

Surprised Wife With Twins (Ivan and Jennifer) Chapter 364

Staring at the phone screen, for a moment, Catherine felt that the whole world had become colorless.

She had expected Ivan's not coming.

But to her sadness, Aubree didn't come as well.

Did it mean that Aubree compromised?

Would she approve of Jennifer?

Thinking of this, Catherine couldn't help trembling. Seeing this, Linda got nervous.

Linda hurriedly took the phone from Catherine. "Miss Collins, however good Mr. Marsh is, you will meet a better one in the future. All you need do is pull yourself together!"

"No, I won't find a better one." Catherine sneered. "I will not fall in love with anyone else. I'm all dead inside."

The tears trickling down Catherine's cheeks made Linda overwhelmed.

"I love him..." Catherine cried and said, "I love him more than anyone else. I live for him every single day!"

Linda didn't know how to comfort Catherine; crying might make her feel better.

In Kelsington Bay, the sun was shining and the birds are singing.

Jennifer was still having breakfast in the dining hall.

Jennifer made a bowl of noodles for Ivan, and he had already finished them.

This reduced Aubree's inner conflict against Jennifer by one more point.

"Now that you are a doctor, why not make a kind of stomach medicine for him?" Aubree said, "Then you don't have to cook yourself either."

"I will." Jennifer looked into Aubree's eyes and replied softly, "That will be what I'll be doing next."

Ivan didn't take what Jennifer had previously made for him, so Jennifer just needed to make the same medicine for him.

"Mom." Ivan said in a gentle voice, "My memory has recovered."

Ivan wanted to share this good news with Aubree.

Something flashed in Aubree's eyes as she stared at him, "Since when?" Aubree was afraid that Ivan was lying as Jennifer asked.

“Before the wedding. And I remembered everything,” Ivan said seriously.

Aubree took a deep breath, awed by the twist of fate.

Everything was back to normal.

“I got only one condition. She can’t work as the vice president.” Aubree didn’t compromise on this at all.

Ivan didn’t compromise on what he was determined to do, either.

Aubree wouldn’t and couldn’t intervene in the business at all.

Therefore, Ivan didn’t say anything.

Jennifer knew what he meant. Now that the talk had reached a deadlock, they’d better put it aside for the time being.

Besides, Jennifer was also resistant to being the vice president.

She did not want to interfere with the company’s affairs so that she could minimize the scandal online. Jennifer was not short of money, and she did not care about glory or fame.

“Mom.” Ivan stood up, “I’m going to take Jennifer on a trip around as a honeymoon, so we won’t have dinner at home tonight.”

With that, he took Jennifer’s hand.

Jennifer also stood up. Ivan wrapped his arm around her shoulder. “Let’s go.”

“Goodbye, Madam Aubree.” Jennifer was still polite to Aubree.

As Aubree watched them leave, she was a little lost in thought.

Pippa leaned against the door of the living room, watching them get into the car with a smile until the car drove away.

She did admire Ivan’s love for Jennifer.

Ivan loved Jennifer so much that he was willing to change for her.

“Where are we going?” Jennifer sat in the passenger seat and turned to ask Ivan.

“Go to the surrounding towns by train, and try to be ordinary again with you.” Ivan missed it when Jennifer took him on a train trip. He clearly remembered anything that had happened during that period.