the Equal Trade Symbol...As it materialized, Felix's eyes, reflecting the cold light of distant stars, were resolute as he focused on the symbol above.

The energy required for such a planetary restoration was immense, but it wouldn't go past one billion void creatures since the planet was a soulless object, which reduced complexity.

The symbol accepted the offering even with such distance between it and the void creatures.

With a brilliant glow that enveloped Earth, the planetbegan to respond.

Rumble! Rumble!!...

The abyss in the Pacific slowly, almost imperceptibly at first, began to close. The edges of the massive hole shifted, earth and water moving to fill the void that had scarred the planet's face.

Simultaneously, the icy sheath that covered the Earth started to recede. Glaciers melted, releasing rivers that flowed freely for the first time in millennia.

The atmosphere, once thin and fragile, thickened and warmed, clouds forming and bringing the promise of rain!

As the planet transformed, Felix watched, a mix of awe and relief in his heart.

The void creatures he had given were a small price to pay to see his home, this cradle of life, breathe and thrive once again.

The Equal Trade Symbol, its task completed, began to fade, leaving behind a world on the path to recovery.

***

While this was happening, in the austere command center of the Mariana Federation on Mars, a group of leaders huddled around a large holographic display.

The room, typically a place of order and control, was suddenly abuzz with confusion and disbelief.

As the images and videos of Earth's remarkable recovery beamed onto the screen, showing the once-frozen planet blossoming back to life, the leaders were caught completely off-guard!

"Is this some sort of trick?" Zosia Everglow demanded, her eyes narrowing as she scrutinized the images. "Earth was a frozen wasteland and it has been predicted to last like this for another thousand years before the balance returns...How could this possibly happen," Maganda Chief shook his head in shock. "This is unprecedented. Look at the atmosphere readings and the oceanic activity! It's as if the planet has been restored overnight."

Gabrial Lotus chimed in, "It's nothing short of a miracle..."

Murmurs of agreement and skepticism rippled through the group as they continued to watch the transformation unfold.

The images showed the once gaping abyss in the Pacific closing, the ice retreating, and life returning in a display that defied all their scientific understanding.

"Contact our teams on the ground immediately," commanded Zosia, her voice a mix of awe and determination. "We need eyes and ears on this. Verify the authenticity of these reports, and gather as much data as possible."

As the leaders sprang into action, coordinating with their teams and seeking answers, the room was filled with a newfound energy. Despite their initial shock and disbelief, there was an underlying current of excitement and wonder.

The possibility that Earth might be rotated again into the capital of the Mariana Federation was a thought that stirred something deep within each of them...Especially, when the federation now was in complete control over the entire galaxy!

"Could it be him?" Zosia murmured as images of Felix surfaced in her mind, comprehension such miracles could be related only to him. But soon, she stirred her head with a bitter smile, "He has long since been gone..."

While Felix had returned from death over a long period now, the news wasn't released to the public...Only primogenitors and Felix's friends knew about his revival.

"Whatever caused this, it's a chance to honor his death by turning Earth int..."

Before she could finish her sentence, the atmosphere in the command center dropped a couple of degrees, causing everyone to feel chills on their back.

"Is this the new center of operation? Interesting choice of decoration."

Suddenly, a familiar laid-back voice resounded in everyone's ears as clear as daylight even when the chamber was noisy.

Zosia, Maganda Chief, Gabriel, Barry, and many other old leaders and new ones went silent and rotated their heads slowly.

The moment they made half a circle, Felix came into their line of sight with a familiar humane appearance instead of his demonic one.

Whether they were close to Felix before or not, everyone's eyes widened to the limit in utter disbelief and shock.

"F...Fe...Felix..?" Maganda Chief stuttered as he pointed a shaky finger in the direction of Felix.

"It's been a while, chief." Felix grinned gently, "How is little princess bird doing?"

Chapter 1619 Preparing His Parting Gifts...

The moment Felix finished his question, chaos erupted in the chamber as everyone rushed towards him while shouting excitedly.

Not wanting to have his private space invaded, Felix merely gave them a faint smile and everyone halted in their place against their will.

"No need for such ruckus, it's not like I have returned from death." Felix chuckled, still possessing some of his sense of humor after all the trauma he went through.

"Is it really you?" Zosia narrowed her eyes at him, "The ten rulers announced your death, and Queen Ai didn't announce anything after you returned...Something doesn't add up."

"Are you suspecting me for being an imitator?" Felix smiled.

Zosia didn't confirm it, but her silence was enough.

"You are as cautious as ever. No wonder Noah kept you in charge of the federation after he took the supreme leader's position."

Felix was more pleased than annoyed as this was the appropriate reaction of a natural-born leader.

Not wanting to cause trouble and make their lives harder, Felix requested Queen Ai to confirm his identity.

Queen Ai confirmed his identity easily by reading his unique ID, which couldn't be replicated, stolen, or changed.

"It's really you..."

Only now did Zosia drop her guard and allow her emotions to run amok. Felix wasn't a normal being to her or any other human.

He was a legend, the pride of the human race, and some people even considered him as their deity, worshiping him for blessings after his death.

So, everyone's reaction was more than understandable.

"I don't have much time here and I just came by to check on you guys." Felix added with a casual tone, "I also fixed Earth, so feel free to move in again and recivilize it. Zosia, I will contact you later on for a mission, be available."

Before anyone could react to his insane statement, Felix said his goodbyes and disappeared through a void portal again.

After he left, Maganda chief, Gabriel, Zosia, and the rest of the leaders kept staring at each other in silence...But, everyone's eyes had a hint of crazed excitement.

They had no idea if he had died and revived, he was in hiding, trapped, or whatnot...The only thing they cared about was the fact that he had returned!

"Do we announce it?!"

"Did he tell you to announce it?" Zosia glared at the leader who suggested this.

"No..."

"Then, keep it to yourselves." Zosia ordered with a solemn tone, "For now, we only have one task and that is restoring civilization on Earth and turning it into the greatest planet in the universe."

Zosia had no idea what Felix needed from her as she knew that even before his disappearance, his authority and reach had already surpassed her capabilities by miles.

So, all she could do was wait patiently for his call.

***

Sometime later...

Felix could be seen sitting on top of a ruined metallic skyscraper with green moss and vines growing all over it.

Selphie, Olivia, Noah, Bodidi, and Malak were standing next to him, gazing into the distant wasteland of what was once a rowdy capitalistic city of New York.

Felix had met with them half an hour ago and gave them some details about his previous journey and how it led him here.

He also informed them that he now possessed the powers of the paragon of sins and he used them to restore the planet and planned on using them to fix the human's non-existent cultivation system.

"I have no idea how you managed to get your hands on such godly powers...But, I know that it must have been difficult." Selphie uttered with a soft tone as she gazed at Felix from the side.

Felix merely gave a forced smile and remained silent, not wanting to lie to them that he had won his battle.

"What's your next goal in life? I think you have already reached the peak." Malak said with a tone filled with reverence, "No one and nothing can stand before you now."

"It's true! You are already capable of putting even primogenitors in their place." Olivia agreed with an elated tone, ecstatic for Felix's achievement.

"..." Only Noah uttered nothing.

Unlike them, his master Fenrir kept him in the loop on many things and this made him understand that Felix's journey was nowhere near its end. It was just about to get tough like never before.

All he could do was tighten his fists in helplessness, having no way of assisting Felix in his path after everything he had done for him.

'Don't beat yourself up Noah, I don't wish this fate for anyone.' Felix smiled kindly at Noah after noticing his emotional instability related to his weakness.

With the powers of the paragon, he could sense everyone's emotions and desires like he was looking into someone's expression.

'Still...I want to be of some sort of value to you. I don't care if it's dangerous, I am willing to let go of everything and head to the eternal kingdom with you to save Asna.' Noah said with a hardened tone.

Even when Fenrir shared some of the dangers of the eternal kingdom, he still desired to follow after Felix and be of his assistance in that foreign land.

'I appreciate the gesture, but that place isn't made for mortals, unfortunately.' Felix shook his head, 'Your elemental manipulation can be used against you there.'

As much as Felix valued Noah's grits and bravery, he had no interest in taking him along. He had already dropped the thought of bringing primogenitors with him to be his subordinates.

Lilith's confirmation of the three rulers' origin made him understand that his only subordinates and allies were the void nation.

That's because they were made out of void and seven sins, making him the sole ruler of them...Even Lord Khaos' participation in creating them wouldn't make a difference.

'But...'

Seeing that Noah was having a difficult time accepting it, Felix said with a serious tone, 'Instead, I have another mission for you and I don't know if you are willing to go for it.'

'Just name it.' Noah uttered while giving him a stern look.

'I want you to enter the spirit realm and help my grandfather reach the heavenly plane safely. You can also help your little sister do the same.' Felix said.

'Hmmm?' Noah's pupils enlarged a bit, 'But how? Even if I entered the spirit realm, I don't know how to locate their spirits.'

Noah had already thought about doing this for a very long time to save his little sister's spirit, but nothing worked.

Entry to the spirit realm was already a barrier on its own, don't even mention finding a specific spirit in its infinite space.

'Don't worry about that, I have it covered.' Felix said, 'All I need is a yes fro...'

'Yes, I am ready at any moment.' Noah replied instantly.

'I didn't think you would be this eager.' Felix chuckled, 'But hold your horses, you are still the supreme leader and before you head out, your position had to be handed to either a human or a void citizen.'

'I will have it handled.' Noah promised.

'Good.'

Felix could only shake his head inwardly...He knew that Noah was obsessed with his little sister and would do anything for her.

But still, to give up everything he had accomplished and go on a mindless and numbing journey of searching in the spirit realm was too much, even by his standards.

'This is my gift to you, I wish you won't regret it...'

Felix planned on leaving one last gift for his friends by using his powers.

In the case of Noah, he desired nothing more but to see his sister and Felix decided to give him a path to achieve this impossible goal.

Whether he regretted it or not, it wasn't up to him.

Soon, Felix turned to look at Selphie and couldn't aid but feel a tingle in his core at the way she was looking at him.

It was filled with love, affection, compassion, and loyalty...A look only Asna, Nimo, and his grandfather used to give him.

The only difference was that those emotions were one-sided and they would always remain like this...

'I am sorry Selphie, but it's time to free you from your curse.' Felix smiled at her, making her blush shyly.

She had no idea that this was the last time she was going to feel like this for Felix...

Chapter 1620 Creating The Ultimate Cultivation System! I

Felix didn't want before to manipulate Selphie's emotions. He saw it as somewhat of a personal invasion...But now that he was planning to leave this universe and had no idea if he would ever return, it was far cruel to leave Selphie in this state.

Elves could genuinely love only once in their entire lifetime and that's why they were extremely picky in their love partner and why their birthrate was incredibly low.

Felix knew that if he left for the eternal kingdom, Selphie's obsession with him would get only worse and worse until it would ruin her life.

He considered her as one of his dearest friends and refused to let such a fate befall her.

'She is a kind girl who deserves to be happy and as far as possible from my life.'

Felix wasn't even sure if he would make it out of this alive and he had no interest in bringing his friends into his mess anymore.

"Boss, how are you going to create a new cultivation system for an entire race? Is that even possible?" Bodidi interrupted Felix's thought process.

"I am also curious."

Olivia and the others showed the same amount of interest.

They knew that creating a cultivation system wasn't something easy...Even the bloodline integration cultivation system was considered unnatural with many limitations.

They doubted Felix would create another one similar to the bloodline system since it wouldn't change the fundamental aspect of humans being born without a cultivation system.

"You will find out soon enough." Felix said calmly, "For now, get Zosia on the line and tell her to prepare one hundred children with different unlocked affinities and no relation to origin bloodliners."

"Age?" Malak asked.

"From twelve to sixteen."

"You got it."

After she left to focus on the task and even participate in it to make sure the best quality of children was brought in, Felix turned to Bodidi, Olivia, and Noah.

"I will request to run some experiments on you if that's okay."

"I don't mind."

"Mmmm."

"As you wish, boss."

All of them agreed at once even when they had no clue what kind of experiment it would be.

Without further ado, Felix dusted his palms and blinked himself and everyone to the street at the bottom.

Unbothered with the ruins and desolation around him, Felix tapped into his illusion domain and created a functioning laboratory with equipment, tables, chairs, and various essential instruments.

Within moments, what had been an empty plot of land amidst the ruins transformed into a state-of-the-art laboratory.

It was simple in its design, yet equipped with everything Felix needed for his work.

"It feels mystical every time I see it..." Olivia murmured with an awed tone as she walked into the laboratory with Felix and the others.

"Stand in one line." Felix requested.

When they followed his request, Felix invoked the envy symbol, its glow casting an eerie light around them.

As the symbol pulsed with life, Felix extended his hands, and from the ether, ethereal figures began to take shape.

Mere outlines at first, gradually gained form and substance, their features meticulously mirroring those of Olivia, Noah, and Bodidi!

"This..."

"Hmm?"

"Wow!"

Selphie and the others were left with astounded and a bit freaked-out expressions at the sight of their perfect counterparts standing in front of them with soulless eyes.

"Are those real clones?" Selphie was the first to ask, "Do they possess the same strength and powers, I mean?"

"Yes." Felix nodded calmly, "But don't worry, I left out their souls as I just need your bodies to run my experiments without harming you."

"Souls?"

"You can even copy their souls..."

Noah and the others felt a tingle of dread in their heart as they gazed at Felix.

When they met Felix earlier, he acted normal and this made them sense comfortable around him just like old times even when they heard about his newly godly powers.

But, only now did it finally click in their minds...Felix was already at a godhood level where miracles to him seemed like common occurrences.

'Sigh...' Felix could feel their inner turmoil and all he could do was smile wryly.

In his eyes, he would have acted the same if his friend had come along and shown him that he could create a perfect clone of himself, which indirectly removed any sense of uniqueness from him.

So, he didn't take it against them and began the experiment by beaming an illuminating white sphere inside a glass container.

Selphie was the first to break from her initial shock and alter the subject with a surprised tone, "Is that what I think it is?"

"A Pandion Core." Felix nodded.

"Pandion core?" Olivia tilted her head in confusion, "What are you planning to do with it? Are you trying to clone the pandion's cultivation system?"

"No." Felix smirked, "I am preparing to improve it and make it the new human cultivation system."

"Improve it? How?" Bodidi asked with a startled tone.

He understood that Pandion's cultivation system was considered almost perfect when compared to many other systems.

Perfect in the sense of its design instead of its potential.

"We all know that pandions are born with a small core in their abdomen that's capable of absorbing neutral energy." Felix shared, "This core helps them enhance their all-rounded strength until it gets harder and harder for it to transfer energy into an adequate strength."

"Most importantly, It also gives them manipulation to neutral energy," Felix added.

"If we humans were born with this core...We will get stronger over time and most importantly, we will have manipulation to neutral energy."

"It will be amazing alright as none of us will request to go through the agony of bloodline integration." Olivia commented, "But, where is the improvement?"

Felix brought out the core from the glass container and controlled it to float in front of his friends' faces. Then, he uttered with a faint grin, "Now, imagine if we were able to use the neutral energy manipulation to convert it into elemental energy based on our highest affinities to elements."

"Huh?"

"You serious?"

"How can that be possible?!"

None of them took the news lightly as they knew that if Felix managed to pull this off, humans would literally possess the ultimate cultivation system!!!

It was a known fact that humans had access to all elements in the universe within their genes...But they were locked up and only one or a couple were unlocked during their birth with a different rating of affinity.

Since there were more than a hundred elements, many humans were born with a high affinity to rare elements but could do nothing with them since there weren't beasts with a representing bloodline.

So, it was always believed that being born with common or uncommon elements was considered a gift and the opposite was a curse.

But with this new cultivation system, natural order would finally be restored and those gifted humans would possess access to powerful elemental manipulations or even dual manipulations!

Imagine a human capable of manipulating life, death, radiation, chaos, or even vibration elements!

Now imagine a hundred trillion or even more of such humans.

They would own the universe as a collective race at last!

Soon, Olivia and the others woke up from their dreamland after realizing that it sounded great only on paper.

"How can you achieve this? Possessing elemental manipulation without relation to the primogenitor or the universe making a move personally is impossible." Selphie frowned.

She was trying her hardest to see through Felix's method, but she kept failing to discover it.

"You will see later how it will work." Felix rubbed his chin thoughtfully, "For now, I have to discover the best way to make a pandion's core compatible with our genes."
