

Surprised Wife With Twins (Ivan and Jennifer) Chapter 361

Pippa went upstairs, leaving Ivan and Jennifer alone in the living room.

The lighting on the roof gilded the furniture.

Ivan held Jennifer's shoulders, gazing at her with deep affection. He leaned down and gently pressed his forehead against hers. "I'm sorry for what happened today."

"Don't say that. We've sworn to face everything together." Jennifer was determined. "Whatever happens in the future, and whatever your mother's attitude is, I won't leave you anymore."

Hearing this, Ivan felt at ease.

With a warm feeling in his heart, he couldn't help but take her into his arms. "Thank you, darling."

Jennifer reached out and wrapped her arms around Ivan's waist, gently pressing her cheek against his warm chest. Listening to his heartbeat, she also felt at ease.

Pippa went upstairs and quickly tidied up a bedroom. She was over the moon.

"Mr. and Mrs. Marsh!" At the corner of the stairs, Pippa poked half her head. "The room is ready!" Pippa rejoiced at seeing them embracing each other.

Happiness was indeed contagious.

Ivan let go of Jennifer, took her hand, looked deep into her eyes, then clasped her hand in his and led her upstairs.

Pippa stood on the stairs, waiting for them with great satisfaction.

"It's getting late, Pippa. Get some rest." Ivan walked to Pippa and said in a gentle voice, "Don't tell my mother about our arrival. We'll tell her tomorrow, and don't forget to prepare our breakfast."

"Yes, Mr. Marsh!" Pippa was very excited.

With a smile, Pippa watched Ivan and Jennifer get upstairs until they disappeared into the corner.

Only then did Pippa turn around.

Just as she was about to go back to her bedroom, the door to a room not far away opened and Aubree appeared in the doorway.

Pippa stopped at once and looked Aubree in the eye, trying to calm her voice. "Madam, what can I do for you?"

Aubree saw the Lamborghini parked downstairs.

She didn't say anything, just looking at Pippa with a cold gaze.

Aubree wondered why Pippa didn't inform her of Ivan's arrival. Aubree was a little annoyed.

"Mr. Marsh and Miss Brooks are here now." Pippa walked towards Aubree and said with a smile on her lips, "They will spend tonight here. Given that you were asleep, they didn't ask me to wake you up. They specially told me to prepare their breakfast tomorrow."

Aubree was a bit surprised. "They will stay here tonight?" This was completely out of her expectation.

She couldn't even remember the last time Ivan spent the night here.

With a nod, Pippa reached out and pointed to the door of Ivan's room. From where she stood, Ivan really changed a lot.

"Good night, Madam Aubree." Pippa took a bow and then waved her hand. "You'd better get an early rest." Turning away happily, Pippa hoped that Aubree could be moved as well.

Pippa was a kind girl who had watched many romantic films, so she wanted nothing but a happy ending between Ivan and Jennifer.

Pippa got up early the next morning.

She figured out what to make for breakfast when she washed up. Humming to herself, she came downstairs, only to be startled by Aubree, who was sitting on the sofa!

Madam Aubree?

Pippa paused in her steps and then quickly walked to Aubree. "Madam Aubree, why are you up so early?"

"Insomnia." Aubree was wearing a long purple dress today, looking elegant and graceful.

Pippa got closer to her. "You stayed up all night ... or did you just get up?" Pippa asked as she stared carefully at Aubree.

Aubree looked up at her and remained silent, which meant she wasn't going to answer.

"Then I'll go and make breakfast." Despite a good mood, Pippa put up a serious look. "Is there anything you want to eat?"

"Whatever." Aubree did not want to eat anything. Instead, she was waiting for Ivan and Jennifer to get up.

Aubree was curious about what they would say.
