

Surprised Wife With Twins (Ivan and Jennifer) Chapter 193

"Okay!" Catherine went to the car to get the camera.

Pippa and Aubree went upstairs to choose clothes.

Over the years, Aubree had basically been wearing long sleeves and wrapped herself tightly. So, she hasn't bought many clothes in these years. She didn't go out. She didn't look in the mirror.

"Madam, Mrs. Marsh's clothes are very beautiful," Pippa said to her.

Aubree said slightly, "Mrs. Marsh is Catherine, you have to remember that."

Pippa lowered her eyes without saying more.

Aubree looked at the dresses brought from Emerald Bay. There were all kinds of styles. All were mesmerizingly beautiful.

She asked Pippa for advice and they picked some of the dresses.

Catherine only sighed at Ivan's generosity. He actually bought Jennifer so many dresses! Even if she wore a new one at every event, she wouldn't be able to wear them all until like a decade had passed, right?

Catherine took care of Aubree's makeup and styling. She was a well-rounded woman.

Aubree changed into a short-sleeved dress. She had a pretty curvy figure. Her curly hair was embellished with an emerald hairpin.

There were some wrinkles at the corners of Aubree's eyes, which added to her charm as a mature woman when she smiled. Her whole being looked nostalgic.

When she was young, she must have been stunning.

Catherine was a good photographer. And she was patient.

"Auntie, please raise your chin a little bit, yes, it's just the right angle."

"Auntie, put your feet like this." Catherine did a demonstration, "It looks more casual this way."

Within two hours, Aubree changed four sets of clothes, and Catherine took nearly a hundred photos.

Aubree felt that Catherine had helped her regain her confidence. In the beginning, she was nervous. But in the end, she faced the camera very naturally.

The photos taken were all beautiful.

Pippa was moved to tears as she watched this.

Aubree had rejected even looking in the mirror since she was injured, but now she could face the camera confidently.

Catherine said that she would slightly revise the photos and print them into an album for her, which was exactly what Aubree wanted.

“Catherine, why don’t you sleep with me tonight?” Aubree took her hand and looked kindly, “We haven’t slept on the same bed for a long time.”

“Okay.” This was an honor for Catherine.

After taking a shower, she lay down on Aubree’s bed in Jennifer’s pajamas.

The main light was turned off, the bright moonlight penetrated through the window, and the evening wind brought the fragrance of flowers into the room, which released Catherine’s pain in the heart.

She guessed that Aubree would support her.

“Catherine.” Aubree recalled the past, “I have to thank you for your dedication to the Marsh Group over the years, and for Ivan. I am touched.”

“You raised me, I should be dedicated to the Marsh Group.” Catherine didn’t take credit for herself. She had always been very selfless. “As for what I have done Ivan, it is because I really like him.”

“Then would you like to marry him?”

“Yes.” That was Catherine’s dream. “But... he is married.” Every time she thought about it, her heart hurt.

“Jennifer has promised to leave him.” Aubree said, “If it weren’t for Ivan’s insistence on taking her to New York today, she would’ve taken a flight to Ottawa already.”

Catherine winced. “Really? She promised to leave?”

“Yes.” Aubree said, “When she comes back, I’ll ask Andrew to send her away. She’s not a good fit with Ivan, and, in my judgment of her, she’s not a simple girl. She had definitely approached Ivan for a reason.”

Hearing this, Catherine was happier than words could describe.

In the darkness, she pursed her lips and smiled.