

Surprised Wife With Twins (Ivan and Jennifer) Chapter 366

Before Finnley opened this door, he had imagined what might happen.

It was up to her whether she would leave or not. He was just telling her what Mr. Marsh had said.

Catherine and then she suddenly tore the air ticket apart.

Before Finnley could do anything, she also tore the indemnity agreement apart, her face so sinister that it looked as if she were going to kill Finnley.

Then she threw the scraps into the air, which then fell on their hair, their shoulder, and finally onto the ground.

The whole world collapsed before her mind's eyes. Finally, she put a forced smile on her face, "Just go. I don't want to see you again."

Finnley and Linda both felt a bit surprised. They thought she would cry loudly. But now she looked quite sober and calm, "Both of you, leave me alone."

Linda remained silent.

Before Finnley left, he still chose to remind her again, "You can't get into the building. Mr. Marsh had told the guards not to let you in. For your own sake, don't piss him off."

Then he left.

After he left, Catherine looked at Linda and said with a twisted smile on face, "You should go with him. Don't stay with me, or Ivan will get you fired too."

She knew it better than anyone else how bad Linda needed this job.

"I won't leave," Linda shook her head, "It's still holiday now. I'll stay with you."

For Linda, Catherine was her real friend. As the vice president of the company, Catherine had given her a lot of help when Linda started her career years ago.

Catherine wasn't the kind of manager who liked to bully newcomers. She treated Linda quite well.

And Linda was quite grateful to her.

On the train towards Kingyo Town, Jennifer was sitting beside the window with her eyes fixed on the scenery beyond the window.

Ivan was sitting beside her. They were dressed plainly, but after a while they were still recognized by someone else.

"Aren't you Mr. and Mrs. Marsh?"

Their wedding had been in the headlines for several days and they didn't do anything to hide their identities.

Ivan and Jennifer looked upwards and saw a group of people with a plain smile on their faces, "It's Mr. and Mrs. Marsh! What a coincidence! How fortunate we are!"

"You look so good together!"

"Best wishes to you, Mr. and Mrs. Marsh!"

"My daughter worked for the Marsh Group.

Ivan stood up to kindly remind them, "Please get back to your own seat. It's too dangerous to stand here."

Jennifer also stood up and said, "Thank you for your wishes! Thank you so much!"

"Why are you riding a train not your private plane, Mr. Marsh?"

"Maybe because it's more romantic!"

Jennifer said worriedly, "Please get a seat! It's too dangerous to remain standing on a moving train!"

Ivan also continued, "Please get back to your seat! It's also my fortune to travel together with you! But for your safety, please get back to your seat first. Thank you so much!"

The group of people finally got back to their own seats reluctantly and soon they arrived at their destination.

Ivan got off the train with Jennifer's hand in his.

With no luggage, they immersed themselves in their two's own world.

Jennifer just followed her lover without asking where to go.

Then Ivan led her to an ice rink, where the melodious music and the light projected onto the ice together created a fascinating world. Young couple were here and there dancing on the ice hand-in-hand.

The passion and vigor in the room evoked their memories as teenagers.

"I didn't know you can skate," Jennifer stared at him surprisedly. It wasn't the kind of sport that a CEO of a company would like to play.
