

MY SLAYER SYSTEM: RISE TO SUPREMACY

Chapter 401: see that god!

The big four were currently in a meeting trying to discuss a way forward and possible strategies against the werewolves when a messenger interrupted them by bringing a tab for Bane to look at.

"The...the werewolves, they are finally making their moves. And you are not gonna like what I'm seeing here right now." Bane said as silence befell the room immediately.

"Wait, what?!" Jake asked in shock as he stared at the slight sweat that Bane broke out in.

"Can't believe that instead of us making the first strike, the werewolves decided to strike us first. That's surprisingly fast." Humfree chuckled as he stroke his white beard.

"Any notable werewolves amongst them?" Rex asked.

"That's why I'm shocked. The leader of the omega werewolves is part of the attack." Bane replied as he frantically tapped different buttons on the tab trying to hack into the city which was under attack, trying to hack their security feeds.

"You mean Dredmar?" Rivock asked in surprise.

"Yeah." Bane replied not even looking up from the tab.

"Dredmar? Who is that?" Jake asked with a raised eyebrow.

"Just as the werewolves have the Alpha, the leader of them all, the three Beta werewolves; the second in commands, we also have the omega werewolves, delta, runts and so on.

Each of these tiers ranging from the omega werewolves, to the delta and so on have their group leaders and for the omega werewolves, it's Dredmar." Humfree replied.

'So this Dredmar guy is the strongest omega werewolf there is, huh?!' Jake wondered inwardly.

"But how come we never heard of him during the first war? There was nothing on that werewolf or even a record of you all fighting against it." Jake muttered with a raised eyebrow.

"A lot of things were not made public. Each of us fought different opponents at different intervals. The only thing that was made public was our combined efforts against the beta werewolf." Rex replied.

"So, this Dredmar, how strong is he?" Jake asked.

"Are you here to keep asking silly questions or do you want to suggest something?!" Rivoock asked angrily.

"Keep that tone down." Jake growled slightly as he glared at Rivoock. "That anger, it should be me feeling that. None of you, deemed it necessary to inform me about all these new guys!"

"That's because they were nothing to worry about." Bane shrugged while his eyes were still fixated on the tab in his hands. "Our main focus are on the Beta werewolves and the Alpha. After that, the rest will naturally crumble."

"They are nothing to worry about, and so are you all to the Alpha initially. But look at you all, you managed to gather strength, powers and even support.

Do you think you are now tiny flies to the Alpha? Or why do you think he is acting out now?" Jake asked.

"That's none of my business. For now, this is." Bane said as he swiped his hand on the tab and a holographic display appeared in front of them all.

"What's this?" Jake asked with a raised eyebrow.

"A security footage from the city of Fenna." Bane replied and then, they could see pure chaos.

The city had tall buildings and so many Aeroglides running around. It was beautiful but now, destruction reigned supreme.

Five hundred omega werewolves were seen rampaging around. Tearing the humans down one by one while their buildings crumbled.

Some adventurers had even arrived to help. They were at the B rank but even with them, they couldn't do much as for every single werewolf that falls, two adventurers also meet their doom.

That was how strong the omega werewolves were. At the far back, a single human could be seen. His arms crossed while at the end of his hands were blackened claws.

His blonde hair fluttered in the wind as a small smile crept on his face looking at the destruction. His fierce yellow eyes glowing with intent while watching the desperation of the adventurers as they tried to combat the werewolves.

"We... we need the strength of at least A rank adventurers!" One of the men shouted as he ducked in time trying to avoid a claw swing.

When from below a knee kick to his abdomen by a werewolf sent his body flying into a building while destroying part of it with blood spraying from his mouth.

"Damn it! They can't handle these much enemies." Jake said as he watched the holographic display tensely, his hands tightly clenched while his blood boiled in anger.

"That's right, we need to help." Humfree added.

"Bane, how far is that Fenna city from here?" Rex asked, his crimson hair slowly floating above his shoulders as he stared at the destruction going on.

"About thirty minutes, give or take." Bane replied as he typed in some things down.

"Good! I will be borrowing one of your glides. Input the coordinates before I get to your garage." Rex said as he stood up, his arms bulging by how tense he was clenching his hands.

"Wait, don't you need backup?" Jake asked.

"I'm all the backup I need. I will destroy all of them together and prove to the world and those filthy beasts that the humans are not weak." Rex said as he strode towards the door. "Also, I think it's the perfect time for payback." He said, his hand crept up to the scar on his face and then he exited the room.

"Wait, what did he mean by payback?" Jake asked in confusion.

"Remember when I said different people fought different werewolves during the first war? Well, Rex fought Dredmar and that was where he got that scar from." Humfree replied.

"Ohh! I guess it's time for payback indeed." Jake smirked.

"I need to head back to my city now. If the werewolves can sneak into your city and get to Fenna, then they aren't small fries again. I need to go and prepare." Rivock said as he stood up and exited the room.

"What are you going to do Jake?" Bane asked as his fingers hovered over the tablet. His eyes fixated on Jake. "Want to prepare for your planet conquest?"

"Actually, I have a task to complete that I have been putting off for a while now." Jake said as he stood up and then glanced at a still sitting Humfree. "Let's go see that god."

Chapter 402: The celestial being!

"Are you sure about this?" Humfree asked as he and Jake were seen in an undisclosed location. A small cave out front with trees and leaves moving as if they were alive.

Twisting and turning like snakes, the ground shook every once in a while. Behind the cave, some mountains lay and these mountains had aerial beasts roaming around it.

And despite the fact that the two humans had stepped foot here, the beasts didn't seem to be attacking or even paying any attention to them as they focused solely on circulating around the mountains.

"Yeah, I'm very sure. I have so many unanswered questions and the god has to answer them. Also, I have been wanting to do this for long but different things always pops up that distracts me. But now," Jake said, his hands tightly clenched as he stared at the cave a few metres away from him.

"Now, is the right time for me to get my answers."

Humfree just sighed and began walking forward. "Come on, you won't get your answers while standing there."

And with that, two two men walked towards the cave that had a behemoth stone blocking the entrance. But as they stood there, the stone moved away from the entrance letting them both in.

Immediately Jake stepped through, a chill crawled around his skin as he looked at the cave in front of him.

The cave was actually wide and big enough to fit about a hundred people in it. Several benches scattered around the room all curved like a letter U towards the front.

In front of the benches, a glowing white crystal was seen floating. It's glow so radiant that it would make most people close their eyes.

But Grey's gaze was fixed on it. His hands tightly clenched as he grinded his teeth back and forth.

"Come on." Humfree said as he stepped forward with Jake following behind him.

In a few seconds, they stood mere inches away from the crystal with Humfree bowing down towards it while Jake stood there rooted.

His gaze still on the crystal as he refused to bow.

"Jake, bow." Humfree whispered but Jake stood rooted in his spot not even bulging an inch.

"Jake Lucas!" The crystal spoke directly into Jake and Humfree's mind.

The voice itself was somewhat soothing, tranquil, smooth and feminine like which was unlike the voice Humfree was used to.

"I can feel your pure anger. It moves around this whole cave like a thick cloud trying to suffocate the room." The crystal said again.

"If you know that I'm angry, you should know why I am angry." Jake said, his hands tightly clenched to the extent his knuckles turned white.

"I know, and I'm sorry."

"Sorry? You are sorry?" Jake barked loudly. Pure anger seething from him as his nails dug deep in his palm. "Vynn died, you could have prevented it. Cindy died, you could have prevented it.

My parents died, you could have prevented it. Humanity was on the brink of going extinct, so many people died and you could have prevented it but you chose not to. Why?!"

SILENCE!

"What? You are not going to answer me now? Don't you dare go quiet on me." Jake roared in anger.

"I'm not being quite. Just trying to view the possible way of explaining to you so you can understand." The crystal said with a sigh which made it feel almost human like.

"Explain to me however you see fit. I will understand." Jake said as he crossed his arms, his foot tapping against the ground rapidly.

"I lived with humans. Before they became this advanced, I was with them. Lived with them, ate with them, and acted human so I could understand them, their pains, happiness and sorrows. Why is that? Because I was supposed to be their protector! Their guardian!" The crystal said, its voice slightly somber.

"I did everything in my possible power to protect them from the threat I saw. Contrary to what you think, I'm not a war god. I don't have overwhelming powers to destroy galaxies.

But what I do have is vision. I could see the past, present and future and with that, I saw it. The threat of the werewolves. It was inevitable no matter how much I tried to steer the humans away from it. Nothing was possible."

"What? So you just gave up? Became a lump of crystal to be oozing out wisdom and knowledge? Bull shit!" Jake shouted in anger, his eyes glowing slightly blue.

"No! I wasn't always like this. I had features. A body, limbs, head, eyes, mouth and so on. But after my fight with him, I lost it all. There was nothing I could do and so, I tried my best to seal him and in the process, I got reduced to this."

"Him? Who's the him?" Jake asked with a raised eyebrow.

"I wish I can answer that but currently, you won't be able to. Just know that I'm not the only god there is. There are as many gods as there are creatures and humans. And point of correction, we aren't gods. We are called celestials."

"I don't freaking care! Call yourselves gods, demons, celestials or whatever! I don't give a fuck! All I want to know is how can I stop this damned war? How can the humans win this war?" Jake asked when another round of silence occurred again.

"Over the years, I have searched the fifteen million possibilities of this war to see if the humans could win. But there was none, out of the fifteen million possibilities, the humans lost terribly especially since he later got involved."

"Wait! So you mean we are going to lose?" Humfree asked in shock as he shot up from his kneeling position.

"Yes! The humans are going to lose this war... at least, in the fifteen million possible futures I saw. But over the years, when I became this... a lump of crystal, I saw another possible future. Just one that got added to the fifteen million possible futures.

In that possibility, the humans won and that was because of you. Jake Lucas!"

"Wait a freaking moment! What the hell do you mean? Out of fifteen million possible outcomes, we lost all of them and only won one? And that was because of me? I...I don't get it." Jake said, his hands on his silky black hair.

"Can you kindly enlighten us? I'm tremendously confused right now." Humfree said.

"Jake, you are going to be the savior of the world because of what you have...tha...the..." the crystal was now heard stuttering. "Da... damn it! He...he...he is going to rise now!"

"Wait, rise? Who's rising?!" Jake asked in shock.

"Death!" The crystal said, the whole cave trembling.

Chapter 403: Test that theory out!

"I'm going to f*ck him up badly!" Rex cursed as the Aeroglide he was in was speeding towards Fenna city at tremendous speed.

Bang!

The sound barrier shattered as the glide doubled in speed and was rocketing towards the city while Rex's hands were tightly clenched until...

The glide slowed down to reveal the crumbled down city. Destroyed buildings, broken houses, dead bodies scattered around.

The five hundred omega werewolves still rampaging around while the handful of adventurers remaining were still holding their own. Although, they were still injured but they stood their ground.

The buildings around that were crumbled had fire blaring around it, smoke rising to the sky as Rex's glide got closer.

"So this is where all the fun is happening." He muttered as the glide's back door opened up and then, with a leap to the extent his feet sent the glide flying and crashing into a building causing a massive explosion.

Rex landed a few feet away from the struggling adventurers. His landing created a crater beneath his feet as he slowly rose up to see all attention turned towards him.

"Is...isn't...isn't that Rex Slade?" One of the adventurer's said through ragged breath when a werewolf swung its claws smashing into the adventurer's face and sending his body into a building with his head pulverized.

"Alright, you have had your fun." Rex's boomed loudly across the whole area which caused Dreadmar that was still standing a few metres away to raise an eyebrow at the newcomer.

'Why does that voice sound so familiar?' Dreadmar thought not until he began feeling it.

Energy spilling out in the area, the air trembling by this. Even glass windows in some of the glides around shattered as Rex walked forward.

One step at a time and seeing this, the remaining adventurers stepped away clearing a path for the world leader.

"Oh you all are so cooked right now." An adventurer croaked out as he held his side with his hands while spitting out some speck of blood.

"Usually, I would have left the protector of this city being Bane to deal with this. But someone has kinda pissed me off so..." Rex smirked as in the sky some weird noises were heard and then...

Swords made from yellow energy were seen in the sky. About a thousand of the swords were hovering in the sky covering so many metres and making the remaining adventurers gulp.

"Ar... are those Qi swords?"

"I knew that the world leaders had tremendous power, but this? This... this is beyond strong." An adventurer gulped.

"More like on the borderlines of terrifying."

"Earth is kinda closed for you all today. But you know what else is not closed? The afterlife!" Rex said as he snapped his fingers and then...

BOOM!

The city trembled as the swords struck down with terrifying force. Slicing through werewolves like hot knife cutting through butter.

An omega werewolf jumped up, its claws smashing against a sword shattering it to bits when another one impaled it from behind.

Then another one to the head, and finally, to the chest. The swords rained havoc even more than what the werewolves did.

Blood, craters, dead bodies on the enemy side flowed endlessly just with one move. No matter how hard the werewolves wanted to combat against the Qi swords, it still destroyed them.

Some of them tried to run away but at the end of the road, Rex would be seen standing in front of them with a couple Qi spears impaling them.

Rex made sure to not let any single werewolves live as in just a single minute of making an appearance, the five hundred werewolves were all dead.

"Now I finally recognize you." A voice boomed from far away, a human with blonde hair finally began walking forward.

He would have looked quite normal if it wasn't for his blackened claws that was the same as the werewolves that attacked.

VROOM!

Mechanical sounds were heard rushing down from above which caused everybody to look up and see several drones filing the streets while above them, an Aeroglide was seen hovering above the street.

Descending down, were two individuals. One with a camera in his hand, the other was a female who held a microphone in the other as she quickly turned towards the camera in front of her which was rolling live.

"As we can see, the second war is in full swing with the werewolves making their first move. And right here, we have Rex Slade who came out on his own to stop their advances." Erin commented down the camera which got the online community commenting.

"Hold on a sec! Aren't those about hundreds of werewolves?"

"Three hundred if I'm not mistaken, wait! It might be more than that."

"How did Rex manage to eliminate them on his own?"

"Should we be surprised? After all, he is a world leader."

"Yeah. But this many werewolves? Damn!"

"As we can see," Erin continued ignoring the comments pouring down in the community. "Rex Slade is about to clash with the infamous omega werewolves ruler! Dredmar!"

"Dredmar? Who the hell is he?"

"Uhm...are you deaf? Didn't you hear Erin saying he was the leader of the omega werewolves?"

"I heard that, but compared to the Beta werewolves, have we ever heard of this guy called Dredmar before?"

"There's always a first time for everything."

"I was trying so hard to recall who you are and I finally did. The strongest big three; Rex Slade." Dredmar said, a smirk crept on his face as he saw Rex glaring at him.

"You know, for the strongest world leader, you sure did get beat up by me a lot. Oh?! I also left a farewell gift on you, didn't I? Oh right! There it is on your face." Dredmar chuckled.

"And that's why I'm here, to return the favour." Rex said, a hundred Qi swords appeared around him, their tips pointed towards the omega werewolf.

"Are those supposed to scare me? Just because you eliminated those weaklings with these, don't expect it will work on me!" Dredmar growled loudly as his fangs protruded from his mouth slightly.

"Let's test that theory out." Rex said and he snapped his fingers sending the Qi swords flying at immense speed towards the omega werewolf.

Chapter 404: All that for a trickle of blood?!

Rex Slade! The top dog amongst the world leaders and the most feared names amongst the werewolves was currently in Fenna city which was located in Bane's country.

The big three all had different countries where they control and no one is allowed to interfere in anybody's control. The Fang hunters' country and base was at Aurora city.

The reason Rex was interfering in this fight and not just let Bane handle it was because of the werewolf that struck and that was Dredmar; the one werewolf Rex has vendetta against and this fight was going to determine what would happen next.

As the whole world were currently tuned in including Bane and Rivock as they watched from Erin's Livestream the fight that was about to occur.

"And that's why I'm here, to return the favour." Rex said, a hundred Qi swords appeared around him, their tips pointed towards the omega werewolf.

"Are those supposed to scare me? Just because you eliminated those weaklings with these, don't expect it will work on me!" Dredmar growled loudly as his fangs protruded from his mouth slightly.

"Let's test that theory out." Rex said and he snapped his fingers sending the Qi swords flying at immense speed towards the omega werewolf.

BOOM!

A thunderous clap was heard as Dredmar swung his hands together releasing a reverberating shockwave that destroyed the Qi swords before even getting to him.

"To deal with you, I don't even need to transform!" Dredmar roared as with a single push of his feet, the ground cracked as he was heading towards Rex.

"I need to thank you for destroying those swords as I just got a reason to chop your furry head off with my own hands!" Rex exploded from his position causing the ground to shatter beneath his feet as a deep crater was formed.

BANG!

A resounding bang that blew shockwaves around the streets, the drones in the air rattled tremendously, windows on the still standing buildings shattered immediately as the ground for several metres on end broke as debris and part of the ground was kicked up.

Why was that? It was due to the collision of Rex's knuckles against Dredmar's knuckles and that was what caused this level of mass destruction.

"Huh? Are we even in strength?" Dredmar raised an eyebrow as they still stood still when Rex smirked.

Dredmar's hands recoiled back so hard that his body went flying as it smashed into a building razing it to the ground immediately.

"Wrong, I'm much more stronger than you." Rex smirked as he saw Dredmar standing up from the ground while stepping forward with his mangled hand.

"Impressive! You have surely grown stronger than when we fought last." Dredmar commented as his hands bulged slightly, the mangled hand now healing back up.

From his shoulders downwards, they became furry as his claws elongated and his yellow eyes sharpened.

"Then I just have to boost my strength more!" Dredmar roared as he pushed off from where he stood throwing the debris far back away from him as he rocketed towards Rex.

Dredmar got to Rex in a split second as he swung his furry claws forward with a loud bang but noticed that it was unable to hit Rex as it got frozen in the air and no matter how hard he pushed, it was unable to bulge.

"You know," Rex said as he grabbed his shirt with one hand and tore it off. "Being the creator of Qi sure comes with its own perks. And one of which is, the privilege of coming up with different skills!" He strained the last part as his Qi reinforced fist slammed into Dredmar's jaws.

A loud terrifying bang resounded in the air as Dredmar was sent flying again. His body crashing on the ground, tumbling and causing small craters where his body landed until he dug his claws deep into the ground coming to a skidding halt.

"Huh?! You are quite durable for you not to be bleeding right now." Rex muttered.

"Keh! Kek!" Dredmar chuckled as he slowly rose up.

Tchk!

He spit out blood as he turned towards Rex his blackened claws now glowing fierce yellow while his eyes radiated with more energy.

His normal, human feet began changing shape and slowly, talons appearing instead and then, with another fresh burst of speed that an innocent small building off to the side crumbled when the shockwave from the dash destroyed it.

Before Rex could blink, Dredmar swung his hand forward with a loud bang and the forcefield that restricted his punch earlier shattered like fragile glass as the werewolf's punch smashed into Rex, lifting him up from his feet and swinging him away like a rag doll.

"Woah! Are we watching the same thing?!" Erin screamed down her camera. "The untouchable Rex Slade, that no one could even land a single hit on just got flung like a rag doll by an ordinary omega werewolf!"

Hearing the term 'ordinary', Dredmar's head snapped towards Erin. His eyes glowing bright yellow as he tried to take a step towards her direction which made her gulp slightly until...

Dredmar felt his feet restricted and on looking down, he could see a Qi whip surrounding his feet and by the next second, he was lifted off the ground and slammed back down with so much force that a deep crater formed beneath his body.

A mouthful of blood sprayed out from him, as dust and debris filled his nose and that was not enough.

With the whip still wrapped around Dredmar's feet, he was lifted up and slammed back into the ground forming another deeper crater with shockwaves spreading around fiercely.

Rex was about to do it the third time when Dredmar quickly spun around, his claws smashing against the whip causing it to shatter before he leapt backwards in time to catch two Qi arrows flying towards his face.

Clenching his hands on it, they shattered as he saw Rex standing with a trickle of blood down his mouth.

"What? All that for just a trickle of blood? Oh how weak you have grown!" Rex smirked as a yellow light was appearing in his hand and then, a long Qi sword appeared which he pointed forward.

"For spilling my blood, I will take your life!" Dredmar growled loudly as his body began changing shape.

Growing in size with fur covering his every body until he stood around 7ft tall, his claws gleaming slightly as he put a little pressure on his feet crushing the ground beneath him and then...

"Round two, fight!" Rex smirked as he dashed forward and so did Dredmar.

Chapter 405: The chosen one!

Jake was still at the cave where he was speaking with the celestial whom Humfree said always informed him of almost everything.

Throughout the conversation, the celestial had already dropped down different bombs to the men in front of it. One of them being that there were more celestials in the world, and the lump of crystal once had features.

And it turned into a crystal while sealing 'Him'. Oh! It also dropped the fact that out of fifteen and one million possible outcomes, the humans only won one in the war and it was all because of Jake.

The biggest one yet was what the celestial said about Jake...

"Jake, you are going to be the savior of the world because of what you have...tha...the..." the crystal was now heard stuttering. "Da... damn it! He...he...he is going to rise now!"

"Wait, rise? Who's rising?!" Jake asked in shock.

"Death!" The crystal said, the whole cave trembling.

"Death?!" Jake asked, his heart thumping loudly. "Wh... what do you mean?"

"I just unknowingly glimpsed into a future where the humans won and I must say, Jake you are in a hell lot of trouble." The celestial said.

"Can you kindly stop speaking in riddles and come clean?" Humfree asked in a slight panic.

"You want to know who I sealed? I can't tell you much just that he is also a celestial! A dangerous one at that that killed countless celestials, destroyed worlds, and almost restarted the universe.

It took the power of the literal gods to try and seal him but I was the last component they needed and so I sacrificed myself. Bu...but... in my vision, he will arise again and once he does,"

"No one would survive. This will be worse than the war against the werewolves." Jake mumbled loud enough for the others to hear him as his face was now drenched in sweat.

'Wait! Is this the threat the Alpha was preparing for? Is that why he wanted the humans and most especially the big three to grow strong enough? So once he feasts on them, it will grow strong enough to challenge this celestial.' Jake thought inwardly.

"Wh... what is the way forward now?" Humfree stuttered. "How... how do we prevent this?"

"Did you know why I said out of the fifteen and one million possible outcomes I saw that the humans only won one?" The celestial asked.

"No." Humfree replied.

"And that's because of him. In all the outcomes I saw, I saw him come back and wipe out the universe in anger but in the one outcome I saw, the humans won the war against the werewolves but... you lost Jake." The celestial said.

"Lo...lost? What did I lose?" Jake asked.

"I can't say. All I want to tell you is, grow stronger. Honestly, at your current strength, you might lose against the Alpha werewolf." The celestial replied.

"Why can't you tell me what I lost? And how much stronger do you want me to grow damn it! The system keeps slowing me down." Jake retorted, his hands tightly clenched in frustration.

"The reason I can't say is because of the restrictions placed on my by the celestial realm. I have already told you all I can and about how strong you need to grow..." the celestial said and a round of another silence descended in the cave.

"You need to be strong on the universal level. Grow stronger than the celestials, than the literal gods who are the leaders of all celestials. Grow so strong that you are placed at the top of the world, universe and planet. Only then, will you be able to defeat him."

"Bu... that might take forever to do! The system is slowing me down damn it!" Jake shouted in anger.

SILENCE!

"Do you think that the system was your source of powers?" The celestial asked.

"Wait, what is all these system talk about?" Humfree asked as he raised a confused eyebrow.

Ignoring his questions, Jake asked. "What do you mean that the system is not my source of powers?"

"Kek!" The celestial laughed. "Yes, the system played a part in growing your strength, majority of them all came from inside you. Jake, you were chosen, you had and still have tremendous powers inside you waiting to be unleashed. The system was just a way to help you control and use those powers but you are the one restricting yourself."

"If I had all these powers all along, do you think I will still be like this? Do you think I will let my parents die? Let Vynn die? Cindy, the remaining humanity.

What bull shit are you serving me?!" Jake roared, his Qi seething out causing the benches scattered around to fly around.

"Indeed, it will sound like bullshit now. But trust me when I say, you are the key. The key to stopping this war, the key to stopping him and the key to protecting the universe.

Although, you are also the key to destroying the world. Do you know why that celestial is powerful? I will let you discover that one yourself later on. Just grow powerful."

"Trust? You want me to trust you? For all I know, all what you have just said could be made up damn it! You are freaking floating crystal no bigger than a beast crystal!" Jake shouted in anger.

"You can believe me if you want, or you can chose not to. I have said all I wanted to say." The crystal said as its glow was now fading slowly until...

"Wait!" Humfree called out. "Why did you say I should hand over the academy to Jake whenever he asked for it?"

"Why did I allow you listen to all our conversations when I could have just spoken to Jake directly? It's because he is the chosen one and currently, you have to do everything in your power to protect him if you want to have any chance of winning this war." The celestial said and then, the light surrounding the crystal dulled down.

"Like hell I need protection you damned, useless and annoying crystal!" Jake roared in anger, his eyes glowing bright blue.

Chapter 406: Rex the monster!

In the streets of Fenna, a city in Bane's country, a devastating clash occurred between Rex and Dredmar who is the leader and strongest omega werewolf in the werewolf army.

They had been going at it for long now and their clash proved to be destructive. Buildings crumbled down, craters appeared, shockwaves spread out and even dead bodies were flung aside.

"What? All that for just a trickle of blood? Oh how weak you have grown!" Rex smirked as a yellow light was appearing in his hand and then, a long Qi sword appeared which he pointed forward.

"For spilling my blood, I will take your life!" Dredmar growled loudly as his body began changing shape.

Growing in size with fur covering his every body until he stood around 7ft tall, his claws gleaming slightly as he put a little pressure on his feet crushing the ground beneath him and then...

"Round two, fight!" Rex smirked as he dashed forward and so did Dredmar.

In a flash, they met in the center. Dredmar swung his furry arm that caused a loud bang to be heard while Rex swung his Qi sword forward with the two clashing hard causing a mini shockwave to erupt out.

Pushing away, they both dashed back and then bolted back in at tremendous speed. Swinging his Qi sword from the side towards the omega werewolf, it swirled around and knocked the sword back.

That was when two Qi spears launched forward towards Dredmar from the side which he knocked back with a clap of his hands releasing a mini shockwave.

Bang!

Rex infused his hand with Qi and swung it forward causing it to smash into Dredmar and send him skidding back with a throbbing pain.

"You thought you are currently battling with the previous Rex, but you are wrong." Rex said as he snapped his fingers unleashing a dozen Qi swords from above.

Bending his feet, Dredmar jumped up towards the Qi swords and destroyed them with a single swing of his claws but Rex managed to appear above him.

"This is not like the old!" Rex roared as he swung his hip sideways unleashing a devastating round house kick towards the omega werewolf's head sending it crashing back to the ground with full force.

Just as Dredmar smashed into the ground with a mouthful of blood. He tried to stand up when he saw five hundred Qi swords hovering above him each gleaming with tremendous amount of power.

'How much Qi does this monster have? And people call us monsters. If we are monsters, what should Rex be called?' Dredmar thought in horror.

"I currently don't have beef with you, it's your good for nothing Alpha I want!" Rex said as he snapped his fingers sending the Qi swords flying at tremendous speed towards Dredmar.

"Good...good for nothing Alpha? Th... that does it!" Dredmar roared as his eyes glowed bright yellow, his hands trembling slightly.

"AWOOOOOH!" Dredmar howled towards the Qi swords heading towards him shattering about a hundred of them.

And then...

Bang!

He bolted around the streets, avoiding the Qi swords that crashed into more buildings, half destroyed buildings and the streets. But he managed to avoid each and every one of the swords with agile and tremendous speed.

With a burst of speed, he leapt forward towards Rex and swung its claws forward but...

Clang!

The claws clashed against something like metal. But looking closely, Dredmar could see visual Qi surrounding Rex's hands forming a strong encasing around it.

Boom!

Shockwaves roared around as Rex swung his legs from the side aiming for a round house kick but his leg met with Dredmar's as he had swung his own leg in time so as to intercept the kick.

Another round of hot air spread out as Dredmar's feet throbbed with immense pain which caused him to jump back from Rex who smirked as he dropped his leg back.

'Ho...how is this possible? We werewolves are supposed to have superior strength, speed, agility and even durability with humans. Which I had proved when I fought against Rex a few years ago.

So how... how can he match and even surpass me in those areas? I have been growing my strength too, I have grown stronger over the years so why? Why and how is this possible?!' Dredmar screamed in his head as he clenched his hands tightly in anger.

"I'm sure you must be wondering why I'm suddenly stronger than you. Well unlike you that must have stayed satisfied with your strength and position over the years, I strived, grew stronger to keep on staying at the top of the world!" Rex said as his muscles were now bulging.

"Damn you! F*ck you! I will kill you and when I'm done with you, I will eat your corpse so I can become much stronger! Damn you!" Dredmar howled as he dashed forward with tremendous speed that the air got slightly distorted, the ground where he stood before cracked so badly the fissures ran for several metres.

To the left, right, front and up, Dredmar kept running around the place. The drones were unable to pick where he was with the way he was blurring around the place.

Only blurs, cracked grounds and afterimages were left in his wake until he suddenly appeared behind Rex and he swung his claws forward causing the air and sound barrier to get broken.

But unexpectedly, Rex spun around in time. Qi surrounding his hand with so much power that the air was distorting. In a second, fiery yellow Qi erupted in his hand which he clenched and swung forward towards Dredmar who had his eyes widened.

'Ho...how did he know where I'm going to attack from?' he thought until...

Boom!

Rex's knuckles crashed into Dredmar's abdomen. A tremendous amount of pain running through his body as the air, blood and spit get knocked out of his mouth.

Tchk! He coughed out a mouthful of blood as like a ragdoll, his body went flying into a building crumbling it down to the ground while Dredmar's body went through the building and came out the other end.

With a single leap, Rex jumped up and crossed over the building and then landed back where Dredmar was laying unconscious. Drones were sent forward towards where the world leader was and the whole world could see the strongest omega werewolf sprawled on the ground unconscious.

Lifting his hand up, something was beginning to form in the sky. A huge fist of Qi while at the edge of it, a long thin yellow blade appeared around the knuckles.

The fist was as big as a small car while the blade was as long as a pole sticking out of the fist's knuckles.

"I want you to rest easy knowing that your Alpha would be joining you soon!" Rex said as he swung his hand down sending the fist crashing down with tremendous speed and then...

Boom!

It crashed into Dredmar. A gaping hole in his stomach, his body reverted back to its human shape, blood gushing from his mouth and stomach.

The ground beneath his body was destroyed as a huge crater formed beneath him. Whatever buildings were left in a ten metres radius shattered down and got reduced to mere rubbles leaving the world stunned.

Chapter 407: Come out of the shadows!

"Uh...uhm... I'm... I'm too stunned to even comment!" Erin screamed down the camera as she watched what the drones were displaying through her glasses.

Her glasses were no ordinary ones. It was linked with their livestreaming system which allowed her to watch what the drones or cameras displayed, the comments from the online community and so on.

"We knew that Rex Slade was strong, probably the strongest world leader there is. But this...this... this is freaking insane! The whole Fenna street have been destroyed right now.

I'm sure that this clash eliminated half of the city and this is just a clash with the strongest omega werewolf there is." Erin said.

And the online community that had paused commenting to watch what they were watching even though it was quite difficult due to the high level speeds between the two opponents.

"Damnn! With this amount of strength, the Alpha werewolf is done for."

"Not only the Alpha, the whole werewolves are doomed."

"Funny enough how this is just the strength of one of the world leaders and we got three more."

"No arguments, but the werewolves are indeed cooked."

"Honestly, we have literally won this war already because what did Rex just do? Not only did he obliterate five hundred omega werewolves in one strike, he also finished off their most strongest omega werewolf."

"Funny enough how he didn't even use the third stage of Qi. He mostly used the first and second stages and he still dominated."

"Dude didn't even use a weapon damn it! We have high level weapons in the world, but he didn't even use one and only used his Qi yet he dominated."

"That is not even my concern. Look at the level of destruction here. Imagine this is just the fight against omega werewolves. Now Imagine how the other fights would go especially against the Alpha."

"I hear ya dude. The clash against the Alpha might obliterate a whole planet because what is this! Fenna city has been reduced to ruins and rubbles."

"I wonder how Bane would react now. We all know that Fenna city is part of his country and with Bane destroying it, it might spark bad blood between them."

"Nah... I don't think Bane would react that badly. After all, it's for the greater good of humanity."

"True. But I'm so excited... the werewolf slayer killed a Beta werewolf, Rex killed Dredmar and obliterated five hundred werewolves, the Fang hunters which is Jake's guild killed hundred of werewolves when they attacked. Isn't this a sign that we are going to win this war? It feels like the werewolves are no longer that much of a trouble."

"Let's see how things go."

"Hmm. So this is Rex Slade's strength huh?!" Jake who had already left the cave where the celestial was, was now back at the fang hunters base just in time to catch Rex overwintering the omega werewolf.

"Jake!" Humfree called out as he was also in the room. "When do we start?"

"Get the team ready. We move out tomorrow! I guess it's time for me to make my move too. We can't win this war if I keep sitting here, let's go out and reclaim those planets the damned werewolves took from us." Jake declared with a smirk on his face.

"Dude, your dad is on fire!" Peter said as he clapped Alex on his back as they were both watching the live stream together. "Too bad that you turned out to be a weakling."

"Hey! I could literally slice your head off in an instant. Who the hell are you calling a weakling?! I'm literally stronger than you." Alex retorted back.

"Who says you are stronger?" Peter asked with a narrowed gaze.

"Jake. Otherwise tell me why he takes me on so many missions and quests and doesn't take you." Alex smirked.

"That's because he is saving me for the best." Peter replied.

"Yeah, keep dreaming." Alex scoffed.

Back at Fenna city, Rex just shrugged after seeing the destruction of the city and Dredmar's dead body. Then he turned away, scanned the streets and walked over to where his ripped off shirt lay.

'Damn it! I need to stop ripping my shirts off whenever I want to fight. I have lost count of beautiful shirts I have destroyed.' Rex sighed inwardly as he heard whirring sounds above him.

An Aeroglide descended from above and landed beside him as a single person stepped out.

"That was beautiful work out there, Dad." Raze said as he tossed a shirt towards Rex.

"Nice." Rex said as he caught the shirt and put it on while they walked towards the glide.

Before they stepped in, Rex's eyes glanced towards the drones in the air and smiled towards it before stepping into the glide along with Raze as it took off from the planet.

"Guys! We have just seen the power of a world leader, the power of Rex Slade and I know that the werewolves are trembling by now." Erin smirked at the camera and Druig took it as a signal to end the Livestream.

Meanwhile, at Lunar bastion, a few werewolves were seen in the room along with the Alpha and they had just finished watching the Livestream.

"Terrified?" Vornak asked, his voice deep and carried a guttural growl. "Tsk! The humans have really grown too arrogant huh?"

"What do you want to do now? Brother?" Varian asked, his blue eyes glowing with intensity. "Should we strike now? The humans have already grown big heads after winning two fights."

"It will soon be time for us to attack, after all, I managed to get this without them knowing." Vornak said as he lifted a single object; a dark ring that absorbed the light around them.

"What is that?" Ulric asked. "Is that so important that we had to sacrifice Dredmar?"

"You know you all are very special to me and so it saddens me that Dredmar is gone but know this, it's not in vain." Vornak said as his red eyes glowed with intensity as the room shook and reverberated with how he felt.

"The humans will pay soon enough and I think, it's time for me to come out of the shadows and act openly now." The Alpha smirked, his fangs on full display.

Chapter 408: Full on attack!

Two days after the Fenna incident, Jake and the core members were seen in the garage where their glides have been parked.

The guild had two different types of glides. The mini one for easy transportation that could transport five people in it and they could move around comfortably.

And then the glides that could fit two hundred people in it comfortably. Currently, the Fang hunters were seen in this garage that housed the huge Aeroglides.

Inside the garage, Jake, Peter, Alex, Kate, Wilfred, Paul, Sunny, Emily, Sophia and Geo were seen.

While inside five Aeroglides, a hundred B rank adventurers were waiting in each of the five Aeroglides.

"Remember guys!" Jake said as he turned to the core members. "The werewolves have a grip on ten human planets that are kind of close to earth. Our mission is to reclaim five of them in a week.

So for that, I will be dividing us here into five groups. Peter is to come with me, Alex and General Paul are to head to another planet, Emily and General Wilfred to another planet, Sophia and Geo to another planet, Kate and Sergeant Sunny to another planet.

With these set up, we can conquer five planets in a week. Is that understood?" Jake asked.

"One question though." Peter said as he stroke his chin. "You said the werewolves have ten planets under their grips and we are attacking just five? Besides, we can conquer these five planets in a day or two so why a week?"

"For now, yes. We will attack five planets and see how they react. If there's no aggression from them, we move on to the next five planets and then reclaim them." Jake replied. "Hence the reason I said a week."

"Finally! It has been long I fought." Alex said as he tensed his arms.

"Be careful guys! And most especially, destroy the werewolves. Good luck you all." Jake said as he stepped forward along with Peter as they stood in front of a glide.

The others also stood in front of a glide as they looked at it.

"Let's go!" Jake ordered and everybody stepped into their respective glides, the roof above the garage split open and they all zoomed out heading into different directions.

In Jake's glide, the hundred B rank adventurers were all sprawled in the lounge chatting and flexing their weapons.

While Jake and Peter were in a room, they both sat down with Jake cross legged in the middle of meditating while Peter just lay on the bed, his eyes darting around the roof above him.

"How strong do you think the Alpha werewolf is going to be?" Peter asked.

"I don't know." Jake replied while still meditating.

"If we encounter him on this our quest, do you think you can handle him?" Peter asked as he finally sat up which made Jake to snap his eyes open, inhale deeply, stand up and then looked back at Peter.

"I guess we will never know for now. Currently, I know that I'm not strong enough to fight against him. I would lose but I can't say the same thing if all the big three att..." Jake trailed off as his watch was beeping hard which caused him to tap it.

Humfree's face got displayed in the room and he had a worried expression on his face as if something bad happened.

"Jake, there's a problem." Humfree said which caused Peter to walk forward.

"Please give us a break! We just left Earth a few hours ago and now, trouble?" Peter asked as he facepalmed himself.

"Not my fault that the werewolves are more active!" Humfree snapped loudly.

"What is the problem?" Jake asked.

"You know I was worried that the werewolves hadn't made any movement after Rex's display? Well, I guess I was right to worry." Humfree replied.

"And what made you worry?" Peter asked with a raised eyebrow.

"All these days, it felt like the werewolves weren't really serious and were just testing the waters and our strength but now, they have gone full force!" Humfree shouted.

"Full force? Please go straight to the point." Jake said as his heart was now thumping loudly.

"They have gone ahead and struck each planets the big three own. That means Rex, Bane and Rivock are currently facing an attack and the numbers isn't small by any means.

Seven hundred werewolves on each planet. They have struck all the planets owned by the big three, even the independent guilds are not spared. This has become a large scaled war Jake!" Humfree shouted.

Hearing this, Jake's heart leapt several beats in a second. His eyes bulged slightly as his skin suddenly went a little pale.

"Wait a moment." Peter said with his hands held out. "There are fourty beast planets in space, the werewolves have a grip on ten which we are launching an attack against, the big three have a hold on ten, the Fang hunters have a grip on ten, and the remaining ten have been spread out.

So you are saying the werewolves are attacking all twenty beast planets owned by humans? With a force of seven hundred werewolves?!

How the hell is this possible? How can they have such a large amount of men with them? This is totally absurd! Wait, what about the Fang hunters? Are we under attack too?"

"That's the strangest thing. We are clear. The ten planets under our grip is intact, no attack, nothing. And hence the other world leaders have requested our help. Since we have a large number of guild members, they need our help and that's why I'm contacting Jake." Humfree replied.

"Crap!" Peter roared in anger. "Those cowards! How could they attack when we have left Earth? This is so annoying! More than half of the Fang hunters' core members are on their way to conquer the planets under the werewolves' grip so what do we do?" Peter asked.

"That's why I called Jake. What do you want to do?" Humfree asked as Jake looked to be in deep thought.

"How many people need our help?" Jake asked.

"Only Bane and Rex asked for help, Rivock said he doesn't needs us. Also, the Thunderbolt guild need our help too." Humfree replied.

"No surprise about Rivock there, he is a stubborn old man that hates me to the core. Anyway, I want you to do this..." Jake said as he smiled at Humfree.

"Send the Raven wing's guild out to help the thunderbolt guild. Send another three hundred men along with the Rave lord. That should be enough.

And for Bane and Rex, send Gray and his core members along with a hundred men over to Rex. For Bane, send Andrew and a hundred members from the iron fist guild. That should be enough right?" Jake asked and he saw a smile appear on Humfree's face.

"For a second there, I was worried that you would want to turn back around to help but I'm glad you made the right choice." Humfree said.

"Tsk! I need to grow my strength and level up more so I'm not backing down from this." Jake smirked and Humfree's holographic display disappeared.

Chapter 409: Quest Alert!

*Knock knock!

"Who's there?" Peter asked as he paced around the room in worry until the knock interrupted him while Jake was meditating again.

"Werewolf slayer sir, and sir Peter, we are already here." A voice said from outside.

"Here? Here where?" Peter asked.

"Our targeted planet." The voice said.

"Oh, right!" Peter said as he saw Jake slowly standing up and walked towards the door.

Swinging it open, he along with Peter walked towards the lounge where the hundred B rank adventurers were already getting their gears ready.

Seeing Jake and Peter walk forward, they stopped their chattering. That was how much they respected these two even though the duo were younger than them all.

"Can we see the feed from outside?" Jake asked and then a holographic display appeared in front of them all.

Velmora Prime was one of the ten human-inhabited planets now under werewolf control.

Once a prosperous world of lush forests, glistening lakes, and floating cities built into towering canopies, it had since descended into a haunting shadow of its former self.

The skies were perpetually overcast with dark purple clouds, crackling with occasional arcs of unnatural lightning—an effect of the corrupted moon that now orbited the planet, said to empower werewolf transformations.

The terrain was rugged and wild. Massive obsidian trees loom across the forests, their twisted roots spreading like veins through the soil.

Packs of feral werewolves roamed freely, patrolling around the place using the dense terrain and natural camouflage to ambush enemies.

Ancient ruins lay scattered across the wilderness—remnants of a civilization that once used tech to harmonize nature and machinery.

Far ahead, everybody could see a fortress that stood firmly on the planet.

The planet was forged from blackstone and obsidian, the fortress radiated a primal energy, as though the structure itself was alive—breathing, growling, waiting to pounce.

It was not merely a stronghold; it was a statement. A reminder that the beasts don't just conquer—they consume.

Spiked walls surrounded the citadel, each fang-like protrusion engraved with ancient lupine runes that pulse faintly under moonlight.

Massive bone totems—fashioned from the skeletons of slain beasts and fallen enemies—lined the perimeter, oozing dark aura and warding off unwanted intruders.

The main gate was shaped like the open maw of a wolf, with metallic fangs and crimson-glowing eyes that flickered with malevolent intelligence.

Inside, the fortress was a labyrinth of stone halls, blood-stained arenas, and dark chambers.

Howls echoed through its walls day and night. The air was thick with the scent of iron, sweat, and raw magic.

Defensive technological devices protected the citadel from aerial attacks and teleportation spells. Siege towers, beast cages, and watchtowers formed outer layers of defense, manned by feral scouts and elite berserkers.

Hidden tunnels ran beneath the fortress, some leading to escape routes—others to sacrificial chambers used in their dark rituals.

"So, that is where those beasts lay." Peter scoffed as he looked towards Jake who was staring at the display intensely. "Any problem? Jake."

Jake didn't respond as his gaze was fixated on something in front of him as if he was reading something intently and that was what he was doing as a system notification had flashed in front of him.

{Ding! Quest alert!}

{Quest details: Host has decided to reclaim all ten planets under the grip of the werewolves, this won't be really easy considering the amount of werewolves that might be in the fortress.

So the system has decided to give host a quest, to motivate him so he won't give up his quest.}

{Quest: Eliminate all werewolves in the fortress and each fortress attacked by host.

Rewards: ???}

'Wait! A question marked reward? The only times this has occurred is when I have been given a difficult quest. Is this going to be too difficult?

The only good thing about a question marked reward is that the rewards are always juicy. But the quest! I wonder how many were...

"Jake!" Peter called out again drawing Jake from his thoughts as he finally looked around the room. "You okay man? I have been calling for three minutes now."

"Oh! I'm sorry, I zoned out a bit." Jake replied as he glanced back at the holographic display. "Land this glide, let's conquer this planet!"

"Yayyy!" All hundred B rank adventurers in the room cheered at once as the glide slowly made a landing.

A ramp was let down as Jake and Peter walked forward, the remaining hundred adventurers descending down as they were hit by a slight chill, the chill was quite ominous but they shrugged it off.

"What should we do? Do we charge or what?" An adventurer asked.

"No, we wait. I'm sure they must have noticed us by now." Jake smiled as he saw the massive gates of the fortress open up.

Two humans walked out casually. Hands tucked in their pockets as they strode over as if they didn't have any care in the world.

Jake looked past them and could see werewolves lining the walls, they stood on the walls waiting for a signal. Then something caught Jake's eyes as he saw winged beasts moving around the fortress and didn't even attack the werewolves.

'Huh?! When did they have the ability to control beasts?!' he thought.

"Uhm Jake." Peter whispered as he the two men walking forward slowly. "I have been meaning to ask. Did you assign Jack on a mission? I haven't seen him around the base in a week now."

"Rivock had asked for him. You know he didn't sign a contract with the Fang hunters, so he is still Rivock's son and bound to be with him.

After Rex's display, Rivock was worried about his son so he asked Jack to come back to him." Jake replied in a whisper.

"Oh! That explains it." Peter muttered.

"Have the humans grown foolish over the years?" One of the two humans walking forward asked. "Why would they send a meagre force out to this planet?"

"What do you all want here? Don't you know that we are at war currently? Do you all have a death wish or something?" The other human asked.

"Are they trying to play good cop, bad cop? Because they are doing a bad job." Peter remarked with his arms crossed.

"The reason why we are here, is to reclaim what you all took from us." Jake replied as he stepped forward a bit, the two humans stood about a two metres away.

"What we took? Oh! You mean this planet?" One of the humans laughed.

"Oh how delusional the humans have become!" The other human facepalmed himself. "Do you know how many werewolves are in there? Not only werewolves, but dangerous beasts waiting to be unleashed."

"I don't care...I don't..." Jake said calmly as he held his hand out and a mask appeared in his hand.

Placing it on his face, he glared back at the humans in front of him. "I don't care how many werewolves are in there because I will slay them all. And that is the promise of the werewolf slayer!"

"Oh?! Fine then." One of the two humans said as his clothes began ripping off, his body growing twice the normal size, fur was seen appearing on his body as his eyes glowed bright yellow.

"Oh?! And omega werewolf." Peter commented as he swung his hands downwards, a pair of axe appeared in each of his hands from his sleeves.

"Fang hunters!" Jake called out as the huge gate in the distance opened up, hundreds of werewolves poured out, along with a hundred beasts. "Attack!"

Chapter 410: We got the werewolf slayer with us!

"Fang hunters!" Jake called out as the huge gate in the distance opened up, hundreds of werewolves poured out, along with a hundred beasts. "Attack!"

An immense battle cry shook the planet as Peter was seen in front of the Fang hunters, his two battle axe in each hands as he dashed forward and then...

Boom!

An immense battle exploded at once on the planet while Jake stood there rooted, his hands tucked in his pockets.

"Go." He muttered and shadows rippled beneath him.

Rising out of the shadows, were beasts. Thirty king tier beasts, two legendary tier beasts rose up.

The two legendary tier beasts were Kronks and Ice and immediately, they all bolted forward to join the battle.

A swing of his axe, Peter cut down a werewolf's limbs.

Another werewolf was about to slash at his back when a shield appeared in front of him absorbing the impact. Then an adventurer jumped up, his two swords cleaving the werewolf's head.

"Nice! Let's go!" Peter smirked as he dashed forward.

"Yeah!" The two adventurers said at once as they also bolted forward.

Two beasts were seen working together as they rained havoc around the place. A swing of its tail sent an adventurer skidding with blood dripping down his mouth.

Another beast was about to finish the adventurer up when an ice club appeared and whacked the beast away shattering its head in an instant.

In an instant, fifty ice shards shot out raining down on the other beasts killing and freezing them instantly.

"Ha! In your furry faces, we also got beasts on our side!" An adventurer roared out as a wolf zipped forward clashing against another wolf and they began blurring around the battlefield trying to take each other out.

Jake was still rooted in the spot he stood in earlier as he examined the battlefield intently, his hands tucked in his pockets.

"No more werewolves are coming out again, I brought a hundred men with me. Along with thirty beasts and two stronger beasts, this is quite meagre for this takeover.

The enemy has about three hundred werewolves and a hundred beasts." He muttered as he saw an adventurer get impaled by spikes from a beast.

Another one was smashed into the ground hard by a werewolf, an adventurer was also surrounded by two beasts at once and they were making quick work of him.

"No one notable here except those two that haven't made their moves yet." Jake muttered as he glanced at the two earlier humans that have fully transformed into omega werewolves but haven't moved yet.

"I guess it's time to join the fray then." Jake smirked as he bent his feet forward looking like a sprinter that was about to take off.

"System, activate Adrenaline rush!"

{Adrenaline rush activated}

Right on cue, Jake could feel an immense amount of energy wash over him as he directed half of his Qi to his feet to as to increase his speed and then...

Bang!

A thunderous bang rang out as he dashed towards the two werewolves, his body a blur as the ground he stood on earlier was destroyed causing a huge crater to appear on the ground.

A growl was heard on his left as Jake quickly pivoted to the side and whipped his leg forward smashing into a werewolf and killing it instantly.

'I guess I can help the others a little.' he thought as two swords appeared in his hands instantly and then...

Boom!

Jake exploded forward, his swords moving like a work of art as he cleaved down werewolves left and right. Two swings of each of his swords, sent slashes of Qi forward.

Before the werewolves could react, the slashes tore through them.

"System, activate Frenzy strike!"

{Frenzy strike activated}

Immediately after that notification flashed in front of his face, Jake became a beast as he dashed, bolted and darted around the place.

Moving like a beast as his movements became wild and unpredictable. Beasts and werewolves alike fell by his swords. Each steps left craters, deep fissures and dead bodies in his wake.

"Woah! And we also got the werewolf slayer on our side!" An adventurer cheered as he saw a blur wheeze past him.

"Show off!" Peter shouted as he ducked avoiding a swing and then his axe made quick work of the werewolf.

Spinning around, his leg smashed into a beast sending it flying and crashing into the huge gates in the distance with a loud bang.

Leaping up, Qi surrounded Peter like wind and then he landed in the midst of a dozen beast dispelling the Qi and throwing the beasts off their feet.

Before they could react, Peter had already moved from one beast to the next tearing gaping holes in their heads.

Meanwhile, Jake had already reduced the enemy to half their numbers in just a few minutes of joining the battle and all these without getting even a slight scratch until he finally got to the two werewolves guardians.

"Now I know you." One of the two werewolves said as he transformed his jaw into a human mouth for easy speech. "You are the one called the werewolf slayer, one of the new big four. That ridiculous mask, your speed and strength gave you away."

"Oh yeah?! I guess you are not meatheads as I thought." Jake smirked as he took a stance.

The two swords disappearing from view and instead, a single one appeared. This was Jake's legendary tier sword and he pointed it forward at the two werewolves in front of him.

"Shall we dance?" He asked.

One of the two werewolves was about to dash forward but Jake shook his head.

"This will get boring soon if only one of you come at me. Instead," Jake said as one of his legs moved back a little, his sword pointed forward and rested on his arm. "Both of you, come at me instead."

"Arrogant!" The speaking werewolf howled as they both dashed towards Jake.
