Chapter 341 - Ambushing The Kraken!

'Good job guys! Keep it up!'

While Felix was cheering for them at the side, his Turtle was getting closer and closer to flanking the Kraken, who had his entire attention placed on dealing with the Guardians.

Felix didn't want to risk approaching the Kraken's head from behind without making sure that he would go wholly unnoticed.

Thankfully, the nimble Guardians made that possible as the Turtle had already entered the Kraken territory and he still didn't turn his head.

However, Felix didn't want to push his luck too much since the Turtle's size was too hard to miss.

Just a single glance from the Kraken and it would get discovered.

Thus, the moment Felix noticed that he was close enough to make it on his own, he swiftly ordered the Turtle to stop.

Then, he did the unexpected as he went and dragged the long exquisite blade and placed it next to him.

The viewers were confused by the sight as they could clearly see that Felix needed to use both hands to pull that blade.

So what the hell was he supposed to do with it?

'Asna, bring my energy back to 100% and be on your tiptoes to continue providing me.' Felix informed solemnly, 'I will straightaway use X4 and my energy would be consumed 2% per second.'

'Uhhh!' Asna made an acknowledging sound and snapped her finger at once, filling Felix with the necessary energy to get him back to his peak.

There was a huge improvement in energy management since Felix had barely used 70% for straight 4 hours, unlike the 3rd game where he wasted both his energy and the purified reserve energy in under 1 hour and a half!

However, since the game was close to a conclusion, Felix decided to go all out and use whatever he possessed to slay the Kraken.

That meant using the unlocked peak ability of the J?rmungandr which he always kept hidden due to not meeting a worthy foe that forced him to use it!

Felix relaxed his shoulders while taking deep breaths from his nose. After entering a focused state, Felix said one word in his mind, 'X4 Body Enlargement!'

The moment the order was given, his body started to grow bigger and bigger in a noticeable manner!

2 meters!..3meters...5meters!

Even though he was getting bigger, neither his body got deformed in any shape nor his clothes got ripped apart. His growth seemed natural and smooth like he was always meant to be at this size.

Even his tail was growing with his body keeping up the balance as it should be.

6meters...7meters...8meters!!

The instant he reached 8 meters in height, Felix stopped the growth in its place with a single thought.

He knew that anymore and his energy consumption would be beyond monstrous. To keep his current state, his energy was being consumed 2% per second.

That's meant, without having Asna's purified energy Felix could utmost stay in this state for 50 seconds at his peak!

Since he didn't have time to waste, Felix straightaway picked up the long blade with a single hand and waved it left and right to adjust to his newfound strength.

Thankfully, Felix had been training with his peak active ability ever since he etched it in his 1% human bloodline. Find authorized novels in , faster updates, better experience, Please click #!_52552670715625481 for visiting.

It wasn't an easy journey since Felix needed to adapt to every size he could reach and every body part that was enlarged.

The fact that he could adjust the size made it even more difficult. But, after months and months of training, he could fight just as well as his original state!

By now, the viewers had already gone silent the moment Felix had reached his giant height.

Felix's image resting that 6 meters blade on top of his shoulder while his size was even bigger than the blade, made even the most knowledgeable viewer keep watching with a dazed look.

Alas, Felix didn't give them time to think things through as he leaned forward and sprinted from one end of the shell to the other, reaching it in a single second!

The instant he reached the edge, Felix bent his knees to add more to his momentum, and then...Whoosh!

He hurled himself almost a hundred meters in the air, reaching above the Kraken's head almost instantaneously!

The sequence from the sprint to reaching his current destination didn't take even two seconds, making it impossible for anyone to react!

Yet, Felix wasn't even done as he lifted the giant blade above his head and started spinning rapidly while falling downward, appearing like a shuriken thrown to kill anything that it touches!

Due to the storm, his spin was splitting the rain itself, creating somewhat of a water halo around him, making it impossible for anyone to see anything but the spinning golden blade!

"HE IS USING BLADE SPLITTING TECHNIQUE!!" Lisa screamed reflexively the moment she came back to her senses.

She knew the blade technique since she saw it being used a couple of times in her previous games. The technique was known for excelling in cutting through anything and everything!

Yet, this was the first time she ever saw someone using it with such a massive size and blade.

This made her open her eyes widely in anticipation of what the result was going to be like.

Was this it? Was the Kraken going to be slain in such an epic manner by the hands of a single player?! Is this the moment where history gets written?!

That kind of questions and thoughts coursed in everyone's minds as they kept watching without blinking at Felix who was still falling rapidly!

SMACK!!!

Alas, everything went to shit the moment Felix reached 30 meters above the Kraken's head as a hidden tentacle abruptly emerged from underwater and b*tch slapped Felix straight into the ocean!

Splosh Sploosh!...

The strike's force was strong enough Felix's body didn't submerge instantly but rolled on the water's surface tens of times while smashing into few risen waves due to the storm.

By the time the momentum had eased, Felix started floating on his stomach without showing signs of movement.

Meanwhile, god knows where the blade had ended as it got separated from Felix immediately after the ambush.

Silence...A desolate silence had engulfed the stadium, cafe shops, homes, and every single place where this game was being spectated.

No one managed to comprehend what had just happened and how did it happen!

They saw how Felix had used his guardians to distract the Kraken. They saw how the Kraken was screeching in fury as he kept being played by the guardians!

This was supposed to be the perfect ambush, especially when Felix was striking from above! Yet what the f*ck had just happened?!

Skree Skree Skree!!

The Kraken, whose head was always facing the front, turned around while letting out an interrupted low-pitched screeches.

He appeared like he was laughing in mockery at Felix's attempt to ambush him!

The moment the viewers heard it, they instantly knew that the Kraken had been acting dumb about Felix's sneakiness since the moment he entered its territory!

Instead of attacking him straightaway, he waited until Felix was baited into launching an attack then strike him when he least expected it!

If Felix did one final switch to one of his copies or the guardians, he would have noticed that a single tentacle had gone missing!

The cunning Kraken had played it too well for a beast! But this sort of intelligence was normal for the Kraken even though it was nerfed to being only a legendary tier 3 beast!

Right now, the viewers and especially Felix's fans could only watch in utter mortification at the Kraken who was sending one of his tentacles to capture the motionless Felix.

'Oiiii Felix, stop acting dead.' Asna said casually while munching on cookies, 'The Kraken is going to catch you soon.'

'Argh, shut up!' Felix snapped at her while groaning in pain, feeling like every organ in his body had been rearranged from that strike.

If Lisa played the scene in slow-motion, they would have noticed that the tentacle had struck Felix right in his guts!

With that kind of behemoth force, Felix felt like his breath had been taken away.

That's why he was floating motionless on his frontal body. He was currently breathing using his gills instead of his lungs!

While the viewers believed that he was either dead or unconscious, he was chilling until he regains his body's motions.

Thankfully, he was in his X4 State which boosted his defenses by four times just like his strength, energy capacity, mental energy capacity, and other body stats!

If it wasn't for so, he would have exploded instead of being propelled like that!

Whoosh!

After the tentacle reached Felix's body, it rolled on him once since Felix's body wasn't small in the slightest.

This actually made it easier for the Kraken to tighten its grip firmly, making sure Felix couldn't escape!

Then, the Kraken started pulling him towards his wide opened thousand-teethed mouth!

Chapter 342 - THE KRAKEN SLAYER!

'Argh, still hurt like hell.' Felix groaned in pain after his bruised areas were aggrieved by the tentacle tightening its grip.

Felix couldn't even heal himself since he had lost his Poison Revitalization after it got replaced by another sand passive, which was utterly useless with his abilities arsenal.

Too bad, complaining about it wouldn't make any difference now.

Seeing that he was getting closer and closer to the Kraken's mouth, Felix tried to escape from the tentacle's grip.

Alas, his attempts resulted only in creating unnecessary agony as the suckers refused to let go of him.

BOOM BOOM!

Still not giving up, Felix used his enormous tail to smash the back of the tentacle over and over again at the same exact spot!

Due to his mammoth strength, his tail strikes were too much for the Kraken's weakened body to take! The struck area got bloodied in no time.

Yet, the Kraken merely screeched in pain but still didn't let go of him!

Instead, he actually increased his pulling speed after realizing that the ant was capable of hurting him badly.

'Damn, that's not working.' Felix's brain went overclock, trying to figure out a new plan.

However, due to the time constraint, Felix didn't go over many plans before choosing the best one like always.

Instead, he swiftly went with the 1st one that came up in his mind!

He used his long tail to roll once around the tentacle, he then hastily ordered in his mind for the rest of his body to shrink back!

Unlike his growth process which took at least a second, Felix's body was returned to its original shape in merely a split second!

The moment that happened, he slipped from the tentacle grip quite easily due to the size difference!

However, he didn't drop into the water because his tail was still gripping into the tentacle!

Its enormous size wasn't affected at all by the shrink, making it possible for Felix to dangle on the tentacle!

That's right!

Felix was capable of deciding which body part to shrink or grow based on his preference!

The only limitation was that Felix couldn't shrink beyond his original shape and couldn't grow beyond what his energy allowed him to.

This Size Manipulation was the J?rmungandr's bread and butter ability, which he was infamous for in the Primogenitors Era.

He wasn't referred to as the Ragnar?k Bringer for no reason! It was due to the cosmic size that allowed him to devour planets, stars, and any other beings!

Felix always assumed that every Primogenitor was capable of reaching the J?rmungandr's cosmic size but only after unlocking this ability and asking about it, did he find out the truth!

Only a few primogenitors were capable of manipulating their size to their own preference.

As for the majority? Some of them weren't able to even move while some could shrink to the point, they reach a microscopic level!

Felix who unlocked this ability had been reassured by the J?rmungandr that if he managed to supply the necessary energy, Felix's body could potentially get as big as a planet!!!

This was the reason why he kept it over semi-morphing!

Naturally, the energy required to reach that cosmic size was monstrous to even the J?rmungandr.

Felix was told by the J?rmungandr that he was devouring planets to sustain his size by absorbing their natural elemental energy!

So when Felix saw that sight in the J?rmungandr's memories, it was because he was restoring energy to carry on his wandering in space.

Felix didn't dare to imagine how much he would need at that point since even as an eight meters giant, he wasn't able to sustain it for more than a minute...Obviously without Asna's purified energy.

However, even with it, Felix could utmost stay in X4 State for three minutes.

Thankfully, he could shrink and regrow as he willed!

That's exactly what he did after escaping the clutches of the Kraken.

He grew back to his X4 State and hurled himself towards another tentacle that was waving in the sky!

By the time the Kraken realized that his prey had escaped, Felix was already mid-air!

Scree!!

The Kraken didn't wait for Felix to reach its tentacle as it whipped it in his direction, wanting to straightaway kill him!

Whoosh!!

Felix narrowed his eyes in focus at the approaching tentacle and thought, 'Just like you trained in the School...'

Under the eyes of tens of millions viewers, Felix did the unexpected by whipping out his enormous tail at the tentacle after executing a beautiful posture.

"What is he doing!!"

"He had gone mad!!"

Everyone thought that he was insane for doing so as it was impossible for his tail to match the full-powered strength of the tentacle!

BOOOM!! SCREEEE!!!

Too bad, the end result of the collision was nothing short but unbelievable as Felix's tail had managed to explode a portion of the tentacle without getting hurt in the process!

"WHAT THE HELL?! He actually overpowered the KRAKEN?!" Mindblown, Lisa screamed with her lips closely near the mic, waking everyone from the shock at the sight.

Felix didn't give them even a split second to comment or react as he retracted his tail instantaneously and swung it at the bloodied long tentacle!

Whoosh!

Instead of attacking it again, Felix rolled his tail once and propelled himself with an even bigger momentum towards another tentacle in his path!

If the Kraken wasn't feeling immense pain from his destroyed tentacle, he would have managed to withdraw the other tentacle before Felix reach it.

Alas, he was too fast with built-up momentum, making it possible for Felix to roll his tail around the tentacle again before propelling himself even faster towards the Kraken's head this time!

Yet, even with that kind of unprecedented momentum, the Kraken still instinctively sensed the approaching danger and sent two tentacles at once to defend his head!

'Don't have time to waste.' Felix knitted his eyebrows during mid-flight at those tentacles that were blocking his path.

He recognized that his attempt might be blocked but he still wished that he could end this battle with one strike at the Kraken's weak spot before the game ends.

He knew that there wasn't much time left in the clock! Find authorized novels in , faster updates, better experience, Please click #!_52574557852193111 for visiting.

Just like he thought, there were only 30 seconds left on the big screen before everyone gets teleported back to the stadium!

'I can only use that tail technique to end this as fast as possible.'

In the end, Felix made a split-second decision before he reached the two tentacles. Just like before, he didn't strike them.

However, instead of rolling his tail once, he just placed the giant bulgy end of the tail at one of them and span himself tens of times in a split second due to the tremendous momentum he built on his journey!

'Now!'

WHOOOSH!!

Before the Kraken, Lisa, and the viewers even realized what had just happened, Felix was already flying hundreds of meters in the sky akin to an arrow!

Rumble Rumble!

If it wasn't for the lightning striking even so often on the gloomy clouds, no one would have managed to spot him!

Too bad, the lightning wasn't striking continuously, and that made the viewers only catch glimpses of Felix as he went higher and higher until he finally reached his peak velocity.

Rumble!

The thunderclap roared in Felix's ears, making him feel like he was right within the gloomy clouds! But that was just a misconception due to him being almost 1 kilometer in the air!

Felix looked down and zoomed at the Kraken's dark red scalp, making it appear like it was only hundreds of meters away from him.

The moment that image registered in his mind, gravity started doing its job by bringing him down to where he belongs!

'Good luck, Felix!' Asna cheered on him with a fist pumped in the air, feeling excited after seeing what he had in mind.

Meanwhile, the J?rmungandr's had just smiled gently and continued watching Felix combine his infamous Size Manipulation with the Sphinx's tail mutation.

'Shrink!'

Felix had shrunk back to his normal size while plunging down rapidly towards the Kraken.

Due to the storm and his utter black clothes, the Kraken didn't manage to spot him even though he was inspecting the sky with his tiny black eyes.

However, the viewers were already saved from that issue as Lisa had swiftly brightened up the scene on the big screen, making Felix be as visible as daylight.

All of them were spectating with bated breaths and widened eyes, not daring to blink lest they end up missing something.

600meters...500meters...400meters!!

The instant Felix reached this height, the Kraken had finally noticed a tiny black thingy diving in his direction.

However, the Kraken didn't underestimate it as his instinct was warning him that life-threatening danger was approaching him.

Hence?

Whooch whooch!...

He withdrew all of his tentacles at once and placed them above his head in an 'X' mark shape!

That's wasn't all, as water had abruptly risen from underneath the Kraken and filled in the gaps left behind the tentacles!

"The Kraken had stopped underestimating the players and decided to use his water abilities!!" Lisa shouted with an aghast expression, "Landlord is done for!!"

She didn't say so without reason as she knew that the Kraken's water barrier combined with its stacked eight tentacles was the strongest defensive method that the Great Eight-Tentacles Kraken possessed!

It brought nightmares to all the high-leveled hunters who went to take it down in real life!

Although this Kraken had been nerfed greatly, this defensive method was strong enough to hold against all of the players united elemental salvo! Don't even mention Felix, who was just a 1st stage bloodliner!

Every VIP or knowledgeable normal viewer had assumed the same as well!

While the rest shared her pessimistic view, Felix merely snapped his finger after reaching 200 meters above the Kraken.

Simultaneously, his body started to grow bigger and bigger until he returned to his X4 state!

However, he wasn't done yet as he snapped his finger again and his tail was started to get enlarged even bigger than his giant body!

Especially the tail's bulgy end that started to resemble a white meteor chasing after Felix!!

The moment the Kraken saw this sight, his senses screamed at him at giving up on his defenses and escape to the depth of underwater!

Since beasts always listened to their instincts unlike the humans, the Kraken truly started submerging his humongous head while still keeping a defensive position.

'A bit too late buddy.' Felix smirked faintly at the sight while entering the perfect posture to carry out the advanced technique that he learned in Silver Hammer School.

Falling Meteor Strike!

It truly deserved its name as the instant Felix reached 100 meters, he started front-flipping over and over again until he appeared like a spinning wheel!

Whoosh Whoosh Whoosh.....

Yet no one was focusing on him but at the massive white bulky end of his tail, revolving after him ceaselessly and splitting the wind itself!

Before anyone could voice a comment, the bulgy tail's end finally reached the stacked eight Tentacles and struck it right in the center!

Then? BOOOOOOOM!!!

The tentacles stood absolutely no chance against the behemoth power carried by the bulky tail's end!

It was fueled by a kilometer of nonstop dive, Felix's revolving motion, and lastly his pure unfiltered barbaric strength from his ability!

All of this combined resulted in the tentacles exploding into large or small pieces of flesh, hurling in every direction while accompanied by a fountain of blood!

YET!

The bloodied bulky tail's end was still carrying on its journey towards The Kraken's scalp unhindered!

The eight tentacles barely slowed its speed or took away most of its momentum!

'Ah, I will need a long shower after this.'

Felix sighed and closed his eyes shut the instant he felt that the bulky tail's end had connected successfully with the Kraken's scalp.

Then, a moment of silence occurred in the area before the head had splintered wide open, allowing Felix and his tail to carry on destroying every organ they touched!

Blood and pieces of ruptured organs were propelled outside of the splintered head, painting the sky red for a split second before the rain took over again.

Splosh!

The Kraken didn't manage to let out even a yelp as Felix's journey of destruction didn't stop until he emerged from the other side of his body!

The moment Felix felt the coldness of the water, he smiled pleasantly and relaxed his painted red body while breathing from his gills.

He didn't even bother to glance upward at the Kraken's body that was in the process of deconstruction into light particles since he had received a notification the moment he died.

>Congratulatory on slaying The Kraken! You have been titled as The Kraken Slayer and earned 5000 GP!!

Chapter 343 - Lisa's Nomination!

This notification didn't just resound in Felix's mind but also in the sky above his position, making every player hear it and see it even from tens of kilometers.

The withdrawing gloomy clouds made it possible.

The instant the Kraken was slain, there was no point for the storm to remain anymore.

"Am I tripping or did I just hear that Landlord has slain the Kraken?"

Baffled and somewhat stunned, Golden Elixir traded glances with the players who were hiding with him inside his shell.

Looking at their dumbfounded and shocked expressions, he felt his heart skip a beat at the thought that they heard it as well.

"I..I heard it as well."

"Same!"

"Is this a prank by Lisa to drag us outside of the shell?"

Even the player who said so didn't believe himself! However, in his eyes, it was more f*cking believable than Felix slaying the Kraken solo!

This kind of conversation was being carried inside the shell of every surviving Turtle.

All of them had believed that the Kraken had given up after not being able to destroy the shell and was throwing a tantrum on his own.

They even joked about it in the past two minutes after knowing that they would survive the game!

Only now, did they understand that while they were cowering in fear, Felix was going at it alone against the Kraken!

But even after hearing the notification and knowing that he truly did it! They didn't dare to believe it!

Why would they?

In their eyes, even their entire Alliance was useless against the Kraken so how could a 1st stage bloodliner do what they couldn't achieve?!

Accepting it was the same as accepting that they were worse as a group than a single player. Their pride refused to acknowledge that at all cost!

"There must have been some sort of a loophole that he used."

"Stop discussing it. Let's just look for ourselves!"

Just as the players attempted to jump outside of the shell, their bodies started breaking into light particles, marking the end of the game!

"Whatever, this is even better." Golden Elixir murmured one last time before his body completely broke apart, "If I don't see it with my own eyes, I won't believe it no matter what."

His wish was fulfilled sooner than he expected as the instant he opened his eyes again, He was met with a harmonized chant that deafened his ears and the remaining players.

"THE KRAKEN SLAYER!!"..."THE KRAKEN SLAYER!!"..."THE KRAKEN SLAYER!!"

Dumbstruck and speechless, the players all stared with eyes bulging out of their sockets at their loyal fans and supporters, chanting something unrelated to them!

This was a huge slap to their self-esteem as it never happened to them before!

But after seeing Felix standing all alone in the center of the stadium with his clothes all bloody and dirty, they knew that their worst fears had manifested before them.

Those who were still in denial like Golden Elixir simply lifted their heads and gazed at the highlight of Felix delivering the last strike against the Kraken.

The instant their eyes landed on the screen, it refused to leave it.

No one cared about them in this significant moment even their fans were too heated by the last battle to bother comforting their idols like they always do after they lose a game.

"LADIES AND GENTLEMEN!!" Lisa spread her tiny arms widely as she screamed with a passionate voice, "When I proposed this impossible challenge to the Alliance, I expected nothing less but failure!"

"Yet!" She extended her hand at Felix, who was shamelessly taking advantage of the players' daze to buy the three artifacts, and continued, "Landlord had proved to me that nothing was impossible! A peak 1st stage bloodliner had managed to do something that had never been done before in all of the years that I have been living!"

The spectators and especially Felix's fans all started clamoring noisily, agreeing to what she just said.

All of them were veteran spectators with hundreds of games under their belts.

They watched so many different formats, games, players, scenes, plays, dramas, even epic fights and moments.

Yet, nothing had come close to seeing with their own eyes a human just like them, taking down a behemoth that was hundreds of times its size!

The cherry on top was the fact that the Kraken was still unkillable in the K-Oceania Planet to this day even though hundreds of hunting parties and squads had attempted to do so.

Although the difference between the real Kraken and this one was unfathomable, they were still emotional about Felix's successfully slaying it.

"If I didn't already give away my MVP title, I would have certainly and without a shred of doubt hand it to Mr. Landlord for this phenomenal display."

Lisa sighed in dejection after saying so. She wasn't acting or anything as she truly meant every word that she said.

In her eyes, it was a total waste for Felix to not receive an MVP title and a nomination letter to enter the Human's branch SG Hall of Fame.

His gameplay from beginning to the end had been nothing but phenomenal.

She knew that when the game hits the media and everyone watches the highlights on the VRVideos platform, hell was going to break loose.

In her mind, the last plunging scene where Felix slew the Kraken was going to be part of the top ten highlights in gold rank for the entire year!

Everyone who made it into that list was either a Hall of Fame player or at least nominated to be one!

Alas, the MVP title could be given just once per each MC. That's why it was called The Most Valuable Player Title.

It simply meant that the MC who gave it truly appreciated the player and found that he was the most valuable player throughout his career.

Since this title was a big deal, it was always accompanied by a recommendation letter or a nomination to enter the SG Hall of Fame and get immortalized for eternity.

Naturally, the names of the MCs were going to be written right under the player in the Hall of Fame, making them eternal as well!

Booo! Booo!!...

Leader Emma and the rest of Felix's fans had already started booing after being reminded of the MVP title.

They didn't know who they were booing for but they just wanted to do it so they could vent their grievance at the news. Especially, when they saw that Felix had been giving it his all in every game he was placed at.

While he didn't do too many extraordinary plays in Death Race, he excelled in the last two and each one of them, he got robbed hard!

Zoe didn't want to give him the MVP title due to her grudge and Meliodas had already given it to another player.

Now, he was going to get robbed again due to the same reason.

The fans couldn't have that!

Meanwhile, Felix wasn't that bothered by not receiving the Title.

He might be quite vexed by his unluckiness but he didn't show any of that to the rest as he simply carried on shamelessly robbing the Prize Pool clean of the best items while the players were absent-minded.

However, his finger soon froze in its place after hearing Lisa shout, "I don't regret giving my previous MVP title to Mrs. Frostbite but I know that I will regret it dearly if Landlord did not receive the proper treatment and award that he deserves in this game! Hence..."

Everyone held their breaths either in anticipation or disbelief, knowing what she was about to do but not having the guts to hear her say it.

Alas, Lisa went for it and said excitedly, "I will nominate Landlord to the SG Awards Committee to contest against other nominees for the best Low-Elo Player of the year in the Milky Way Galaxy!!"

WHOOOAH!!!

An uproar had risen the moment Lisa finished her piece as both the spectators and the players were stirred one way or another.

How could they not when they knew that Lisa had just used her one life-time nomination to give Felix's an honor even above being in the Hall of Fame?!

Although it was just a nomination and not giving him the award itself, they knew that just to earn it from the stingy hands of the MCs was an achievement on its own!

Every MC was holding into this nomination chance so when they get promoted to mid-elo or luckily high-elo, they would still have something to offer to those big dogs.

Lisa had just done the opposite without any care in the world!

Clap Clap!...

After the viewers regained their wits, they gave Felix the standing ovation that he deserved just like the nomination. Find authorized novels in , faster updates, better experience, Please click #'s-nomination!_52584128935160824 for visiting.

While some players were still feeling like they were in a dream and none of this shit was making sense, others had already come to terms with the reality and started applauding respectfully for Felix.

"Well played, Landlord." Miss. Mikasa bowed slightly in Felix's direction and said, "And thank you for the timely help. I wouldn't have lived if it wasn't for your interference."

Upon hearing so, Felix broke from his slight daze as he never expected to be nominated to anything due to his unfriendly relation with the MCs.

After all, he didn't want to even give them an interview.

Why the hell would anyone bother doing him a favor?

'She is truly a mad witch that doesn't give a crap about anything.' Felix chuckled in his mind and refocused on Miss. Misaka who was still bowing slightly in appreciation.

"Don't mention it." Felix waved his hand dismissively and turned around to his fans.

He showed them a faint smile and said, "Thank you for your continuous support."

Before his fans could even respond, Felix started waving his hand at them while breaking into light particles.

Nomination or not, he wasn't planning on staying any longer since he needed to join the PPFT Gathering and start selling his prize pool items as fast as possible!

The more time he wasted, the lesser the stock would be when he displays his prize pool.

"WAAAIIT!!!"

Mortified by the sight of Felix's departure, Lisa shouted loudly while jumping down from her commentary platform without using any fanciful method.

Thud!

Alas, by the time she made it to the ground, Felix was already drifting in the air, leaving behind him a heated stadium, unwilling players, appreciative players, and finally a highlight that would be etched in the memories of those who saw it and those who were about to!

"LAAANDLOOOORD! YOU INTROVENT PRICK!"

In the end, Lisa could only cry her misery out loud, feeling like she just got cheated out of her nomination.

Chapter 344 - Princess Bird's 6 Months Efforts!

Five minutes later, In The Androxa Capital...

Felix was already in his car, driving towards the Teleportation Company. He didn't even look at his earnings as he wanted to do so when he secured a spot in the PPFT market.

He knew that he might end up queuing up for quite a long time if he was late.

Felix gave up on his usual shower and nap to avoid that!

He realized that he f*cked up when he didn't join the game inside his room in the Ivy League City! If he did so, he would have reached the market in a heartbeat.

Alas, he totally forgot about it since he got rushed by Asna to play cards before the game started.

...

While Felix was speeding like a madman on the road, Princess Bird and her father conversed about him in the VIP room.

"What did you find father?" Princess Bird asked softly while peeking from behind her father's head at the holograms that appeared and disappeared in a heartbeat.

"Be quiet!" The chief shushed her down and carried on his research.

Currently, he wasn't looking for Felix but the bloodline library that he had been gathering for ages now.

He took great pride in it since only a couple of bloodlines had not been registered in it.

That made him be known as the Bloodline Collector within his circle. Yet, no matter how much he searched, he couldn't find a single bloodline that possessed Felix's Size Manipulation Ability.

He even went and searched through legendary tier 7 bloodlines and the only thing he found was Enlargement ability that allows the user to grow in size only.

After another minute of search, the chief had finally raised his hands in defeat unwillingly.

"To be called the bloodline collector yet not find even a single ability that I had used, sigh...Those fogies are going to have a blast mocking me." The chief mumbled to himself in annoyance while waving his hand at the holograms.

Ring Ring!

"Speak of the devil." The chief smiled bitterly after seeing that he was being invited to a group call.

The moment Princess Bird heard the ringing sound, she stopped moving and breathing, acting as a static tree.

"Alicia, go play somewhere else." The chief shooed Princess Bird with his hand but she didn't respond.

After turning around and seeing her behavior, his eyebrows twitched in vexation, "You wanna listen that badly?"

Alas, Princess Bird still didn't react and continued her static act.

"Fine." The Chief pressed on accept while threatening, "You better remain like that without interfering."

Princess Bird's eyes brightened up in delight while focusing on the emerging four holograms in front of the Chief.

Each hologram was displaying a close-up face of a person. There were three men and one woman. All of them appeared charming and quite otherworldly, unlike the Chief who seemed natural.

"Old Bird, we were just discussing that lad's abnormal abilities and bloodlines." The man in the center sighed and said, "We couldn't find anything from our data."

"We hope that you share with us your findings from your collection." Another one requested.

The Chief lip's twitched at the request but he still came clean and told them that he found nothing as well.

Just as the Chief expected, he didn't escape getting ridiculed and mocked after his response by those three men.

However, the woman didn't let the farce carry on for long as she said coldly. "Stop wasting my time."

She narrowed her eyes and informed them solemnly, "Make a decision fast on how to deal with this situation. The Royal family is going to receive the news soon. Plus, the other empires and kingdoms are also going to send their people to locate Landlord." The mood got pretty tense after hearing so. The Chief and the three men knew that currently, everyone was interested in finding out the source of Felix's abnormality.

However, they were worried only about the Mariana Royal family making a move. As for the hundred or so of the kingdoms in Mariana's territory?

They were not considered a legitimate Kingdom in their eyes or worthy enough to be placed in the same breath as them.

Even if by chance one of them managed to locate Felix luckily, they would hand him to either them or the Royal family if they still wanted their kingdom to carry on its operations.

Their thoughts weren't based on arrogance or pride but simply due to their kingdoms' absolute strength over the rest.

When their kingdoms got combined, even the Mariana Royal Family needed to show proper respect.

Hence, they were worried only about the Royal Family getting to Felix first or the 'source' behind him.

Even the Empires and other forces outside of Mariana's Empire territory weren't much of a threat since their network could never be as good as them in their territory.

So it might look like every power was targeting Felix, it was in fact just those three superpowers and the Royal Family.

"Let's hasten our plans then." The Chief asked, "What do we know about him so far?"

"We know that lad must be somewhere in the Mariana empire since his first three games were played in this region."

"We also know that he barely interacts with anyone as Landlord and he keeps distance from everyone."

"We know that he had joined Silver Hammer school in three months before and Blade Splitters School last month."

"We...give me a moment." The man in the middle, who was reading from the list, paused for a couple of seconds and continued, "My subordinates had just brought new intel. It seems like Landlord is sharing an apartment in the Ivy League city with three players. Two males and one female."

"Oh? That's quite good." The Chief asked, "Can we buy them?"

"It is possible since no one will say no to free money, but..." The man shook his head, "The report says that he is barely in the apartment and when he is in it, he just greets them and locks himself in his room."

"I see." The Chief rubbed his chin and said, "Just buy them anyways and add more coins if they are willing to attempt and befriend him. Who knows, he might let out some info about his real persona by some chance."

"My thoughts exactly." The woman nodded her head.

After so, the man carried on his report which was quite useless as that information had zero connection with Felix's real persona.

Cough!

Princess Bird who was listening to their conversation without breathing out loud, couldn't help but cough lightly and interrupt the man from his report.

She couldn't handle it anymore as his information was even worse than what she collected in the past six months.

"Can I say something?" She asked softly while fiddling with her clothes.

"Didn't I tell you to remain silent?" The Chief instantly scolded her, "Now be quiet or I will kick you out of the room!"

"Now now, Sir. Maganda, no need to be so uptight." The woman said gently, "Go ahead little Bird, say your piece."

"Thank you Auntie." Princess Bird smiled smugly at her vexed father and said, "I have been using my personal money and subordinates to try and locate Landlord in the past 6 months."

Everyone got intrigued after hearing so. They understood that every information they currently possessed was gotten with minimum effort and resources.

They didn't commit to man hunting Felix right at the start since they knew that wasn't going to be easy in the slightest.

Difficult in the sense, hundreds of millions to even billions were needed to gain a tiny piece of useful information that could lead to his location.

For example, figuring out who was responsible for delivering to Felix and bribing him to give them a piece of indirect information without breaking the delivery contract.

That could be done quite easily.

One of the methods was simply following the deliveryman's path during his journey. Another was requesting the deliveryman take a picture of planet Earth, city, town...etc, and post them on his social media feed.

There were many other ingenious ways to go around the standard contract that was signed before each delivery.

But a hefty amount of coins needed to be paid and Felix wasn't yet on those seniors' radar since the only abnormality he had was his multiple inducements.

They wanted to see first if he lucked out on a singular bloodline that was capable of doing so, or he had a method to increase inducements in all of his other bloodlines before they make a decision.

But, Felix went on and showed them another abnormal bloodline from another element.

Only now were they fully committed to the chase and they were planning on using whatever resources they had to get him!

This meant Princess Bird was actually the only one committed to finding Felix since they separated after the Shuffle Maze!

She was ahead 6 months than any other superpower!

The first words that came out of her lips had already shown that she wasn't messing around, "I have already found five primary suspects after eliminating 911 candidates."

She crossed her arms above her chest and said with a smug smile, "I am confident that Landlord is 70% one of those five bloodliners!"

The seniors went quiet for a second before starting to rain on Princess Birds with praises on her astonishing work.

They didn't expect that the Maganda Chief's youngest daughter who's known for being playful and useless actually to provide them with such a valuable piece of information!

Chapter 345 - The Alliance and The Royal Family.

Five primary suspects already?

Hell, they knew that for others to get those five, they needed at least 8 months and almost a 3 billion SC to reach them from the massive numbers of bloodliners there were in the empire!

After all, they needed to eliminate every suspect by paying bribes! How long and much was that going to cost them?!

"Haha, little Bird is truly a talented tracker."

"Well of course!" Princess Bird bragged with her chin pointed at the sky, "I have been tracking all of the bastards' players who made fun of my height in the last couple of years. No one escaped my grasp and Landlord isn't going to escape either!"

'But he never called you short.' The Chief wanted to say so out loud, but seeing his daughter enjoying the praises of his allies, he didn't want to ruin her moment.

After she basked enough, Princess Bird snapped her finger and five holograms had been manifested in front of the seniors.

Each hologram had full names, UVR IDs, and details underneath it. Two of them even had a picture of the suspect!

Princess Bird pointed her finger at the last hologram on the right side and informed, "This bloodliner is called Aladdin Musk, he is currently residing on a planet that was 90% sand and 10% water."

"He was my 5th suspect since he was using the legendary Brown Copperhead Serpent as his bloodline and had utilized only three inducements that were similar to Landlord."

She pressed on his details and they read them by themselves.

"So, Acid, paralyze, and sleepiness inducements. That's a good connection." The woman commentated.

"Yes, but it wasn't enough to place him as my first suspect since he had only shown poison bombs, a poisonous aura, and finally infrared vision. The rest of the abilities, he never showed them before. However..."

She smirked and pointed at the planet's environment, "But now that we have seen that Landlord was a dual Elementalist with a sand element, it is highly likely that it might be him."

The seniors glanced at the golden planet and then at Aladdin's face. "Old Bird, we will leave you this one to handle."

Chief Maganda nodded his head in agreement and they all focused back on Princess Bird who was pointing at the next suspect.

Like the first one, he was suspected since he had shown multiple inducements and abilities closely related to Felix.

However, his body shape was wholly different than Felix's as he was at least two meters in height.

Since it was impossible to change height in the SG, he was placed in the 4th suspect list.

He wasn't removed from the list because of potions that could modify the user's shape.

This meant this man might have drunk one before participating in the games to make it even more difficult to suspect him.

Felix could have done the same but the side effects of those potions were too much to bear. In the worst cases, the effect could stay permanently.

Since it was the doing of a potion, the bones weren't going to be as tough as they used to.

Felix wanted none of that shit.

But the seniors and Princess still had considered it.

After a while, Princess Bird had finished her presentation of each suspect.

Unsurprisingly, none of them were Felix!

Heck, Felix probably didn't even make it to the candidates' list since whatever he had shown in real life wasn't streamed in the UVR!

How was Princess Bird supposed to find him when even planet Earth wasn't known yet in the UVR?

If the Earthling's team had played their game earlier, they might have left a tiny mark in the Alexander's Kingdom search engine.

But at this moment? Only the Gama Organization and some non-natives knew about their existence.

Even if someone had filmed Felix using his abilities and posted them in the UVR, those videos would be almost invisible with all of the infinite data shared in the UVR each second.

If, this was a big if! Princess Bird managed to find the posted video somehow and watch it, she would only place him in the candidate list and get rid of him later.

That's because, Felix had shown only poison bombs, superstrength, paralyze inducement that had a relation with Landlord.

This was even worse than the 5th primary suspect!

Not mentioning, Felix's use of hypotension inducement that he never showed as Landlord or, Poison Pillars, Poison Absorption, and lastly semi-morphing!

He was a whole different person compared to Landlord and even a retard could see it unless they would assume right off the bat that Felix had more than 6 abilities.

Naturally, all of this was merely hypothetically speaking since Princess Bird hadn't even noticed Felix or planet Earth yet.

Her full focus was placed on those innocent five suspects who were about to be experience hell due to Felix unbeknownst to them.

"I still haven't sent anyone to get them since my father refused to entertain my research results before." Princess Bird humphed with a displeased expression but still carried on, "Three of those suspects are living in advanced planets which were under the rulership of the Royal Family and the other two were under either a kingdom or still holding into their independency with the SGAlliance."

"It's good that you didn't make a move." The woman sighed in relief, "You might have just alerted them and still wouldn't capture them."

"I know." Princess Bird glared at her abashed father, "If you listened to me, we would have made a move even earlier."

"Cough, I think your sisters are calling for you."

Not wanting to get scolded by his own daughter in front of his allies, The Chief swiftly snapped his finger and teleported Princess Bird outside of the room.

"Youuu!! I will tell mom about th..!"

Princess Bird's furious voice resounded one last time before she completely disappeared from the room.

"Cough, where were we?" Indifferent to the scornful looks he was getting, The Chief merely asked while scratching his beard-less chin.

Thankfully, they were discussing a serious matter. Thus, the seniors continued their discussion where they left it.

It was splitting the five primary suspects each for one of them to take care of.

"We need our operations to be discreet and also friendly." The Chief said, "We want the source behind that lad and not him per se. So, we can't make it difficult for him lest we anger the person or the background behind him that was responsible for his abnormality."

"Agreed."

"Soft approach at the start would be beneficial."

"Check first if he had that tail mutation." The woman reminded them, "After all, little Bird's information is quite outdated."

"That goes without saying."

Everyone agreed to the notion and dove into the primary problem they were going to face...The Royal Family!

"It's going to be tough to extract those three bloodliners from planets belonging to the Royal Family." The man in the left sighed, "We need to make a move without exposing that our Alliance is behind it, lest the Royal family end up protecting them at all cost."

The Chief and the rest of the men supported his claim, unlike the woman who just sneered at their reaction, "Are we going to continue acting like rats? They already know that we want them dead to change the rulership of the empire, so what's the point of this needless wait?"

"Here we go again." The man in the center sighed and requested, "Chief you take care of it this time."

The Chief smiled bitterly and repeated for the thousand times to this stubborn woman who only had battles and wars in her mind, "Zosia, can you drop this subject already? Our alliance might seem indeed strong enough to contest against the waned Royal Family. But in reality, they are simply hiding their strength deeply waiting for us to make a move rashly and get rid of us all at once."

"I don't know about the rest, but I don't trust your Eagle Foresight." She snorted, "It was working 5% of the time 95% it was just feeding you utter bullshit."

"I don't care if you believe what I saw in the future or not, but this alliance is based on votes." The Chief shrugged his shoulders and raised his hand in the air, "Please raise your hand if you think it is the best move to delay the declaration of war until 15 years later or so."

Unsurprisingly, everyone raised their hands but Zosia, who was left gritting her teeth in anger. "All of you are useless!"

The Chief eyed her solemnly and said, "I understand your reason for hating the Royal Family, but please understand that we allied not to fulfill your revenge but to bring the Mariana Empire's Glory!"

"A glory that was stripped at the hands of those filthy useless royal generation!" The man in the middle finished the sentence for him with a fuming tone.

Upon hearing so, Zosia calmed down a bit but she still asked with a tingle of weariness in her tone, "Then when? I have been waiting for more than 80 years and I can't hold it any longer."

The Chief smiled faintly with a hidden glint and said, "Didn't we just get the opportunity that we were waiting for?"

Zosia's eyes brightened up after hearing so. She instantly understood that he was referring to Felix!

"If we managed to get the source that made those strong bloodlines, we might have a chance to do a lot of things and reach new heights!"

The seniors nodded their heads in anticipation of that day. But for now, they were still required to locate Felix as fast as possible and they needed to utilize every method possible instead of just using Princess Bird's list.

Hence, Zosia proposed, "I suggest that we contact Landlord privately and see if he is willing to meet with us in the UVR."

"Alright, each to his own on this matter." The man in the center smirked faintly, "I will be inviting him to the royal palace of my kingdom and see if one of my daughters caught his eyes."

"Hahaha, old geezer going straight for the oldest trick in the book." The Chief chuckled and said, "You try that and I will be requesting my daughter to invite him into the Galactical Yearly Auction Event as my +1. Hopefully, he agrees."

"Oh? It might actually work." Zosia affirmed, "That event is well sought for by everyone in the Galaxy and if Landlord didn't have any other method to obtain an invitation link, he would almost certainly accept it."

The senior on the left hologram nodded his head and said, "Let's start planning on how to buy him over. We don't have much time before the event starts."

Upon hearing so, the seniors got into a discussion while the Chief had sent a message to his daughter, requesting her to send an email to Felix.

He decided to use his daughter since she had some connection with Felix and it wouldn't appear as weird as a random invitation from a total stranger like him.

Naturally, he made sure that Felix knew that the invitation was actually from him.

After receiving the email from his grumpy daughter and reading it softly, he nodded his head in satisfaction and told his daughter to send it. Then he joined the ongoing discussion with the rest.

Chapter 346 - Selling Within The PPFT Market.

Meanwhile in the Ivy League City, The PPFT Market...

Felix was sitting on a comfortable armchair while having two humongous holograms placed in front of him.

One of them was displaying the Wrist Webbing Artifact plus the Shield of Domenic while the other was showcasing the 100 randomized items in his Prize Pool.

Due to the two Artifacts, Felix's 'shop' was receiving quite a lot of attraction. Well, it wasn't just due to them only as the three unique Titles above his head were also helping him quite a lot!

>The Kraken Slayer!The Record Breaker!The Wealthiest of Them All!The Kraken SlayerClap Clap!...

Felix waited until the applause ended before snapping his finger and showing the 2nd Wrist Webbing Artifact that he bought!

If it wasn't for the players being dazed in the stadium, he wouldn't have emptied the Artifacts stock in the Prize Pool! Probably Miss. Mikasa and Golden Elixir were cursing him after realizing it!

"Shameless!"

"Greedy bastard."

"Thank god, there is another."

Meanwhile, everyone reacted differently to Felix's cunning ploy of showing only one in stock while hiding the 2nd to keep the price always high.

Felix shrugged his shoulders carelessly after noticing that few players walked away while huffing in anger.

He looked at the rest and said with a pretty smile, "Ladies, gentlemen, it's all yours."

Henceforth, another round of vicious bidding began yet again and ended after the last bid reached 850 GP this time.

After so, Felix informed the winner to wait for a minute until the last item gets auctioned. Obviously, it was the Shield of Dominic.

This one was well received by the players since it was one of the best defensive artifacts in their integration level.

Although they couldn't use it in games, they could still benefit from its protection in the real world.

Thus, the final bid had reached a whopping 1300 GP!

Clap Clap!...

"Thank you all for attending my small and humble auction." Felix nodded towards the players respectfully and pointed at his Prize pool hologram, "Feel free to browse anything to your liking while I deal with those gentlemen."

After Felix said so, he stopped bothering the players and placed his attention on the three bidders. Without wasting time, Felix sent them three standard contracts to sign.

This was exactly like the one he signed when he first purchased in the PPFT Market.

When the players asked the Queen to check for loopholes and found nothing, they immediately signed it and wired him; 2390 GP, 2350 GP, and 4300 GP respectively.

In return, Felix sent them the serial code of the items and said with a polite smile, "Glad to do business with you."

"Likewise."

"I wish you die in your next game, greedy bastard."

"Thank you for the shield."

Although he got cursed by the one who bought the 2nd Wrist Webbing, Felix still smiled in satisfaction after seeing that had earned a total of 3040 GP pure profit from those transactions!

That was due to his 5% commission on each item plus the betted amount.

Those were just the three prepurchased items, Felix could still gain more if those players decided to buy something from his Prize Pool.

After seeing that everyone was engrossed in his Prize Pool list, Felix took advantage of the free time to check on his earnings from the game.

He still hadn't checked due to time constraints. After all, the moment he left the stadium he rushed here.

When he placed his shop, everyone gathered to buy those auctioned items. Only now was he somewhat free to see his gains.

'Hopefully, I earned quite a large sum from the streaming revenue.' Felix rubbed his hands in anticipation and requested from the Queen to show him his gains.

//

>Winning Wish (Double value)

> Nomination to The Yearly Best Low-Elo Player in the Galaxy. (It will be hosted at the end of the year. For more information please click here)

> Unique Title: The Kraken Slayer

>Total Streaming Revenue (0.01% from game points/1% from popularity/3% from victory): 4.6 Billion SC.

>Game Points collected solo: 9500 GP //

"Holy shit!" Felix couldn't help but exclaim out loud, startling the players around him.

However, he didn't give a shit about the weird looks he was getting as he simply kept gazing in shock at the streaming revenue he obtained.

He knew that he was going to earn quite a lot since he had secured a win but he didn't expect that it would be this much!

'Queen, can you calculate how much I earned from just my fans?' He requested.

'3.6 million individuals had chosen you as their reason for spectating.' The Queen paused, 'Based on the price tickets they paid, you have earned 1.2 billion SC from them only.'

'Heheh, thank you Queen.' Felix chuckled foolishly after hearing that his cute fans had gotten him a billion SC alone.

He never managed to get so much support from his fans in his previous life. Well, although he was technically in gold, he was still one of the players who were struggling to reach peak-tier in it.

Hence, he was always having 100,000 fans coming to watch him and help him earn some money after he loses.

'Things are truly different. I should probably check on my cute fans website.' Felix smiled faintly and closed down the earning hologram. He already knew of the rest.

"Bro, I want to buy x7 little Kraken suckers."

Felix's thought process was broken by a player demanding a transaction.

Felix nodded his head and sent him the standard contract, which was signed in a heartbeat. After getting the payment, Felix gave him the serial code and sent him away.

'I should probably buy the elemental material before they get sold out.' Felix straightaway clicked on purchase >5 Purity Fountain Drop5 grams of DarkFly DustWin Streak< button.

Immediately after a hologram emerged before him:

//1) Surrender Coupon: Allow the user to be teleported outside of the game in a split second. The user will still lose a tier and all the rewards obtained in the game. (One use/365 days before expiring)

2) A Tier Lose Exempt Coupon: Allow the user to avoid the tier loss penalty. (One use/365 days before expiring)

3) 30% Discount Tickets Coupon x3: After activation, any spectator choosing you in the next game will have a 30% discount on any ticket price. (One use/365 days before expiring) //

'Hehe, not bad at all.' Felix was quite satisfied with his luck as those two first coupons could be used as a combo!

Surrender and activate tier lose exempt to avoid the penalty! This would lead to avoiding death or any trouble inside the game while also maintaining the tier.

This Tier Lose Coupon was quite common and sometimes it might appear as a hidden prize in the Prize Pool, allowing the players to purchase it with game points.

The Alliance did so to facilitate the climb a little for the players. There was also another coupon that had the opposite effect, making the players climb two tiers instead of one.

Meanwhile, the discount coupon was also quite useful to him since many more fans would be willing to attend the stadium and contest for tickets when they see the 30% discount.

Felix wasn't surprised that he had gotten an extra coupon than last time since he knew that for each win he obtained, he would be getting an extra coupon.

As long as the win streak continuous, he would keep getting more and more coupons to help him in his climbing journey!

Felix had no intentions of stopping his winning streak now!

Who knows, he might actually surpass the longest recorded win streak in the history of the SG platform!

Chapter 347 - Living With Snakes.

After a while...

The area around Felix was being emptied noticeably after most noteworthy items had been either purchased here or some of the players in Felix's 4th game had gotten them.

Whatever it was, the Prize Pool list was now trash since no one bothered to buy common items that were usually found in most Prize Pools.

Upon seeing so, Felix decided to close down his shop as he was more than satisfied by the total amount gotten from his run.

Now, his points had been increased to 15k GP from 10k! This meant he had actually earned 5000GP+ from all of his transactions!

This number wasn't normal or doable since thousands of gold players just like Felix had placed their shops in the area.

So, there was a vicious competition on whose items were going to be sold faster.

Those three titles had provided immense help to Felix so he could excel above most gold players' shops.

After he closed his shop, Felix went to the parking lot of the PPFT Mountain and rode on a silver thin car that he purchased to be used in the Ivy League City.

Whoosh!

The moment he pressed auto drive to a preset destination, he had to wait a couple of minutes before he got permission to lift off. Then, the car drove in a specific line away from other hovercars, mounts...etc.

It took him 10 minutes to reach the newly added Residential Mountain where he bought a room in a shared apartment.

He parked his car in the parking lot and walked through the packed pedestrian sidewalk towards the complex.

Any transportation method wasn't allowed in the residential area since the roads had been shortened to leave more space for lodging.

A few minutes later, Felix reached the complex and took the ground elevator.

His apartment was on the middle floor of the complex. Yet, it took the elevator more than five minutes to reach it since the building was exceedingly tall, reaching almost two kilometers in height!

Naturally, every residential building was as high as this one to milk most of the players' game points during the residential auctions.

Although there was possibly more than 800 floor in this building with tens of apartments in each floor, it was still fully packed without a single room to spare.

After all, the Ivy League was a galaxywide organization that was open to all the players worthy enough to join.

Ti-ring!

After the elevator stopped, Felix walked on a long hallway that was leading to his apartment.

As he was walking, he kept appreciating the scenery of the Ivy league from this height.

The hallway's right side had glass windows, making it possible to stand and enjoy the city's magnificence.

Meanwhile, the left side was packed with rooms stacked next to each other...literally! There were barely two meters between each door.

On his way, Felix met with players entering and exiting through these doors without any signs of discomfort.

This was due to the space manipulation done to the apartments, making them spacious inside while saving space to add more apartments.

One could only revel on the Organization's profits from selling those apartments as each room cost from 1500 GP to 2500 GP.

Two months ago, Felix had joined hands with three players and secured an apartment for themselves with 8000 GP in the auction.

The amount was split into four, making Felix pay 2000 GP for a single room. But it was worth it since there was a lot to do in the Ivy League than the eyes could meet.

Peep!

After a long walk, Felix had finally reached his apartment door and scanned his bracelet to open it up. However, before the scan was completed, the door was opened on its own from the inside.

"Oh? Welcome back Mr. Landlord."

Felix was greeted by a clean-cut man with black boxing-like gloves on his hands and a black bandana on his forehead. He appeared like a boxer who was heading to the gym.

"Thank you, Sir Fury." Felix nodded his head politely and entered the apartment.

However, before he went far, he heard Sir. Fury congratulate him loudly, "Good work on the game! I have watched some highlights and you have truly shone in it."

Felix waved his hand without turning his head and continued on his way.

'Tsk, it's going to be hard to befriend this blockhead.' Sir Fury didn't show any unusual reaction but his thoughts were quite different.

Seeing Felix was out of sight, he shrugged his shoulders and closed the door after he left.

'He seemed extra friendly, don't you think?' Asna said while narrowing her eyes.

'No?' Felix denied while walking towards his room, 'If he truly watched my highlights that's just a polite reaction to do. I would have said the same as well.'

'First, I doubt you will do the same you lying asshole. Second, I don't know.' Asna placed her hand under her chin and said, 'Something feels off about him, I can feel it.'

'Huh? Did you turn into an expert in human behaviorism after watching dramas or what?' Felix laughed, 'Don't kid yourself.'

'F*ck off.' Asna insulted lazily.

Just as Felix wanted to respond, he was met with the sight of a girl, showing a bit of her skin as she laid on a couch while watching a hologram.

She was quite attractive, especially when she was exposing some of her assets.

The moment Felix saw the way she was dressing, he knitted his eyebrows slightly, 'Okay, that's a bit weird.'

Alas, the weirder part had yet to come as the girl exclaimed in delight the moment she saw Felix, "Loordy! Welcome back!"

"Thank you?"

Felix was quite confused by her friendliness which she had never exhibited before not to him or any roommate in this apartment.

He knew that she was just like him, quite distant and detached unlike the other two players with them. She always wore decent clothes when she was outside of her room.

So, he was pretty bewildered by the situation. However, after being reminded of what Asna said about Sir Fury, he started sensing that something didn't add up.

The girl patted the side of the couch and requested with puppy eyes, "Can you please tell me how it felt to slay the Kraken? I always wanted to do something like that but I never muster the required courage to pull it off."

"It felt like shit." Felix smiled faintly and said, "Hope that satisfied your question."

Then, he went to his room and opened it up with his bracelet without giving crap to the dumbfounded girl.

He didn't lie though as he still could taste the blood of the Kraken in his lips after literally penetrating his entire head.

Slam!

'Bastard!' The girl cursed the moment she broke out of her daze.

She glared at his room for a second and snapped her finger, changing her clothes back to normal.

'Did it work?' A message abruptly was sent in her mind.

'No.' The girl started biting her nails, 'Sir Fury, you are the smart one, try to figure something out to bridge the distance between us. Otherwise, the payers would take back their money if we didn't give them any useful information.'

'How about Salma?' Sir Fury inquired, 'Was she bought as well?'

'I think she didn't receive the message since she is still in a game.' The girl said after glancing at her bracelet.

'Alright, no need to rush things out.' Sir. Fury said, 'We were given three months to make progress.'

'Okay!'

While they were conversing behind Felix's back, he was lying on a bathtub with his eyes focused on a hologram that was displaying the Bounty Hunter website.

After he entered his SG ID, Felix found that there were three pages just concerning him only!

'I will be damned.' Felix's eyelids twitched at the sight of the missions ranging from asking for his head to useful information about his private life.

Some offered only 50 million while some were offering up to 1 billion SC for his real-life location!

Although this website was for hunting heads in the games, it had already branched out to accepting other missions since it wasn't that easy to cheat the clients.

With the Queen's existence, the website didn't need to do anything but place the missions and receive a symbolic fee from those transactions.

Felix entered the website straightaway after realizing that his roommates were acting oddly as Asna said.

Naturally, he couldn't avoid a big fat 'I told you so' from the smug Asna.

Felix numbly accepted it and started wondering if his roommates' extra friendlessness was due to those missions or someone else had straightaway bought them since they were the closest ones to him.

Whatever it was, nothing much would change because Felix never had any intentions to befriend them.

All of their efforts were bound to be wasted and he was happy to see them jump around him like monkeys.

That's if they actually managed to see him as those private rooms were big enough to have their bedrooms, bathrooms, and even a dining table. He didn't need to leave his room at all unless he was heading outside.

'Hehe, as long as I don't use sand and utilize the new poison abilities set that I created for the PSG, I will be off the suspect list.' Felix chuckled as he closed down the website.

However, the moment he noticed his tail, he started feeling a bit nervous that Olivia and the rest of his cousins would notice the similarity!

After all, they had already suspected him once due to his poison abilities relation but still removed those thoughts after noticing the different abilities used.

But if they managed to watch the 4th game and saw that he had the same tail beside the different color, slight suspicion was bound to raise again in their minds.

At the end of the day, what were the odds of a coincidence happening twice in a row?

However, Felix believed that their suspicion would be overcome by everything else that he showed in the game which had zero relation to his real self.

But belief wasn't a certainty and there was always a slight chance that something might go bad and derail from his expectations.

Weren't most of Felix's plans and expectations known for derailing?

Chapter 348 - Needing Coins ASAP!

'Whatever, I can only prepare for the worst and wish it won't happen.' Felix murmured while closing down the bounties website.

Then, he visited his Fanclub website, wanting to check if they changed anything due to his unexpected elemental change to sand.

As he expected, the first thing that was changed was the club's name as it wasn't called]Landlord of Inducements Club[but just]Landlord's Fanclub[.

"Haha, How bold of them." Felix couldn't but laugh after seeing it.

He understood that he wasn't the only one who picked]Landlord[name in the SG platform.

Heck, when he registered, he was given the number 6996 after his name. That number represented every player who chose it as well.

After Felix's registration, there must be other players who chose the name after him, adding more to the mix.

So when the club named itself just]Landlord[, it was going to be quite difficult for new members to find their website online.

The only way to avoid this was by making the club be the 1st result that popped up after someone typed in the name in the search engine!

This would need combined effort by Felix and the management crew in the club to reach!

"It seems that Leader Emma is doing everything to make my name reach far and wide." Felix smiled with a pleased expression at her loyalty and hard work.

"I should probably contact her." Felix pondered while rubbing his chin, "I still need a private agent after all."

Felix never bothered with private agents/managers since he was still in bronze and silver before.

He understood that if he accepted sponsors' offers for clothes, shoes, or have the sponsor's name in his hoodie, he was going to be stuck with them for three to five games based on the contract he signed.

What's worse, the paid amount for the sponsorship was going to be shit not surpassing even 50 million SC.

Since Felix knew that he would reach gold in no time and start playing games Galaxywide, he didn't rush with sponsors, ads, or such and just waited until he made it here.

Now, any company wanting to sponsor him and make an Ad for themselves needed to pay at least 300 million SC at a minimum!

Felix didn't mind making free money by accepting some of them but he also didn't want to get entangled in those business matters.

Since he needed a private agent, why not offer the opportunity to Leader Emma who proved her loyalty to him instead of a random agent who he knew nothing about?

Obviously, he was merely giving her a chance to prove her competence for the position.

If she failed to impress him, he could only look for another one.

His email inbox was probably on the verge of exploding from offers and he wasn't going to have a tough time getting a good agent.

Speaking about emails, Felix had decided to check on his inbox real quick to see if he received any invitations to auctions or gatherings.

'Queen, please filter invitations to auctions and gatherings from the rest.' He requested while opening up his inbox and seeing that there were more than 100k unread emails.

Those were already the filtered ones from useless emails sent by randoms, trolls, scammers, fans...etc.

Soon, the inbox was left with only 3000 emails. Felix asked the Queen to pick only emails from noteworthy establishments and high elo players.

By doing so, Felix was left with only 24 emails which were still quite too much. But, he decided to read them one by one and see if anything attracted his interest.

After a while...

Felix finished reading the entire pack and was quite delighted by most of them. It turned out, he had received a permanent invitation to attend multiple monthly private auctions like the Beatheaven Auction.

This meant, he could attend it each month without needing any recommendation letter. Heck, he was actually given the rights to give those letters and also invite a plus one.

Yet, he wasn't excited that much about this one but by the Galactical Yearly Auction Event that was going to be hosted in a private venue.

It wasn't just a single auction but an event hosted by multiple renowned auction houses, lasting for seven days straight and held in a single closed-off area!

Since it was Galaxywide, it was impossible to secure an invitation as there wasn't a lot to go around for high-elo players, authoritative figures, and their plus one.

Naturally, Felix wasn't given an invitation by the hosts since he wasn't at that level yet to compete for one against those individuals.

He read the invitation from Princess Bird as she had informed him that her father wanted him to be his +1 in the event.

Felix was quite startled when he saw it before but after knowing the hidden motives, he didn't feel that it was that strange.

He knew that if he accepted the invitation, he would be asked about his bloodlines and even get bought off by the Chief.

Although he understood that it was going to be a shitty experience, he still wanted to go!

Why wouldn't he?

This seven days event was going to have everything that he desired and also within a reasonable price range!

Elemental Potion will be there, its materials will be there, illusion energy stones and high tiered bloodlines will also be there. Not to mention, Artifacts, potions, natural treasures, technologies, ancient ruins maps, slaves...and more!

This was an opportunity that wasn't going to repeat for a long time and Felix had no intentions of missing it.

Plus, if he attended, he wouldn't need to worry about having his purchases getting found out by the Maganda Chief since the Queen would be hosting them as usual.

It was quite easy to make an anonymous bid in his mind without anyone knowing about it!

"11 billion SC will do nothing much in this auction against those filthy rich f*ckers. I need more."

Felix closed his eyes and started thinking about other ways to earn quick revenue without needing to invest since the event was only 15 days away based on the content of the invitation.

He didn't have a lot of time and Felix hoped to gather 20 to 30 billion SC without selling the business assets that he worked hard to get.

Naturally, the first idea that came to his mind was selling the Jörmungandr's language to the Queen!

Based on her words, the language was worth 10 billion SC.

Too bad, getting the language was impossible since Asna or the Jörmungandr couldn't just plant the memories in his mind. They could read them but they had absolutely no control over them.

This meant Felix needed to be taught the language to write it down and sell it to the Queen.

Obviously, when he asked Asna to be his teacher she vehemently refused since it would take too much of her efforts.

For a lazy pig like her, she would rather die than waste months and months teaching a blockhead like Felix a completely new language.

Meanwhile, Felix didn't want to request the Jörmungandr to teach him since he invited him in his consciousness to chill and enjoy his time not work him out.

This resulted in the language being wasted.

In fact, Asna admitted that she had plenty of other languages just as ancient as the Jörmungandr's ones due to her possessing the souls of millions of individuals who broke into her prison.

She knew that Felix was definitely going to ask for others to be taught and sold as well. She wasn't going to put herself in that situation.

Hence, Felix was left to look at Asna's stupid face that was probably worth trillions of coins without any way to get them.

As much as it pained him, Felix stopped thinking about this method and focused on other ones.

'What can I take advantage of or who can I take advantage of? Uhhh...' Thoughtful, Felix kept washing his body gently while contemplating deeply about other solutions.

So far, he eliminated gambling, selling languages, investing, getting a loan from a bank, buying Prize Pool items with his game points then selling them later with supremacy coins, and quite a few more.

Each one had its own issues.

'Can I sell something in the auctions?' Felix scratched his chin while doing quick research on the rules of the Yearly Auction Event.

Upon seeing that the guests were allowed to auction their items after appraisal, Felix started checking his memories if he had any items worthy of being sold.

'All I have is garbage that would be too shameful to be sold in the event next to Ruins Maps and...WAIT a Minute!'

Splash!

Felix abruptly stood on his feet, feeling like a lightning bolt struck him after a sudden ingenious idea had taken root in his mind!

An idea that could potentially provide him with the amount he required without needing to break a single sweat!!

Chapter 349 - Ancient Ruins.

'Hehehe, I am really such a fool for ignoring this method.' Felix berated himself but he was still grinning in delight.

'Asna, I need you for a while.' Felix requested while returning inside the bathtub.

'Argh, why do you keep asking me only!' Asna complained after reading what he had in mind, 'Isn't that old snake also lazing around, why don't you ask him?!'

'I don't mind helping.' The Jörmungandr smiled faintly while pressing pause on his remote control.

'Thank you for the offer elder, but please just carry on watching your series.' Felix smiled gently, 'You still haven't finished them all but Asna was already on her 3rd rewatch.'

'F*ck you! I am watching them again cause there is nothing to do!' Asna cursed him hatefully.

'Didn't I just give you something to do?' Felix blinked his eyes innocently, 'How is it my fault that you keep rejecting them?'

'I want new movies and series!' She threw the remote control in anger, 'Not work for you!'

'How about the usual?'

In the end, Felix didn't want to waste time bickering with her and simply offered the perfect solution to motivate her.

'I want ten new movies!' Asna didn't hesitate to start the bargaining with a stupid amount that was definitely going to be rejected.

'Ten? Heh.' Felix scoffed, 'You get 5 movies and two of them could be romance or drama.'

'Deal!' Asna instantly agreed as she was too lazy to bargain with him, especially when she knew that Felix had no issue bargaining for hours.

'Now get to work.' Felix requested while bringing out an empty hologram, 'Start by searching for ruins that are going to be found out in this year or the next one.'

Without responding, Asna had closed her eyes and dove inside Felix's memories.

This time she remained there for tens of minutes as the search wasn't easy in the slightest especially when she was given a big range to look from.

She needed to inspect every memory and moment that Felix in his previous life to not miss the information that he wanted. Since he gave her two years range without a specific month or day, she needed to see everything that happened from beginning to the end in that range.

She wasn't complaining always for no reason as it might look easy it was nothing but that.

The things she had to see while browsing through Felix's memories were going to stuck with her for a lifetime.

Sometimes she sees memories of him getting bullied in the clan he was at and sometimes she sees him venting his bottled-up emotions in red districts.

The sights weren't pretty or even close to how Felix was currently at.

But, she was already used to the drill thus she merely bypassed those horrible memories and finally spotted the 1st Ancient Ruins information that Felix had.

It wasn't like he possessed the information or someone handed it out to him privately but it was on public view for all to see.

It was due to the fact that when Ancient Ruins get fully explored and cleaned from treasures, the first original finders would either sell the information to the Queen or turn the ruins into a tourist spot!!

Those ruins were always a hit for tourism since they belonged to ancient civilizations and sometimes to races who inhabited the galaxy way before humans even existed.

Hence, they were money-printing machines even when fully explored! Especially if there were other entertainment platforms erected near the Ancient Ruins.

Felix wanted Asna to find him the coordinates of those Ancient Ruins which were still unexplored in this lifetime!!

He was planning on auctioning the coordinates of those Ruins that were going to be found in this year or the next one!

He knew that it was impossible for him to take advantage of those Ancient Ruins since he wasn't strong enough to explore them alone.

Alone in the sense, he hires a mercenary squad, slaves, or explorers to accompany him.

He had no intentions to hire outsiders to do the job for him since they would be asking for at least 70% of everything found in the Ancient Ruins plus the mindblowing fees of hiring them.

It was within their own rights to ask for an exorbitant price since they would be risking their lives to explore those Ruins as they were extremely dangerous.

Felix knew that with body defenses, he would die without even knowing how.

After all, there were mental affecting traps that could either kill him instantly or put him in an everlasting dream.

Felix had no intentions of exploring Ancient Ruins unless he reached 3rd stage of replacement.

There was no point in seeking death so early.

Hence, He could only sell the coordinations before they get located by the original explorers just like in his previous life.

At least he would earn billions of coins from them without dropping a sweat.

Naturally, he would keep the rest of the information about other Ancient Ruins hidden so he could take advantage of them when he was strong enough.

In a short while...

Asna opened up her eyes and reported with a lazy tone, 'I have found coordinations for 5 Ruins that were found out in this year and next one.'

'Hehe, what were they called?' Felix grinned, 'I remember only Fuji Ruins and Sankrir Ruins since I visited them in the UVR.'

Just like everyone else, Felix also visited some Ancient Ruins for tourism in his previous life.

But he preferred going to visit them in the UVR instead of real-life since that was time-efficient and also cheaper.

Since the UVR had 100% realism, there wasn't any difference between the two versions of the Ruins!

Especially when the Queen was the one simulating the Ruins into virtual in the UVR's room of the owner.

Just like that, Ancient Ruins were bringing profit three times to the explorers! Hunting for treasures, turning them into a tourist spot, and lastly simulating it in the UVR!

Felix had plans in the future to use this method on Ancient Ruins that he finished exploring.

'The other three are called, MoonStaff Ruins, Devil's Cult Ruins, and lastly Dreamworld Ruins.' Asna asked, 'Which coordinations do you want to know first?'

Felix cracked his fingers and said, 'Start with Fuji Ruins.'

'Latitude-53.27349th, Longitude-7.77832031, 7th Planet in 987AA Solar System, 1978th stellar district, Guardian Empire Territory, in the Milky Way Galaxy.'

Asna straightaway gave him the full address or in this sense could be considered as the pinpoint coordinations to the Ancient Ruins.

Felix wrote it down in his holographic notepad and requested her to continue with the rest.

A couple of minutes later, Felix had noted them all and double-checked with Asna about every single detail.

He couldn't afford to have a mistake in them lest he ends up paying a penalty when the buyers find that nothing in that area.

After all, a single different letter or a number in the solar system or stellar district would send the buyers into a different area that was hundreds to thousands of light-years away from the Ancient Ruins.

'Good work, lazy head.'

'Give me my movies!'

'Stop whining, we will watch one tonight.' Felix offered politely, 'Elder, you are welcomed to join.'

'Thank you, child.'

'Nooo!! That's unfair. I worked hard for them!'

The Jörmungandr accepted the offer under the displeased cries of Asna who didn't like that one bit.

Alas, neither Felix nor the Jörmungandr bothered to entertain her tantrum.

'They are probably going to net me 18 billion SC plus.' Felix grinned widely while glancing at his five treasures that were going to be placed in the upcoming Galactical Auction Event.

He was confident in his pricing since the Ancient Ruins could offer way more than that to the buyers.

It pained him a bit that he would have to let go of them, but he knew that holding into the information was going to bring him nothing.

'Asna did you check on the Ruins' tiers?' Felix abruptly asked after remembering such a vital piece of information.

'Fuji is a tier 3 Ruins, MoonStaff is a tier 4 Ruins, Sankrir is a tier 4 Ruins, Devil Cult and Dreamworld are tier 6 Ruins respectively.' Asna replied with an annoyed expression.

'Good, three of them are going to net me quite a lot compared to the others.' Felix nodded his head in satisfaction.

He knew that the Ancient Ruins with a lower-tier number were actually the ones most wanted by everyone.

That's because the lower the tier the less dangerous the Ancient Ruins were going to be.

Meanwhile, those with tier 5+ were not as desirable since the dangers inside were assessed to be potentially life-threatening to even peak 6th stage bloodliners!

Since Ancient Ruins weren't always filled with treasures, ancient belongings, and things that were worth endangering one's life for, not everyone preferred exploring higher-tiered Ancient Ruins

Even if they found treasures inside, who could be certain that those treasures weren't going to be just garbage items or broken ones?

There were so many uncertainties in Ancient Ruins explorations and the danger/risk wasn't always correspondent to rewards in it.

Hence, it was always better to choose one that was assessed to have lower danger. At least the explorers would keep their lives if they found the Ancient Ruins to be a bust.

In the Ancient Ruins where Felix had found Asna, those weren't assessed yet since the clan members decided to explore it themselves instead of informing the clan first.

If they did, the clan would have sent an inspection professional crew who were equipped with gadgets and knowledge to assess the Ancient Ruins Tiers without risking their lives.

Thankfully, they didn't make that decision. Otherwise, Felix wouldn't have gotten this 2nd chance to redo his life!

'Alright, let's do a quick research on Ruins maps prices and such.' Felix created a new hologram and started preparing himself with adequate knowledge about the Ancient Ruins industry as a whole.

It was an entire world on its own but Felix willingly dove to learn more about it just to not get cheated when signing the contracts.

If someone was going to be cheated, it would always be others!

Chapter 350 - The Ivy League Training Center Mountain.

After a couple of hours, Felix had decided to stop his research for now and leave the bathtub. He was in it for quite a long time already.

He threw a towel on him and went to his bedroom.

After changing to his usual Landlord's outfit, he sat on his bed and opened his email inbox. He went to his Fanclub website and obtained Leader Emma's contact details.

Then, he wrote her an email, entailing that he wanted to discuss the club matters with her tomorrow morning.

T-ring!

'Alright, now we got that over with, let's test those Seeker Shoes.'

The moment Felix saw that his email was sent, he stood up and went outside of his room.

Cluck!

The door automatically closed behind him and wouldn't open unless his bracelet was scanned.

Felix looked around the living room as he walked towards the apartment's door.

'It seems like those morons want to keep things natural for now.' He mused after not seeing any one of them camping outside of his room.

'Whatever.' He shrugged his shoulders and went outside of the apartment.

Cluck!

After Felix reached his car, he turned it on and waited a minute or two until he gets assigned a somewhat trafficless destination to the Training Center Mountain.

After all, if there wasn't some traffic system in this humble mountain chain, there would be chaos when everyone starts flying whenever they feel like it.

Thankfully, the wait for a preset destination never takes more than five minutes.

'You are free to fly.'

The moment Felix received permission, he pressed on the auto-drive without lifting his head from a hologram in front of him.

The hologram was displaying the Seeker Shoes that he bought and their details. Felix wasn't reading them since he already knew what they do.

Instead, he was modifying the shoes to his liking. The most important modification was changing their size to fit his feet perfectly.

Then, he changed the color scheme to white and black, keeping it simple. At last, he chose the style of the shoes to be modern-like. Specifically to appear like sports shoes that he usually wears.

Those modifications were possible since the Dwarf who invented them didn't just make a single style of Seeker Shoes and copy-paste them over and over again.

Instead, he created them based on the notion that his buyers would range from Orcs with big legs to goblins with small feet.

He also took the cultural differences of each race. He created as many unique shoes as possible to make it easier for the buyers to feel comfortable wearing them like they were wearing their homeland clothes.

Those modifications in creations weren't really negatively impacting the Seeker Shoes since the Artifact core would always remain the same.

The outer look or size was merely an external change.

Felix didn't have trouble finding 'sports shoes' in stock since clothes, shoes, hats...etc, had been made somewhat universal for anyone to wear due to the UVR connecting everyone.

If it wasn't for so, the Dwarven wouldn't have made any modern styled artifact with a somewhat human touch.

It's already been 2500 years since the Human Race cl.u.s.terf*ck and the Dwarf Race had yet to forget about it or probably never will...After all, they were known for holding grudges and being as stubborn as a rock.

In a short while, Felix had closed down the hologram after picking the right Seeker Shoes and clicking on the confirmation button.

However, instead of sending the serial code to Bodidi, he decided to leave it with him for now since it wasn't worth the shipment price.

He preferred waiting until he delivers it with all of the purchased items in the upcoming event at once.

...

Five minutes later...

Felix had reached the Training Center Mountain and went to park his car. After so, he walked towards one of the buildings erected on the mountain's summit.

All of them were centers for training just like the one in the Androxa Capital. The only difference would be the strength difference of those training inside.

While in Androxa capital greater purity bloodliner could secure a room or join a club, it was almost impossible for 2nd stage bloodliner to possess a room that belonged to him here.

One needed to have a minimum strength of a peak stage 2 bloodliner to secure it and actually attempt to defend it against challengers.

This was just on the 20 bottom floors of each building. As for above it? Heh, unless one was a platinum player, the elevator wouldn't even lift them beyond the 20 floors.

Felix still hadn't gotten a room of his own in the past three months since he tried to keep his sand abilities hidden.

If he exposed them before the game, he wouldn't have played with the other players that easily, taking advantage of their ignorance about his element and abilities.

He understood the concept of keeping one's cards hidden at all costs.

But now? He went straight to the 19th floor and voiced the go-to taunt that never failed him, "Who want's to be a good lad and give me his training room?"

The noisy floor he was on started to get quieter and quieter by the moment. Each player began to trade glances between them and Felix who had his hands in his pockets.

Then...

"Cough, my mom is calling me for dinner."

"My dog has died; I need to attend his funeral."

"I...I...Forgot to breathe! I need to log out!"

Whoosh! Whoosh!

Dumbfounded, Felix kept staring at the players either log out instantly or give away a half-baked excuse before teleporting.

No one was left behind on the floor beside Felix and a short man whose eyebrows kept twitching in annoyance at the sight.

"Am I really that scary?" Felix pointed a finger at himself speechlessly while addressing the short man.

"What do you think?" The short man shrugged his shoulders carelessly, "News of you slaying a nerfed Kraken has already gone viral in the past hours and they were talking about it just now. "

Felix facepalmed after hearing so. He completely forgot about it since he was fully engrossed in other matters.

If he bothered to search on trending news, he would have seen that he was already in the top ten of the Mariana Empire and Top 100 on a galaxywide scale.

Naturally, those ranks were just for SG platform news in the Galaxy.

"Sigh, those bastards would probably not log for the entire day to avoid me." Felix smiled wryly and asked, "Leader, is there anyone in the training rooms now?"

The short man chuckled and said, "I have already informed them not to show themselves."

Felix's eyelids twitched in vexation at the sound of that. He didn't think that the entire floor was filled with just club members.

He understood that this short dude was the club leader that owned this floor and there was no way he would throw one of his members for an outsider.

"How about challenging me?" The short man tempted with an innocent smile, "If you win, I will give you the leadership of the Seven Sensations Club and ownership of the entire floor."

"If I lose?" Felix asked.

"You will join my club, of course." The short man cleaned his ears and said, "Simple right?"

Felix arched his eyebrows and asked, "What's your integration level."

"COUGH, Peak 4th stage bloodliner; Cough!"

"Understandable. Have a nice day." Felix nodded his head and walked back to the elevator.

"Wait! You haven't heard the rewards of joining my club!"

"F*ck off."

Felix sprinted towards the elevator after seeing that he was about to get chased. After getting himself inside the elevator, he closed it shut and wiped his sweaty forehead.

He wasn't a retard to fight against that monster when there were other floors and rooms to take.

He knew that the short man didn't lie about his integration level since it was a must to tell the truth to the challengers based on the Training Center's rules.

After all, deaths were allowed in training centers with the known 24 hours penalty plus paying the revival fees.

So challenges needed to be decided smartly instead of just challenging anyone who moves without repercussion.

Those players bounced the moment they saw Felix and his tags were due to this reason.

They understood that he was tough to win against and they might even get killed in the challenge.

If that happened, they would lose their training rooms, get forced to wait 24 hours, pay the fees and finally attempt to challenge another for a room or join another club if they still had an empty spot, which was quite doubtful.

Hence, escape was the go-to strategy since they just needed to stay logged out until Felix or other challengers leave before logging again.

Felix was retarded enough to give them a chance to escape instead of just picking one quickly. If that happened, they wouldn't be able to refuse the challenge.

He wasn't planning on making the same mistake on the 20th floor!

Ti-ring!

The moment the elevator opened up, Felix dashed inside the packed 20th floor and pointed his finger at a girl who was chatting in enjoyment with two other girls.

"I challenge you for your room!" He said loudly, making everyone turn around and focus on him.
