

Surprised Wife With Twins (Ivan and Jennifer) novel

Chapter 27

She froze for a moment. What did he mean?

"You can go back to the village, do whatever you want, and come over to look after the children at any time." Ivan seemed to have thought it over.

Jennifer couldn't figure out what he was thinking. Was he going to drive her away?

"So... Will we divorce?" She asked softly.

Ivan knocked lightly on her forehead and said in a low voice, "Have you listened to me carefully? Did I say anything about divorce just now?"

"..." Jennifer lifted her head in his arms, and she could vaguely see his face.

There's nothing wrong with this. It was meaningless for her to stay here all day doing nothing.

The next morning.

Jennifer woke up very early. She found that she was still lying in his arms, and he still remained the same posture as he did last night.

By the dawn light, she got up carefully without waking him.

Going downstairs, she went to the kitchen.

As soon as Jennifer left, Ivan woke up. He changed his clothes and went to the next room, giving himself an intravenous injection.

There were no emotions in his deep eyes. There was a reason for asking her to leave.

The decoration of the restaurant downstairs was stylish and exquisite.

When Jennifer came out of the kitchen with the last two bowls of noodles, she saw Ivan get on the Lamborghini through the French window. After closing the door for him, the driver returned to his seat and soon drove away.

She specially cooked four bowls of noodles, but he...

Somehow, when she thought about what Ivan said last night, she felt a little uneasy. Would he take the children away from her?

On the way to the company, Ivan took out his mobile phone and called. He said in a low voice, "From today on, pay close attention to my wife and report her whereabouts to me every night."

After breakfast, Mary gave the new book bag to the children and said happily, "Master Alfie, Lady Diana, you're going to the new kindergarten tomorrow. What else do you need to prepare? I'll go upstairs with you to put things in order!"

"Mommy!" Alfie ran up to Jennifer with a clear and beautiful voice. "Will dad have time to take us to the new kindergarten tomorrow?"

"I don't know. Daddy is a little busy recently."

"I want daddy and mommy to take us!" Alfie said firmly, "We have a father now! We can't let new classmates laugh at us!"

Diana shook her hand and said, "Mommy, you're going together too, with daddy!"

Touching the children's small heads, Jennifer smiled and nodded, "OK, hurry up with Mary to pack up your schoolbags!"

The children went upstairs happily. Looking at the two lovely figures, she felt a little worried.

She hesitated and then picked up her mobile phone to call Ivan.

After getting through, Ivan didn't speak. She said softly, "Tomorrow is the first day for the children to go to school. They want to go there with me and you, so... can I leave the day after tomorrow?"

"I'm not driving you away." Ivan said calmly, "I just don't want to restrain you anymore. You are free, understand? You can either leave or stay."

"..." She became silent. Did he mean that?

"As long as you can do the things in our agreement." Ivan stressed again, "As Mrs. Marsh, you must not have any scandals. I don't want to see anything harmful to the reputation of our family happen. I care about this."

After that, Ivan hung up the phone directly.

Jennifer suddenly had a hunch. Was he wary of her?

Did he let her go to monitor her better?

Jennifer calmly analyzed. She could understand his psychological change. Ivan was like the king above all the others in Arkpool City, who had burdened too many expectations and responsibilities. He had to be super careful.