

Surprised Wife With Twins (Ivan and Jennifer) Chapter 126

The atmosphere in the study was completely different. This was a place for serious matters.

Although Ivan was still in his prime, he gave a more domineering vibe than an experienced old man.

Sitting by the desk, he looked at Jennifer with a powerful gaze.

Jennifer walked over.

Ivan handed her an agreement. "Have a look."

Jennifer took it and read through the content. Everything was written in a succinct and clear way.

"You can sign on it if there's no problem. One billion, as promised," Ivan said in a low voice.

Jennifer wasn't surprised at all. The renowned pharmacist Darcie was worth this price.

One billion was enough to show his trust in her.

"Give me the pen." Jennifer stretched out her hand to him.

Ivan handed her a pen.

Jennifer took it over and signed her name beside Ivan's exclusive stamp. The agreement was now officially valid.

"My mom doesn't like you," Ivan said bluntly, "How are you going to get close to her?"

"I have my own way."

Ivan asked no more questions. He chose to believe in her.

Seeing that he had stood up and left the study, Jennifer felt the weight on her mind. She didn't want to let him down, but this wouldn't be an easy job.

Ivan went to take a shower.

He thought of Spencer, who had been all over the news. He'd like to see what this guy was gonna do!

In Kelsington Bay.

Tonight, the dinner was substantial. Aubree didn't ask what the kids wanted to have for dinner. She hired a renowned chef directly to cook them the most exquisite food.

Pippa looked at the varieties of dishes on the table and was both surprised and delighted. It had been a long time since they had such a fancy meal here.

There were foie gras, abalone, shark fin, lobsters, caviar...

These dishes all together would cost hundreds of thousands of dollars!

Ma'am really adored the kids. Marry thought to herself.

The kids enjoyed the meal. They ate while chatted with smiles.

Pippa saw that Aubree had been smiling the whole time. She usually didn't allow any noises on the table.

But today, she was even encouraging the kids. "Eat more if you like the dishes. Just make yourself at home, kids."

"Thank you, grandma!"

"Grandma, you should eat too!"

The kids were really a delight.

Pippa couldn't help smiling. It had been a long time since she had seen Aubree so happy.

At night.

At a popular bar.

The dynamic music, ever-changing lights, tasteful wine and the young girls dancing on the poles...

All these indicated that the night had fallen.

Spencer was standing treat tonight. He invited all the former members from his club over, in a total of over thirty people

"Spencer! You've become popular!" A guy put his arm around Spencer's shoulders, held the wine in his hand and was dancing to the music. "You'll rise in the showbiz and become an A-lister soon!"

"What are you talking about? Spencer is already an A-lister now! Haven't you checked how many fans he has on Twitter? Millions! Fans mean money!"

"Spencer, the poster wasn't even photoshop-ed, was it? You're so handsome on it! I have looked at it many times!"

"Spencer, you and Georgia Clarke looked like a perfect match. Are you going to get her?"

"Spencer can get any woman he wants! Right?"

Spencer sat beside the bar counter and listened to the guys' talking. He smiled and gulp down the bottle of wine in his hand. "Everyone! Have fun tonight! I'm paying!"

"Spencer, look! Who is that?" someone asked in a low voice.

Spencer darted his eyes over and found a girl with blonde hair in crop top standing there, looking pitiful.