

Surprised Wife With Twins (Ivan and Jennifer) Chapter 188

"Jennifer! You are not allowed to go! Stop her for me!" Aubree stood up and scolded, rushing toward Jennifer. "You want to kill me! You didn't want to help me from the start!" She just wanted to kill her right now.

"Mom!" Ivan stopped his impulsive mother. "Calm down!"

How could Jennifer possibly go at such a time?

She bravely walked over. "Let me check."

"Stay away! Don't come any closer! You witch! "Aubree was like a trapped beast, her eyes were red, and she felt that there were thousands of ants crawling on her skin.

Jennifer, out of the benevolence of doctors, grabbed Aubree's arm to check. But Aubree pushed her away in fright!

"You want to hurt me again! Get away from me! Fuck off!"

Jennifer knocked on the sofa. Ivan let go of Aubree and instinctively came over. "Jennifer, are you okay?"

Jennifer stood up without paying attention to her pain.

Just then, Catherine rushed over and shouted, "Auntie! What happened? Your face... Your face... How did this happen?" She screamed in panic, making Aubree panic even more!

"Jennifer!" Catherine shouted while holding Aubree. "What's wrong with you? How did Auntie's face turn out like this? What the hell did you do to her? Why? Even if she doesn't like you, you can't hurt her like this!"

Catherine was angry. She kept on questioning Jennifer, "Did you put something in the medicine? Speak! Otherwise, why would this happen?"

Catharine was the only one shouting in the living room.

Jennifer's head was buzzing. She knew nothing.

Her gaze was fixed on Aubree's face. Jennifer could not accept what happened no matter how calm she was. Everyone was looking at her, waiting for her answer.

It was only when Catherine rushed over and grabbed Jennifer's wrist that Jennifer returned to her senses.

"Let go of me!" Jennifer pushed Catharine away vigorously. Catherine fell on the coffee table, "Gosh, you're everywhere!"

"Stay here if you dare!" Catherine lay on the sofa, watching Jennifer back as she went upstairs.

Ivan furrowed his brows and looked at his mother. Instead of helping Catherine, he stepped upstairs too.

Pippa cried, "You need to go to the hospital! Madam, let's go to the hospital!"

"No, I won't go to the hospital!" Aubree wouldn't allow anyone to see her ugly face. She wouldn't leave Kelsington Bay!

Overwhelmed by hatred, Aubree wished she could tear Jennifer to shreds!

Catherine was secretly excited in her heart. She was waiting to watch how Jennifer handle this.

"Auntie, are you alright?" Catherine hurried to Aubree's side, heartbroken, crouched down, and handed Aubree a glass of warm water. "Have some water. Maybe it helps."

Aubree took the cup and drank it reluctantly. She was disheartened. Her hopes were dashed. She was once sent back to hell. She'd rather die.

"I couldn't believe Jennifer did this. She's a demon." Catherine was pleased to see the chaos and she tried to make it worse. "How dare she do this? Ivan had made such a mistake to bring her here."

The itch was so torturous that she was mentally broken down. Pippa brought a wet towel to wipe her sweat.

Upstairs, in the lab, all the lights were on.

Jennifer quickly took out the utensils she had packed and studied the samples again. Her lips and brows were furrowed. She was racing against time.

"Why?" Ivan stood beside her and asked in a deep voice, "Hasn't the medicine been tested?"

Jennifer had no time to discern his emotions. "I don't know." Her voice was a little cold. "Now is not the time to decide whom to hold accountable. We need to stop it before it's too late."

Ivan looked at Jennifer from the side with mixed feelings.