

Surprised Wife With Twins (Ivan and Jennifer) Chapter 202

"Yes, I admit it." Catherine nodded. After hesitating for a moment, she added, "I also regret it extremely. If I hadn't done it that day, Jennifer would've never entered his world or given birth to his children."

Aubree raised her head, gazing at her.

Catherine continued, "I only wanted to gain his heart. I love him, but I don't know what I should do to make him love me back."

Thinking about her love for Ivan all over the years, Catherine smiled, but a hint of sorrow flashed across her eyes. "He never cares about me. I was afraid I wouldn't be able to be with the man I love even if I got old, so I planned to bind him down with our child. If I was pregnant, there would've been more hope."

Shockingly, Aubree was moved by her and understood her.

In her opinion, Catherine suffered the most because she couldn't get love from her beloved man.

"As long as I still love him and stay with him, my life won't be so terrible." Sadness was written all over Catherine's face.

"What about you tried to ruin my medicine a few days ago? Is that also because you love him?"

Aubree's eagle-sharp gaze was fixed on her. Catherine's heart thumped so fiercely that it almost popped out of her chest.

"I..." Under Aubree's gaze, Catherine couldn't utter any word. She inwardly cursed Jennifer as the latter said she wouldn't tell Aubree about it.

"If Andrew hadn't told me, I wouldn't have known I was so lucky to escape the disaster."

Andrew?

Meeting Aubree's harsh gaze, Catherine suddenly knelt down.

Pippa widened her eyes, gazing at Catherine in disgust.

She had never met anyone as evil as Catherine before.

"I'm sorry, Auntie." For a moment, Catherine's mind was blank. "I've been stupid. I didn't mean to harm you intentionally. You brought me up and gave me a wonderful life. I'll never forget it."

Raising her head, she added in frustration, "Auntie, please forgive me. I'll never do such foolish things again. I swear."

"Auntie Aubree..."

Aubree saw the tears streaming down her cheeks.

In her memories, Catherine never shed tears, as she had a tough spirit.

Aubree had never seen her cry.

Catherine's crocodile tears touched her again. After all, she raised Catherine. She made mistakes, so Aubree punished her. She also forgave Catherine as her mistake didn't cause severe consequences.

Tears welled up in Aubree's eyes. Seeing that, Catherine added hoarsely in a crying tone, "Even if there's a ray of hope that I can spend the rest of my life with Ivan, I'll be expectant for my life. Without him, my life makes no sense."

"Auntie, I love him so much that I've lost control. Please forgive me. I promise I won't be so stupid again in the future."

"I accept any punishments. You can also degrade me or kick me out of the company. Please don't let me leave Ivan..."

"Alas..." Aubree heaved a sigh. "Go home and reflect on yourself!" She seemed disappointed in Catherine but didn't want to fall out with her.

Watching Aubree stand up and leave, Catherine collapsed on the ground tearfully.

Pippa also turned around, following Aubree to the living room.

Catherine drove away from Kelsington Bay. Her brain almost exploded.

Pinching the steering wheel, she calmly stepped on the brake and pulled over the car on the roadside.

She felt aggrieved as no one could understand how much she loved Ivan.

If Aubree decided not to forgive her, Catherine wondered what she would do. She felt desperate.