

MY SLAYER SYSTEM: RISE TO SUPREMACY

Chapter 391: Are you going to help?

As Jake and his men stepped through the shimmering portal, they were immediately greeted by the harsh environment of Planet Draytos. The sky was a swirling mix of dark red and deep purple, as if twilight had been frozen in place. Thick, ominous clouds loomed overhead, casting eerie shadows across the barren, rocky terrain. The ground beneath their boots was a blend of cracked earth and jagged obsidian-like formations, whispering of ancient tectonic turmoil.

A gust of dry, bitter wind swept across the battlefield, carrying the metallic scent of blood and the distant howls of werewolves. Far in the distance, flashes of battle illuminated the horizon—figures clashing in a frenzy of steel, claws, and raw power. The howls of the beasts reverberated through the air, sending chills down the spines of even the most seasoned adventurers.

To their left, nestled within a series of natural rock formations, stood a fortified shelter—a makeshift bunker built from scavenged shipwrecks and reinforced metal plating. The structure bore the scars of previous battles, deep claw marks carved into its surface. Several wounded adventurers were huddled near the entrance, their armor dented, weapons stained with fresh blood. A few stood as sentries, gripping their weapons tightly as they watched the battle unfold beyond the horizon.

The air was thick with tension, a mixture of sweat, fear, and burning ozone from the clashes of Qi and elemental attacks echoing in the distance. Explosions of light flickered sporadically, signaling desperate spells being cast in defense against the relentless assault.

Jake inhaled deeply, his gaze fixed on the chaos ahead. The planet reeked of war. It was time to remind these werewolves why they feared the Fang Hunters.

Several metres away, the few men on the planet were engaged with the omega werewolves who all tore through the men easily while their yellow eyes glowed with intensity as they kept ripping through the men.

Funny enough, the werewolves hadn't lost a single man but the humans had suffered a lot of damage that they would find it hard to recover.

On seeing the people step out of the portal, those at the edge of the shelter suddenly had renewed hope as they smiled widely especially at who stepped out.

"Is... is that not the werewolf slayer?"

"Yes, it is him. I can't forget his face ever, he really is the one."

"Then it's safe to say these werewolves are screwed right?"

Just as Jake was about to step forward, a system notification flashed in front of his face.

{Ding! Quest alert!}

'Quest alert? For these little omega werewolves?' Jake thought as he clicked on the tab and was about to read through it when Peter's voice tore his concentration.

"Uhm... aren't we going to help them?" Peter asked as he saw a werewolf smash an adventurer's head.

"Yeah, go ahead. I want to check something real quick." Jake replied.

"Whatever." Peter said as he drew his two axes. "Let's go show these werewolves who the boss is!" He shouted and the five hundred C rank adventurers charged forward with Peter in front and in less than a minute, they were already at the forefront.

"Fall back and let us handle it!" Peter shouted as he jumped back dodging a swing from a werewolf before twisting around and slashing its hand with his axe and then unleashing a devastating kick to its side sending it skidding.

Out of the initial hundred men on the planet, they were left with around thirty left and the twenty men at forefront were currently retreating back to go meet the ten injured at the shelter while the whole place turned into a battlefield.

Meanwhile, Jake was staring at his system screen trying to read the quest.

{Quest alert! The system has detected that host is too strong right now for the werewolves to be much threat to him.

So in order to give him much of a challenge, all system skills have been locked and will only be unlocked when more than half the threat have been eliminated.}

'Wait! What?! How could the system do this to me? Most of my strength comes from the system! Zee! Are you seeing this?' Jake screamed in his head.

"Yes, I sure am. And I'm very confused at this." Zee replied.

"Crap! What am I going to do now? I only have my QI to use in this fight." Jake mumbled.

"Don't forget you got Peter and your men there. Besides, it's just fifty omega werewolves. You will be done before you realize it." Zee chuckled.

{Ding! Threat eliminated (0/100)}

"Wait what?! 150? But..." Jake stuttered as he heard whirring noises from above and then a huge Aeroglide was seen hovering above the planet.

Dropping down from it, were more omega werewolves adding to the earlier fifty which Peter and the rest were fighting against.

"Oh o! I kind of jinxed you." Zee said.

"How could Jade's sensors be off?!" Jake wondered aloud as he saw one of the adventurers in front get pounded by two werewolves.

While Peter quickly descended in their midst swinging his two axes skillfully. With one of the werewolves swinging its furry hands towards him which landed on Peter's arm but nothing happened to him as he had already reinforced his body with Qi.

"Surprised? I also got a tough body you know." Peter smirked as he pushed off coating his axe with Qi and swinging it forward decimating the werewolf's head.

Before twisting around in time with his axes in front of him taking the brunt of another werewolf's kick which sent him skidding.

"Darn it!" Peter shouted as he swung his axe several times in the air releasing Qi slashes towards the werewolf slicing its body apart. "Will you keep standing there and watching the show or will you come and help?" He shouted as he ducked in time avoiding a swing to his head.

"I'm talking to you Jake!" Peter shouted as he jumped up in time and swung his leg from the side smashing into a werewolf sending it flying into another.

"I was just about to help, quit whining." Jake said as he clicked his fingers and fifty Qi swords appeared.

Chapter 392 392: Bad luck!

The fight at planet Draytos just took several turns in several minutes. Firstly with the hundred men on the planet being halved, then to the arrival of backup which included Jake and Peter.

Then Jake having his system skills locked to finding out that there were more werewolves which Jade's sensors failed to notice for one reason or the other. And now, there were two hundred werewolves on the planet.

With Jake being tasked to take care of more than half of them before his system skills could get unlocked.

"Will you keep standing there and watching the show or will you come and help?" He shouted as he ducked in time avoiding a swing to his head.

"I'm talking to you Jake!" Peter shouted as he jumped up in time and swung his leg from the side smashing into a werewolf sending it flying into another.

"I was just about to help, quit whining." Jake said as he clicked his fingers and fifty Qi swords appeared in the sky hovering above the werewolves and the battle in total.

Seeing this, the whole humans jumped back just in time as Jake sent the swords flying. Tearing the limbs of werewolves, their heads and other body parts.

The shockwave the swords made after making impact with the werewolves was crazy as dust was kicked up, so did the ground reverberate badly.

Fifty swords got rid of sixty omega werewolves in an instant as the growl of pain and anger died down with the remaining werewolves standing around to look at where the swords came from.

{Ding! (60/ 100 eliminated)}

"That was fast." Jake mumbled as the remaining men dashed forward again to continue their work.

Seeing and experiencing how strong their leader was, managed to boost their morale which was already going down earlier after seeing more werewolves drop down.

But the sight of how destructive their leader was and with Peter with them at the front lines, their confidence was boosted as they fought with more fervour.

Swinging its claws forward, a werewolf hit a guild member in the face sending him skidding but the man charged forward again swinging his sword towards the werewolf.

But the werewolf blocked with its claws causing a gust of wind to ripple out while the werewolf clenched its hands and swung it forward about to smash it into the man when a huge shield appeared in front of the werewolf receiving the hit with a loud ringing noise spreading out.

While the hands of the man who held the shield throbbed with so much pain that his hands trembled but the shield managed to absorb the impact while the werewolf stood stunned.

Not until the sword user jumped forward with the shield user raising his shield letting the sword user push off from it rocketing towards the werewolf and then with a swing of his sword, a Qi slash came out hitting the werewolf back.

Then the man landed in front of the werewolf coating his sword with Qi and made a thrust towards the werewolf tearing through its abdomen and causing it to hit the ground with a thud.

"Thanks for the earlier save." The sword user said.

"No mention. Just doing my job as the shield." The shield user smiled.

"Let's move. We got more werewolves to slay." The sword user charged forward with the shield user following right behind him.

Meanwhile, Peter was currently tearing and mowing down werewolves both like a beast and skillfully. Lifting his axe above his head, he managed to block a punch to his head but he was forced on his knees.

Without wasting time, he swung his second axe from below slashing at the werewolf's abdomen before he coated his legs with Qi and pushed off strongly causing the werewolf to stumble back.

Swinging his axe forward, a huge slash of Qi flew out and the werewolf's head was next as it fell down rolling around.

Before he could move to the next, a shot of nail was sent flying towards him which he struck with his axe sending it down to the ground.

"Oh! A special one." Peter said as another omega werewolf was seen walking forward with its elongated claws and when it was close enough, it swung it towards Peter from all sides.

With a sidestep, Peter avoided a swing. Jumped to avoid a slash and then ducked down to avoid an overhead hit before rolling his axe on his fingers and then swinging it from down below, the axe smashed into the werewolf's face throwing its head back with blood gushing out of its face.

"You know, if it was the Peter of two years ago, you would have probably given me a lot of trouble." Peter said swinging his axe around and around when he saw another werewolf dashing forward from behind the one he was facing heading towards him.

Powering his arms with Qi, he swung the axe forward sending it flying and smashing into the werewolf's head impaling it and coming out of the other end.

The werewolf he was facing earlier suddenly felt a slight sense of fear as it stepped back remembering how the axe from earlier grazed its face before smashing into its comrade.

"But the Peter of now, won't be troubled by the likes of you!" He shouted as he pushed off strongly from the ground and moved like a blur towards the werewolf.

In a panic, the werewolf shot out multiple nail shots at Peter but none of them managed to hit him as he was skillful enough to avoid each one and then, he was now in front of the werewolf with his axe glistening.

"To give me any trouble, bring your Alpha down here!" He said coldly as the axe gleamed in front of the werewolf then its head was seen rolling on the ground.

While all these was going on, Jake was still in his spot unmoving as he had his hands tucked in his pockets looking at all what was unfolding several metres away from him.

'Peter has grown so much stronger that an omega werewolf can't give him much trouble any longer. Even the C rank adventurers are holding their own. Although, some of them have to group together to take down a single omega werewolf, they are still doing well.

My worries are about these ones.' Jake thought as he turned to look at the injured E rank adventurers tending to their injuries.

'They can't handle them. The omega werewolves are way over their leagues. Which means, when I get back, Jade has a lot of work to do.' he continued his train of thoughts when he saw two omega werewolves managed to break out from the front lines and were heading towards him.

"Really? Out of all the people here, you both chose to head for me?" Jake asked as he suddenly chuckled seeing the werewolves almost close to him. They were quite fast as they managed to get away from the front lines and reach Jake in just ten seconds.

"System! Activate inventory!" Jake called out as he had his hand held out waiting for his sword to appear but...

{Error! Skill locked.}

"Crap! I forgot about that." He mumbled as he side stepped in time avoiding a swing from one of the werewolves while another one jumped up throwing a punch towards his face but he simply coated his hands in Qi and grabbed the hand.

Squeezing on tight, the werewolf was heard growling in pain as the other werewolf quickly stood up dashing towards him. Lifting the werewolf he had in his grip with a single hand, he threw it aside causing it to crash into the charging werewolf causing their bodies to crash into each and other and explode.

"I guess my normal strength is too much for you all." Jake mumbled as he saw the werewolves torn body on the ground then his gaze fell back at the battlefield. "I guess it's time to join the battle." He said as two Qi swords began appearing in his hands.

Chapter 393 393: Let him cook!

"I guess my normal strength is too much for you all." Jake mumbled as he saw the werewolves torn body on the ground then his gaze fell back at the battlefield. "I guess it's time to join the battle." He said as two Qi swords began appearing in his hands.

In a flash, Jake was seen dashing into the battlefield with the swords held right behind him. This caught the attention of the fighting werewolves, who turned and abandoned their current fights to charge at him.

"Crap! They are all heading towards the werewolf slayer!" Someone shouted.

"Let's go and help him!" Another person said.

"Yeah, I don't think he can handle a hundred werewolves on his own." Someone said.

"Let's go help our leader!" Someone shouted and they were about to charge forward when they saw Peter step in front of them all.

"No one should move from their spots." He said.

"Why? The werewolf slayer is in trouble." Someone said.

"Is he?" Peter asked and they turned around to see Jake skillfully swinging his Qi swords.

With a downward slash, a werewolf saw its hand falling down before a kick got implanted in its face sending it skidding back just in time for Jake to duck avoiding a claw swing before he stabbed his Qi sword into the werewolf killing it.

"He would soon be overwhelmed." A concerned guild member said.

"No, let him cook." Peter smiled as Jake jumped up high while forming a Qi platform beneath his feet.

With a snap of his fingers, ten Qi shards shot out speeding towards the werewolves slamming into their heads killing ten werewolves at the same time.

That was when a werewolf jumped up heading towards the floating Jake with a swing of its claws which caught him unaware and he was sent crashing out of the air to the ground hard.

And then, the remaining werewolves were seen dashing forward towards where he lay when several Qi spikes shot out towards them impaling them in their chest and heads.

"My endurance stat is so high that your puny attacks can't harm me." Jake said as his Qi swords suddenly glowing brightly and which he swung it releasing a humongous crescent slash of Qi that consumed twenty werewolves at once before they could move.

"All of you, every single one of you are too weak to give me any trouble. Want to get rid of me?" Jake asked as he kicked off from his position and then he got to the midst of three werewolves in a flash looking he teleported.

"Get me your Alpha so I can end this damned war!" Jake shouted as he moved too fast for them to see him and then the next instant, they fell down with a thud behind him.

Seeing this, the remaining werewolves were all taking several steps back in fear as they could see Jake's blue eyes glowing with intensity while his sword glowed brighter.

"Where are you all headed? Get over here!" Jake shouted as he threw one of his Qi swords forward and it slammed into a werewolf, coming out the other end and impaling another werewolf in the chest.

"The Jake of three years ago, was almost killed by a runt. The lowest of you lots, then an omega werewolf nearly took my life. Do you know how I got my revenge?" Jake asked as he was taking small steps at a time towards the remaining fifty werewolves that were stepping back slowly.

"I killed a Beta werewolf. One of your Alpha's second in command." Jake smiled widely that his teeth were on full display while the air around the planet suddenly crackled with sinister energy as Jake drew his hand back and the Qi sword he swung out earlier appeared back in his hand.

"So if your Alpha wants revenge, let him come down here himself. Otherwise, you are all not needed!" Jake shouted as he slammed his swords into the ground releasing a disrupting Qi energy that threw the werewolves and even some of the humans far back off their feet.

And without caring for the rumbling ground, he dashed forward. Slamming his fist into a werewolf's chest, it felt its chest implode on itself while being sent skidding several metres to the extent it hit five more werewolves and they smashed into the ground hard.

Seeing as there was no escape from this demon, the remaining werewolves decided to attack which they did by charging forward with all the speed they could muster.

In ten seconds, they were already all around him as three werewolves dashed in at once swinging their claws forward at once. But with a flick of his wrist, a werewolf saw its claws on the ground.

While Jake sidestepped avoiding one and another one grazed his face drawing blood before he unleashed a roundhouse kick on its furry chin sending it flying with half its face destroyed.

Seeing this, the remaining werewolves charged forward but the Qi swords around his hands suddenly changed shape and took the form of Qi gauntlets all around his hands and with a bang, he exploded from his position towards the incoming werewolves.

Mid air, he twisted his body around avoiding a stab before he unleashed a hook towards the werewolf sending it hitting the ground hard kicking up dust and breaking the ground beneath its body.

With a thrust of his palm in the air, a burst of Qi energy burst out hitting another werewolf in the chest hard and sending it flying towards where the others stood.

Peter quickly jumped up and swung his axes in a flash severing the werewolf's body apart and causing each part to hit the ground.

Slowly, Jake was destroying the werewolves one by one and sometimes two at a time. And in three minutes, all werewolves lay dead on the floor with blood covering Jake's mask and body.

"That was a job Weldon." He smirked.

{Ding! Quest Completed}

{The system has finally agreed that the host is on another level}

"It's about time." Jake said.

Chapter 394: First fight won!

Just like that, Jake had totally ended the battle on planet Draytos with not much effort. Although he did struggle a bit without his system, he still came out on top without any injuries.

Just slight scratches and minor injuries. Seeing this, the whole Fang hunters on the planet cheered loudly to the extent it felt like half the planet was trembling loudly from the immense shout.

"You did it man." Peter said walking forward with a smile on his face as he patted Jake on the shoulder.

"Yeah, I guess I did." Jake replied.

"The first half of the second war has ended. And now, we await news of the second half." Peter said.

"Just a moment." Jake said walking forward as he glanced at the huge glide hovering above the planet so he did what he could.

Lightning was seen crackling around his hands rapidly and then bringing his hands together, a huge ball of lightning was beginning to form. The ball of lightning was as big as small bicycle.

And then with a swing of his hands, the ball shot forward and slamming into the Aeroglide in a few seconds lighting it up and throwing it off the air onto the ground.

The glide caught on flames and exploded as soon as it hit the ground shaking half of the planet very hard. The smoke from the glide was seen rising up.

Seeing this, the men cheered again and hugged themselves happily as they saw the Aeroglide burning. That was when a system message flashed in front of Jake and Peter's eyes.

"The battle on planet Veldara is over! We won." The message read and a smile appeared on their faces as they glanced at the men in front of them.

"Listen up everyone!" Jake shouted and the men all quietened down. "I won't hide anything from you all and neither will I beat around the bush. This fight today, is not a little scuffle from the werewolves in an attempt to push us, this is war."

The weight of Jake's words crashed into the men. As the mere thoughts of the second war happening at any time kept most of them awake at night and now, the fourth world leader and their guild leader was telling them they were at war.

"But don't fret! Yes we are at war now. The second war has started but the first round has been won! The Fang hunters, the whole world and the whole of humanity has won the first round of the second war!" Jake shouted and the men all smiled widely at this.

"We have successfully proved to the werewolves why we are called the Fang hunters. Congratulations to humanity for winning the first round and now, we need to be prepared. Let's head back!" Jake said.

"Yes!" The whole men shouted at once in ecstasy.

"You sure know how to give heartfelt speeches now." Peter whispered.

"I could see that they were losing their morales, so what better way than giving a speech on how we won. Them hearing that we won the first fight of the second war, is surely a morale booster." Jake smiled.

"You are truly shaping up to be an effective leader huh." Peter said. "Where is the weak Jake of three years ago?"

"He is dead. Thanks to the harsh world. And now, the Jake that stand before you, is the werewolf slayer." Jake said as they all walked towards the teleporter which was located inside the shelter.

Two hundred men from the five hundred men that came with them were left back while the rest along with the thirty injured were taken back to the guild.

Soon! Humanity would be aware that the world was at war again and this time, it will be more terrifying than the first war.

After stepping into the teleporter, they reappeared at the academy, where the injured were quickly tended to.

While a meeting was quickly called among the core members as they were all seen in the meeting room with Jake and the others seated.

"So you mean to say that two hundred werewolves attacked that planet you were on?" Alex asked as he found it hard to believe his ears.

"But how did they avoid the sensors Jade set up?" Paul asked.

"I think that my network got jammed." Jade said as he was rapidly tapping on the screen in his hands.

"How could your network get jammed?" General Wilfred asked.

"I don't know. It's like they are using more advanced technology than I am." Jade said.

"How can the werewolves be using advanced technology? Aren't they supposed to be this rabid beasts? I find it hard to believe that there is someone more smarter than Jade among them." Head General Humfree said.

"Not only that, they sent reinforcements using an Aeroglide." Peter added.

"No surprise about that, after all it is known that they could blend with humans. An example of that is Blip." Sunny said.

"So what are we doing now?" Emily asked.

"Prepare for war. Have you all informed the other world leaders?" Jake asked.

"Yes! They said they will get back to us." Kate replied.

"Good. Jade! I need your help in creating more mech robots. At least five hundred more please." Jake said.

"Sure, it will be done. I will just have to pull in more all nighters. Nothing hard." Jade said yawning.

"Great! The rest of you, train and get..." Jake stuttered as an orb on the round table was seen glowing in and out.

"The big four." Head General Humfree said and then the faces displayed on the screen was that of Bane.

"I see you all won the fight. That's good. I have an urgent information from the others. There's a party/ slash press conference tomorrow evening. You all are invited and I'm sorry for not informing you earlier about our decision Jake.

You were busy fighting. So tomorrow's press conference is important so it's crucial you attend as we will be announcing the start of the second war to the world." Bane said and then his face disappeared from the orb.

Chapter 395: Have yourself to blame

The next evening arrived and the team were ready for the party. Although not all of them were planning on attending. Those that wanted to attend were Jake, Peter, Wilfred, Kate, Sophia, Alex, Sunny and Emily.

These were the ones that were to attend today's party while the rest wanted to stay back for one thing or the other. Since the Fang hunters simply had a lot of money now, they were able to afford glamorous dresses.

Jake was seen in a black suit and black trouser which had stripes of gold on either side. While silver cufflinks held up the sleeves of the white shirt inside.

Kate was seen in a beautiful purple gown with her blonde hair neatly braided with a few flowers in them. Looking at her, Jake was unable to keep his eyes off her as she blushed on noticing Jake's gaze.

That was when Peter in a deep blue suit walked over and whispered in Jake's ear.

"If you keep staring at her like that, you won't let us leave again." He said and Jake quickly coughed slightly clearing his throat and then signalled for the others to hurry up.

They all boarded a luxurious Aeroglide which Jade had specifically created and designed for today. It was the normal sized glide, with beautiful black and red designs and the Fang hunters' emblem on it.

"Shall we?" Jake asked.

"Sure, let's go." Emily said as everybody boarded the glide and in a flash, it was seen speeding away.

"Does anyone know the location?" Wilfred asked.

"Bane sent it to us and Jade has inputted the coordinates in for us. So getting there will be no problem." Alex replied.

"That's nice." Kate said as she felt someone approaching her and on turning around, she could see Jake standing in front of her.

"Did I... uhm... did I tell you that you look absolutely stunning today?!" Jake asked with a slight blush on his face.

"No, no you didn't." Kate smiled back.

"Well, you look breathtakingly beautiful today." Jake said with the blush on his cheeks growing wider.

"Thank you." Kate smiled widely when Peter walked over.

"Who knew that the famous world leader and the scary werewolf slayer could blush?!" Peter asked with a smile when an intense aura suddenly washed over the glide.

"I'm so sorry for ruining your moment. Please don't put an arrow in me." Peter said looking at Kate with a smirk while walking away.

"We are approaching our destination now." Alex said as the glide was seen approaching a grand mansion.

"Woah! That mansion is huge! Who owns it?" Sophia asked.

"The former big three now known as the big four. This place is where the big four hold their any occasion they have while inviting dignitaries from all around the world here." Alex replied as they found a parking space that was filled with a few wheely glide made by Jade, and a few Aeroglides.

The wheely glides made by Jade had made things more convenient for the populace so it was in hot demand but it is only a few that was introduced so not everybody had it.

Parking their glides, they all got off and were seen heading inside the mansion with other people by their sides. The mansion had two floors, with two spiralling staircases that would lead up to the balcony of the second floor.

The second floor which was large enough to fit around a hundred people in it comfortably. On the ground floor at the entrance, there were pillars laced in a special glowing silver substance.

And even had the most beautiful beast crystals wrapped around it.

The people walking past them, also wore glamorous clothes with some more glamorous than the others. To the extent, it looked like some of them came to attend a fashion event or something.

Leading up to the mansion was a stone walkway and a wide red carpet which had been laid out for the attendees. The arriving guests all walked in on the red carpet while dozens of cameras and drones were sent flying in the air and snapping the event.

The Fang hunters already knew that no one cared about some of them coming to the event. As today was all about Jake and if they had turned up without him, it would have been weird.

"Sheesh! What a waste of beast crystals." Peter commented as he looked around in with a disgusted expression on his face.

"You are right. We always fight everyday, risk our lives to hunt beast crystals. Example of this was on the joint hunt when we nearly lost our lives and here, they are using them for decorations and ornaments." Kate added disgusted.

"No doubt that some of the crystals are below the king tier." Emily said.

"Whatever they want to use beast crystals for, is none of our business right now. My aim is to get this day over and done with so I can prepare as much as I can. So shall we head in?" Jake asked.

And the others nodded so they all walked in with Wilfred at the front followed by the rest while Jake held up the rear. The guests seeing the members of the Fang hunters walk in, were trying to guess who they were as not a lot of them had been captured by the world.

"Isn't that General Wilfred?" Someone asked as he walked past.

"Yes he is the one. And that's two of the impressive core members on the day of the duel." Someone also added pointing towards Alex and Peter.

"Oh my word! Is that the werewolf slayer?!" Someone asked as their attention turned from the core members to the main attraction; Jake as he walked in.

The reporters quickly left those that they were interviewing earlier and rushed towards Jake with their cameras.

"The werewolf slayer! One question please." Someone said.

"Tch! How can that show off steal my show?" One of the earlier interviewee asked in anger.

"Don't you recognize him?" Someone asked.

"I don't and I will never. He needs to be taught a lesson." The man said as he strode towards Jake. "Hey you!" The man said placing his hands on Jake's shoulder.

"I don't know who you are, but I will advise you get your hands off now." Jake said turning around while the reporters had their cameras rolling.

"Or what? What will you do? Do you know who I am?" The man asked in anger as he began nudging at Jake.

"Oh! Someone is about to kiss the ground." Peter commented with a smirk.

"Or you will have yourself to be blamed for what happens next." Jake said as his aura began spilling out with his blue eyes glowing brighter while the air suddenly felt thick and suffocating.

{A/N}

I'm sorry guys, I just want to tell you all in advance that the amount of chapters left in my stockpile are just 4☹️ so once I upload them, I will go on a small break to stockpile chapters again and I will come back on 1st of May. Please guys, just in case, I'm not dropping the book just going to stockpile.

Chapter 396: Be grateful!

"I don't know who you are, but I will advise you get your hands off now." Jake said turning around while the reporters had their cameras rolling.

"Or what? What will you do? Do you know who I am?" The man asked in anger as he began nudging at Jake.

"Oh! Someone is about to kiss the ground." Peter commented with a smirk.

"Or you will have yourself to be blamed for what happens next." Jake said as his aura began spilling out with his blue eyes glowing brighter while the air suddenly felt thick and suffocating.

'What's this? Why am I suddenly feeling this way? What's with this strange aura pouring out of him?! No! I'm a respectable and very strong adventurer, I can't be scared of him.' the man thought as he glared back at Jake with his hands still rested on Jake's shoulders.

"Didn't I just say you should take your hands off?" Jake asked with a low threatening growl.

"And I asked or what? Do you know who I am?" The man asked.

"The famous double A ranked adventurer. Just a little under the leader's of the independent guilds." Alex said, walking over.

"So you know me. Then tell this fool to know his place!" The double A ranked adventurer said.

"How dare you?!" All members of the Fang hunters said at once as they prepared to lunge forward even without their weapons until Jake raised his hands stopping them.

"You are a double A ranked adventurer, correct?" Jake asked as he grabbed the man's hand which was on his shoulders and his blue eyes grew more intense while he squeezed tightly on the man's hand. "And I'm an X ranked adventurer!"

'X rank? Is he kidding me?' the man thought in his mind as the pain on his hands grew more intense while the cameras surrounding the place suddenly began shaking tremendously as even the glasses some people held with drinks inside began trembling.

'The X rank, only those at the level of the new big four has that rank. Is he saying he is part of the big four? Wait! Didn't someone new join the world table recently? The werewolf slayer. Is he the one?

Crap! There's no way to be sure as I didn't watch the news that day because I was out on another planet hunting so I don't know what the werewolf slayer looks like.

What if he is not the one?' the man thought in fright as sweat began forming on his head but then he burst out laughing.

"Who am I kidding? You are a fake!" The man said as he unleashed his Qi to its full potential while countering the pressure on his hand and then he glared at Jake.
"Not everyone can become an X rank adventurer just by saying so."

"Alex." Jake called out as he let the man's hand go but from his suit, the man pulled out a dagger. "The world isn't really doomed if something happens to a double A ranked adventurer right?"

"No! But it certainly will if something happens to a world leader." Alex replied with a smile.

"Again with the lies of being a world leader!" The man said as he exploded from his position strongly heading towards Jake with his dagger being coated with Qi.

"Then he certainly doesn't need his head anymore." Jake said as Qi was seen surrounding his hand taking the form of a sword while the man quickly swung his dagger forward towards Jake who used his Qi sword to block with shockwaves spreading around.

The drones and cameras all flew away crashing into the walls, the guests at the entrance or close to the scene had their hair blown up, even the glasses in their hands shattered spilling their contents.

But the adventurer felt his hands vibrate badly after clashing with Jake and then in the next second, he was seen flying into a wall hitting and cracking it badly.

"Ju... just from a block, he sent that double A ranked adventurer flying?! How come?" Someone close to the scene muttered.

"Is that what you saw? Look at my hands. My glass shattered." Someone commented.

"But has that adventurer being living under a rock this while? Doesn't he know that, that is the werewolf slayer?"

"I guess he is just tired of living so he decided to end his life by challenging a world leader." Someone else too added.

Slowly, the man that was sent flying was seen rising with blood dripping down his suit, his hand was a mangled mess but he gripped his dagger tighter with his other hand and walked over with a scowl on his face.

"Do you know, I have killed countless humans? Those higher than me in strength and power. Those in my path and those that opposes me. So it won't be any different if I kill you too." The man smirked.

"In all these things you mentioned, I didn't hear you say that you managed to kill a Beta werewolf, did I?" Jake asked as he just took a single step but then suddenly appeared in front of the man who was at least four metres away from him.

"But I did." Jake smirked as he began condescending his Qi around his sword when...

"Enough!" A booming voice rang out with the whole building shaking tremendously. Hearing the voice, everybody froze and so did Jake who turned around to see a huge man with fiery red hair walking over with a crimson blazer resting on his ton body.

"Tha... that's Rex Slade." Someone from the crowd said.

"One of the big four, Rex." The adventurer muttered in fear.

"Werewolf slayer, must you always cause a scene wherever you go?" Rex asked.

"Tsk!" Jake scoffed straightening his blazer and walking away.

'He...did Rex just call the man the werewolf slayer? Di... did I just mess with a world leader?! Crap!' the man thought with his whole body suddenly drenched in sweat.

"Be grateful he came." Jake whispered towards the man and then walked away leaving Rex at the entrance with the others.

{A/N}

I'm sorry guys, I just want to tell you all in advance that the amount of chapters left in my stockpile are just 4☺ so once I upload them, I will go on a small break to stockpile chapters again and I will come back on 1st of May. Please guys, just in case, I'm not dropping the book just going to stockpile.

Chapter 397: Where's Jake?

After leaving the entrance, Jake's eyes were met with a grand hall filled with people dressed extravagantly, a stage was built in front of the hall, off to the side, a bar section was placed.

While in the middle of the hall, the guests stood. Either making connections or talking with each other, trying to get to know one another better.

The hall itself was huge enough to fit around two hundred people comfortably with a grand and beautiful chandelier above lighting up the whole place with beautiful colours, a soft music was being played off to the side with some people gently grooving to it.

Jake didn't care for all these as he casually walked towards the bar section and sat down.

'Thanks to Jack, I somewhat come to enjoy alcohol. But not like I can keep drinking it all the time lest, I get addicted to it.' He thought.

"Give me that." Jake said pointing to a bottle that had the letter S written on it.

The bar man quickly poured a glass and put four cubes of ice in it. Then he skidded it on the table towards Jake who effortlessly caught it and took a sip while being deep in thought.

'Just imagine I wasn't there on that day.' he thought as he occasionally took a sip, downing in his thoughts and the soft music in the background. 'So many men would have died that day. The werewolves, I can't believe I have grown so strong that omega werewolves do not pose a threat to me.'

On that day we went on our first beast hunt as first years, we were almost killed by runts(lowest ranked in the werewolf army) but we managed to survive thanks to sergeant Lee who came to help.

It turns out, he is also a traitor.' Jake thought as he sighed and took a mouthful of his drink.

'Then Aurora was attacked with me managing to kill omega werewolves by the skin of my teeth and then thrust into a battle with a Beta werewolf which almost killed me twice. But thankfully, it ran away for some reason.

Then I encountered the same Beta werewolf again but I didn't engage with it and it fell off the bridge that day. I wonder if it's still alive or didn't make it after falling into that abyss.

Then the fight with Blip which I nearly died but thanks to the system, I came out on top but fell unconscious for two weeks. Damn! That was bad. I hate to imagine if something had happened during those two weeks.' he thought again as the hall suddenly grew chatter but he didn't pay attention even when someone came over and sat down beside him until he heard a beautiful feminine voice.

"Hey handsome! What are you thinking about?" Turning around, he could see a stunning figure seated beside him.

The female was dressed in a tight fitting crimson gown, showing and highlighting her nice beautiful curves more. Unlike before when she had glasses on her oval face, today there was none.

Her beautiful black hair was swept back neatly letting it drape her shoulders and flow in the wind freely. Her beautiful oval face had a stunning smile plastered on it as she stared at Jake.

"E... Erin?!" Jake said surprised. "What are you doing here?"

"I will have what he is drinking please." Erin said glancing at the bar man with a smile on her face.

"R... right away ma'am." The bar man said and quickly got to work.

"For your question, did you think you were the only influential person in the world?" Erin asked as she moved closer towards Jake with her beautiful black eyes staring at his facial features. "I'm a famous reporter, of course I will get invited."

"Ri... right!" Jake said stepping back a bit with his face all red from blushing slightly.

"Although, I'm upset with you." Erin said pouting her mouth forward.

"Your order ma'am." The bar man said as he passed her the drink.

"Thank you." Erin said with a smile which felt like it could blow the man away as he blushed back to his post.

"Why are you upset with me?" Jake asked.

"Your birthday celebration, you didn't invite me. Why?" She asked as she took a sip of her drink.

"I just forgot you existed." Jake mumbled as he took a chug of his drink.

"Are you saying something?" Erin asked.

"No! I meant to say, I wasn't even aware I was having a party. My friends decided to throw a surprise party for me." Jake said.

"Oh. That explains why the news didn't get out." Erin said.

"Sorry, how did you even know I did my birthday recently?" Jake asked.

"I'm a reporter, I have my ways." Erin smiled while Jake felt his heart thumping loudly.

"She's dangerous." Zee commented.

'Agreed!' Jake mentally said.

"I heard you created a scene at the entrance. You sure are a trouble maker." Erin said, smiling.

"I just needed to put an arrogant weakling in his position." Jake shrugged.

"Attention everyone!" They both heard the sound of glass clinking in front of the hall with Bane holding a glass while the music stopped.

"Thank you all for coming!" Bane said as the hall suddenly grew silent while listening to what Bane had to say. "Before I continue, it won't look right for only me to stand on this podium to give a speech so allow me call the other big four on to the stage."

Right on cue, the guests were heard clapping as Rex and Rivock were seen heading towards the platform but Jake was nowhere to be seen on the stage.

"Huh? Where is that youngling?" Rivock asked as he looked around.

"Wasn't the werewolf slayer supposed to be there?" Someone from the crowd wondered aloud.

"What's Jake doing now? Didn't he head inside before us?" Emily asked as the core members were all seen in the hall looking around for Jake.

"Uhm... Jake, I think you need to be th..." Erin stuttered as she turned from the stage to look at where Jake was seated earlier but he wasn't there anymore. It was like he totally disappeared.

"Crap! What's Jake doing now?" Alex wondered.

"Uhm..." Bane muttered on the crystal in front of him which was glowing green. "Werewolf slayer, where the hell are you?"

"Right here." They all heard a voice say as Jake suddenly appeared beside them standing as if he was always there with a smile on his face. "It's settled, you all are weaker than I am." He smirked.

Chapter 398 398: Get ready for the second war!

"Uhm..." Bane muttered on the crystal in front of him which was glowing green. "Werewolf slayer, where the hell are you?"

"Right here." They all heard a voice say as Jake suddenly appeared beside them standing as if he was always there with a smile on his face. "It's settled, you all are weaker than I am." He smirked.

A few moments ago, when Jake saw Bane clinging on the glass, he quickly turned towards his system.

'I have a feeling that, that oldie might call the rest of us to stage. I don't really want to be seen walking towards the stage with whispers and people trying to talk to me.

So I will have to use this skill to avoid their gaze and also test how sharp their senses are.' Jake smiled.

And that was when Bane was heard calling on the other big four.

"Time to bounce." Jake muttered.

{Stealth skill activated}

The system announced and right on cue, it was as if Jake had disappeared from view, no trace, no scent, no aura, no presence, no Jake. Nothing! Absolutely nothing.

And that was when the crowd began muttering and looking for Jake who was seen heading towards the stage. Weaving through the guests and making sure he didn't bump into them, he was closing in on the stage.

That was when he heard Bane ask.

"Uhm..." Bane muttered on the crystal in front of him which was glowing green.
"Werewolf slayer, where the hell are you?"

And right at that time, he climbed the stage and stood beside the others with the skill cancelling itself and him replying with...

"Right here." and then he smirked and looked towards the others. "It's settled, you all are weaker than I am." He smirked.

"I will let that comment slide for now." Rivock whispered. "As I do not want to cause a scene here."

'The werewolf slayer! He is so full of surprises but I had already seen this skill when we were out on the join hunt so I'm not that surprised. But why couldn't I detect him earlier?

This skill is so perfect for assassin type work.' Rex thought.

'Funny thing is, I managed to detect him. I sensed that someone was on this stage with us but I was unable to pinpoint where he was exactly.' Rivock thought as glanced at Jake with his side eye. 'This skill, coupled with his speed and strength, is really dangerous.'

"Oh?! He has arrived." Bane said. "I know I announced on the day of that duel who the fourth world leader is." He said as the cameras were now rolling live bringing to the public and the whole world the event.

Every single soul were tuned in to their various electronics watching what was being displayed on it which happens to be the current event.

"But because of what happened earlier, I found out that not everybody knows what the new world leader looks like." Bane said.

"What?!" Someone on the online forum commented. "For someone not to know who the werewolf slayer is, means that person is living under the rock."

"Nah... some people do not really want to know what he looks like." Another person replied on the forum.

"Or some people are just too arrogant to accept him. I mean, I bore witness to the same issue which happened at the event today. Someone tried to attack the werewolf slayer out of envy."

"Crap! That is total bullshit! I don't believe it." Someone replied.

"Well, you had to be there." The person said while Bane continued what he was saying.

"This right here, is the new world leader. Jake Lucas also known as the werewolf slayer." Bane announced pointing towards Jake who stepped forward slightly.

The whole guests clapped, some wholeheartedly, some half heatedly and some just doing it out of respect to the big four.

Half of the world failed to accept Jake as they see him as too young and naive. But one thing they couldn't deny was his power which some thinks is being exaggerated.

"Alright! That is part of the reason for this party." Bane said and a hush befell the hall. "This party is to inform you about what majority; about seventy percent of you all are unaware of."

Hearing Bane's words, whispers befell the hall as even the online community were wondering what the world leader was trying to get at.

"Recently, two of the Fang hunters' planets were attacked, by werewolves." Bane's words crashed into the people like a truck hitting a building as they were confused by what he was saying.

"Werewolves?" Someone from the crowd found the voice to ask. "Do you mean scouts or a small scuffle?"

"Neither of those." Bane replied. "It was a full out battle with a planet being attacked by about two hundred omega werewolves, and the other planet was attacked by fifty omega werewolves."

A silent hush befell the whole place, both all around the world and the hall as they tried to process what Bane was saying.

"Luckily, the Fang hunters came out on top with just about a hundred casualties." Bane added which surprised the crowd the more.

"A hundred casualties? In a war against omega werewolves?! That... that's very impressive!"

"Of course, it will be possible if the werewolf slayer was there."

"But could he be there on two different planets at the same time?"

"Which means even the core members and the guild members are monsters."

"Didn't you watch the live broadcast of the duel?"

"I did, but the werewolf slayer's duel overshadowed the others so I didn't pay much attention."

"I'm sure most of you have already begun piecing things together by now." Bane said as a deep scowl appeared on his face. "That's right, we are at war now! The peace we had for so long has been broken and now, the second war has begun."

Bane's words slammed into the whole world like lightning from above stunning them and sending them into shock.

Even the mere thoughts of the war coming was enough to send someone to their maker. But now, Bane just announced that the second war had started.

"I know you all are scared right now. But you are all going about it the wrong way." Rex said walking forward with his booming voice reaching the back of the hall even without the crystal.

"It isn't us that's supposed to be scared, it's the werewolves. Look on the bright side you all, the first fight in the second war came out as a victory for humanity because of the Fang hunters.

Over the years that the werewolves decided to retreat back, they made a terrible mistake as we have managed to grow our strength tremendously." Rex added.

"Exactly! In the world that you have the big four, the independent guilds, and even strong adventurers, why do you need to fear?" Rivock asked. "In the whole world, we have around two triple A ranked adventurers, but more than two dozen double A ranked adventurers.

And you also have us! The big four and also X ranked adventurers; the only ones there is."

"But... but the werewolves dealt us a lot of blow." Someone from the crowd muttered.

"And we dealt them worse." Jake said walking forward ahead of the others calmly as if the pressure and weight of the war wasn't his business. "Think about this, they lost a large amount of army when they attacked Aurora, lost more again when they attacked the Fang hunters,

Even lost a Beta werewolf who was one of the upper echelons. So now tell me, who is losing? If you all want to sit back and act like the weaklings you are, you are welcome to. I don't even give a f*ck! But I want you all to know this, I have a mission to accomplish." He said as the whole hall was so silent listening to every word he was saying.

"My mission is to eliminate every single werewolves from this world and I will accomplish it with or without you all! As long as I have the Fang hunters, I know it will be done. So tell me! Do you all still want the threat and fear of the werewolves hold you back? Or do you want to face the fear and stand up against them so you can eliminate them once and for all.

Make your choice now!" Jake said.

"He is really good at this speeches day by day." Peter whispered.

"I don't even know who is influencing him." Alex muttered.

What everybody didn't know was that Jake didn't just come up with the speech on his own. In fact, he didn't care about motivating anybody but Zee was the one who analyzed that the world were skeptical about the whole prospect of war.

So it told Jake exactly what to say to give them the push they needed and they were about to see if it made a difference.

"Jake is right, we can't keep living in fear of the werewolves, we need to put a stop to this once and for all." Someone from the guests said.

"Yes! The werewolves need to pay for invading our space."

"Right! They need to be eradicated!"

"Werewolf Slayer, we are with you on this!" Someone shouted.

"Yes!" The whole room shouted at once and so did the online forum as they were sending their support towards Jake which put a smile on his face.

"Beautiful! So let's get ready for the second and final war shall we?" Jake asked.

"Yes!" The room exploded at once.

"Why do I feel like you are growing more popular than us?" Rex asked.

"Maybe I am." Jake smirked.

Chapter 399 399: War planning and strategies

It had already been two weeks since the big four announced to the whole world that the second war had already begun and humanity should be prepared.

Ever since then, the whole world had been buzzing. Adventurers that had been sent out into different planets, had been called back by their different guilds while they plan on what to do.

The whole world were working in earnest building shelters, hunting for beast crystals which will help in making strong powerful weapons for the world.

Even the Demi-god weapon the big three had, the location had been shared to each of them on how to locate it in case of emergencies. They had called for a famous blacksmith who made the weapon and he did it so perfectly that even the power from the weapon would slightly leak out.

At the Fang hunters' base, Jade had been so engrossed with work that he hardly ever slept. He was busy making mechs for the weak fighters in the guild, making other inventions that would help them.

After the day he found out that the werewolves had advanced technology than his, he had made adjustments to all the sensors on the different planets the guild owned.

Even the one which the phoenix guild and the Raven wing's had a hold of. Everything was secured tightly.

All planets had higher ranked adventurers instead of the usual E and D ranks. Currently, each planets had a couple hundreds of C rank adventurers and one or more B rank adventurers.

Security was tight, Bane had set up sensors around the Earth's atmosphere, satellites and other things were set up to notify the world when the werewolves decided to attack.

The same satellites with a slight modification made by Jade was set up at the fang hunters' base, and planets they owned.

Meanwhile, the big four decided to set up a meeting to plan what to do next. They each had to bring a single person who would serve as advisors to them at the meeting, if needed.

Jake decided to take Head General Humfree along and he gladly accompanied him. In a few hours, they arrived at a secluded mansion owned by Bane Josh who as usual got so many technologies and securities around.

That even a fly would find it hard to break into. This mansion wasn't where Bane lived, it was just a place he uses to hold meeting anytime it was his turn to host.

And currently, the big four along with Head General Humfree were seen in a huge meeting room sitting around a round table and were getting ready to discuss their plans.

"Head General Humfree, it's so nice to see you after so long." Bane smiled.

"Right! How long has it been again?" Humfree asked as he stroke his long white beard. "Yes! Around ten or twelve years now. I can't really remember."

"Will we be seeing you in this second war again? Your strength was helpful in the first war. And you even helped when we were struggling against a Beta werewolf." Rex said.

"By all means, I will be there. I just have a feeling that there won't be a third war, this will be the second and last. So who am I not to join?" Humfree asked with a chuckle.

"That's great! Now to the reason for this meeting." Rivock said.

"That's right. So what are the strategies we are using in this war? Are we going to sit around and let the werewolves strike, let the weaklings push forward or what?" Bane asked.

"Or should we build our forces?" Rivoock asked.

"In the last war, what strategy did you all use?" Jake asked.

"Just sat around and the werewolves attacked." Humfree replied.

"How did that turn out?" Jake asked.

"Partly good and partly bad." Rex shrugged.

"So why try the same strategy again when victory isn't guaranteed?" Jake asked.

"Do you want to suggest something or do you want to insult us?" Rivoock asked.

"I'm trying to suggest something angry uncle." Jake smirked.

"Who are..." Rivock wanted to stand up when Bane laid his hands on his shoulders pushing him back down.

"We are at war currently, we are here trying to discuss plans to aid us. Now is not the time to be bickering amongst ourselves or be separated. We need to be united." Bane said.

"I agree with the tech uncle." Jake said and Bane glared at him.

"Stop acting like a child and get straight to the point." Rex retorted.

"Fine! I'm suggesting we push forward. Instead of sitting around, let's attack the human planets the werewolves are on. Why will this work? The werewolves won't expect it, we can reclaim our taken planets, destroy their morales and build ours." Jake suggested.

"Th... that is a surprisingly good idea." Bane muttered.

"But what happens if the werewolves attack us and we are out reclaiming planets?" Rivock asked.

"Did I say we all should go?" Jake asked. "Just choose a faction amongst us here which will go ahead, the rest of you stay here and prepare more."

"Remind me, how many planets do the werewolves have under their grip?" Humfree asked.

"They have ten planets under their grips." Bane replied.

"So we would need to reclaim all ten." Humfree said.

"So which faction amongst us is going to be tasked with reclaiming our planets while protecting ours?" Rex asked.

"Obviously the person who suggested the idea." Rivock said.

"The Fang hunters?" Jake asked and then chuckled loudly. "I suppose it's not such a bad idea though, after all, we can boast of a large number of members than you all so it's no problem."

"You are lucky..." Rivoock said with a glare. "You are lucky we are at war and we need to work together. Otherwise, I would have loved to put you in your place."

"All talk and no action makes a Rivoock a weak man." Jake smirked.

"I will kill you!" Rivoock shouted as his muscles bulged and he shot forward from his position about to head towards Jake when a loud knock interrupted them.

"Who's there?" Bane asked.

"Sir Josh, I'm sorry to interrupt you but you need to see this." The person said.

"Is it that urgent?" Bane asked.

"Very urgent sir." The person replied.

"Then come in." Bane said. "And you too, behave yourselves. You aren't kids!"

The man walked in with a tablet in hand and was seen heading towards Bane but before he did, he quickly bowed down to the other world leaders before he handed the tablet back to Bane.

"If it isn't as important as you make it out to be, I'm going t..." Bane trailed off as he took a look at the tablet with his eyes widening in shock.

"What happened? Is there a problem?" Rex asked.

"Shit! We have waited for too long." Bane said as a sweat trickled down his face.

"What's wrong? Don't keep us in suspense." Rivock shouted.

"The...the werewolves, they are finally making their moves. And you are not gonna like what I'm seeing here right now." Bane said as silence befell the room immediately.

Chapter 400: Lunar Bastion!

The Lunar bastion! It was a world of eternal twilight, its sky forever shrouded beneath the crimson glow of two moons. Their eerie light bathed the land in a dull red hue, casting long, ominous shadows over the jagged terrain. The air itself was heavy, thick with an unseen force—a raw, primal energy that crackled with the presence of countless werewolves.

The land was vast and untamed, stretching across regions both deadly and magnificent. Colossal black trees, their bark hardened like obsidian, stood tall in the endless forests of the Blackwood Abyss. Their roots twisted unnaturally, some said to be alive, feeding on the corpses of the unworthy. Beyond the forests lay the Bloodfang Peaks, a mountain range that speared the sky with jagged cliffs. These mountains served as the training grounds of the strongest Alpha-class werewolves, their caves home to warriors who had survived brutal rites of passage.

In the far south, the Crimson Wastes spread endlessly—a barren desert where the exiled and defeated roamed, their bodies ravaged by both the scorching sun and the monstrous creatures lurking beneath the sands. This was a place where only the strongest endured, where rogue werewolves fought among themselves for dominance, hoping to one day be strong enough to return to their packs.

But the true heart of the werewolf empire lay at the center of the planet—the great capital, Fenrir's Dominion.

Fenrir's Dominion – (The Capital of the Werewolves)

Carved into the side of a massive black mountain, Fenrir's Dominion was not just a city, but a fortress—an unbreakable bastion where the ruling Alphas and their warlords gathered. Towering spires, forged from an ancient stone darker than night, loomed over the land like the fangs of a beast, their tips glowing faintly with pulsing crimson energy. These spires served as watchtowers, manned by warriors who could see miles beyond human vision.

The outer walls of the city were fortified with layers of enchanted obsidian, reinforced with lunar runes that pulsed beneath the surface, forming an unbreakable barrier. Anyone who touched these walls without permission would find their life force drained, their body collapsing into dust.

At the heart of the city stood the Moonfang Citadel, the ruling seat of the werewolves. This massive structure was a fortress within a fortress, its halls wide enough to fit entire battalions of werewolf warriors. Flaming torches of blue fire lined the walls, their eerie glow casting long shadows upon the floor, while massive statues of ancient warlords loomed over all who entered.

The werewolves did not rely on technology the way humans did. Instead, their civilization was built upon a fusion of runic magic and raw physical might. The city's defenses were powered by blood-infused sigils, ancient symbols that granted their warriors heightened abilities in battle. Gargantuan war beasts patrolled the lower districts, creatures bred specifically for war, their hulking frames covered in thick armor-like fur.

And above all else, there was a feeling—a presence—that made Fenrir's Dominion different from any human city. The air thrummed with power, a silent hum that filled the lungs of every werewolf who walked its streets. This was their home. Their sanctuary. And soon, it would be the command center of their greatest war yet.

Deep within Fenrir's Dominion, the rulers of the werewolf race had gathered. Massive statues lined the grand hall, depicting warriors of legend—Alphas who had once led their kind to victory in the First War. Their eyes, sculpted from glowing red crystals, seemed to watch over the council with silent judgment.

A long table, carved from the black heartwood of the Blackwood Abyss, stretched across the chamber. Around it sat the mightiest of the werewolves—the Higher authorities, their hulking forms wrapped in dark armor adorned with silver etchings. At the head of the table sat the most terrifying of them all, Vornak Bloodfang, the Alpha werewolf. His bloodshot red eyes gleamed with cold calculation, his massive frame radiating power as he surveyed his generals.

Silence reigned for a moment, broken only by the distant howls that echoed across the land. Then, Vornak spoke, his voice a deep, guttural growl that carried across the chamber.

In the room, several werewolves sat but instead of their werewolf forms, they instead chose to appear with human forms all except the Alpha who sat on his finely made throne that was coloured crimson red.

To the extent it looked like it was dyed with blood instead, it still flows down till now. His hulking and towering figure sat on the throne, his crimson eyes glancing at the others that sat around the table.

At the table, three other werewolves sat but they were currently in human forms. A broad-shouldered young man with a massive build sat at the table, his neatly swept-back black hair adding to his imposing presence. The human wore no clothes on his upper body as his upper body was out on display without any shirt on it.

The human only had a pair of trousers on and a pair of shoes while his eyes were sharp as if devoid of emotions and non-chalant.

This was the senior Beta werewolf Varian Bloodfang; younger brother to the Alpha werewolf; Vornak Bloodfang. This Beta werewolf was the one who attacked Aurora Academy earlier and the one who killed Vynn; Jake's friend.

Beside him, a chair was seen empty, without any occupant on it. But further to the side, a man was seen seated staring in front as if in thought.

This man was different to the others in the room, instead of a full human form, part of his body was still transformed and that was his hands which were blackened claws.

He also had a strong build but his blonde hair was fluttering in the wind above his shoulders with a lost expression to his eyes.

This was Dredmar Blackclaw; the leader of the omega werewolves pack. Although all werewolves were directly under the Alpha, he still needed to appoint people over the pack and hence the different groups with the most strongest of them standing above them.

And off to Blackclaw's side, a young teenage guy was seen with his slightly lean build, short green hair and smily face. Was Ulric Nightbane; the leader of the Delta pack.

Werewolves were divided in ranks with the Alpha at the top, three Beta werewolves under him which serves as his second in commands, the Gammas which are known as the advisors to the Alpha.

Delta which are the regular pack members, omega werewolves; these werewolves are stronger than the deltas and then lastly, are the runts which are the newly turned.

(See begining of the book for reference! Auxiliary chapter has the description, check it out.)

"What's the information?" The Alpha's deep voice bellowed in the room snapping the generals from their thoughts and back to the room.

"Sir! After our last attack, the humans are more cautious now. They have set up a lot of defenses, recalled their adventurers that are out to prepare for war." Dredmar replied.

"Puny little humans." The Alpha laughter rang around the room. "Do they think their futile efforts will help them?"

"But Alpha." Varian spoke. "I think we have been keeping quiet for too long now. Those humans are growing stronger everyday. I mean, they killed Blip, and are still growing stronger."

"Blip was always a hotheaded fool so he met what he was seeking." The Alpha replied. "What about the other Beta werewolf?"

"He is still back at the human world gathering Intel." Varain replied.

"I'm confused about one thing though." Ulric said. "Why did you order for a few omega werewolves to attack only the planet of a single guild?"

"To test his strength one more time." The Alpha smirked revealing his sharp fangs. "Jake Lucas! The only one that could put a pin in my plans, I needed to examine his strength."

"So, what now?" Dredmar asked. "Do we just sit around and do nothing?"

"He said sit around and do nothing." Varian laughed out loud.

"Indeed, some of you do not see the bigger picture here. My little attack was to warm the werewolves and also the humans up before we strike again." Vornak said.

"When is that going to be?" Dredmar asked.

"Soon. Incredibly soon. But first, we need a diversion. There's something I need to do before we strike full force. So Dredmar, you are leading this diversion. Feel free to go crazy but make sure you don't lose." Vornak said.

"As your lordship pleases." Dredmar bowed down to the Alpha.

"Great! Once my mission is complete, it will be time to show myself to the world and join this war. I can't afford to sit back because if he joins, you all will be wiped out." Vornak said.

"If who joins?" Varian asked.

"Jake Lucas! The chosen one who doesn't know that he is chosen yet." Vornak replied with a smirk. "So I will need to keep it that way. Time to reveal to the humans, the full wrath of an Alpha!" He said as his red eyes glowed with more intensity while the others had their eyes glowing with different colours.

{A/N}

We have hit a milestone of 400 chapters guys! And I think I deserve something big for getting this far 😊 right? Guys! It isn't easy and so, I'm going to be taking a short break guys in order to calmly stockpile and write the war.

Please bear with me, I will be resuming uploads on the 1st of May... In the meantime, if you enjoy this book, kindly check out my other series titled Magus Supremacy... I'm sure you would love it.