

Surprised Wife With Twins (Ivan and Jennifer) Chapter 259

Aubree said, "In short, the marriage mustn't be postponed. Weren't it for the car accident, you and Catherine would have been married a long time ago."

"My only wish is to watch you get married!"

"Catherine is a good girl. She gave her youth to the company."

Ivan frowned, if she threatened him by refusing to take the medicine, then the marriage was settled.

Ivan left without anything else.

Pippa, who had been silent, looked at Ivan's lonely back, feeling sorry for him.

Aubree's cold gaze landed on Pippa's face until the Lamborghini drove away.

Pippa looked back and saw that Aubree was staring at her with a weird look.

Their eyes met. Aubree warned, "Pippa, I know you like Jennifer. But she is now Spencer's woman, do you think it is possible for her to come back to the Marsh family?"

Pippa shook her head with a headache. "Madam, I'll go to work." With that, she left too.

Aubree was a woman with a strong possessiveness.

She was once hurt in love. So, she no longer believed in love.

To be loved was happier than to love.

As a mother, Aubree wished Ivan to live a happy and stable life.

Jennifer's identity was a mystery. No one knew who her parents were. She lived in the village, but she was a top pharmacist. She was dangerous.

Catherine was like blank paper. And she was loyal to the Marsh family.

News of Ivan's wedding to Catherine next month was still spreading online.

Jennifer saw it too.

It was the only news about him she saw online during the three months.

Ivan was going to marry Catherine...

In the evening, at Emerald Bay.

Alfie and Diana were still in kindergarten.

Jordan and Marry were trimming the flowers and grass in the yard. They also saw the news about the wedding.

Marry had been worried. Jordan sighed, "Don't bother. You'll get sick. But nothing would be changed."

"I just wanted to tell Mr. Marsh that the person he loves is Ms. Brooks. They've gotten married!" Marry was really anxious. "Isn't it against the laws if he marries Ms. Collins again?"

"Madam will handle this matter, and it is not difficult to get a divorce certificate." Jordan sighed again, "You know he's amnesiac. Even if you tell him the truth, He couldn't remember Ms. Brooks. And where is Ms. Brooks now? Even if we find her, she is just a stranger to Mr. Marsh."

This was what depressed Marry.

Jordan said, "You want Mr. Marsh to go to her again? What if there is another accident? Would he be blessed this time? No one is lucky each time. Who can take the responsibility if anything happens?"

Marry gritted her teeth and went on trimming the plants. She could only let out her anger in this way.

"Madam had even talked with Finnley. Now people who know the story all have the same version to tell. Once the lie is told too many times, Mr. Marsh will think it is true. He wouldn't believe us. Madam would fire us if we dare to tell the truth. If we leave, who can take care of the children?"

"Yeah, at least we won't let Ms. Collins treat the children badly."

Jordan said, "So let's take care of the children and care about nothing else. This may be the best ending. If Ms. Brooks and the children didn't show up, Ms. Collins would become Mr. Marsh's wife all the same. Do you feel a little more comfortable thinking this way?"

"Alas..." Marry just felt it a pity.

In the private car from the Bright Star Kindergarten, Alfie and Diana were discussing countermeasures in whispers.

"We can't let Daddy marry that woman." Alfie's tone was firm.