

Surprised Wife With Twins (Ivan and Jennifer) Chapter 370

Spencer wrote another email to invite StaRise to meet offline.

Then he heard the crowd discussing beside him.

“StaRise must be charmed by Mr. Lawrance!”

“Yeah. Now Mr. Lawrance is so famous. Maybe StaRise is also a fan of his.”

The director said quickly, “I still feel nervous. Be quick to meet her offline.”

Not far from here, Georgia was sitting on her deck chair and her assistant was applying sunscreen for her. She was also listening to their discussion.

When she looked at the handsome face, her heart also began to beat fast.

He was writing an email. And that made him look even more charming.

Was StaRise a female?

This name sounded like a girl’s name. But someone in the industry once said that StaRise might be a male.

Indeed, a mysterious person.

Now StaRise was the most famous dubber. But she accepted Spencer’s invitation without even checking the script.

It must be due to Spencer himself.

Jennifer had got married with Ivan and she was no obstacle for Georgia anymore.

If StaRise was a pretty girl and Spencer fell in love with her, Georgia would fail again.

In the tavern in the small town.

Ivan was sitting in front of Jennifer. He took another sip of wine with his eyes fixed on her pretty face.

Jennifer stared at her phone and then at her husband, “He invites me to meet offline. When will we get back to Arkpool?”

“Maybe tomorrow afternoon,” said Ivan, “You can ask him to meet on the morning tomorrow afternoon. I still have something to show you tomorrow.”

“Okay.”

Then she began to write another email. Ivan looked at her and felt quite so comfortable.

“What if I had met you earlier?”

She looked at him and was stunned a bit, "But it's still not late now."

Then they both smiled and looked into each other's eyes affectionately.

On the shooting site.

All the present felt relieved as StaRise had agreed to meet Spencer offline.

But Georgia began to feel nervous. Why was StaRise so eager to meet Spencer?

"Then it's on you, Spencer," the director patted his shoulder, "Though she has accepted, we still need her to sign the contract."

"Don't bother. I'll let her sign."

"You can give her whatever she wants," the director said smilingly, "We just need her help."

"I know."

The director turned to the crowd, "Now let's continue!"

The lifestyle in small town was quite different from that in the city.

As the couple came out of the tavern with each other's hand in hand and walked on the slate-paved lane, they felt as if they had got out of the noise of the city.

They had a buffet at the town together.

Ivan didn't eat too much. But he still had a taste under her persuasion. For him, it was a unique taste.

They drank each other's juice.

They rode a small boat together on the small river this afternoon.

They walked down the road while chatting with a bottle of coke in hand in the evening.

They soon got tired and spent a night at the town.

The next day Ivan took Jennifer to the schools and university he had studied in.

They took a few photos of the schools and he told her about the stories when he was young.

Young couples passed them.

Ivan and Jennifer were sitting on the playground, listening to the same song together.

"Did you date with any girl when you were in school?" Jennifer turned to him curiously in the breeze.