

Supremacy 1761

Chapter 1761 I...Caught...You...at...Last.

'Because it is considered as abusing her laws and she will suffer from a small punishment.' Lilith clarified.

'Since she is in the Echoing Tower, she had no problems with receiving some of those punishments if necessity demanded it.' Felix nodded.

'In other words, it was better to bring them to their own prepared territory than to get found in another book for the sake of a small punishment.' Lady Sphinx concluded.

'I see...'

Candace started to realize that Felix wasn't the only one capable of abusing his laws to turn things to his advantage.

This made her more worried and scared of what was about to come next.

'Ready yourselves.'

When Felix understood that sooner or later, Eris' letters would go inside his world, he gave a stern gaze at Apollo and Commander Bia.

'It's the moment of the truth.'

Apollo cracked his knuckles while pulling out his Lyre, understanding that some of them might not make out of here alive.

Although they had a plan in place to handle their enemies, it was subpar at best when it came to dealing with upper celestial unigins.

But, there wasn't much they could do about it...The library offered them with the biggest chance of survival compared to the previous or upcoming floors, and they had to risk it.

'Found you.'

Suddenly, Eris' eyes gleamed for a second after she spotted a familiar environment inside one of the books.

Without an ounce of hesitation, she recalled the rest of the letters and sent them inside that world.

The letters gathered in one place and started stacking among each other until a bright curvy stunning female figure emerged. With a sudden flash of light, the figure turned into Eris herself!

"The chase is over, come out, and let's end things peacefully." Eris announced indifferently as she pushed her glasses upward her nose.

Although her senses hadn't picked up on anyone yet, she was certain that Felix and the rest were hiding here.

That's because the Librarian could not create multiple worlds using the memories of one person.

In other words, if Felix wasn't hiding here and using this environment as a distraction, it would do nothing but delay the inevitable and ruin his advantage.

"No response? I gues..."

Before Eris could make another move, a sudden flash of light appeared out of nowhere, targeting her back!

It was a spear of light, cutting through the peaceful atmosphere with the speed of light!

Eris had sensed the surge of energy at the last possible moment and turned sharply to face the incoming threat.

Without an ounce of fear, Eris met the spear with a brilliant flash of light!

However, instead of the expected impact, the spear disintegrated upon contact with Eris. The particles of light from which it was formed scattered into harmless, sparkling motes that faded into the air around her...

"Impressive, Apollo. But you should know better than to believe a mere spear of light can unsettle me." Eris commented calmly.

"Then, how about millions of them?"

Apollo's playful voice resounded in the sky and before it could reach Eris' ears, she found herself surrounded by millions of blinding spears, coming from every single direction!!

Unfazed, Eris used the same technique to shut down the barrage of spears! She remained untouched as the spears went through her skin akin to being devoured by a black hole!

The analogy wasn't farfetched when considering that the technique used was called Order Cancellation!

A powerful and unique technique capable of summoning the exact opposite force of the targeted attack to counter it perfectly!

In this case, Eris had used it on her skin, which created a pitch-black barrier with a 100% light-absorbing effect!

Thus, the rain of spears ended up doing nothing but cast a brilliant glow across the Sky Pearl Island...An utterly useless attempt.

At least, this was what appeared to the onlookers. But in reality?

Whoosh Whoosh!!

'Hmmm?'

Eris raised her eyebrow slightly after Felix and Apollo suddenly emerged from within one of those flashes of light right before her eyes!

One came from the front and the other from the back, sandwiching her in the middle.

One was holding a spear made out of light while the other was carrying a black lightning bolt, crackling with fierce electric power.

Both of their expressions were cold, serious, and mostly, murderous.

For they understood that they were pushed into a corner and the only way forward was to go all out!

"Eriiis!!"

Apollo thrust his spear of light forward, attempting to pierce through Eris' chest. Simultaneously, Felix, with a matching overwhelming speed, lunged forward, his lightning bolt aimed directly at Eris' back!

They believed that Eris might leave a small opening in which she would be forced to either defend her front from the spear of light or her back from Felix's lightning bolt.

Alas, Eris was no pushover.

As the weapons neared, she invoked an advanced version of the Order Cancellation Technique!

This caused both attacks to halt the instant they touched her skin! The only difference this time was Eris' front side turned pitch-black while her back transformed into a gleaming, metallic surface!

The powerful electrical voltage was wholly negated by the peculiar metallic material akin to a fire being quenched by water!

'Damn it, she is untouchable!' Felix cursed with an ugly expression as he pulled away from Eris.

He was already informed that when Eris decided to take a battle seriously, it was nearly impossible to touch her...All because of this technique.

A technique capable of transforming her own body into the best material or energy capable of countering their attacks.

The only way around it was to utilize peculiar attacks that could not be countered, which was nearly impossible for either Felix or Apollo without abusing their laws.

If Felix still had his seven sin laws, bypassing this technique would be child's play...Too bad.

As she watched them create some distance from her, Eris remained unmoved, her eyes shifting forward to meet Apollo's and Felix's.

"Is that the extent of your creativity, gentlemen?" Eris remarked calmly, "No matter how powerfully wielded, simple laws cannot breach the defenses of one who commands the very principles of chaos and order."

Before Felix or Apollo could react, Eris clapped her hands once, and a part of the letters that made her existence broke apart and merged to create a circular chaotic grey portal.

The moment Felix and Apollo saw the portal, their expressions turned for the worse and they swiftly attempted to break it apart.

Alas, the portal was protected with the same technique and their attempts failed again.

'Damn it, they can't even deal with Eris properly, how can they handle Uranus and Demeter too?'

Candace nervously watched as Uranus stepped through the portal, widening it with two hairy arms.

His visage was as cold and merciless as ever...But this time, his eyes were mixed with a hint of sinister pleasure and thrill.

"I...caught...you...at...last."

He uttered one by word, his eyes never leaving Felix and Apollo...They were affixed on them akin to a predator locking on his prey after a week of starvation.

Chapter 1762 Has He Gone Mad?!

As he stepped over, Demeter exited through the portal with her usual stern attitude...The moment her eyes adjusted to the light, she shook her head at Felix and Apollo in disappointment.

"You genuinely thought there was a place in this universe where you could escape from the three rulers?" She eyed Apollo, "Apollo, I never thought you would be this naive."

She didn't mention Felix as she knew that his fate was already sealed to be an eternal enemy of their kingdom and the three rulers. But, Apollo was different. His betrayal was idiotic and borderline suicidal in her eyes.

"First of all, it's not like I wanted to do this." Apollo coughed, "But, you know, I have no control over the wants of my other half."

"It won't hurt if you tried to show some loyalty."

Felix's eyelids twitched, knowing that he was asking for the impossible when it came to unigins.

Luckily, unigins never took betrayal lightly even when their loyalty could be questioned.

"Save it, your other half will be next after we deal with you." Demeter said.

"Now, do you want to do this the easy way, or the hard way?" "Uranus smiled diabolically as he cracked his knuckles, "Of course, you will be tortured either way."

Uranus planned on doing his best to fulfill the three rulers' request of bringing Felix alive to them. However, only if his anger and hatred were fully quenched.

If it wasn't? He had no problem with killing both of them even if it meant going against the three rulers' orders...His desires and wants always came first.

Felix and Apollo remained silent, their eyes were narrowed in concentration, anticipating any sudden movement by their enemies.

Eris, Uranus, and Demeter also kept their eyes on them without initiating a move even when they had the numbers advantage.

They knew that Felix and Apollo were shrewd and would have prepared something to welcome them.

'Apollo's domain is thousands of kilometers away. Why haven't they turned the entire world into his domain?' Demeter frowned, 'This little Island seems like it has no business being here.'

She could understand Felix wanting to keep the ocean for his water laws, but still, it wouldn't be as useful as turning the entire world into Apollo's domain.

After all, this would still give Felix control over lightning laws while providing Apollo a real home ground.

'I don't give a sh*t. I am making my move.'

Uranus grew impatient immediately, no longer able to handle the sight of Felix and Apollo being so close to him without trying to put his hands on them.

With deep concentration, he began to direct the immense energy of vibration into a focal point within his clenched fist!

The air around it buzzed with power, visible ripples emanating from his hand as the energy condensed into a dense, vibrating core!

"Let's take this outside." He said with an icy tone, desiring to shatter the entire dimensional world to pieces!

Without warning, Uranus momentarily phased out and when he reappeared before Felix and Apollo, his presence was like a sudden tempest!

Apollo gave Felix a trusting glance and took a step back. Meanwhile, Felix stood his ground with an equally aggressive retaliation!

Drawing from his control over vibrational energy, Felix readied his fist, mirroring Uranus' technique!

"Has he gone mad?" Demeter's lips parted slightly in shock.

The notion of Felix daring enough to proceed fist-to-fist with Uranus was crazy on its own. Yet, to challenge him with his vibrational laws? It was suicidal!

"It seems like I haven't beaten sense into you yet." Uranus sneered in derision at Felix's incoming fist.

It was also glowing with vibrational energy, but when compared to his fist, the difference was like the lighting of a candle to a lighthouse!

Uranus didn't even bother to cancel out Felix's vibrations, desiring to teach him a grave lesson on his foolish bravery.

Unfazed, Felix met him head-on!

Before Uranus and the others could respond to his brazen act, a faint smirk emerged on Felix's face as he uttered, "Switch."

The Sky Pearl island spacetime fabric began to warp, causing the frequencies of reality to shift unpredictably. In almost no time, the entire dimensional space turned into the Silent Library, with Felix's and Uranus' fists locked together near the glass ceiling!

"You..." Uranus' eyes widened slightly in astonishment as he gazed deeply into Felix's eyes.

He instantly recognized what Felix had done to avoid getting obliterated by his punch.

He knew it before anyone else as he had felt the spacetime's frequency change a nanosecond before his clench could make contact with it!

As the spacetime frequency of the environment shifted, so too did the effectiveness of Uranus's vibrational punch, which relied on smashing the spacetime frequency, causing massive destruction in the area.

If suddenly changed or failed to land on the frequency, his thrown punch would be the same as any normal punch!!!

Felix, having engineered this moment, didn't fall to the same fate. His original punch was targeting none other than the spacetime frequency of the Silent Library from the get-go!

Thus, under the disbelieving looks of Uranus and Demeter, Felix grunted his teeth and pushed his fist forward, aligned perfectly with the new spacetime frequency!

Craack! BOOOOOOOOOOOOM!!!

While the vibrations themselves pushed into Uranus failed to do anything to him, the impact created a massive shockwave!

The shockwave exploded outward, causing the reality to start cracking akin to a glass mirror! But no one's eyes were on this. Everyone gazed with widened pupils at Uranus, who got hit with its unstoppable force, flinging him backward akin to a broken doll!

Thud! Thud! Thud!!

He crashed into the diverse bookshelves that lined the library, causing books and debris to erupt around him as he smashed through hundreds of shelves.

Thud!

He finally came to a halt, buried beneath piles of books and splintered wood, stunned and disoriented by the sudden reversal of fortunes.

Around them, the library groaned and shuddered under the impact, cracks spreading across the stone floor and up the walls.

Dust and paper filled the air, creating a haze that slowly settled over the chaotic scene.

Felix stood firm, his chest heaving from exertion, his clench shaking from the aftermath, but his eyes were cold and calculating.

'Move out now!'

Not giving time for either his enemies or allies to react, Felix tapped into his Librarian control and ordered it to switch the environment to Apollo's domain!

This time, he didn't choose any other environment to mix with it, causing the entire world to turn into a massive sprawling city, with one side bathing in light while the other engulfed in nightmarish darkness!

The moment the city came to life, Apollo disappeared into its shadows and brought Felix with him while at the same casting his territorial pressure on their enemies!

'Move! Move! Move!'

Meanwhile, Commander Bia and her squad took off towards the silent Library's exit the moment Felix kicked them off the Librarian's dimensional stomach.

Felix understood that escaping from the unigins was useless if Eris kept the library's exit on lockdown.

Thus, instead of having them as a burden in their battle, he tasked them with finding a way to remove the spatial modifications on the portal.

Eris was the first to sense their escape...But, she didn't pay any attention to them as Apollo's territorial pressure made her feel like the weight of a galaxy was placed on her shoulders.

'Use your divinities to cancel it.' Eris uttered calmly while creating a thin golden barrier with the stored radiant divinity.

Chapter 1763 This is The Quantum Realm, My Realm!

While divinities or celestial energy couldn't be linked between the matter universe and the quantum realm, it was possible to utilize the stored version.

It was the same as elemental energy, their divine weapons, and other types of energies from the matter universe.

Unigins could use whatever they managed to shrink with them, but could not create or have someone send more.

Whoosh!

After popping his radiant barrier, Uranus jumped into the air and joined his partner's side with a clear irate expression.

He even brought out his divine bronze Sycthe, having no interest in receiving another humiliating strike.

Just like Apollo's Lyre, he was able to shrink his divine Sycthe with him, a somewhat impossible experience with other objects.

Divine weapons were considered exceptions, as they were additional limbs of unigins due to the billions of years spent together.

Some projectiles even gain consciousness if they live for a prolonged period while feeding on energies.

Unigins had no interest in having a consciousness born from their weapons, thus, they brought a stop to it...They were more than satisfied with just having their weapons become part of their existence.

Unfortunately for Felix, he didn't share the same experience with Hephaestus' hammer and couldn't shrink it.

"Why are you delaying the inevitable?" Uranus uttered with a suppressed tone, his murderous bloodshot eyes were moving side to side, seeking to fish out his prey.

However, his senses couldn't pick up anything related to Felix or Apollo...Even when he used his vibrational detection skills.

They were like ghosts hiding deep within this sprawling deserted metropolis.

It was understandable as this was Apollo's domain and with his control over darkness, it was near impossible to fish him out from here unless he wanted it.

"Let me."

Fully aware of Apollo's dominance within his domain, Eris swiftly took measures to eradicate his home advantage.

She sat cross-legged mid-air and opened her tome on her lap. Then, she touched the front page of her tome with two fingers and the letters began to jump out of the book and dance on its pages akin to obedient little elves.

With a single finger snap, the letters froze and merged until they created a small chaotic sphere.

When Apollo and Felix saw it from within the darkness, their expressions turned solemn immediately.

'Is that it?'

'Yes, it's The Sphere of Absolution. We have to break through her dimensional lockdown on the library before its completion.'

'I have them under my radar.' Felix replied as he switched his focus to a wisp he planted inside Commander Bia's consciousness space.

'Tell them to hurry the f*ck up.' Apollo said with a stern tone while gazing at the Sphere of Absolution growing bigger and bigger.

He understood that Eris might seem omnipotent, but she had some imposed limitations on her abilities.

For example, the dimensional reality, where she was considered as its creator and judge, could not go beyond a specific size.

It was quite small and could even be seen as a cubic dimension with the naked eye...Still, she could cast it almost instantly, which traded off the negatives.

Meanwhile, The Sphere of Absolution was the advanced version of the ability...It could get as big as Eris wanted it, providing her with a personal reality, where she could play goddess with even unigins!

The only downside was its growing phase required time and left Eris unprotected while she focused everything on making it bigger.

Apollo and Felix had no plans of watching Eris finish the creation of their graveyard in peace.

Whoosh! Whoosh! Whoosh!...

A volley of light, dark, and electrical projectiles whistled through the air in her direction, attempting to disturb her concentration since both order cancellation and sphere of absolute techniques required utmost focus!

Uranus swiftly responded and stepped in front of Eris. With a single 360-degree swing of his divine Scyph, a powerful negating vibrational wave was released, causing all projectiles to dissipate the instant they were touched by it!

"You do you, I will fish them out on my own."

Uranus left Eris' protection to Demeter and headed down to the city, landing on a tall skyscraper that was shimmering with golden light akin to a beacon.

"You think only Eris can deal with your little shenanigans?" Uranus narrowed his eyes coldly at the city of duality as he declared, "This is the quantum realm, my realm."

Uranus instantly extended his senses beyond the physical, tapping into the deeper, subtler frequencies of the strings that composed everything within Apollo's domain!

Each string vibrated with its unique signature, creating a symphony only Uranus could perceive.

This realm, crafted from light and shadows, was no different at its core, just another composition of vibrational strings waiting to be played.

The instant Uranus locked on every single unique frequency, he snapped his eyes open, which now glowed with a fierce, golden light!

Then, he raised the scythe above his head, and with a resounding voice that boomed like thunder, Uranus issued a single command, "Collapse!"

Following his command, he brought the scythe down with a calculated tap against the skyscraper, targeting a random point on the roof that acted as the first piece of a chain of dominos collapsing!

The tap sent an invisible shockwave rippling through the fabric of Apollo's domain, finding every weak point and amplifying the vibrations there until the bonds that held the domain together began to unravel!

The walls, the ground, the buildings, even the air, everything within Apollo's world began to tremble violently.

Within moments, the entire domain was consumed by a flood of collapsing energies, which eventually turned into a whirling maelstrom of quantum energy.

Once a domain of light and darkness was now just a chaotic soup of invisible quantum energy in a seemingly endless void!

'Is he dumb? This did nothing but help us out.' Candace tilted her head in confusion.

Most of the tenants shared their reaction, feeling like Uranus did nothing but show off his control over vibration laws, allowing him to disintegrate any matter created out of quantum energy back to its original form.

However, as Candace mentioned, this left a vast pitch-black void for Apollo. In other words, he really didn't do anything to better their situation.

'Even worse, Felix can return the environment back to Apollo's domain with a single co...'

Before Thor could finish his sentence, his eyes widened in shock at the sight of Uranus absorbing the massive quantity of quantum energy through his divine scythe!

As it kept feeding on it, the bronze scythe turned darker and more ominous.

'Sh*t, the Librarian can't change the environment anymore.'

Felix's expression turned for the worse after he ordered the Librarian monster and it did nothing.

'It's the quantum energy.' Lady Sphinx remarked, 'It can't create more of it and without it, this dimensional space will remain as a void.'

'No, it can create more, just not fast enough to make a difference.'

Felix had anticipated many things, but he didn't think that Uranus would utterly demolish his world and seize its quantum energy in less than a second!

Alas, the worst had yet to come.

'Apollo, change of plans...'

Chapter 1764 An Unstoppable Shockwave!

Before he could finish his sentence, his eyes saw two peculiar energies emerging from the scythe...One was white and the other was black.

The two energies mixed together in the shape of a circular, resembling the Ying-Yang Symbol without the dots.

At first glance, Felix and Apollo realized what those energies were and it made their hearts sink to the bottom of their stomach.

'Anti-matter and matter particles!!' Felix bellowed immediately, 'We can't let him carry on!'

'You don't have to tell me twice!'

Scared sh*tless, Apollo tapped into his stored Resplendent divinity and used it to empower his next attack.

He manifested two massive pitch-black eyes and with a sudden flash of light that illuminated the whole void, the eyes opened up and locked on Uranus' fleeting emergence of his shadow!

'Shadow Possession!'

Uranus' shadow suddenly turned alive and tried to go through his skin. If successful, Apollo would gain temporary control over Uranus!

Just like a PC, it didn't matter if it was the most protected supercomputer in the universe. Once it got corrupted by a reliable Trojan, its control switched to the Trojan's owner.

With Resplendent divinity used, the potential of the ability was increased by a hundredfold. It should have a guaranteed success rate!

Unfortunately, Uranus had locked in 100% and no longer planned on falling to their attacks.

"Shadow Possession?" He scoffed as he watched the vibrational barrier on his skin convulse his own shadow until it broke into particles!

'Crap, he has turned on his peak defensive technique!' Apollo cursed, 'Unless you use your seven sins laws, none of us can land a physical attack on him anymore.'

All Upper Celestial unigins possessed peak defensive techniques that put the Lower Celestial unigins in despair.

For Eris, it was the Order Cancellation Technique, and for Uranus, it was Resonance Tuning!

A powerful and complicated defensive technique that required immense concentration to keep it working. It forced Uranus to tap into the natural vibrational frequencies of his immediate environment and identify any abnormalities near him.

Then, he adjusted the vibrational output to match or harmonize with these frequencies, creating a synergistic effect!

The moment this occurred, Uranus was given control over the frequency of those abnormalities and with a slight modification, its creation fell apart instantly.

This whole process happened in less than a nanosecond to the shadow.

The failure of Apollo's next barrage of attacks made them realize that Uranus wasn't screwing around...He refused to let anything touch him anymore.

Even Felix's water/lightning attacks came back with useless results. He tried to control his internal blood, water, and electrical discharges, desiring to assault him from within.

Sadly, his attempts were negated in the same manner as the defensive technique operated also internally!

'Nothing can go through...' Candace murmured with a hint of despair.

"Just sit tight and accept your fate...It will be over before you know it."

Uranus noted with a sinister smile as he gazed at the energies of creation and destruction finely balanced within his grasp.

With ugly expressions, Felix and Apollo watched as Uranus swung his scythe at the Ying-Yang symbol, cutting through the mixed matter/anti-matter particles in a straight line!

The meeting of matter and antimatter triggered an intense reaction, causing a blinding flash of light to emerge and soon followed by a deafening boom!

If this was all, the destruction would have been contained within the dimensional world, but Uranus had used his vibrational force to guide the explosion into hitting the spacetime frequency!!!

This was what Felix and Apollo feared would occur.

'STAY WITH ME!' Felix bellowed in agitation as he caught Apollo's arm from within the darkness and ordered the Librarian to teleport him to another world!

He knew this world was beyond saving...

He wasn't overreacting at all...The immense shockwave was on another level compared to Felix's spacetime vibrational punch.If compared, it would be ten thousandfold its force!

Instead of the usual spatial cracks, the entire dimensional space shattered into the tiniest fragments in an instant, and continued rippling outward, tearing through the Librarian from within!!

Felix and Apollo kept escaping from the all-devouring shockwave, but after a couple of jumps, they discovered out that the Librarian's responses to Felix's calls became slower and slower.

It was for a good reason as the monster's form buckled and twisted, its wooden and bookish components disintegrating from within under the overwhelming force of the combined particles and vibrational energy.

It might be immune to laws, but there was nothing it could do about such a destructive tsunami of pure force!

'We have to ditch it quickly!' Apollo yelled, his voice cracking from dread.

He understood that nothing could protect him from a shockwave that was obliterating even the fabric of spacetime.

'I know!'

Felix also had no plans of getting caught in the explosion...But, he thought far ahead and discovered out that the explosion might spread outside and delete the entire library with it!

In other words, leaving the dimensional space of the Librarian was not enough!

Without an ounce of hesitation, Felix came up with a swift countermeasure and made a move on it, having no time to even explain it to Apollo.

The moment he got himself and Apollo kicked out of the Librarian, Felix rolled forward once and then extended his arm in the direction of the Librarian monster in a kneeling position.

The Librarian's monster had cracks all over its body, each releasing a beam of blinding light, a clear sign that it was about to implode in the next second at best!

Felix tapped into his evil energy connection between him and the Librarian, creating a visible misty link!

"ARGHHHH!!"

Then, Felix growled aggressively as he spun once and hurled the Librarian into the nearby library's entrance!

Not bothering to watch it go through the portal, Felix immediatelyshouted, "APOLLO!"

Although Felix hadn't told him anything, Apollo instantly snapped out of his daze and appeared beside Felix!

With no words exchanged between them, he turned into a flash of light and took them away from the entrance at his topmost speed!

The moment the Librarian went through the portal, its body could no longer contain the overwhelming force.

BOOOOOOOOOOOM!!!

With a brilliant flash of light that illuminated the eternal staircase floor, the terror of the Librarian was no more...

However, it did one last favor for Felix and his companions...Its explosion was so devastating, it managed to erase the library's entrance near it!

As for Eris, Uranus, and Demeter? They surfaced safely from the explosion due to Eris' sphere of absolution.

She tugged them inside before the explosion went off and even though it affected spacetime, it did nothing to the sphere.

Whoosh!

The moment the shockwave died out, the unigins exited the sphere of absolution and gazed at the void before them.

Demeter turned to Uranus with an irritated expression, "Happy now? Couldn't you just let Eris do her thing?"

Uranus didn't show an ounce of guilt. He turned to Eris and said, "It's nothing, Eris can bring back the portal again."

"But, it will force her to cancel her Sphere of Absolution." Demeter handed him a scolding look, not too delighted with him making things harder.

"It's okay, Demeter. They won't be able to fix the spatial modification in time." Eris noted calmly as she canceled her sphere of absolution and walked to the exit's location.

"See, stop overreacting, I turned them into rats in a jar." Uranus smiled coldly.

Chapter 1765 Abusing His Laws!

Meanwhile, Felix and Apollo had already arrived at the library's exit and joined their party. While they had escaped from their enemies and noticed that the entrance had fallen apart, their expressions weren't too good.

"They will be here at any moment! Quickly, quickly solve it!" Apollo said with a hint of agitation as he gazed at Commander Bia and their squad attempting their best to remove the spatial modification.

"Rushing us isn't helpful." Plix retorted, his voice betraying his stressed condition.

As a quantum native with a spatial attunement, he could be said to be the key to their escapade. Commander Bia and the others were the ones helping him figure out the solution.

"You don't have to remove the modification." Felix gave him an alternative with a stern voice, "Just try to change it to a different destination. It doesn't matter what will be on the other side."

"Are you sure..." Plix gulped a mouthful, "If I do this, the exit might lead to the void or to dangerous floors at the very bottom."

"I would rather take my chances with it than get caught," Felix said coldly while stretching his senses to the entrance area, making him spot the creation of a new portal.

While no one could create portals in the tower, Eris was more than capable of recovering a preexisting one through her laws...The only condition was it had to be done the moment the portal fell apart.

Even her previous portal worked only because she created it within the dimensional world of the Librarian.

"As you wish."

Plix got busy immediately and started working on tuning the modification itself, which was much easier than removing it completely.

Still, it was going to take him some time and it seemed like they didn't have it.

"They are here..."

Commander Bia felt chills course down her spine after she picked a powerful vibrational aura released from the other side of the library...Even Felix felt his heart sink a bit.

He understood that their situation couldn't get any worse. Eris could easily teleport in front of them and end their dance in the blink of an eye.

'We need to buy us some time. But how?'

Felix's mind went into overdrive, his eyes roaming all over the place, seemingly digging through his brain for a solution, an idea, or anything that could help them out.

Alas, his wits, his intelligence, his problem-solving talents failed him at last after a very long time...No matter how hard he tried to find a solution, his mind came back blank.

'We are done for...'

Before the defeatist energy could seize root within his soul, Apollo's voice resounded in his mind, 'I will hold them back...Give up on your plan and get out of the tower as fast as possible. Hide in a random corner and wait until the rift opens up.'

'Apollo, you?'

Felix was left stunned as he watched Apollo disappear in a flash of light. Not in his wildest dreams, did he consider that Apollo would step up to protect him.

While they spent their journey together and he kept referring to him as his partner, he always knew that Apollo cared mostly about his life.

If a way out came up that would ensure him returning to his peaceful life without the interference of his alter ego, he would take it in a heartbeat.

Felix was never bothered by this as it was the right thing to do.

'Don't give me those looks. My idiotic half ordered me to bring you to him at all costs. I can't afford to fail the mission.' Apollo smiled wryly as he emerged before Eris, Uranus, and Demeter, 'At least, this way might help me return again...'

He mumbled the last part to himself as he readied himself for a battle, he knew for sure, he would not survive it...

"Apollo, is this your final decision?" Demeter narrowed her eyes at the sight of Apollo bringing out his divine Lyre.

Apollo lifted his head slowly and gazed at them with pitch-black eyes covering his entire sclera.

"What choice do I have?"

With a heavy heart and resolute hands, he grasped the Lyre high for a moment, a silent goodbye to a companion of melodies and memories...Then, he snapped it cleanly in the middle!

The air around him froze in time as he took the shattered Lyre, its strings still humming with saddening residual music.

Then, Apollo reconfigured the remaining strings, stretching them from end to end across the broken frame, transforming the instrument into a divine bow.

As he grasped the bow in his hand, his body started to glow, the light within him intensifying until it became nearly blinding to behold.

The brilliance emanating from him flared into a beacon, a pillar of pure, scorching light that threatened to consume the entire library!

"It's been a while since I have gone all out." Apollo's cold regal voice resounded deep within the blinding light.

Uranus, Demeter, and Eris all felt their shoulders tense up and activated their strongest defensive techniques, knowing that when a unigin went all out, he no longer cared about the universe's rules.

In other words, they were about to witness Apollo abusing his laws!

"As the God of Light, I hereby strip you out of your light sensories," Apollo demanded coldly while pointing his divine bow at them.

Harnessing the fundamental laws of light, Apollo bent the light away from the unigins' eyes!

The effect was not just a dimming but a complete withdrawal of light from their field of vision, making them incapable of perceiving light even when there was plenty of it around them!!

It was like he canceled the ability of the photoreceptors in their retina to perceive light!

"Bastard!"

"Apollo!"

"..."

Uranus, Eris, and Demeter were not pleased to have their worldturn instantly dark, devoid of any visual input.

Although they could rely on other senses to 'see', it was nowhere as perfect as having a true vision...Especially, in this scenario, when they were against the god of light/darkness!

Apollo ignored their woes and pointed three arrows made out of dark energy at them. In a blink, he released them at once and they struck the unigins' shields!

However, Apollo's attacks never intended to target their physical bodies as the moment the arrows touched their shields, they disappeared!

Whoosh! Whoosh! Whoosh!

When they reappeared, they turned into three arrows of blinding light visible to no one but the three unigins!

Crack Crack!

Before they could attempt to block the arrows, they had already landed on their soul barrier and cracked it a little.

'Impossible...How?'

Felix, who watched the whole interaction from within Apollo's consciousness space through his eyes, was departed utterly stunned.

He always knew that Apollo was more oriented towards mental/soul battles, but he never expected him to have a technique that allowed him to attack the souls of his targets straight away!!

Unfortunately, he recognized that the cost of such an overpowering technique was the universe's punishment...It would befall Apollo sooner than later.

'It's not the time to be impressed.' Apollo spoke coldly, 'I am just getting started.'

Knowing this, Apollo didn't waste a single second and showered his enemies with a barrage of similar dark arrows, trying to shatter their souls from within!

Chapter 1766 The Starry Night Soul Explosion.

With impeccable accuracy, he nocked arrow after arrow, each one designed to pierce through the toughest of spiritual defenses!

As he kept releasing one wave after another, he was constantly on the move, causing his figure to turn into a blur!

This made it more difficult for the three unigins to predict the direction of the arrows and block them.

'Reinforce your barriers!' Uranus shouted furiously as he entered a defensive mode.

He channeled his spiritual pressure and enhanced it with a vibrational-based spiritual barricade, allowing him to create a remarkable shield for his soul barrier!

Eris and Demeter had done the same in their own unique ways, providing the best possible defense for their souls.

Boom! Boom! Boom!

The salvo of light arrows soared across the library, striking the unigins' souls' protective barriers with force enough to make them flicker and waver!

The impact of each arrow sent ripples across the shields, testing the resilience of the spiritual constructs that each unigin had summoned for protection!

Unfortunately for them, their law-based defensive technique was mostly focused on the physical aspect.

If it wasn't for Apollo abusing his laws and overriding their defensive shields, he would never have been able to strip their vision away and allow him access to their minds through the darkness they perceive!

"You think that's enough?"

Apollo sneered coldly as he pulled the divine bow's strings until they were about to snap...Then, he turned his form into light motes and became the arrows themselves!

Whoosh!! Whoosh Whoosh!

Before the unigins could react, the bow was fired, and the arrows traveled from the reality realm to the dark realm in front of the three unigins, causing Apollo to manifest within their own minds!!!

This was an invasion on a whole different level, leaving even Felix and the tenants with wide jaws, unable to react.

"APOLLO! DON'T YOU DARE!"

Uranus bellowed hatefully but with a tint of dread in his voice as he gazed at Apollo turning his bow into a blinding sword with the strings merged together to make the sharpest of blades!

"You pushed me into this."

Without an ounce of emotion in his voice, Apollo turned into a bright flash and started attacking the unigins' soul shields with deep slashes and tears at the speed of light!

He was so fast, so precise, so clinical in his attacks, that the powerfully spiritual shield was left with trillions of illuminating wounds in less than a nanosecond!

As the setup was completed, Apollo manifested before the soul barrier and called out loud mercilessly, "Erupt!"

The trillions of wounds suddenly exploded into a flurry of light before merging into one massive sun-like explosion!!!

The void around the barrier and the consciousness space inside of it were illuminated fully, showing an infinite space of nothingness!

Before the light could die out, Apollo waved his sword to the side as he shouted, "ABSORB!"

The already brilliant sword went on and sucked in the explosion of light in the blink of an eye, causing it to grow a hundred times bigger than Apollo!

Then, he lifted it above his head while pointing at the unigins' soul barrier akin to an executioner!

'Is he really going to do it...'

'This...'

Felix, Thor, Lady Sphinx, and the rest of the spectators were all witnessed leaning closer with pupils widened to the limit in this epic scene...A scene, none of them would have ever imagined would overlap with the pervert and unreliable Apollo.

"LET THERE BE LIGHT!"

With one final bellow, Apollo swung his massive brilliant sword down the middle of the three soul barriers simultaneously!

Demeter, Uranus, and even Eris' expressions were turned for the worse, understanding that if this strike landed on their souls, it would be gone for real!

While they wouldn't die due to their cores remaining safe, this was not good news in the slightest when a core-devouring monster was nearby.

Thus, there was only one option left...

"APOLLO!! YOU WILL PAY FOR THIS!"

Absolutely livid, Uranus tapped into the depth of his vibration laws and called upon an ability that would cost him an arm and a leg.

"MATTER EXECUTION!"

Drawing deeply on his connection to the fundamental vibrations that underpin all matter, Uranus unleashed a highly dangerous ability, Matter Execution!

This ability was not just a adjustment of vibrational frequencies to cause destruction, it was a tool to utterly erase existence at the vibrational level!

The moment Uranus locked onto the frequency of Apollo, the matter execution ability was in full action, causing the strings that held Apollo together to get agitated beyond their breaking point.

This made them break apart and start disintegrating at the lowest possible level!

This ability could literally be used on anyone, anything, as long as they were made out of vibrational strings.

Unfortunately, the foundation of reality was made out of these tiny strings...In other words, Uranus had the power of the Grim Reaper in his hands.

Of course, such an unbalanced power came at a grave cost and the universe would never allow Uranus to use it without a fitting punishment.

'He abused his laws too, huh?' Apollo smiled bitterly after he started to feel like his existence was fading into nothingness, his form became unstable, blurring like a mirage.

This caused the sword in his hand to dim and start to flicker on its path to the soul barriers.

Knowing deep down that his attack even if it landed wouldn't cause substantial damage, Apollo murmured to Felix's wisp, 'I hope this buys you a moment or two, partner.'

'What do yo..'

Before Felix could finish his sentence, Apollo went for his last, desperate strike.

Gathering his remaining strength, Apollo's form began to glow with celestial radiance. Then, he released his final melody...The Starry Night Soul Explosion.

This was not just a mere self-implosion. It was a sacrificial technique that would meld his soul with the cosmic energies of light and darkness.

'Starry night, unleash your boundless depths,' Apollo intoned, his voice echoing softly within Felix's consciousness space.

As he was about to unleash the attack, Eris, ever watchful and cunning, had anticipated Apollo's desperate act.

She acted swiftly, abusing her laws as well to kick Apollo outside of their consciousness void once and for all.

"Shift," Eris commanded calmly.

With her command, she displaced Apollo's soul's incoming explosion from within the unigins, redirecting its trajectory back to the library!

As Apollo's soul exploded in the open air of the library, instead of the destructive shockwave expected, a unique transformation occurred.

The library was enveloped in an otherworldly darkness, shadows deepening and stretching beyond their natural form.

The explosion didn't just release energy; it imbued the very atmosphere with a dense, dark curse!!

This curse, born from the depths of Apollo's sacrificed soul spread rapidly across the library, touching books, shelves, walls, and any person exposed without protection.

Each object and person it touched was shrouded in darkness, rendering them invisible, indistinguishable to the eyes of others as if they ceased to exist in any conventional sense.

Once a bastion of knowledge, the library now became a realm of shadows and whispers...

Anyone afflicted with the curse found themselves cut off from visual contact with their allies and enemies alike, isolated in a personal void of perception.

"Apollo! That cunning bastard!" Uranus cursed hatefully, "He knew one of us would have abused our laws to keep him away from our souls during the explosion."

Indeed, Apollo might look unreliable, playful, and a bit dumb most of the time. But his intelligence came to light when it was time to lock in.

Now, with the curse marking everything and everyone, Eris would not be able to teleport them next to the exit since she had no vision of anything.

Felix understood this too, which made his emotions conflicted, as it never crossed his mind to see Apollo go this far for him.

'Apollo...He really took himself out...'

'Don't get too emotional, he did this because he had to.' Lilith interrupted his emotional train of thoughts, 'His alter ego holds his core, which means, he controls his life. If he allows you to get captured, his life will be gone, but if he sacrificed himself and helped you reach his alter ego, he might have a chance to get revived by him.'

This was the reason Apollo could never go against his alter ego...His entire existence shouldn't have happened since the real Apollo was his alter ego!

'I am not dumb, I know all of this. But, it still doesn't change that he has gone for it.' Felix said.

Whether Apollo had done this for selfish reasons or not, it wouldn't lower its value in Felix's eyes at all.

At the end of the day, Apollo gave it his all for his freedom throughout their entire journey and Felix was forever indebted to him.

'If I survive this, I am going to make sure that he returns.' Felix narrowed his eyes coldly, 'Even if it meant going against his alter ego.'

'That's a promise.'

Chapter 1767 Protect Plix at All Cost!

As the darkness engulfed the library, Uranus stood between his partners, his face twisted with rage.

The frustration of one failure after another had taken a toll on his pride, causing his patience to reach a tipping point.

"F*ck this! I'll tear this place apart!"

Uranus growled furiously as he prepared to unleash a catastrophic wave of vibrational energy that would reduce the ancient library to nothing but quivering particles...Of course, everyone on it would go through the same fate!

He refused to go this far before to avoid suffering from getting crippled by the universe like Felix. But most importantly, to catch Felix and Apollo alive, desiring to put them through the worst time of their lives for everything they had done to him.

But now? He no longer cared about bringing Felix alive to the three rulers or torturing him...He just wanted him dead regardless of the price!

However, just as he was about to release Matter Execution, the darkness was suddenly pierced with a golden light.

This light, was magically perceivable by the unigins even while affected by the curse!

It was for a good reason...

Cling! Cling! Cling!

From nowhere, three celestial golden chains materialized and lunged towards Uranus, wrapping around his wrists and waist with unbreakable strength!

Their sudden appearance and the binding force of the chains interrupted his decision to obliterate everything before him.

"DAMN YOU! NOT YOU TOO!"

Uranus roared, his blood boiling in rage as he struggled against the chains that held him. The more he fought, the tighter they constricted against his flesh and soul.

Nearby, Eris found herself similarly ensnared by two chains that had appeared around her as well, binding her arms tightly against her sides.

"Two chains? Not too horrible."

Unlike Uranus, her expression remained stoic, seemingly anticipating this much to happen. Both of them had abused their laws to deal with unigins and the universe quickly delivered its punishment.

"Demeter, try to stop them until we adjust to the seal," Eris said calmly, still having no intentions of letting go of Felix.

"With this kind of darkness, it will be annoying, but I got it." Demeter nodded with a stern tone.

Without an ounce of hesitation, she melted into the floor and traveled underneath it akin to a mole, heading rapidly towards the exit point.

"F*ck! F*ck! F*ckkkkkkkkkkk!!"

"Easy there, big guy."

Eris gave Uranus a side glance, noticing that his outburst was getting out of control. She wouldn't care about it at other times, but now, that they were being chained up by the universe, any ounce of resistance or agitation would do nothing but tighten the chains.

Cling! Cling!...

As expected, the chains got Uranus so tightened up, that he was on the verge of getting curled up on the ground.

"You have gone through this many times, whether it's a single chain or or hundred, do not resist, do not fight back, and most definitely, do not use your powers." Eris advised calmly, watching her peer wiggle on the ground, his eyes red to the point, they appeared demonized amidst the darkness.

Telling Uranus to calm down was the same as telling an ocean to turn serene under a thunderstorm.

Still, her words managed to help Uranus see the bigger picture and understand that if he let his rage take control over him, he would allow Felix to escape yet again...That was something he refused to even acknowledge.

Thus, he calmed down his emotions and stopped trying to break the shackles apart. As he was calming down, the chains started to relax their grip.

"We have to wait until the chains disappear before we can use our powers again." Eris said as she sent her senses towards the exit, making her spot Felix and his party still working hard to break past her modifications.

"..." Uranus remained silent, but his fiery eyes affixed on the exit's direction told a different story.

Although they had less than three chains holding them, the moment they decided to use their laws, the chains would retighten on them, causing them to feel an unholy level of agony.

While the shackles had reduced their strength a decent amount compared to Felix's 99% weakening, it still affected their peak heavily.

Both of them would rather wait until the shackles go away before making one last attempt against Felix instead of fighting through the torment as Lord Hades had done versus Hephasutus.

'Let's hope Demeter halts their attempt,' Eris remarked with a deep gaze.

'What do you mean? Didn't you say it's impossible to break past your modifications?' Uranus gave her an icy glare.

'It's impossible, but they might be dumb or brave enough to mess with the modifications.'

'What does that mean?'

'The end aim will be completely random.'

'...'

Uranus felt his blood tension rise up again, his veins popping on his forehead. But, he contained those emotions, not wanting to ruin his efforts in dealing with the chains.

Based on their dimness, it was clear that they would be gone in less than a couple of seconds.

A couple of seconds...That's all Felix had before he faced off against a very pissed-off unigin who no longer cared about his death.

...

On the other side...

'Prepare to fight! Demeter is on to us!' Felix disclosed with a solemn tone after he picked on the tremors caused by the fast-approaching Demeter.

'Chronos, slow down the time around the portal by a hundred meters!' Commander Bia ordered swiftly, 'Dankin, Sera, and the rest, help me establish a vibrational repeller.'

Although it was pitch dark and no one could perceive light whatsoever, no matter how minimal it was, they relied on their other senses to establish a new stronghold against Demeter.

'Eris and Uranus must be dealing with their chains.' Lord Loki commentated, 'It will be easier to deal with Demeter alone since she isn't in her environment.'

Indeed, Demeter was quite struggling in the quantum realm since her rules were nonexistent at this level.

If it wasn't for Eris helping her obtain temporal control over earth-based quantum laws, she would be more useless than a native.

Still, Felix had no plans to underestimate her, knowing that she was capable of using her divinities and whatever elemental energy she brought with her.

'Here she comes!'

Rumble Rumble!

Felix didn't even need to announce it as the ground beneath them shook akin to being struck by a catastrophic earthquake!

Chronos' time-slowng abilities had worked outside of the portal's zone, slowing down the tremors immensely.

However, Plix and the others at the core faced the full force of the tremors, leading Commander Bia and the remaining royal guards to defend against them at all costs.

'Negate the tremors! Pacify them!'

Commander Bia ordered while releasing matching vibrational waves on the ground, causing the tremors to die out bit by bit!

Boom! Boom! Boom!

Suddenly, the ground quietened down, and spikes of hardened sand erupted, aiming directly at Felix and his allies in an attempt to scatter them!

But the main target was still Plix, whose mind was focused completely on the spatial puzzle left by Eris.

'DEFEND HIM!'

Felix yelled as he shattered the spikes with a crystalized blood hammer, going through them akin to an unstoppable train.

Some were aiming at Plix and some at himself. Unfortunately, each time he broke a spike, the rubble turned into gooey sand tendrils, launching themselves again at their targets!

Chronos tried his best to slow them down, but his senses weren't as great as Felix and the Vibronixians.

Without his vision, he felt like he was playing wack a moll game, having no clue if he would slow down a spike's speed or his allies.

The worst part? The Vibronoxians could not bend reality through vibration when everything was affected by the curse of darkness!

Chapter 1768 If I Die, No One Deserves to Live.

"Keep Shielding him up!" Felix commanded while sparing some of his blood to create a protective barrier on Plix.

It managed to block some of the attacks going through their formation as it was nearly impossible to predict Demeter's attacks.

A small sandstorm grew into a violent storm of rocks, smashing against barriers.

Just when it died out, a sinkhole appeared with a massive outstretched hand coming out of it, attempting to pull down Plix.

They also managed to stop it, but these were mere examples of the neverending barrage of unexpected attacks.

Hell, some mercenaries had already perished, leaving behind them agonizing screams, which made the rest more nervous than ever.

Who could blame them? They had no idea how they perished.

'It will be easier without the darkness curse, but if it wasn't for it, Eris and Uranus would have already appeared here.' Lord Marduk remarked with a solemn tone as he listened to the ongoing chaos.

'Sh*t, sh*t, sh*t, I don't wanna die, not like this, sh*t, come on, I can do it.'

Meanwhile, Plix had completely given up on his protection and placed it in the hands of his allies, focusing solely on the exit.

'Plix, what the hell is taking you so long!' Dankin cursed impatiently while blasting a vibrational wave at an incoming boulder.

'Shut up and let me focus! It's not easy! That b*tch has somehow made knots out of f*cking the spatial fluctuations...It's nuts!'

Plix cursed back, his hands moving in complex patterns that altered the portal's spatial fluctuations.

When a portal tapped into the fabric of space-time to create a pathway between two points, it relied on the stability and consistency of spatial properties to maintain a fixed destination.

What Eris had done was alter those fluctuations to a predetermined destination, leading to a different location that aligned with the new spatial configuration influenced by these fluctuations.

If this was it, Plix wouldn't have been sweating this hard as he could easily restore the fluctuations to their previous state and solve the problem.

Eris was too smart to let her work get easily undone. She used her chaotic laws to make knots out of those fluctuations without jeopardizing the result, which was harder than it sounded.

Right now, Plix was trying his best to open up those knots while keeping the portal stable, knowing that a single mistake might result in the portal breaking apart!

On the other side of the coin, Demeter gathered her strength for another assault.

With a forceful stomp, she caused the very tiles of the floor to break out, transforming into a wave of jagged rocks that rolled toward the group like a miniature landslide!

"Brace!" Commander Bia shouted, reinforcing the vibrational shield as the rocky wave crashed against it.

Felix, seeing the strain on their defenses, knew they needed a change of plans.

'Protect yourselves!'

Without an ounce of hesitation, he slapped his hand on the ground and released a wave of crimson evil energy around the portal!

The evil energy spread across the ground, the destroyed bookshelves, the books, and whatever else was in its vicinity.

'Tsk, what an irritating energy.' Demeter frowned in displeasure from the depths of the library after sensing her control over the ground waning bit by bit.

Still, she wasn't too fazed.

'I guess I am left with no other option.'

With a deep breath, Demeter called upon the elemental energy she brought with her into the realm.

Then, she infused it with resplendent energy and released it into the surface as a massive powerful golden sandstorm!

As she unleashed the storm, it roared to life with a sound like a thousand blades, swirling around Felix and his party.

Felix realized the true terror of the sandstorm after sensing its origin to be elemental energy, making him shout again, "Defend yourselves!"

Everyone used their strongest shields, but the empowered sand grains sliced through their defenses like countless tiny swords, each grain cutting with the force of a well-aimed strike!

The team faltered under the onslaught, some had their clothes and skin scored with countless cuts while some were barely affected.

They were Chronos and Felix. Chronos used his temporal abilities on himself while Felix tapped at last into the reserve of his celestial flames!

He covered himself and Plix in white flames while making sure that it wouldn't touch him. As for Commander Bia, she was able to take care of herself.

Alas, the sandstorm was a mere distraction.

Whoosh!!

While everyone was fighting for their lives against the divine sandstorm in pitch darkness, Demeter manifested from the sand particles right behind Plix, bypassing everyone's senses!

Everyone, but one!

"Demeter!!"

Felix swiftly manifested a sword out of his celestial white flames and slashed it at Demeter's back.

Demeter felt the incoming danger, but she was already prepared against such retaliation, protecting herself with a barrier of radiant divinity.

While she knew that it wouldn't be able to protect her fully from the celestial flames, she didn't care, understanding that she wouldn't die from it.

At this moment, it was enough.

"Your time has come."

Without bothering to glance in Felix's direction, Demeter punched a hole through Plix's back with a fist infused with every ounce of divinity she brought with her!

The white flame shield was powerful, but Felix didn't invest much in it, desiring to save up the bits of celestial energy within him for later.

On one side, we have someone who went all in, and on the other, we have Felix, deciding to be stingy with his celestial energy at such a key moment.

The results were clear...

Gazing at the divine fist piercing through his chest, Plix's brain short-circuited momentarily.

His unbreakable focus on solving the spatial puzzle shattered in an instant at the realization that his life was over...

Slowly, he turned his head to gaze at his assailant, just to witness Demeter getting smashed in the back by a blinding white sword in this infinite pool of darkness.

Yet, he ignored them.

When his unfocused eyes landed on Chronos, the only one surviving in his mercenary squad, a tint of regret registered in his eyes.

'Why have I joined this mission...'

Before his regret could settle in his mind, his eyes landed on Commander Bia, who was trying her best to survive the sandstorm.

'It's her, it's her fault...if she didn't hide the truth from us, we wouldn't have joined this suicidal mission!'

A maddening fury was ignited in Plix's eyes as memories of his squad surfaced in his mind, showing him all the good times they had, all the adventures they went through for millions of years if not more...All of that was stolen by Commander Bia.

'It's her fault!'

With the last bit of life he had in him, Plix swung his hand through the spatial fluctuation, which had half of them still knotted up...His hand cut through them akin to a blade in one wave.

'If I die, no one deserves to live after this...'

This was the last thought that coursed through his mind as he watched the spatial variations within the portal get agitated from the touch region and disperse out across the entire portal.

Before anyone could react or comprehend what happened, the gateway suddenly devoured Plix, Felix, and Demeter in the blink of an eye...

Chapter 1769 Don't Forsake Me...

Whoosh!!!!

Then, it exploded into a gaping spatial hole with the sucking power of a black hole, dragging within it everything and anything in sight!

"NOOOOOOOOO!!!"

Dankin screamed with a mortified expression as his entire body got snatched by the portal before he could use his phasing ability!

The same fate happened to Commander Bia and Sera, merging with the chaos of books, rubble, and wood, until only their dreadful eyes were seen.

Whoosh! Whoosh!...

"Ahhhhhhhhh!!!"..."Nooooo!!!"..."What the hell is this!!!"

Meanwhile, Tempus Vey, Virona, and the other squads spread out in the library weren't spared either.

The portal's sucking power was immense to the point the library's walls and glass ceiling started coming off and rushing to join the massive queue of rubble!

However, some of those squads had enough time to use their abilities and save themselves. While they could see absolutely nothing, none of them wanted to meet what was pulling them.

The Chronowalkers froze themselves in time, the Quarklings' existence was correspondent to the light source. Thus, the moment they were hit with the darkness curse, their entire existence ceased to exist.

The Nanites swarm ended up breaking into their wasp-like forms due to the pressure and got caught by the flying mess.

Their parasitic leader was the only one who survived the pulling force. He was still operating the Plankton's body, giving him spatial powers...Unfortunately, he couldn't save his people.

As for Chaosians? They had already ditched the library and were still running for their lives, wanting to avoid Eris at all costs.

Speaking about Eris, her chains disappeared the moment the portal went rogue.

While the others avoided the pulling force, Eris blinked above it and extended her arm in its direction...Then, she commanded calmly, "Order Restoration."

The moment the words left her mouth, the same celestial chains emerged and tightened their grip on her waist until her curves showed.

Uncaring about the hellish pain assaulting her mind and body, Eris watched the broken portal regain its equilibrium.

The all-consuming pulling force disappeared in the blink of an eye, causing everything and everyone to escape from its monstrous gravitational pull.

Thud! Thud! Thud!...

The rubble fell down to the ground with a heavy noise, creating a massive dust cloud across the library.

"It's over?"

"We are saved?"

"I wanna go home...Sob, Sob...I didn't sign for any of this..."

The rescued squads kept looking right and left after landing on the ground, their eyes failing to see anything around them.

One thing was for certain though, everyone was absolutely scared sh*tless.

They were just searching for treasures before a fighting noise broke out and was followed by eternal darkness. Just when they thought that was it, they almost got snatched into the backroom.

It was even more saddening to realize that despite having a map, their journey across the tower was still not safe...In fact, it was more dangerous than their last attempts!

Uranus ignored the cries of the trapped natives and grouped up with Eris near the portal.

When he saw her form tangled in chains again, he couldn't help but check on her first.

"You good?"

He knew that if she hadn't done it, the portal would have been destroyed with the floor. They would have needed to wait days to months again until everything got restored to normal by the tower.

"It's manageable," Eris replied calmly, but the little wrinkle between her eyebrows told a different story.

"Now, can you f*king tell me how did this happen?!" Uranus returned to his pissed-off persona in an instant.

"Didn't you see?" Eris responded, "The little Plankton has decided to kill everyone with him by destroying the spatial fluctuation, making the portal extremely unstable."

"How the hell can you be so calm?" Uranus smashed a nearby boulder into smithereens, "Going through an unstable portal in the tower is nothing short but a death sentence!"

While Uranus wanted Felix dead and couldn't really care much about Demeter's well-being, this news still enraged him.

His reaction was understandable when considering that Felix possessed Asna's core with a bunch of other unigin cores!

He wanted him dead, but also to complete the main mission and retrieve Asna's core. After all, without Asna's core, he could forget about his freedom.

"I have managed to restore order to the portal amidst their journey." Eris remarked calmly, "It might have helped them get thrown to other floors."

Upon hearing this, Uranus' anger was pacified a bit. He thought that Eris rushed in to save the floor from a reset, but in reality, she sought to save Felix and Demeter from getting thrown into the void!

In this case, the void mentioned was in the tower instead of the known void in the quantum realm.

There wasn't just one void, there were many of them spread out across the entire tower, each possessing their own floor.

Some had theorized that those voids were utilized to have thriving unique floors too, but they were erased by the tower for some reason.

Whatever it was, there were no exits or even entrances to it. The moment someone entered it, they were proclaimed dead since portal creation was impossible under the tower's authority.

Not even Felix or Demeter could escape it easily since they would not be able to enlarge themselves and return to the matter universe.

"There is only one way to find out if I succeeded or not." Eris gave a slight head nod at Uranus and he understood what she meant.

Without further ado, he reached out to the dormant wisp of consciousness in Demeter's mind and activated it...Eris had done the same, allowing them to manifest in Demeter's consciousness space.

The moment they gazed above their heads, their expressions turned for the worse at the sight of Demeter and Felix at a stand off in an infinite expanse of nothingness!

It turned out, Eris' attempt to help them stay on the light side of the tower possessed failed.

"They were thrown both to the same void...How did this happen." Uranus murmured, not feeling too good about this.

If it was him against Felix, he would have rejoiced. But, it was Demeter.

She barely had 10% of her true powers in the quantum realm. She had even wasted most of her divinities to break past Felix's white shield on Plix.

While Felix's strength was no better, he possessed something that every unigen dreaded...The devouring monster of Asna's core.

"He must have attached himself to her during their spatial journey," Eris replied.

This was exactly what happened as the moment Felix sensed his soul being snatched by the portal, he utilized the celestial white flames of his sword to remain attached to Demeter.

In simpler terms, he didn't pull out his sword from her back!

'Guys, I need you to get me out of here!' Demeter beseeched, her usual composure and sternness was nowhere to be seen.

No one could blame her.

Felix was gazing at her akin to a free meal while holding onto a blood hammer in one hand and a blood axe in the other.

This wasn't all...His old appearance possessed returned.

His hair shifted from vibrant luminous green to a wavy crimson, flowing like liquid blood around his shoulders and down his back.

His eyes, once a pupil-less green, now burned a deep, fiery red, their gaze intense and demonic.

But it was his chest that drew immediate attention as it was adorned with intricate tattoos representing the seven deadly sins, each mark pulsing with intense evil energy.

"Come out."

With one cold command, the seven deadly dragonic tails emerged out of the tattoos with resounding roars, seemingly rejoicing in their freedom at last!

The moment they were done, their piercing beastial eyes locked onto Demeter, adding another wave of apprehension to her heart.

To be trapped with a unigin was one thing.

To be trapped with the paragon of sins was another.

But to be trapped with the Paragon who possessed the capability to devour cores and extinguish a unigin's life once and for all?

How could Demeter's heart not be restless? How could she not feel like she was trapped with the Grim Reaper? How could she not beg for help?

'Eris, don't forsake me...I implore you...'

Demeter pleaded again as she steeled her emotions and entered a battle stance, planning to put everything on the line for her life.

She knew that if there was one person capable of rescuing her from the void, it was Eris!

Alas...Felix was also planning to do the same for a simple reason...

"You are my ticket out of here." He uttered emotionlessly as he placed his axe on his shoulder, "Start praying, because, you ain't surviving this."

Chapter 1770 I Can't See a Way Out For Her.

"Let's see how the earth fares in void," Felix snarled, his red eyes blazing.

Without an ounce of hesitation, he lunged towards Demeter with both weapons pulled behind him.

Demeter knew that she could no longer hold anything back as she sensed Felix's murderous intent, making her understand that he sought after her core!

As he closed the distance, she extended her hand, finally summoning her divine weapon.

From within, a breathtaking massive lance appeared.

Its slender, silver form gleamed with an ethereal light in this infinite darkness. It had intricate engravings running along its long length.

Unfazed, Felix swung his blood axe down in a powerful arc, aiming to cleave Demeter in two. Simultaneously, he raised the blood hammer, preparing to strike with overwhelming force!

But Demeter was no pushover.

She tightened her grasp on her divine lance and in one motion, she thrust it forward at Felix's chest, ignoring his attacks.

The moment Felix's weapons were able to slash at her, she bellowed, "Release!"

The Lance opened up into an umbrella and released a powerful forceful shockwave around it, which landed on Felix and his weapons!

Boom Boom!

The shockwave shattered Felix's weapons into crimson droplets in an instant while his momentum faltered at once.

Before he could react, Demeter closed its lance and redirected its tip towards his forehead, going for the insta-kill!

Whoosh!

Unfazed, Felix phased out of existence after the lance was a mere inch from his forehead, causing it to go through him unhindered.

Then, he swiftly moved his head to the side and turned back his body's vibrations to the same plane, making it seem like he blinked back to existence.

"You thought I haven't done my research on you?" Felix uttered coldly as he caught the lance from the middle.

Felix was already informed about many details related to Demeter, from her strengths, weaknesses, divine weapon, fighting style, and more.

In the case of her divine weapon, it was a unique piece of equipment in its own right. While Apollo's Lyre/Bow specialized in mental battles, Hephasutus' divine hammer in destruction, Demeter's lance was an all-rounder weapon.

It could open up and be used as a shield or remain closed and serve its original purpose. Yet, its most unique aspect was its ability to absorb force through its tip and release it as a shockwave or whatever Demeter decided.

However, one of its weaknesses was its superconductivity to electricity!

Thus, just as Demeter was about to pull it away, Felix's hand shimmered with electrical discharges, causing his hand to remain affixed to the metallic surface of the weapon.

This wasn't all, as the electricity coursed through the weapon into Demeter's body, it forced her to keep her hands on it.

The moment Felix got linked directly to Demeter's electrical signals, he sent a system shutdown command, desiring to turn off her brain.

While he could only utilize the electrical discharges his body manifested naturally, he was forced to improvise and come up with ways to make use of them.

Unfortunately, Demeter was always prepared for Felix's lightning-based laws the moment she found out about them.

Thus, before the electrical command could take hold of her, she doubled down on her control over her mind, seemingly taking manual control.

This made her negate the command easily by overriding it manually.

Normal humans could not imagine such a thing as it was impossible for them to control the tasks of a single organ.

'Tsk,'

Felix wasn't too disappointed by his failure as he was already anticipating it. Instead, he geared for the next assault.

Roar! Roar! Roar!..

The seven dragonic heads moved in an instant with jaws wide open at Demeter, attempting to bite massive chunks off her!

"Hardened Skin!"

Demeter's eyes turned solemn as she transformed her skin into the hardest known surface in the universe!

She might not be able to control quantum energy, and her elemental energy was limited after shrinking it with her, she could still control her own body!

Cling! Cling! Cling!

Upon impact, the dragonic heads' sharp teeth failed to leave a single trace of her flesh, biting her with everything they had, but to no avail.

It was like they were biting into an unbreakable piece of material!

Just as Felix wanted to double down on his offense, Demeter broke past the electrical discharge forcefully and let go of her weapon.

Then, with a cold gaze, she ordered, "Mountain's Wrath!"

The Divine lance opened up slightly to make a mountain's peak, causing Felix to let go quickly...However, he was still a tad bit late.

Whoosh! Whoosh!...

The Lance spun on its axis and released thousands of shape blades in every possible direction.

If Felix tried to phase out again, he knew that his entry point would get him hurt beyond measure.

Unlike Uranus or other veteran vibration controllers, he wasn't able to maintain his phasing for more than an instant.

"Dragonic Armor!"

The seven dragonic tails attached themselves to Felix, causing his body to be wrapped by vibrant and colorful scales, each embedded with a dragonic eye!

This was the same armor he used against the third ruler, Amun-Ra, providing him with unparalleled protection and a sensory network that extended beyond the physical.

Cling Cling Cling!

It might not be as great as the last time he used it due to the massive difference in strength, but still, the emergence of the dragonic armor helped Felix block and avoid the rain of divine blades.

As he was under its assault, Demeter took a step back and extended her arm at him, her eyes never left Felix's face.

"I just need to keep you away until Eris finds me. Then, it's a game over for you."

The moment the words left her lips, her extended arm turned into a pitch-black lance manifested out of sand grains. She empowered it with the bits of resplendent divinity in her possession.

Without hesitation, she threw the lance in Felix's direction, knowing that it would be extremely difficult for him to avoid it in his current condition.

'That's it, Demeter, you have him!'

Uranus' eyes lit up at the sight of Demeter pressuring Felix. Alas, before his confidence in Demeter's chances to defeat Felix could rise, Felix shattered it with a single move.

"Celestial Blood Wall!"

An illuminating dark red shield manifested in front of the flying dark lance and blocked its advances in an instant!

The overbearing spear blew into fragments even when it was enhanced by resplendent divinity.

'Sh*t, he is using his celestial energy to enhance his abilities.' Demeter's expression turned slightly for the worse, 'How much does he still have?'

What terrified her the most was Felix's pool of celestial energy as she had no clue how much he brought with him.

While she understood that the same amount he had on the surface didn't represent what he brought with him, still, in this kind of battle, where both parties were heavily limited, some celestial energy was enough to turn the table around.

'Eris, don't take too long!' Demeter sought reassurance but got nothing besides silence.

Eris kept spectating their battle without much of an expression...Demeter was a bit scared by her silence, but all she could do was focus on blocking Felix's attempts to get a hold of her.

'Be honest, can you get to her?' Uranus narrowed his eyes at Eris.

He refrained from saying anything before since he expected Eris to have a plan in mind as always...But her peculiar silence gave birth to some doubts.

'I can't see it.' Eris paused, 'I can't see a way out for her.'

'Are you messing with me?' Uranus' expression turned cold instantly, 'How can you not find a way to enter their void? Isn't your job to turn the impossible into possible.'

'Not when my powers are sealed.' Eris shook her head, 'The only way to rescue her is to analyze the whole data of the portals' previous exits. Since we don't see the other members of the Paragon's squad in the void, it means that they got thrown somewhere random too. This will add more locations to search.'

'If I had my complete strength and no chains to bother with, I could find out the locations and modify the portal to take us to them one by one. Given there is a relay point on the other side.'

'But now? The pain will affect my focus for such an intricate process.'

Just like Plix, Eris had to be careful when dealing with spatial fluctuation since one mistake might cause the portal to collapse.

While she had no issues pulling it off before, the celestial chains would make it nearly impossible to use any ability that required intense focus.

'What do you mean? Tell it to me straight.' Uranus knitted his eyebrows.

Eris blinked once and without an ounce of emotions in her tone, she uttered, 'We are spectating Demeter's death.'

'...'

Uranus knew that it turned coming, but it yet didn't feel good. It wasn't like he cared about Demeter's well-being.

He merely understood that if Demeter died, Felix would obtain her core and they would forfeit their track completely.

He had no further patience for additional chase.
