

Surprised Wife With Twins (Ivan and Jennifer) Chapter 334

He took her hand again, fingers intertwined. "Follow me." He pulled open the door and take her to the stairwell.

Spencer was still sitting on the stairs drinking, looking sad.

Hearing the footsteps, Spencer felt so sad that even alcohol couldn't paralyze him anymore.

Spencer calmed his mind, got up, and turned around, his eyes falling on the hands of the two of them holding together.

Jennifer instinctively wanted to break free. She didn't want to provoke Spencer, but Ivan held her tighter.

Spencer pursed his lips, "Come down." Then he went downstairs.

Ivan put his arm around Jennifer's shoulder and walked down with her.

Downstairs in the living room.

Spencer said to Jennifer, "Go with him. You guys are young, be brave, and go love him. Don't live the rest of your life in regrets." As he finished speaking, he poured the whisky into his throat.

Jennifer was shocked. She never expected him to say such a thing.

Didn't Spencer want to take away everything that Ivan had?

"It's raining less heavily, Tammy, take the umbrella and send them out." Spencer looked at the middle-aged woman not far away, slightly drunk, "Pack up your things another day."

"Spencer..." Jennifer was touched and could feel his sadness.

"Leave before I change my mind." Spencer looked at them, his eyes suddenly cold, and the smile on the corner of his lips turned a little colder, "Tammy, now!"

His tone startled Jennifer. Ivan put his arm around her shoulders, giving her enough security.

Tammy picked up a large black umbrella and open it in the living room doorway.

Ivan didn't say many thanks, he had mixed feelings about Spencer.

Putting his arm around Jennifer's shoulders, he turned and took her away.

Jennifer looked back and saw Spencer gulping down the whisky again.

Tammy went out with the umbrella.

"Don't let him drink too much." Jennifer took Spencer as a young brother.

“Don’t worry. I’ll remind him.”

Ivan opened the car door. Jennifer turned to look at him and saw the determination in his eyes.

The moment Jennifer got into the car; she knew she was going to be with him in the future no matter what was waiting for them.

Ivan closed the car door for her.

He also got into the car and quickly started the engine.

They drove away from Spencer’s villa and onto a new journey.

Jennifer looked out the car window and glanced at the villa where she had stayed for one last time.

Her feelings were complicated. She didn’t say goodbye to Tammy properly, nor did she thank Spencer.

Under the storm, the Lamborghini was heading towards Emerald Bay.

“I’ll treat you well,” Ivan promised, “I will not let you be sad, nor will I let you leave again.”

Jennifer could feel his determination. She was touched. But there were a lot of problems in front of them. They should solve them one by one.

Jennifer worried that Ivan would regret his decision today once he remembered everything.

After being together under the same roof for so long, Jennifer knew how hard it was to deal with Aubree.

Along the way, Ivan didn’t speak. The car eventually stopped at Emerald Bay.

Jordan came to the yard and opened the cab door, “Mr. Marsh, welcome home.” Seeing Jennifer, Jordan was pleasantly surprised.

Ivan got out of the car and went around the car to open the car door for Jennifer, helped out carefully”

“Hello, Ms. Brooks!” Jordan saluted respectfully with a smile on his face.

“Hello, Jordan,” Jennifer said lightly. They hadn’t seen each other for quite a while. But the amicable feelings didn’t change.

Ivan put his arm around Jennifer’s shoulders and led her toward the living room. They looked like a couple deeply in love with each other.

Jordan was slightly confused by this intimacy. The wedding of Ivan and Catherine was in three days...

Who would he choose?