

Surprised Wife With Twins (Ivan and Jennifer) Chapter 255

"You didn't like her at all, but in order to give the children a complete home, you decided to date her. In fact, she cheated not long after. That bitch betrayed you.

Ivan leaned back slowly in his chair, deep in thought.

"Ivan, it was because of her that you had a car accident. You saw her enter the hotel with another man, and wanted to chase after her for some evidence, but..."

"In short, Ivan, she is not a decent woman. Since you've forgotten her, then let it be." Aubree said bitterly, "Catherine is your fiancée. If it weren't for the sudden appearance of these two children, you and Catherine would have been married a long time ago."

Ivan took a sip of tea, his eyes cold.

"You grew up together. You had a lot of good memories. You knew each other very well. you asked Finnley to prepare a wonderful wedding. You said you were going to marry her."

"I don't want to get married yet." His deep voice was filled with determination.

"It would bring you good luck after such an accident. You like each other. You help each other in work." Aubree whispered softly and comforted, "Let the past be the past. I've never asked you for anything but the wedding must not be delayed any further."

That night, Ivan lost sleep.

He couldn't remember the mother of the children. Catherine was also strange to him.

When his mind went blank, Aubree announced the news that Ivan was getting married.

And the preparations for the wedding are also in full swing...

The media began to report on it. Aubree was putting pressure on Ivan.

The next morning.

Emerald Bay.

The children were having breakfast in the dining room. Diana took a sip of the milk, "Alfie, do you think Daddy can eat now?"

"I don't know. I feel sorry for him."

"It says that people who lose their memories aren't able to trust people. They will feel alone."

"So will Daddy be suspicious of what we said too?"

"He'll trust his judgment."

“Daddy!” Diana saw the man at the door.

Ivan walked toward them, “Good morning.” He heard all the conversations just now.

“Good morning.”

The children still felt a sense of distance. Ivan’s presence was just too strong.

He only remembered that the children were his. But he had no feeling toward them.

And last night Aubree told him that the two children were the result of the woman’s trick.

It gave Ivan a headache. He couldn’t believe that he would be fooled.

Alfie and Diana didn’t know what Ivan was going to do. Before he sat down, he wanted to say something but then he just left without a word.

It made the little ones confused.

“Dad is a different person now.”

“This is just what people are like when they lose their memories...” Alfie was worried. “How do we help him retrieve his memory?”

On the way to the office, Ivan looked out the window of the Lamborghini. “What is the name of Alfie and Diana’s mom, Hank?”

Hank was in a cold sweat. He didn’t know how to answer the question. Aubree had warned them not to say a word.

“It seems... seems to be Jennifer.”

“You’re not sure?”

“She doesn’t have much to do with you, and she doesn’t live here. I haven’t seen her, so I am not sure.”

“I called her Jennie, right?” Ivan had some impression of this name.

“Sorry, I’m not sure.”

...

He didn’t ask anymore. The name Jennifer was deep in his mind. Who was she?

The Lamborghini stopped at the entrance of the Marsh Group.

At this time, Catherine had just entered the elevator. When the door was closed, she looked at herself in the elevator mirror. She was vigorous, exquisite, and elegant.

She looked forward to the arrival every morning to see her beloved Ivan.

She was getting married. She felt like a dream. She was in a good mood.

She was always smiling during the days.

When Ivan walked into his office, Finnley happened to come out, "Mr. Marsh, good morning."

"Come here." Ivan sat down in his chair and looked up at Finnley. "What is the Jennifer you know like? Tell the truth, or I'll fire you."