

Surprised Wife With Twins (Ivan and Jennifer) Chapter 320

Linda felt that Catherine became an utterly different woman when regarding her love.

Is love really poisonous? Can it swallow a person's soul?

Catherine was independent, outstanding, ambitious, and brilliant, an idol of countless women.

However, she was bothered by her love, which made Linda feel that she was no longer the woman she used to be.

Bright Star Kindergarten.

Several buildings with a modern architectural style sparkled under the sunlight.

The Lamborghini entered the VIP passage and quietly parked in the basement parking lot.

Instead of unbuckling her seat belt, Jennifer sat on the passenger's seat in silence under the dim light.

Ivan turned to stare at her, whose familiar face made him feel peaceful and calm.

Jennifer's skin was perfect and shiny white as she seldom put on makeup.

"Don't beat him," Jennifer muttered when feeling his gaze, "When your memories return, you'll regret it."

Her words furrowed Ivan's brows slightly. His gaze on her face became cold and solemn.

She turned to look into his eyes. "You care about him a lot. What you have between you two is unique, and it's difficult for you to imagine it now."

Their gazes met.

Jennifer added, "When I first met him, we were dating in an amusement park. Catherine called you and told you something had happened to him."

Ivan didn't have any impression about it, so he was all his ears.

"You instantly took me to the police station. I had never seen you so worried for another person. You two dislike each other, and yet care about each other too."

The more Ivan listened to her, the more upset he became. He didn't have the mood to talk about Spencer.

Hence, he parted his lips. "If you want me to show mercy to him, you can shut up now." Jennifer could tell how much he detested Spencer.

She was annoyed, wondering if he didn't listen to her at all.

She unbuckled the seat belt and was about to get off the car.

However, Ivan seized her wrist and dragged her back to face him.

The next second, he pressed the back of her head and captured her tender lips.

Jennifer's eyes widened instantly.

Ivan couldn't help but kiss her. Then he deepened it, savoring her taste.

Jennifer struggled by instinct as she was frightened.

They were in the basement parking lot, and others could easily see them.

She panicked as she refused to appear in the headlines again.

However, the more she struggled, the more excited he became.

Ivan locked her up in his arms, squeezing her. He was enveloped by her scent, which made him obsessed and calmed him down at the same time.

Jennifer struggled hard, hitting him repeatedly. "Hmm... Hmm..."

When he finally pulled away and let her go, she exhaled and escaped from the car.

Ivan immediately got off the car, curling his lips into a satisfying smile.

Suddenly, all the lights in the basement parking lot were switched on. Meanwhile, Ivan propped his arms on her shoulder. They appeared like a loving couple in others' sight.

A group of teachers and the headmaster welcomed them with a banner in front. They lined up with joyful smiles.

Then they applauded.

Jennifer realized that they had just witnessed their kiss in the car.

Her heart skipped a beat. She felt embarrassed and baffled.

Ivan squeezed her to his side, looking gentle.

"Welcome, Mr. Marsh and Ms. Brooks. Congratulations! You've won the most loving family in our kindergarten. We look forward to you sharing your secrets of keeping a happy family."

Another applause sounded.

Ivan beamed at them, and Jennifer cast down her eyes.

Alfie said they had won the first prize because of the love in their eyes, but she wondered if it was because she and Ivan were good-looking instead.

Anyway, their family's photo got the first place among several hundred photos.

"Mr. Marsh, Ms. Brooks, this way, please."

Ivan strode forward while holding her.

Feeling like acting awkwardly, Jennifer had to wear a smile as she couldn't disgrace their children.
