

Surprised Wife With Twins (Ivan and Jennifer) Chapter 323

Meanwhile, the parents were still watching Ivan and Jennifer. Under their expectant gazes, Jennifer couldn't give him a negative answer.

"Jennie, will you marry me?" Ivan asked sincerely, staring at her.

Jennifer answered in a dreamy voice, "Yes."

As soon as her answer fell from her lips, there was thunderous applause from the audience. Jennifer glanced at them and was brought back to her senses.

She kept reminding her that it was just an event in the kindergarten for their children, which wasn't real.

Ivan stood up, hugging her gently. "Thank you, Jennie."

Then he exchanged a few words with Alfie and Diana. The children waved at them goodbye. Ivan squeezed her to his side and quickly took her out of the kindergarten.

"Are we leaving like this?" Jennifer asked, still in a daze.

"Or what?" Ivan chuckled gently, "Do you want to go through the wedding ceremony too?"

She blushed, pressing her lips in silence.

Ivan's phone rang. Ivan pulled it out, checked the caller ID, and hung it up.

Soon, it rang again. He ignored it.

In the basement parking lot, he pulled the passenger's door open for her gentlemanly. "Get in."

They heard his phone's ringtone again.

"Your phone is ringing," Jennifer reminded him.

Ivan pulled his phone out, checked the caller ID, and hung it up again.

When he started the engine, his phone rang again. Seemingly there was something urgent.

He checked the phone records. Kelsington Bay had called him a dozen times, but he didn't answer.

"Why don't you answer it?" Jennifer asked.

"Not in the mood."

The Lamborghini was driven out of the parking lot and left the kindergarten.

He said, "Jennifer, I meant what I said. You said yes to my proposal, so you must distance yourself from Spencer."

Jennifer didn't answer.

Five minutes later, Ivan's phone rang again.

"Go ahead and answer it." She looked at him. "They kept calling you. There must be something urgent."

Ivan thought his mother must have seen the news online, so she called him to ask what had happened. He didn't think it was necessary to explain, so he ignored the calls.

"I was serious on the stage." While driving, he darted at her. "It's not acting."

Casting down her eyes, Jennifer played with her fingers. "What do you plan to deal with the matter, then?"

"Nothing," he answered, "Let's confront it together. It's our own lives. We can do whatever we want."

His words made her feel secure.

He hadn't recalled anything before, but he seemed to decide to marry her.

They heard the ringing tone of his phone again. "Too noisy. Answer it," Jennifer bit out, feeling irritated.

"I'll turn it off." Ivan pulled the phone out. When he checked the caller ID, he saw Jordan's name.

In a hurry, he swiped to answer.

Jordan reported, "Hello, Mr. Marsh. Madam Aubree didn't feel well suddenly and was sent to the hospital. Her life is in danger."

Ivan ended the call, his heart tightening.

Jennifer could tell his abnormality. "What's wrong?"

Ivan realized that her intuition was correct. He asked gently, "Where are you going next?"

"Where are you going?" Jennifer's hunch told her that something was wrong.

"My mother is under rescue in the hospital. Jordan called me just now."

Jennifer believed it must be urgent.

She said, "Drop me off here. I can go home myself." In that case, he could save time for the hospital.

"Won't you go with me?" Ivan felt depressed. "You said you would marry me. We have children. Aren't you going with me?"

Jennifer was baffled by his logic.

"I can't just drop you off somewhere at random. I'll be worried." Ivan kept driving. "I'm afraid I don't have enough time to send you back. After all, my mother is lying in the emergency room."

The emergency room?

Jennifer was worried. "I'll go with you, then."

Gripping the steering wheel, Ivan held her hand with the other one. "All right." He felt at ease and secure at this moment.

Jennifer stared at his side face, wondering if she was still dreaming.

The hospital.

Aubree was in an emergency. Pippa and several bodyguards were waiting outside the emergency room. They called Ivan earlier but failed to reach him. They all panicked, wondering what to do.

When the elevator door opened, Ivan and Jennifer appeared in their sight, hand-in-hand.