

Surprised Wife With Twins (Ivan and Jennifer) Chapter 246

The room was in a terrible silence.

She stared nervously at the hand, not even daring to blink.

After a few more seconds, Ivan's hand clearly moved, and the movement was even bigger.

Catherine stood up and looked around excitedly, unable to make a sound for a long time.

She hadn't spoken in two months.

There was no one else in the ward at this time.

Ivan opened his eyes slowly, and the white ceiling came into view. He breathed calmly, feeling that the room was large and his heart empty.

Where was he?

He wanted to raise his hand but found that he had no strength. He was like in a dream.

Looking around, he saw Catherine staring at him. Their eyes met.

Time seemed to have stopped... She was crying.

"Ivan?" Hadn't spoken for a long time, Catherine couldn't find her voice. She was smiling with tears in her eyes.

Ivan looked at her, not knowing what was going on with her.

"Ivan..." Catherine choked. Her smile looked worse than crying. "You finally woke up..." She was so happy that she didn't know what to say. She wiped her tears vigorously.

Ivan frowned slightly, "Who are you?"

Catherine shuddered.

Looking at him, she felt overwhelmed.

Seeing that she didn't answer, Ivan asked again, "Who are you? Why did you cry?"

"Don't you remember me?" Catherine was stunned, and upset. "I'm scared. Stop joking with me."

Ivan looked around, his eyebrows furrowed, "Where am I?"

"Have you lost your memory?" Catherine asked in disbelief.

People could lose their memory if their heads were injured.

At this time, the ward door opened.

Pippa and Aubree walked in, and Rowan came too, followed by several doctors.

Everyone was shocked to see Ivan awake.

Ivan was puzzled. He glanced at everyone, from the doctor on the far right to Rowan on the left.

Of all these people, he knew only Rowan.

"Rowan." Eventually, he set his sights on Rowan, "Am I in the hospital?"

"Ivan..." Aubree burst into tears of excitement, her body trembling, "Are you awake?" She swooped down on the bed and grabbed Ivan's hand, "Great! You've finally woken up!"

Ivan, however, pulled his hand out like having an electric shock and stared at Aubree warily.

Aubree was stunned. Teary eyes, the smile on her face froze. "What's wrong?"

"Auntie, he..." At this moment, Catherine said with trembling lips. "He seems to have amnesia, he doesn't remember me, and he probably doesn't remember you either."

"Amnesia? But he knows Rowan!" Aubree didn't believe it.

At this point, a word came into Rowan's mind. "Selective amnesia".

Rowan stepped forward to the bed. Pippa held Aubree so that she wouldn't fall.

"Do you remember who you are?" Rowan looked seriously at Ivan and asked directly.

Everyone was nervous.

Ivan struggled to recall what had happened.

Why was he in the hospital?

He seemed to have been lying for a long time. Her body was sour. He had no strength at all.

Why was he in the hospital?

He kept thinking and vaguely remembered a truck rushing towards him and then he was sent flying.

After a heavy fall, his mind went blank.

As for why he was on the road and why he was hit, he could not remember at all.

"Stop thinking about what happened." Rowan nervously reminded him, looking at Ivan with a pained expression. "It'll give you a headache. Just stop. You are having selective amnesia."