

Surprised Wife With Twins (Ivan and Jennifer) Chapter 195

“Roger that!” Ivan smiled warmly, “You and Diana shall behave yourselves at home, alright?”

After a brief conversation, the children happily hung up the video call.

“Daddy owes Mommy a wedding.” Alfie asked, “Diana, have you imagined Mommy wearing a wedding dress?”

“She must be as beautiful as a fairy!” Diana fantasized, “I’m going to marry Daddy when I grow up!”

Alfie blinked his big eyes, “Can’t you marry me? When you grow up, daddy will be old! He said that I’m the heir to the Marsh Group! I can be as good as him, as tall and handsome as him!”

Diana laughed out loud, “Hahaha, marry you?”

“Is there a problem?”

Two cute little ones argued and played.

The moon set. Then the sun rose. The next morning, the sky was turning bright.

Catherine’s car drove out of the Kelsington Bay toward the Marsh Group.

The morning wind blew through the old locust trees on both sides of the asphalt road. White flowers were falling. The sunlight fell through the gaps in the leaves and dappled on the red Bentley.

Catherine was smiling, holding the steering wheel with both hands. Thinking of what Aubree had promised her, she felt better than ever.

Jennifer indeed cured Aubree.

But Aubree wouldn’t accept Jennifer!

Catherine felt like a winner, waiting for Ivan to come back with Jennifer.

She walked into the office with a smile on her face.

“Ms. Collins, you look exuberant today.” Linda was also very happy, “Have you gotten a big project?”

“Something better than that happened.” Catherine turned and leaned back on her desk, her hands wrapped around her chest, looking at Linda with a smile. She couldn’t help but share her joy. “I may have the chance to marry Mr. Marsh.”

Linda opened her mouth wide in surprise!

She didn’t know what was going on, but it seemed that this was a sure thing. “Congratulations in advance!”

Catherine laughed and then turned around, sat down in her chair, and started working. "Can you hand me the schedule for today?"

"Here you go." Linda got serious too.

In the sunny yard of Kelsington Bay.

Aubree was sitting alone on a sofa in the courtyard. Pippa left after making the tea.

The fresh morning breeze blew over with a faint fragrance of flowers. Aubree enjoyed the tea while looking at the blue sky and white clouds. There was a voice lingering in her heart.

Ivan, I hope you will understand it one day. Everything I did was for you.

The night view of New York was famous in the world.

When night fell, the city shone like a diamond.

Ivan came out with Jennifer tonight. They barely have the chance to be alone. They had dinner at the best local restaurant and took photos like a young couple newly in love.

He took her to an observation deck on the 100th floor to have a better look at New York.

"Wow!" The view made people feel humble.

The night wind was so strong that it flipped her skirt, messed up her hair, but also blew away her sorrow.

"It's so beautiful!"

Ivan clasped his fingers with hers. While she was looking at the night view, he was looking at her.

"Look! That's the Statue of Liberty!" Jennifer spotted it right away. It wasn't her first time in New York, but it was the first time she watched New York from this height.

"Yeah, you're right!" Ivan stood on the fence, "If we come here during the day, you can also see the river and harbor of Manhattan, which is about 80 miles away."

Jennifer rolled her eyes and looked at him, asking, "Have you ever come with her?"

"Who?" Ivan didn't understand.

"Who else could it be?" Jennifer raised her chin and tiptoed up to remind Ivan, "Otherwise, why are you so familiar with this place?"

Ivan was happy to see Jennifer jealous. Grabbing her shoulders, Ivan explained seriously, "Do you mean Catherine? I didn't come here with her. I was even alone when I made the keychain for you. I didn't take her."

From his eyes, Jennifer knew he was sincere.